FAVORABLE TO CASHMAN TARIFF BILL

Senate Railroad Committee Votes to Recommend Its Passage.

C. P. Craig Urges $350,000 Agricultural Building at State Fair.

Senator Pugh Says County Division Bill Will Not Pass Senate.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—By a vote of 11 to 6 the senate railroad committee, at the conclusion of a series of public hearings lasting nearly a month, voted to recommend for passage the Cashman distance tariff bill.

Those who voted against the bill stated afterward that they would not make a minority report against the measure, being content to let it go before the senate for its consideration.

The action of the committee is not particularly significant, as it was believed at the beginning of the session that its membership was such that nearly the full committee would be in favor of the bill.

There will be one of the most interesting contests of the session when the bill comes up for action in the senate, and the chances are against its passage.

BIG BUILDING IS WRECKED

New Six-Story Block in Winnipeg Collapses Early in Morning.

One Person Killed, Seventy-Five Rescued in Their Night Clothes.

Winnipeg, Man., Feb. 15.—Seventy-five persons, most of them in their night clothing, were rescued from the collapsed Nares block early this morning. Mrs. John McLeavy, 75 years old, was fatally injured by falling debris.

The wreck of the new six-story building was the result of adjacent building operations. There were twelve suites occupied and sixteen rooms on the top floor which young women clerks slept in. The building is in the center of the city.

Constable Hamilton, the watchman for the Bank of Commerce, heard the timbers supporting the building creaking, and gave an alarm. Most of the occupants of the block were rescued by the police, who carried them from the building to the street. As it was, they had a thrilling time getting the people out. As soon as the women occupants realized the danger they were in, they started screaming and shouting from sheer terror, and had practically to be dragged out.

Mrs. McLeavy was struck by falling debris; received a deep cut on the knee, and her neck was badly gashed. She was rushed to the general hospital, and on account of the extreme shock, her recovery is not expected. The grand-daughter of Mrs. McLeavy and her two children were caught in the collapse and nearly lost their lives, and it was only by hard work on the part of their rescuers that they could be taken out.

HOUSE SETS TUESDAY AS DATE FOR VOTING ON REAPPORTIONMENT

ONE OF THE OPPONENTS OF REAPPORTIONMENT

SENATOR F. A. DUXBURY
Of First Minnesota District, Who Would Limit Representation of Any County to Four Senators.

Bill Made Special Order for Tuesday By Unanimous Vote.

Reciprocity With Canada to Come Up in Senate Thursday.

Suffragists Invade Capitol and Have Memorial for Votes Read.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—By a unanimous vote the house this morning made the reapportionment bill, as reported by the committee, a special order for 11 o'clock next Tuesday morning. The committee recommended that the bill be taken up Friday morning but, after a brief discussion, it was moved by Representative Morton of Brickton that Tuesday be fixed as the day to vote on the bill, and Chairman C. A. Congdon of the reapportionment committee seconded his motion.

Representatives Frankson, J. N Johnson and others fought for further delay. They wanted the bill taken up not earlier than Feb. 23 and gave as a pretext for the proposal that the members had not had a chance to examine the bill.

Representative Congdon said that the sub-committee had been working six weeks on the bill, and had tried to

TRAGEDY AT CROOKSTON

Theodore Nelson Shot at the Home of Severt Simpson.

Whether Death Resulted From Murder or Suicide Not Determined.

Crookston, Minn., Feb. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—As a result of murder or suicide, the body of Theodore Nelson, aged 35, married, employed by the Singer Sewing Machine company here for several years, was found about 1 o'clock this morning at the home of Severt Simpson, driver of a laundry wagon. Simpson, Nelson and two friends had been drinking and went to the Simpson home with more liquor about midnight. Mrs. Simpson was awakened and more drinking took place.

The two friends left and Simpson and his wife say they went up stairs leaving Nelson to sleep on the couch. Before they were undressed they heard a shot and going down found Nelson shot through the neck and gasping. He was dead when Dr. Randolph arrived.

Coroner Stenshold found a revolver in the room. Simpson said he had taken it down and shown it to Nelson as he had intended raffling it off and had left it on the table. Mrs. Nelson collapsed when appraised of the tragedy and is in a critical condition. Simpson is in jail but no charge has been placed against him. The inquest will be held late today. No powder marks were found on Nelson's face or neck and his clothing was not scorched which many believe explodes the suicide theory.

COUNTERFEITERS ARE ARRESTED

Federal Officers Get two Members of a Gang in Kentucky.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 15.—Secret service officials in Washington today were notified by federal officers in this section of the arrest near Somerset, Ky., of Joseph Coffey and Thomas Bell, believed by the authorities to be members of a gang of counterfeiters who have been issuing spurious money from a retreat in the mountains of Southern Kentucky.

According to reports from Somerset, molds for coins were found in an apparently abandoned house, and evidences that paper money had been manufactured were also discovered.

INSURRECTO LEADER IN MEXICAN REVOLUTION

PASCUALE OROZCO.

OROZCO LOST OPPORTUNITY

Failure to March on Juarez at Right Time Depresses Rebels.

Gen. Navarro With 1,000 Troops Now in Possession of City.

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 15.—With the arrival of Gen. Navarro, with 1,000 troops at Juarez last evening the spirits of the insurrectos were greatly depressed.

Orozco has accomplished nothing since the insurrection began three months ago, save to depress business. The Juarez campaign has been a miserable fiasco. Even the leaders of the junta admit this.

Had Orozco proceeded with energy and taken Juarez as he might have done a week ago, the moral effect would have been marked. Many Mexicans working in the United States awaited the taking of Juarez as a signal to join ac-

SENATE WILL PASS RECIPROCITY BILL IF IT COMES TO A VOTE

All Depends on Whether Opposition Resorts to Filibuster.

McCall Bill Which Passed House Tuesday Sent to Upper Body.

It Is Referred to the Finance Committee for Consideration.

Washington, Feb. 15. — Reciprocity with Canada, which today became the principal question before the senate, is believed to depend on whether the opposition will resort to filibuster to defeat it. It is the best judgment of senate leaders on both sides of the chamber that if the McCall bill, to carry out the provisions of the Canadian agreement is permitted to reach a vote at this session the senate will pass it by as decisive a vote as was recorded for it in the house last night.

The senate committee on foreign relations met today, reported the Canadian agreement back to the senate and it was sent to the finance committee. It has been in the custody of the committee on foreign relations

LUKEWARM WATER FOR ANAESTHETIC

New Plan Used With Success in Operations for Appendicitis.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 15.—Lukewarm water is now being used as an anaesthetic in most of the operations for appendicitis at Johns Hopkins hospital, according to the statement of a surgeon of national repute connected with the institution.

In an operation for appendicitis, declared the surgeon all that is necessary is to inject lukewarm water in sufficient quantities under the skin in the vicinity of the part operated upon. "We have obtained great results through the use of water," he said, "and in most cases would rather use it than a drug."

While the operation is in progress the patient is said to feel no pain, is fully conscious and watches with interest the man with the knife.

It is said that water results in the patient having no after-effects, which mark the use of ether and other drugs.

PRESIDENT ASTONISHED

Regrets That Champ Clark Should Talk of Canada's Annexation.

Administration Had No Such Thought When Arranging Reciprocity.

Washington, Feb. 15.—President Taft today to some of his congressional callers expressed astonishment that Representative Champ Clark should have injected into the reciprocity discussion in the house yesterday any thought about the annexation of Canada. The White House is said to regard the remarks of Mr. Clark as most unfortunate and the president has made it known that he would like to have it understood throughout the world that his administration had not thought whatever of annexation when the reciprocity agreement was arranged.

The president, it is said, is hopeful that the people of this country, Canada and Great Britain, will look upon the speech of Mr. Clark merely as the expression of an individual who, in the

LENEVE WOMAN NOT ON BOARD

Careful Search of Steamer Fails to Reveal Crippen's Former Stenographer.

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 15.—A thorough search of the steamer Royal Edward, which arrived yesterday from Bristol, Eng., failed to disclose any trace of Miss Ethel Clara Leneve, the young woman who fled to Canada last summer with Dr. Crippen, the American dentist who was later hanged in London for the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore. It had been reported that a young woman resembling Miss Leneve had boarded the steamer at Bristol, bound for the Canadian Northwest to meet a prospective husband.

Although the Leneve woman was not among the passengers, more than 100 prospective brides came from England, Scotland and Ireland. All of these young women were bound for the Canadian Northwest in search of husbands. They were in charge of a matron appointed by the steamship company and the matron will chaperon them as far as Toronto, where special representatives will accompany them further west. Most of the young women have decided to settle in the vicinity of Regina.

STOCK HELD IN ENGLAND.

Court Says American Thread Company Must Pay Income Tax There.

London, Feb. 15.—Justice Hamilton, sitting in the King's Bench division of the high court of justice, today rendered a decision that the American Thread company, incorporated under the laws of the state of New Jersey, was liable to an income tax assessment in this country on profits amounting to $900,000.

The justice held that although the mills and business of the company were in America the fact that most of the common stock was held here and that the directors in England were highly concerned with the direction of its affairs brought the concern within the provisions of the British income tax act.

WOULD OUST GOULD FROM PRESIDENCY

Plan Said to Be on Foot to Secure Control of the Missouri Pacific.

Stock of Road Heavily Traded In at New York on Rising Prices.

Rockefeller-Kuhn-Loeb Interests Said to Be Behind the Movement.

New York, Feb. 15.—The contest for the control of the Missouri Pacific Railway company, which the Rockefeller-Kuhn-Loeb interests are said to have initiated by seeking to oust from the presidency of the railway George J. Gould, was a subject of general discussion today in banking houses and on the stock exchange. On the floor of the exchange the stock of Missouri Pacific was heavily traded in at rising prices. Thirty-eight thousand shares were dealt in during the first hour.

Mr. Gould called at the banking house of Kuhn- Loeb & Co. today and joined in a conference there with members of the banking firm. Neither Mr. Gould nor the bankers would talk of the reported contest, but it was intimated that a statement would be given out later.

Mr. Gould and his associates are now the accredited owners of the Missouri Pacific, controlling, it is said, between 360,000 and 400,000 shares of the total capital stock of approximately 850,000 shares. Mr. Gould is credited with 250,000 shares. Kuhn-Loeb interests are said to hold 100,000 to 125,000 shares and John D. Rockefeller from 75,000 to 125,000 shares. The stock of the Missouri Pacific sold at 46 on Jan. 11, and since then has risen 17 points on an increased volume of trading. Today it sold at 63.

When Mr. Gould was seen later he was asked about the reported contest, and he replied that he knew of no efforts on the part of any one to wrest the control of the Missouri Pacific from him. It is believed in Wall street that the Kuhn-Loeb-Standard Oil interests will be granted increased representation on the Missouri Pacific board of directors.

FORTY-FIVE CENTS SAVES MAN'S LIFE

Bullet Strikes Bunch of Small Coin and Does No Damage..

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 15.—To four small coins, a dime, two nickels and a quarter, which were in his vest pocket, Guiano Lavanture of this city owes his escape from serious if not fatal injuries. According to his allegation to the police, a fellow workman, Christiano Lahagara, shot at him yesterday afternoon with a revolver, but the bullet struck the coins which happened to be piled together in his pocket. The coins were bent, but aside from the slight shock of the impact, Lavanture suffered no harm.

TRADUCER OF KING WITHDRAWS APPEAL.

London, Feb. 15.—Edward E. MAROONED ON ISLAND

Inhabitants of Flint, C. B., Are Flying Signals of Distress.

Great Ice Floes Prevent Any Assistance Being Given Them.

Sydney, C. B., Feb. 15.—Marooned by the great ice floes that have been driven down from the frozen North through Cabot straits, the inhabitants of Flint island, one of the easternmost points of Canada, have displayed signals of distress and every effort to reach the island and relieve the residents has proved unavailing. The government steamer Mont Magny attempted to reach the island but was blocked by the ice and was forced to return to Halifax.

The government steamer Stanley, built especially for icebreaking, is frozen in the ice near Low Point, C. B. When the Stanley is able to release herself from the grip of the ice she will start for Flint island.

Ice conditions about the straits of Northumberland, Cabot straits and the Gulf of St. Lawrence are particularly severe at present. The steamer Bruce, which maintains the passenger and freight business between North Sydney and Port Au Dasques, N. F., is frozen in the ice in Cabot straits. Several steamers are reported icebound in the vicinity of St. John's.

OSCULATION NOT PROVEN

Court Finds Frank Loyra Not Guilty of Offense Charged.

Prisoner Claims Young Woman's Friends Attacked Him With Shovel.

"'I don't want anything dearie,' he said, "and then he tried to kiss me," asserted Miss Mary Rich on the witness stand in police court this morning when she appeared to testify against Frank Loyra, whose arrest she caused yesterday on the charge that he attempted osculating liberties Sunday evening.

But the court evidently thought that Loyra didn't try to kiss her, for Judge Cutting found Loyra not guilty of the charge of assault preferred against him, and ordered his discharge.

Judge Cutting, before whom the case was tried, stated in announcing his findings that had Loyra wanted to kiss the young lady very badly he had an excellent opportunity to do so while she was sitting in the chair beside the stove at the rear of the dandy store at Second avenue west and First street, where she is employed. He added that it was not likely that he would try to hug or embrace her while two other husky men, of the same nationality, were in the shop visiting with her.

Miss Rich said that he came into the place with a companion named Brennan, and that when she asked him what he wanted, he replied with the statement that he didn't care to make a purchase. As he spoke she declared that he attempted to put his arms around her neck, but that he only succeeded in getting his hands as far as her shoulders, when she dodged out of his reach.

Seeing what was going on, she explained that the two men came to her assistance, putting Loyra and his companion out of the place. She and they testified that they did not strike or assault either Loyra or Drennan.

Loyra emphatically denied that he tried or wanted to kiss Miss Rich. He claimed that he came in to buy some candy for his horses, which he was on his way to feed. But he stated that the two countrymen of Miss Rich attacked Drennan and him, with fists, a broom and a shovel, and that one of them went after a cheese knife to use on them. The court remarked that Loyra had marks on his face indicating that he had been beaten, despite the fact that the men denied that they had struck him.

CHANCE FOR DEMOCRACY

John D. Cuddihy of Calumet Talks of Politics and Business.

Copper Country Banker Confident G. O. P. Will Lose Its Grip.

"The Copper county, in common with other sections of the nation, is experiencing a period of partial business depression, but it is only a passing phase, and conditions have been better since the congressional election than they had been for some time previous," said John D. Cuddihy, president of the First National Bank of Calumet, Mich., who is in the city for a few days, a guest at the Spalding.

"The November elections brought out an exceptional lot of good Democratic presidential timber," he continued. "Without assuming to be a prophet, I might say I expect the nomination of Harmon or Wilson, and there is other good timber, such as Foss and Dix and others. Conditions are very favorable for a Democratic year next year. The party is in a better position in the eyes of the people than it has been since the Civil war, and I look for party success at the next presidential election, especially if the party behaves itself, and I think it will. Champ Clark has got the right kind of stuff in him. He has the experience and ability required of a speaker of the house and will undoubtedly keep things in good shape.

"The best of the results of the November elections was the final disposal of Roosevelt, and I am glad to see that Taft has been a real president in the last few weeks. He has gone a better pace than all the standpatters and near-insurgents of his party in the matter of reciprocity with Canada and I respect him for it. As a Democrat, I naturally am strongly in favor of reciprocity."

Reverting to Copper country subjects, Mr. Cuddihy said:

"We have been having the same trouble in Michigan that you had in Minnesota two years ago, when your legislature passed a tonnage tax bill. The farmers' grange of our state has been agitating the idea and the bill which resulted from its activities is now before the legislature. The grange people argued that Eastern capitalists were exhausting the resources of the state without compensating the commonwealth, much as the advocates of tonnage tax in Minnesota argued. When the bill was up in the house recently we had some of our best business men there to present the other side of the question and the bill was practically killed. I do not believe it has any chance of passage.

"This bill would add approximately $800,000 to the amount of taxes paid by the companies annually to the state. Last year the output was 220,000,000 pounds of copper, and the tonnage tax on that would be $1,100,000 under the provisions of the pending bill. It would result in the closing down of many of the smaller mines, as they could not operate at a profit. I am sure there are enough people of common sense in Michigan to prevent the enactment of such confiscatory legislation.

"The merger of the Calumet & Hecla with a number of smaller copper mining corporations seems to be assured. There is a spirited fight over the merger plan, but the opposition is not strong enough to prevent its consummation. Some of the small stockholders are protesting, because they consider their stock in the light of speculative holdings rather than from an investment point of view. Some Osceola and a few Ahmeek stockholders are the chief opponents of the merger, but they are not strong enough or numerous enough to succeed in their efforts."

URGES PUBLIC TO BE CAUTIOUS

Little Information Obtained About Women Said to Be Working for Charity.

Courtenay Dinwiddie of the Associated Charities has been notified that some strange women are in the city planning an entertainment to be given for a charitable institution of Omaha, Neb.

Upon a query sent by wire he has learned that no institution of that city so far as is known, has sent out anyone to collect funds in any city.

It is believed that the women who are planning the entertainment are imposters. He asks those who come in contact with them to inquire fully into the circumstances before they take any active part to help them.

A meeting will be held tonight to discuss the bills which the Associated Charities wants to have passed at the present term of the legislature. If they are passed upon, the bills will be sent to St. Paul within a very few days.

ROSSI STILL IN JAIL HERE

Nearly Two Years Since He Was Convicted of Murder.

Appeal to the Supreme Court Is Still Pending.

And still Michelo Rossi, convicted of the murder of Antonio De Meo in the Omaha railroad yards, Aug. 4, 1909, and later sentenced to be hanged by Judge William A. Cant of the district court, remains at the St. Louis county jail.

It will soon be two years since the man was convicted. There has been appeal after appeal and delay after delay until it looks at the present time as though the county jail contains a "lifer."

Rossi, it is said, hasn't any idea that he will ever get the punishment that the court dealt out to him.

At the present time there is an appeal to the supreme court, which has been hanging fire for some ime. It is expected that it will come up for settlement during the April term, but it may slip by.

Lately Attorney Alexander Marshall has taken over Rossi's case.

PRESIDENT SIGNS BILL.

Washington, Feb. 15.—President Taft today signed the bill designating San Francisco as the city in which will be held in 1915 the exposition signalizing the opening of the Panama canal. With a gold pen made of precious metal mined in the state of California and in the presence of the two senators and a number of the representatives from that state, the president attached his signature to the engrossed bill. Mr. Taft presented the pen to one of the members of the party, and it will be placed on exhibition at the exposition.

IS FOUND TO BE INSANE

William Bruman Escapes Robbery Trial By Going to Asylum.

Victim of Brutal Assault Is Still in Critical Condition.

William Bruman, accused of robbery in the first degree was given an examination as to his sanity before Judge S. W. Gilpin of the probate court this afternoon, and after being found insane, was ordered to the hospital at Fergus Falls.

Bruman is the man who is thought to know more about the assault on Hjalmer Altonen than he cares to tell. Hjalmer Altonen was found at the bottom of a cliff at Thirteenth avenue east a few days ago, after having laid in the snow unconscious all night. Altonen was apparently hit on the head with a blunt instrument, his money taken away from him and then thrown over the cliff.

Bruman is known to have been with him at the time. Both men had been working in a lumber camp near Hornby and had come to Duluth on the train, getting off at Lakeside so as to save the difference between the railroad and street car fare.

It was the night of the storm and there were but few cars. The men started to walk and it is believed that when they got to Thirteenth avenue east, Bruman assaulted Altonen and robbed and threw him over the cliff.

Since he was arrested Bruman has acted queerly claiming that he sees things flying about in the air. It is known that he has two brothers, both of whom are or have been insane.

Hjalmer Altonen, the man who is supposed to have been murderously assaulted, robbed and thrown over the cliff, is still in a serious condition at St. Luke's hospital.

At the hospital yesterday an operation was performed on Altonen's head and a gathering removed from beneath his scalp. No part of his foot, which was badly frozen, has yet been amputated, but it will have to be done sooner or later.

Altonen is still too weak to give the authorities any detailed account of the happenings of that night, which followed the last big snow storm. After being thrown over the cliff, Altonen lay in the snow on the edge of the lake all night. Recovering partially in the forenoon he staggered to the railroad tracks, where he was found by a pedestrian, who led him to police headquarters, and he was then hurried to St. Luke's hospital.

TO ADJUST LOSS IN THEATER FIRE

Plans for Rebuilding Grand Opera House May Soon Be Made.

Until insurance men ajust the losses in the recent fire at the Grand opera house, the officials of the Superior Theater company will give out no plans for rebuilding the theater. A meeting of the insurance adjusters will be held tomorrow, following which some announcement may be made as to the plans of the company.

The recent fire damaged the stage and rear of the playhouse to the extent of $10,000. The blaze was confined to this part of the theater.

COUNCIL HEARS ANNUAL REPORTS

Data of Departments Show Expenses to Have Been Heavy in 1910.

Annual reports were received last evening at the council meeting from the street commissioner, board of public works and sewer inspector. The council also indorsed the court bill in the legislature providing for an increase in the salary of the municipal judge of Superior and fixed the salaries of a few of the city officials.

The total expenditures of the street commissioner's department for the past year were $51,195.04, but $7,125.74 has been charged to benefited property, leaving a net expenditure of $44,039.30. The other reports were lengthy.

The board of public works spent $155,775.19 in contracts and the payments made amounted to $143,682.81. Sewer Inspector John Bergstrom reported that $4,428.84 had been expended for the maintenance and repairs of sewers the past year.

The board raised the salaries of Secretary Beglinger of the board of public works from $1,000 to $1,200 a year, the city assessor $1,500 to $1,700, his clerk $1,000 per year instead of $3 per day, and the city clerk $750, with fees for one year and $120 for extra help.

Eli Kosisto and Charles Wilson, arrested yesterday afternoon on charges of stealing sundry articles from the Five and Ten Cent store, First avenue west and Superior street, entered pleas of guilty to petit larceny in police court this morning. Each was fined 50 and costs, with the alternative of thirty days in the county jail. They went over the hill to wait for spring weather. Both came to Duluth from Hibbing. It was claimed that while one of them attracted the attention of the clerk, the other dropped various articles into the pocket of his overcoat.

Held to Grand Jury.
Harry J. Good, arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of passing a forged check for $300 on L. Albenberg yesterday morning, waived examination when arraigned in police court. He was bound over to await the action of the next grand jury. He had an account at the Albenberg store of $112.50, and stated that he wished to apply $75 when he presented the check. SERVICES FOR DEAD JUDGE.

Supreme Court Will Not Arrange for Memorial Until After Funeral.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supreme court will make no plans for services in honor of Justice Jaggard until after the funeral. The court is not now in session and the new term will not open until the first of April.

It is probable that memorial services will be conducted by the court soon after the opening of the April term, although anothing approaching definite plans has been suggested.

Associate Justice Brown of the supreme court in this morning's mail received a card written by Justice Jaggard and mailed in Bermuda Feb. 10.

Justice Jaggard said that he was slowly improving and that the climate was good. Other friends in the capitol also received cards this morning, in each case speaking of improving health.

ANSWERS LETTER AFTER SIX YEARS.

Chief of Police C. H. Troyer today received a letter from Idaho, asking for an explanation of a letter sent out by the department nearly six years ago.

It was sent to Mrs. Martha Wallen, who is anxious to get some trace of her son, Axel Wallen, from whom she has not heard since 1903. It appears that in 1905 she wrote relative to him and was informed that the records of the department showed that he had been arrested in March, 1901, for drunkenness and had paid a fine of $2. She did not clearly understand it, saying that she thought it must be some joke. After waiting until this month she has again written to have the matter cleared up. An answer will be forwarded at once. No trace has been found of Wallen in this city thus far.

IN MEMORY OF MAINE MARINES

Spanish War Veterans Hold Memorial Service at Courthouse.

In memory of the 253 marines who lost their lives in the blowing up of the United States battleship Maine, in Havanna harbor, thirteen years ago today, a meeting was held last evening by Maj. A. M. Diggles camp, No. 13, United Spanish War Veterans, at Memorial hall. Among the invited guests were several of the department officers of the veteran organization and members of the G. A. R., and of Camp McEwen.

The program consisted of a reading of the newspaper accounts of the Maine disaster, taken from the files of The Herald, thirteen years ago, by W. C. Kimball, and addresses by Don Carlos V. Musser, senior vice commander of the camp, and Chaplain Robert A. Ellwood of the department of Pennsylvania. Joseph Gibson, department commander for Minnesota also spoke.

The addresses treated of the conditions of Spanish tyranny in Cuba, the destruction of the cruiser Maine, and paid eloquent tribute to the naval heroes who were slain so treacherously, without the opportunity of striking a blow at an enemy then posing as a friendly nation.

Dr. Ellwood's visit and talks to the local camps have been a source of much inspiration to the members, and it is with regret that the veterans see him leave. If it is possible, the camps will, at some future time, undertake to have Dr. Ellwood return to Duluth to participate in some patriotic demonstration.

The Woman Who Desires to Save Will Be Here Tomorrow.

WOMAN'S REALM.

Probably the most beautiful ball ever given in Duluth was held last evening at the Spalding hotel by Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Hartley and the Misses Hartley.

The ball room was decorated as it never was before, in a simple but pleasing color scheme of green and white. A wealth of smilax was most effectively festooned from chandelier to chandelier making a beautiful canopy over the gay scene and white hangings covered the walls and the vines were hung in festoons over this. The musicians' stand was screened with a solid bank of smilax and the chandeliers were wonderfully ornamented with the same vine, with the silver leaves of the white beech giving a softening effect to so much green.

The gowns of the guests in white and soft colors with here and there a brilliant colored gown, showed to advantage on this charming background.

Nearly 300 guests were received by Mr. and Mrs. Hartley, Miss Hartley, Miss Irma Hartley and Miss Judith Hartley, all of whom were in white.

Mrs. Hartley wore a gown of white satin with a handsome lace overdress. Miss Hartley's gown was of white chiffon with the skirt gracefully draped over silk. Miss Irma Hartley wore white chiffon over a gold messaline. The chiffon was edged with marabou in the natural color and the chiffon sash had a strip of the fur on each end. There were two large chiffon bows on each sleeve, caught on with little pink rosebuds. Miss Judith wore a simple little gown of white with a pink ribbon in her hair.

There were other very attractive gowns and the little marks of fashion which appeared most repeatedly were trimmings of marabou, beaded bands, beaded nets and little rosebuds made of silk.

Miss Katrina Richardson, who is the most feted bride of the season, wore a delicate pink chiffon over pink silk with trimmings of rosebuds of the same color.

Her sister, Mrs. Harrison, was effectively gowned in nile green with a long watteau pleat in the back and Grecian bands of the same color in her hair.

Miss Jessica Marshall looked charming in blue chiffon with marabou and rosebud trimmings and Miss Julia Morrow, one of the most popular girls of the younger set, wore a pink messaline gown with a lace overdress and the hem of the skirt was of pink marabou.

Miss Florence Eaton of Grand Rapids, formerly of Duluth, wore white net over white silk with blue band trimmings and edgings of marabou. She wore blue slippers.

Miss Helen Ostram was pretty in pink with marabou trimming edging her over skirt and she wore a pink silk and fur band in her hair.

Miss Annie White's gown was one of the most noticeable on the floor. She wore American beauty silk and one big American beauty as adornment.

Miss Swift was in white and her sister, Miss Caroline Swift, wore blue.

Miss Esther Adams wore a pink chiffon made over blue silk with the brown marabou trimmings, which made a lovely and most effective combination.

Mrs. Frank Leach wore a beaded salmon colored chiffon made over silk with silver beaded bands and wore a band in her hair which was fringed with beads.

Mrs. R. P. Dowse wore a pretty gown of white satin with a tight overskirt of white lace edged with marabou. The gown was trimmed with gold bands.

Mrs. W. B. Silvey was in blue messaline combined with spangled net.

Mrs. William Peyton wore a white satin gown and Mrs. Homer Collins wore a gown of cream net with gold spangles.

The blue and pink combination was seen again in the gown worn by Mrs. Charles Mershon, which was of blue chiffon over pink.

Mrs. B. F. Myers wore a pink silk gown with an over dress of black and white lace.

Mrs. Otto Hartman was in lavender with beaded bands and bead fringe. There were also many handsome and elaborate gowns in black and white.

The decorations were carried out in the hall and cafes along the same lines as in the ballroom, and the tables which were set in the back of the lobby, were screened off with a bank of palms.

The orchestra music, played by twenty-two musicians was a concert in itself which was delightful, and in every way the ball will long be remembered as one of the most brilliant affairs ever given here.

THE EVENING STORY

HIS GIFT ONLY A MEMORY

By F. Harris Deans.

"Hello," cried Gladys, as she emerged from a shop and almost ran plump into me. "What are you up to?"

"Shopping, of course. What are you doing; buying things you've forgotten?"

"Those I can remember. But where on earth did you get that thing?"

The "thing" in question was an air balloon which would persist in banging into my hat.

"You're centuries behind the times," she went on; "why didn't you get an aeroplane"

"Because he wanted one of those blessed things. It's for your cousin."

"Billie?"

"Yes. No, thanks."

"I wasn't going to offer to carry it. I suppose you know you look a perfect idiot?"

"Well, he would have one. And nobody else would get it, so what was I to do?"

"H'm," said Gladys. "Well, of course, in a way its rather nice of you. But you do look too ridiculous for anything."

"Well there's no real, urgent need for rubbing it in, is there? Is anybody hunting for you, or shall we go and have some tea?"

"No, I'm quite alone. Where shall we go?"

"What have you bought?" I inquired as we went off in search of a tea-room. "I'm buying presents you see. It's the thought more than the actual gift one appreciates most."

As we walked up the tea-room I noticed her throwing little flushed glances into the mirrors, to see if I looked as if I meant what I'd said. Her brow was slightly drawn, and she seemed a little nervous.

The felicitating smiles of a motherly old lady, at the next table, strangely enough, soon dispelled her embarrassment.

"She thinks we're married," she whispered delightfully. "It's you carrying that air balloon, I suppose. Do look."

To please her I glanced around and received a pleased encouraging smile all to myself. Somewhat to Gladys dismay I returned it.

"Now she will think we are married," she cried in dismay.

"Let her," said I heartily; "It pleases her, and doesn't harm us. At least do you mind?"

"Um," said Gladys. "Well, not particularly, I suppose. Though if you were a husband of mine I wouldn't let you wear a tie like that."

"If I were a husband of yours," I retorted, "I shouldn't have the chance."

"Chance?"

"Girls wouldn't give them to me then," I explained. "At least—would they?"

"You wouldn't wear them, if they did," said she, with some decision. She looked at me irresolutely.

"For two pins," she said at last, "I'd buy you a tie now. As a present. Only I haven't any money."

"I'll lend you the 50 cents," I offered.

"I'll get you a 75-cent," she said generously, holding out her hand for the coin.

It was fairly dark when on the way home we passed the house of Billie's mother.

"Let's look in for a minute," I suggested to Gladys "just to deliver up the balloon you know."

"I'm very late as it is," she protested, as we went up the steps. "You'll have to come home with me and tell mother you were with me."

By a moment of luck we found the hall door open.

"Shall we shut it?" asked Gladys, as we stood in the hall.

But my eye had been attracted by something hanging from the hall lamp, and I made no answer.

"What's the matter?" inquired Gladys; she was standing just underneath the lamp. "Oh! she said.

At this moment Flo appeared.

"Hello! you two," she cried. "How did you get in? What are you doing, lighting?"

"We've come to bring Billie his balloon," explained Gladys with dignity.

"Did you get it, after all then?" said Flo turning to me. "Where is it?"

"I-I-" I stammered, looking round, for the thing had most unaccountably disappeared.

With a crimson face Gladys picked something with a piece of string tied to it, from her furs.

Flo stifled a laugh.

"They are not very strong, are they?" she asked. "Well, come in. Mind the mistletoe, Gladys."

Rhyme and Reason

By FRANK L. STANTON.

No Hope for Anyone.

When winter time is with us, I'm shovelin' when its snow;
In springtime, on the front lawn,
I am where the mower mows:

No hope in hidin'—
No hope fer anyone:
Lazy schedule's only
Fer a millionaire to run!

I wonder, where ol' Jordan see skies forever blue;
If there's lazy life accordin'—if there's rest fer you?

No hope in hidin'—
No hope fer anyone;
An' the lazy schedule's only
Fer a millionaire to run!

The Editorial Boots.

Says the Billville Banner: "While we were seated in our sanctum, smoking the pipe of peace, and resting our weary feet, encased only in socks in our window, the sheriff stole softly in and levied on our boots, which stood on the floor at our side. We are now congratulating ourselves that we were wearing our shirt and trousers at the time, and that we are still in possession of our hat, which we can pass around to take up a collection."

The High Roller.

"What's he growlin' about now?"

"Well, he climbed so high that he can't see how to pick a place to fall."

Summing Up.

"We know the preacher is always telling the truth about our neighbor," says an old Georgia brother, "but when he's hittin' too uncomfortably close to us, it's then we reach for our hat and hunt the home road."

Mighty Well.

We're doin' well, and mighty well,
in spite of all the sorrow;
We're singin' on the way today and cheerful of tomorrow.

Still on we go,
Through heat and snow,
Glad that we're livin' here below.

We're doin' well, and mighty well, and when we're not in clover.
We know 'twill bloom for us some day, when this old world turns over!

So, on we go,
Through fire and snow,
Glad that we're livin' here below!

The Billville Banner.

At last we have an auto, but, unfortuantely, it has a perverse habit of climbing trees and playing leapfrog with houses and barns without a moment's notice. Recently, while we were trying to cross the railroad tracks, it took a notion that it would be a good idea to wreck the slow freight train, and now the railroad company is suing us for damages!

The Kitchen

Puff Paste for Mince Pies.

Wash well half a pound of butter, working it with the hands so as to extract all the salt and buttermilk. This will help to make the pastry more delicate. When well washed divide it into two cakes, and drop them into a basin of cold water. Fill a pint measure with dry flour, put it into a basin, adding half a teaspoonful each of salt and castor sugar. Take one of the pieces of butter, wipe it and with the hands work it into the flour. When this is done take a knife and stir in enough cold water (about half a cupful should be sufficient) to bring the paste to the proper consistency and work it up with the knife into the shape of a ball. Dust the pasteboard over with flour, turn the paste on to it without touching, and roll out quickly and lightly, taking care not to break the pastry. When it is about a quarter of an inch in thickness take the rest of the butter, wipe it, and cut it into dice and sprinkle them all over the surface of the paste. Dust lightly over the flour, fold over and roll out again; repeat this four times. If you have a piece of ice, on which you can now lay it, so much the better, if not, a very very cold room will do. Leave it for an hour and then roll out quickly to the desired size. Use as little flour as possible in the board and pin when rolling out.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH.

A Pleasant, Simple, But Safe and Effectual Cure For It.

Catarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable. The usual symptoms are a full or bloating sensation after eating, accompanied sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on the heart and lungs and difficult breathing, headaches, fickle appetite, nervousness and a general played out, languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue and if the interior of the stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition.

The cure for this common and obstinate trouble is found in a treatment which causes the food to be readily, thoroughly digested before it has time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of the stomach. To secure a prompt and healthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhal condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Harlanson, the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet, composed of Diastase, Aseptic Pepsin, a little Nux, Golden Seal and fruit acids. These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and not being a patent medicine can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

The plan of dieting is simply another name for starvation, and the use of prepared foods and new fangled breakfast foods simply makes matters worse as any dyspeptic who has tried them knows.

As Dr. Bennett says, the only reason I can imagine why Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not universally used by everybody who is troubled in any way with poor digestion is because many people seem to think that because a medicine is advertised or is sold in drug stores or is protected by a trade mark it must be a humbug whereas as a matter of truth any druggist who is observant knows that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have cured more people of catarrh of the stomach, indigestion, heartburn, heart trouble, nervous prostration and run down condition generally than all the patent medicines and doctors' prescriptions for stomach trouble combined.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest preparation as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, catarrh of the stomach, biliousness, sour stomach, heartburn and bloating after meals.

SNOW

The storm has passed, leaving in its wake a wide expanse of wet snow, as many slippery avenues as there are avenues in Duluth, a great number of wet feet and a strong demand for rubbers. Last night was fair overhead, with a big moon shining from a sky in which only a few fleecy clouds floated around. Today is mild and slushy. More snow and colder weather are predicted for tonight.

A blizzard struck Duluth a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 7:14 and it will set at 5:40 this evening, giving ten hours and sixteen minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"During the last twenty-four hours snow or rain fell over Central and Western Canada, the Lake region, North Atlantic states, Upper Ohio and Upper Mississtppi valleys, the Dakotas, Colorado, Utah, Oregon and Washington in connection with low pressure areas overlying Saskatchewan and Southwestern states. Somewhat warmer weather also resulted from Manitoba southward to Eastern Texas. A high pressure condition central off the Oregon coast is causing colder temperature throughout the Rocky mountains and extreme Northwest. This turn to colder will probably reach the Head of the Lakes late tonight or early Thursday."

General Forecasts.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m., Thursday:

Upper Michigan—Snow tonight or Thursday.

penditures which has been investigating the official publication of the proposed constitutional amendments last fall reported to the committee yesterday afternoon. It found that the pending bill to pay for this publication calls for $7,100 more than the law allows. It was stated that the publication was made in twenty-five more newspapers than is permitted by law. The law provides that the amendments shall be published in three papers in each county, and in some counties they were published in four and five newspapers. Secretary of State Schmahl, who had charge of the publication of the amendments, says that this was to make up for the shortage in counties not having so many newspapers as three. It is also charged by the subcommittee that instead of publishing the amendments three times in each paper, as the law provides, they were published four times.

The committee, which had its session behind closed doors, took no action, but it was stated last night that in all probability it would merely report the facts and let the house judge for itself.

For Agricultural Building.

C. P. Craig of Duluth appeared before a joint session of the committees on state fair from senate and house to enlist the interest of the members in a plan for a $350,000 agricultural building as a centerpiece on the state fair grounds.

Mr. Craig was accompanied by his fellow-members of the board of managers of the state fair, by F. G. German of Duluth, the architect who drew the sketches for the proposed new building, and by A. B. Hostetter of the Duluth Commercial club, who is in a position to testify as to the need of such a building.

The sketches shown the committee by Mr. German contemplate a building to cost $350,000. It is to be 200 feet square, and it is to consist of a basement and two stories, with 90,000 square feet on the basement and on the first floor, and 60,000 square feet on the second floor. It is to be constructed of reinforced concrete, with a steel arch supporting the roof. On the first floor arrangements are made for fifty-six exhibit booths, and in the center there is room for forty more if they are needed. On the second floor is to be a gallery twenty-two feet wide, opening into the central court, with rooms for permanent museums of various kinds. In the basement is ample room for an assembly hall, rooms for exhibitors, etc.

The committees, while no action was taken, expressed considerable approval of the plan.

Reapportionment.

The reapportionment scheme prepared by the sub-committee of the house committee on reapportionment, described and illustrated in The Herald Monday evening, was adopted by the full committee yesterday afternoon by a vote of 16 to 4, one member, Representative Davies, being excused from voting at his own request.

Representative Frankson, author of the tonnage tax bill now pending, wanted action delayed. Representative C. T. Knapp of Hibbing opposed any delay. He said the matter had been before the legislature for weeks, and that enough time had elapsed since the population figures were available to give everybody a chance of being informed as to the bill and its provisions. He thought it would be unjust to the state and to the rest of the house to postpone committee action for the benefit of one or two.

In the brief discussion that followed it was made clear that, aside from one or two members who probably would oppose any kind of reapportionment that involved any decent measure of justice, the committee approved the work of the sub-committee. Even those who were not quite satisfied because their districts would lose representation under the proposed bill, agreed that the measure is just and that the sub-committee had done the very best it could by everybody.

Those voting against the motion to recommend the bill to pass were Representatives Frankson, Knutson, Libera and Wescott.

It was voted unanimously to recommend to the house that the bill be made a special order for Friday morning at 11 o'clock.

In the meantime it was agreed that if the representatives from any district wished to make a regrouping of their districts among themselves, without disturbing the balances of the scheme, the sub-committee should be empowered to make such change as was satisfactory to the members concerned.

While reapportionment, in almost exactly the shape that it left the hands of Chairman Congdon and the sub-committee, will pass the house by a satisfactory vote, the fight against it will begin there.

The chief motive of its opponents at this time seems to be delay. Tonnage tax has been thrown into the house in the hope that it will delay, if not defeat, reapportionment. It is reported that an attempt will be made to hustle out of the house elections committee the half-dozen pending initiative and referendum measures that have been introduced, in the hope that this issue may be used to complicate the situation.

The enemies of reapportionment in the house have absolutely no hope of defeating it there, but they figure that if action upon it could be delayed in that body, it would help the attempt that will be made to defeat it in the senate. If the committee's recommendation that the bill be made a special order for Friday prevails, however, all these efforts will be without avail.

Initiative and Referendum.

The initiative and referendum bills pending before the house elections committee are in the hands of a sub-committee consisting of Representatives L. D. Brown, C. T. Knapp and Thomas Frankson. It had been expected that this sub-committee would frame up a proposed committee bill, taking a middle ground between those who want it made possible to set the direct legislation machinery going by a very small percentage of the total vote and those who want the percentages made so high that it would be practically impossible to use the law.

However, a movement is on foot in the committee to throw the full burden of responsibility on the house by reporting out all the pending bills and letting the house take its choice among them or defeat them all.

Those members of the committee who believe that committees are for the purpose of saving the house unnecessary labor will fight this proposal, and will try to get the committee to agree upon a committee bill which the house may consider and, if it pleases, amend to its heart's content.

Pugh Against County Division.

Senator T. M. Pugh, to whom have come many letters about the bill intended to make it easy to divide St. Louis county, said yesterday afternoon: "The time to divide St. Louis county has not come, and I do not think this bill should be considered seriously at this time. You can say for me that, whatever the house may do with it, the senate will not pass that bill."

Tomorrow morning the legislature, in joint session in the house chamber, will hear Dr. George E. Vincent, the new president of the state university, who has been asked to speak by a joint resolution, and who has accepted the invitation.

The senate has received a protest signed by many railroad employes at Willmar protesting against the pending bill requiring public service corporations to pay their employes twice a month.

The senate committee on public health and pure food yesterday afternoon voted to report out without recommendation the Fosseen bill, regulating the cold storage business, requiring cold storage warehouses to date their goods and requiring every place where cold storage goods are sold, from stores to boardings houses and hotels, to post placards stating that they deal in cold storage food porducts.

Minnesota proprietors of cold storage warehouses are writing in to members of the senate protesting against the passage of the Fosseen bill. They say that they are not opposed to reasonable regulation of their business, but they think the Fosseen bill, putting a limit on the time food products can be held in cold storage, too drastic. They point out that congress is likely to enact a law for the regulation of the cold storage business and state that in their belief state legislation should be held back until the federal government acts.

Mr. Fosseen says, however, that federal regulations could only affect interstate commerce and that state laws are needed to look after intrastate business.

"The purpose of the bill is twofold," said Mr. Fosseen yesterday. "It would serve to inform the consumers when they are getting cold storage products and this is something they have a right to know about. It will also work to protect the consumers of Minnesota from having cold storage products from other states dumped upon them, because it requires an affidavit from those who leave food products in cold storage, stating whether or not the goods have been in cold storage before."

Who Will Succeed Jaggard?

As usual, sincere mourning over the sudden death of Justice E. A. Jaggard of the supreme court is mingled with speculation as to his successor, whom Governor Eberhart must appoint to serve until after the general election in 1912.

Most thoughts turned, in this connection, immediately to Thomas D. O'Brien, whose brief term as a justice of the supreme court recently expired, and a petition, asking Governor Eberhart to appoint him, was planned by Republican members of the senate before the close of the session yesterday. It was stated that it would be circulated in the senate, and that there would be no difficulty in getting nearly all of the members of that body to sign it.

However, it was stated also that Judge O'Brien would not consider the appointment. He has recently formed a law partnership that promises to be very profitable, and though he values his experience as a member of the supreme bench, it is said that a reappointment has no attraction for him.

Governor Eberhart will make the appointment very soon. Among others mentioned for the place are Judge H. B. Dibell of Duluth, and Judges Hallam and Bunn of St. Paul.

Senator James P. Boyle of Eveleth, who made the principal speech last night at the annual Lincoln day banquet of the Lincoln club of St. Paul, is much in demand for speeches. He has accepted several invitations, including an address Feb. 20 before the State Automobile association and a St. Patrick's day speech in Superior, March 17; but he has been compelled, owing to the pressure of his legislative duties, to decline more invitations than he has accepted.

Marine Corps Transfers.

A general shifting about of sergeants has taken place in the marine corps recruiting district of Minnesota.

Nearly all sergeants in charge of offices have been transferred. Sergeant John F. McCarthy has been sent from the St. Paul office to take charge of the Bemidji office and relieve Sergeant Fernando D. Birrer, who in turn will take charge of the Duluth marine recruiting office. Sergeant Harry A. Brittingham, relieved from duty at the Duluth office, has taken charge of the office at Fargo, N. D., while Sergeant Bartholomew Higgins, heretofore the head of the Fargo office, has been sent to the naval hospital at Las Animas, Colo., for treatment. During his service at Fargo, N. D., Sergeant Higgins contracted a severe illness. Corporal Benjamin F. Hebert, formerly at Fargo, N. D., has relieved Corporal Sarsfield Williamson at the St. Paul sub-office. The place of Corporal Arthur Murray at Ashland, Wis., whom the secretary of the navy recently recalled to duty to the New York navy yard, has been filled by Corporal Williamson. The only office unaffected by transfers is the Minneapolis station.

SALOON MAN NOT GUILTY

Charge of Keeping Open on Election Day Not Proven.

Louis De Santo, proprietor of the Incline saloon at Seventh avenue west and Superior street, was found not guilty of keeping open election day, after a trial before Judge Cutting in police court yesterday afternoon. De Santo has been arraigned before on similar charges, and Judge Cutting announced at the conclusion of the trial that had the evidence been sufficient to convict, De Santo would have been the recipient of a straight jail sentence, as he has been heavily fined in the past without seemingly effective results.

The city's witnesses claimed that they saw a number of men in the place drinking, but the defendant claimed that they were only in the place to use the washroom. It was explained that the upstairs is a boarding house and that it is a common occurrence for the men to make use of the facilities downstairs. De Santo was represented by Attorney T. J. McKeon and the city by Police Prosecutor W. F. Dacey.

Clausen claims that he lost his footing in the afternoon and that his erstwhile companion took him to the Nicollet hotel, where he put him to bed to sleep off the jag. When he awoke later Clausen says that his money was gone.

SENATOR BOYLE IS SPEAKER AT LINCOLN CLUB BANQUET

Progressive Address Arouses Hearty Applause of His Auditors.

Says the People Are Tired of the Political Judas.

SENATOR JAMES P. BOYLE.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the most pleasant and successful banquets of the St. Paul Lincoln Republican club was given last night at the Merchants hotel. The occasion was the seventeenth anniversary of the club. Senator James P. Boyle of Eveleth delivered a fine speech on Lincoln which was interrupted time and again by applause. The oratory, import of the speech and the fine voice and command of St. Louis county's young senator has made him one of Minnesota's famous men. He is a thorough progressive and hesitated not in letting the assembled 500 Republicans know it. Speaker Dunn was just as emphatic in letting them know that he was a "Republican without a hyphen."

Representative C. E. Stone of this city was toastmaster. Governor Eberhart was unable to attend on account of an engagement at Mankato. Rev. H. P. Jones (colored), made an eloquent speech on behalf of the negroes and he was roundly applauded. Lieutenant Governor Gordon made a short talk, playing strongly for the progressive element. Mayor Keller welcomed the banqueters. The announcement of the action of congress on the reciprocity measure caused a storm of enthusiasm.

A silent toast was offered to the late Justice Jaggard, who had been a member of the club.

Senator Boyle's Speech.

The speech of the evening on Lincoln by Senator Boyle was, in part, as follows:

I wish to thank you, men of St. Paul, for asking me to speak to you on this occasion. You have caused me again to consider carefully the thoughts, words and deeds of our immortal war president. One cannot do that without wishing to become a better citizen, more useful to his community, kindlier towards them with whom he comes in contact. The study of his life prompts one to be charitable and unselfish, destroys one's vanity and makes one see things in their true proportions. It is a great thing for our country that we celebrate the anniversary of this remarkable man. It is conducive to our best development that the attention of every boy and girl is annually called to the life of the big backwoodsman, the world-famed rail splitter, the "typical American."

The Majority Should Rule.

Men of the Lincoln type are the only ones who achieve any real political success in a government like ours. One cannot stand long in the way of the people. In the long run they will get just exactly what they want and they ought to get it. The idea that the majority should rule is not new to the civilized world, and the faith of the American people in that idea is becoming stronger every year of our national life. Those who would restrict its application are being cast aside. Unscrupulous business men, political parasites and selfish interests that would retard the growth of this idea are being gradully overthrown. The nation moves steadily onward. It makes no difference that in the onward march thousands of enterprises must fail, resting as they do upon insecure foundations, some being favored by class legislation, others engaged in traffic fraught with harm to the body politic. Our fight must be to accomplish the greatest good for the greatest number. It will happen as we go along that a few will lose while the many gain and we are sorry for the few, but it is infinitely better so than that any system remain unchanged which permits the many to sacrifice that the few may live in luxury. I trust the people of this country will be always ready to fight for the established principle that, politically speaking, one man should have just as much to say as any other man. We do not care for him who attempts to draw a line saying: "You shall vote because you are fitted for it, but you and you because of these and these conditions shall not be permitted to vote." We have little use for him who attempts to draw a line saying: "You shall be entitled to just and equal representation, but you and you for these and these reasons shall have but half representation." And I wish to say that it is my honest conviction that the man who advocates such a system as this will be speedily thrown out upon the political scrap-heap. The people do not want this sort of thing and you may rest assured that ultimately they will get just exactly what they want. That is what Lincoln believed and that's right.

What the Voters Demand.

At the present time the voters of this country are demanding many things. Irrespective of the fact that we are quite prosperous, there seems to be a feeling of dissatisfaction. There is no getting away from the fact that there has been a lack of confidence in men conducting our governmental affairs and consequently there is a crying demand for popular rule. First of all men want clean elections. They are tired of money being criminally spent and they wish to elect to office men who will be indebted to none but themselves. And despite all opposition they are going to have clean elections, no matter what the required legislation.

Then, too, the people wish the power to throw out of office their servant who doesn't do his duty. They want the privilege of recalling him to private life. They are tired of being promised all the good things in the world during political campaigns, only to learn that the men they have elected to office are representing other interests than their own and care not at all for promises made. They should have the power to recall such men and I am of the opinion that before long they will be exercising this power in most of the states of the Union.

There is also a demand that our primary laws be extended to include state officers and that our United States senators be elected by popular vote and no one now seriously contends that these things will not be brought about.

A More Complex Problem.

And, finally, we come to a problem more complex. There is a demand that a governor be placed upon our legislative machinery. This demand is growing and must be met, must at least be given recognition. Men are contending that if a legislature refuses to do the people's wish, there should be a way of the people taking the matter into their own hands and that if a legislature pass a law which does not meet with popular approval, there should be a way of the people repealing the law. These men contend that a system such as this would not relieve the legislature of responsibility—and ultimately would not place useless and undesirable burdens upon the people generally by having too many intricate questions referred to them, but that it would make legislators stand up like men and do the will of the people and vote upon the merits of propositions submitted. I say the problem is a complex one. Its proper solution will require most careful consideration. In eradicating an existing evil we must always be careful to adopt a method, the use of which, will not bring forth another evil of greater magnitude.

People Tired of Betrayal.

The voters of this country would not naturally be eager to take upon themselves the work which they have had performed by representative men for more than a century. They are so busy with their occupations, businesses and professions, so busy playing their parts in the world's work, that they would be glad to have skilled men conduct the affairs of government. They know that it is going to be difficult for them, unskilled as they are, to take upon themselves these additional burdens. But they are tired of being betrayed. They are tired of the political Judas. They are tired of seeing legislators prostitute their souls for money that a rogue might be sent to the senate of the United States or that the gambling element of a great commonwealth might hold undisputed sway. The gang of political parasites who stole the money appropriated to build the state capitol of Pennsylvania, the gifted financiers whom Joseph Folk drove to the four corners of the earth, the dishonest public man everywhere, nominating conventions controlled by a boss or two, legislatures and assemblies that have sold the rights of the people for money paid by favored interests; these are the things, those are the men, that have brought about the demand for popular rule.

The Judgment of the People.

And so today we need the combined efforts of all our little Lincolns. The proper solution of the questions now before us will require hard work, honest endeavor and our very best thought. The methods of the quack or the crank should not be hastily adopted. The situation must be carefully analyzed, and fully discussed, with the desire to arrive at the best judgment of the entire populace. Upon that judgment so formed we are willing to rely, still having in our majority opinion the faith which was so marked a characteristic of Abraham Lincoln.

There is no use standing in the way of progress. The desire should be to give the best expression to the will of the majority. We need not proceed hastily and blindly because of the insistent demand of the mere office-seeker or the unwarranted criticisms of the little mean men who spends his life picking out the faults and overlooking the good qualities of public men. But, on the other hand, we should pay no attention to the cry of the reactionary that we should do as our forefathers did before us. The negroes of interior Africa are doing just exactly what their ancestors have always done. What have they contributed to the world's civilization? He was a wise man who said that the reactionary, if present at the creation, would have prayed, "Oh Lord, preserve to us chaos."

Ideal Type of Men.

We cannot help but love men of the Lincoln type, big, liberal, many-sided men. In them we instinctively place our trust. Here's to the big, liberal, many-sided man. Here's to the man who is able to do the right thing at the right time under any given set of circumstances. Here's to him who is as big a power for good in the backwoods or in the slums of your city as he is in your best society. Here's to the man who feels and lives upon the vital things of life—that's what Lincoln did—who can live quite comfortably when necessary without the convenience and the service required to satisfy the abnormal desires of the commonplace. To him we go in time of need for we know that he is the wisest man. We put our facts before him, he thinks the problem through and we rely absolutely upon the judgment he renders. That this type of man should become our ideal is the greatest good that can come from the annual celebration of the anniversary of the "Typical American."

The Lamp with Diffused Light

should always be used where several people sit, because it does not strain the eyes of those sitting far from it.

The Rayo Lamp is constructed to give the maximum diffused white light. Every detail that increases its light-giving value has been included.

The Rayo is a low-priced lamp. You may pay $5, $10 or even $20 for other lamps and get a more expensive container—but you cannot get a better light than the Rayo gives.

This season's Rayo has a new and strengthened burner. A strong, durable shade-holder keeps the shade on firm and true. Easy to keep polished, as it is made of solid brass, finished in nickel.

Higher Mathematics Destroys Blacksmith's Faith in Value of Education—The Glory That Was Rome and the Finish of the Senate—Bad Luck Resulting From Habit of Neatness—Milkman in Box Car and Icicle in Eye.

"THERE'S an illiterate blacksmith over in Wisconsin who went up against a game of higher mathematics some time ago and became an awful cropper," said Jack Shambeau at the Lenox last evening. "Although this blacksmith doesn't know much, he has an unusually smart son and the boy's particular bent in school is mathematics. The father heard the boy talking about squaring numbers and it interested him.

"The schoolboy explained that squaring numbers is a mathematical process that puts the Indian sign on simple addition, so far as the speedy attainment of big results is concerned, and to illustrate how simple addition can be left at the post in another way, he told the old story about the blacksmith whoge offer to shoe a horse for $7 was rejected, but who was told to go ahead on the basis of charging 1 cent for the first nail he drove, 2 cents for the second, 4 for the third, and so on, doubling each time, with the result that each nail he drove cost the horseman a rapidly increasing sum. Then the blacksmith retired with a competence.

"Next day a man came to the boy's father with a horse to be shod. The blacksmith set the charge absurdly high and the horseman, just like the man in the story, refused to accept the offer. So the blacksmith thought he would profit by what he had so recently learned.

"'Tell you what I'll do,' said the blacksmith, eager to display his cuteness. 'We'll go on the basis of squaring the number of nails I drive and whatever the final amount is, you pay that. And,' thinking he'd better not go too far, 'I'll be right with you. Just to show that I ain't greedy, I'll drive the first nail for half a cent.'

"You see, he had only a confused idea of what his had told him, and it wasn't until he had finished the job that the horseman said he was sorry, but he didn't have the correct change. However, he said, with a burst of generous feeling, that he didn't mind paying a good deal more than he owed, and offered the blacksmith 1 cent.

"'How's this?' asked the smithy. 'You owe me a lot of money, and this won't cover the bill.'

"'Oh, yes it will, and a whole lot more,' replied the horseman. 'You offered to shoe the horse on the basis of one-half of a first cent, and the square of each succeeding nail, didn't you? Well, the square of ½ cent is ¼ cent, the square of ¼ cent is 1-16 cent, and the square of that is 1-256 of a cent, and—. Let's see, there are 32 nails, and you can figure it out for yourself. Keep the change, old man.'

"And he was off."

"SO FAR, a careful diversion of the attention of the public with interesting political intrigues and liberal appropriations for local projects has kept it generally tolerant of the senate's deficiencies. But the more it is tricked by such methods and its perceptions enlarged the more direct and actual part in affairs will it claim. Hence the time is not far away when the plutocracy and the senate will lose their control of the popular vote, on which they have built up their governing power."

The speaker was a guest at the Spalding. He is modest and said it doesn't make any diffeernce what happens to be his name, but he is a wealthy man and is not in his home town accounted a radical.

Asked if he recognized anything familiar about the observations quoted, the interviewer confessed that they possessed a faintly familiar tone.

"With some intentional twists of meanings," it was explained, "that is a paraphrase of this, from Larned's 'Rise and Fall of Nations':

"'So far, a lavish amusement of this mob with free games and liberal bribes had kept it generally submissive to the senatorial government. But the more it was debased by such methods, and its vagrancy encouraged, the more extravagant gratuities of like kind it claimed. Hence a time could never be far away when the aristocracy and the senate would lose control of the popular vote on which they had built their governing power.'

"I'm afraid the parallel is a true one," continued the visitor, "so far as it is a parallel. And maybe it is a parallel farther than we are accustomed to think it is. Perhaps our people comprise just such a mob as was this Roman mob, and perhaps we are, all unknowing, being diverted from the real, underlying causes that make us a mob by lavish amusements of modern invention that do not parade as amusements. Such, for instance, as the Spanish war, our little brown brothers in the Orient, the race question and similar things that may be orated about.

"But I believe the light is dawning and that the day of accounting is not so very far distant. Then Caesar, which is all of us, will come into his own.

"No, I guess you would better not use my name," remarked the parallelarian, smiling.

A GUEST, who had just registered, stepped aside to permit a young woman to inscribe her name on the McKay book of sojourners, and when she had done that she began, with the instinct of a woman for neatness, to close the register.

"I beg your pardon," exclaimed the man, starting forward and impulsively grabbing the register from her hands.

The young woman was startled, and it required all the tact at the command of the other guest to smooth things over.

"I assure you that I had no desire to be rude," he said. "But I did have a reason for my act, and, although that reason is of no interest to you, I hope you will overlook my impulsiveness."

That mollified her and she went to her room.

"What's the reason?" asked Hymie Nurick, the clerk.

"Don't you know?" was the reply. "Why, it's bad luck for the house to have a guest shut the register. If you'll notice, you'll find that whenever it happens you get no more guests that day."

He said it with every evidence of conviction, but Hymie only shook his head scoffingly and let it go at that.

"I WAS traveling on a mixed train down near St. Cloud the other day when I observed one of the most remarkable accidents I have ever seen," said a traveling man at the St. Louis yesterday.

"Well, tell us about it," said a brother roadster.

"Right behind the coach was an empty box car," continued the narrator. "I was standing on the rear platform of the coach to get a breath of air while the train was at a standstill beside a milk station. A man, who had just finished putting cans aboard the express car was idling there and when the train got into motion he was walking toward the edge of the shipping platform. He slipped, tried to catch his balance and then fell toward the train, just as the empty box car passed. I looked back, expecting to see a tragedy, and was just in time to see the man tumble into the open door of the car. He had to stay aboard until we reached the next station, twenty miles away. He wasn't hurt a bit."

"Huh, that's nothing," commented his friend. "I saw a man lose an eye, down on the Bowery today, just because he looked up."

"Oh, tell that to the fairies," retorted the self-satisfied author of the first yarn.

"I'd rather tell it to the milkman," was the scornful remark of his rival. "This wet snow has done more than put peddlers on the blink, one of its byproducts being icicles. You've seen a lot of them hanging from signs projecting over the sidewalks, of course. Well, a lumberjack was walking along the street and just as he was passing an overhead sign he looked up. The wind, which was pretty brisk at the moment, shook the sign and one of the icicles that decorated it dropped off. Straight as a stilleto thrown by a Paris Apache, the icicle's sharp point imbedded itself in the lumberjack's left eye. He gave one yelp and it was all I could do to hustle him to an oculist. I'm afraid the eye can't be fixed up."

"What was that oculist's name?" asked his friend, suspiciously.

"Why, I didn't notice," replied the icicle man, with an air of easy carelessness.

MORE RUMORS IN THE ARNOLD CASE

Various Reports of the Girl's Whereabouts Denied By Relatives.

New York, Feb. 15.—The search for Miss Dorothy Arnold developed a plentiful crop of rumors today, several of which were to the effect that the mystery of her disappearance had been solved and that she had been located in this city. One report had it that she was at home while another insisted that she was a patient in Flower hospital, where her cousin, Dr. Benjamin Arnold, is an interne.

Both reports were apparently without foundation. Miss Marjorie Arnold, sister of the missing Dorothy, denied emphatically that her sister had been found or was known to be in or near New York. The Flower hospital authorities issued the following:

"We desire to state now only that Miss Arnold is not a patient here, but that she has never been a patient here, either under her own name or any other name."

This was signed by Dr. Bernard Hughes, head of the hospital's house staff.

A member of the firm of Garvan & Armstrong, the Arnold family lawyers, characterized the reports that Miss Arnold had been found and was back in her home or with friends as absurd.

CLOQUET VALENTINE PARTY WELL ATTENDED.

Cloquet, Minn., Feb. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The open house valentine party at the Y. M. C. A. last night was the most largely attended affair given in the history of the association. There was double the attendance which was expected and it was necessary to send out to different stores to make up the deficiency of viands. The orchestra of the "Y" rendered some very fine selections and the Viking choir sang, being encored repeatedly. There were various stunts in the gymnasium and everyone present received a valentine.

Corn Meal and Amotone Make Hair Beautiful

(From the Woman's National Magazine.)

A well known scalp and hair specialist of New York says: "If your hair is becoming coarse, faded and brittle, it is an indication that it has had too much water. Sea bathing is particularly injurious to the hair. Many women destroy their hair by shampooing with soap and water.

"Any person desiring fine, long and silky hair should dry shampoo once or twice a week. Get from your druggist four ounces of amotone, put it in a jar and add half a pound of corn meal, mixing thoroughly. This delicately perfumed shampoo powder will last for months. Sprinkle a tablespoonful evenly upon the head; then brush the powder thoroughly through the hair.

"Corn meal cleans the scalp and hair roots; amotone tones up the scalp and encourages hair growth; together they make the hair light, fluffy and beautifully lustrous."

ORE BODIES IN HONDURAS

Central America Will Come to Front When Mesaba Is Exhausted.

Vast Deposits of Iron Being Developed, Says Visitor to Duluth.

Fernandez Garcia of Tegucigalpa, Honduras, returned to Duluth last night from a trip to the ranges, and will leave today for the West.

"Some people think that when the Mesaba iron range has been exhausted, the world will be forced to use concrete or sleep out of doors when its buildings fall," said Mr. Garcia. "I have been told that the Mesaba would be exhausted in fifty or 100 years and that the age of steel would then be at an end

"I have been over the Vermilion and the far famed Mesaba but please don't think that the sight of the iron ore in the ground is new to me. In Honduras there is a body of magnetic ore with a high percentage of iron. This body contains 100,000,000 tons. It was worked on a small scale by the Spaniards and is forty-eight miles northwest of Tegucigalpa. The ore is in a small mountain called Agalteca. One of your big American iron and steel companies is putting up the money for the development of this ore body. The Americans will spend $15,000,000 to establish necessary connections between the coast of Honduras and the United States for the transportation of the iron.

"It is not generally known that an English-French syndicate is working a large mountain of iron in Brazel. The first reports of engineers credited the deposit with containing 2,000,000,000 tons of high grade magnetic iron. We think the Agalteca mountain in Honduras will show up many times the tonnage of 100,000,000 that we know the mountain contains."

Mr. or Senor Garcia, will go to the Pacific coast from here. He expects to go to Alaska on the first steamer in the spring to look at some iron deposits in the Far North. He is a mining engineer, but refused to discuss the purpose of his visit here.

BOATS ADDED TO PITTSBURG LINE

Mills, De Graff and Kerr Will Sail in Steel Corporation Fleet.

The Pittsburg Steamship company has purchased three new steamers which will be added to the line, making in all 105 boats sailing the lakes for that company.

The W. M. Mills, Le Grand S. De Graff and W. B. Kerr of the Weston Transit company of North Tonawanda are said to be the boats recently purchased.

All three boats are of the most modern type in lake vessels. Each of them came out in 1907 and each is 585 feet in length of keel and with a sixty-foot beam.

The boats are three of the largest bulk carriers on the lakes and each carries 12,000 tons on the average draft of water.

Two Deaths at Ada.

Ada, Minn., Feb. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Lou P. Bowman, aged 70 years, who has lived in Ada for a number of years, was buried Sunday afternoon. She leaves four children, two of whom are at home and two in Spokane. Mrs. Bowman was highly respected by her many friends.

Mrs. Dan Gunnarson, while attending the funeral of her daughter three weeks ago, caught cold and since that time has suffered with pneumonia until her death on Monday.

FARGO'S ELECTION TAME.

Little Interest Shown in Next Spring's Contest.

Fargo, N. D., Feb. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—This is an off year in municipal politics. The mayor and other executive officials hold over. Half of the city council will be elected. It is understood that all but one of the members whose terms expire will seek re-election. In several wards there is indication of some opposition.

There are no important issues involved. The election occurs in the first week of April.

THE SHOWDOWN.

The vote on reciprocity in the house at Washington brought a showing of hands that will be remembered by the voters of certain sections of Minnesota. Four Republicans from this state—Republicans who were re-elected last fall on the strength of their declarations against the Payne tariff law, re-elected because they announced themselves as progressives, backed down completely when the test came, and voted against the Canadian reciprocity agreement.

They were joined by one other from Minnesota—the state's lone Democratic member of congress. He fought the agreement in the caucus to begin with, and when the bill was brought to a vote on the floor of the house he threw down his party, refused to be bound by the caucus which he had attended, ignored the principles set down by the leaders of his party and voted with Bennet and Dwight of New York, Dalzell of Pennsylvania, Humphrey of Washington and Keifer of Ohio, all notorious standpat Republicans, against the agreement.

Here is a list of the self-styled progressives from Minnesota who failed to stand the first test of their faith:

C. R. DAVIS of the Third district.
CHARLES A. LINDBERGH of the Sixth district.
ANDREW J. VOLSTEAD of the Seventh district.
HALVOR STEENERSON of the Ninth district.

And here is the name of the Democrat who sided with the high tariff reactionaries to defeat a bill that had been given unanimous indorsement in a caucus of his party which he had attended and in which he had taken part:

W. S. HAMMOND of the Second Minnesota district.

It was a superb showing that these five Minnesota members made, was it not? Representing a state that is in favor of reciprocity, and all of them bearing credentials of re-election that they secured through posing as opponents of high tariff, they turned squarely against the will of their state and flopped completely over to the side of the reactionary standpatters on the first good chance that offered. No wonder the Democrats in the house jeered and taunted them. If there ever was a bare-faced flop made in congress it was that of these men and of the few other "progressives" who flopped with them.

And Hammond—see what a display Hammond, the Democrat, made. In the party caucus on the bill he fought the agreement. When the caucus had decided to support it, the measure was given a unanimous indorsement. When it got on the floor for discussion the Democratic leaders hailed it as "good Democratic doctrine." And when the time came for a vote, Speaker Cannon recognized the claim to such an extent that he called a Democratic member to the chair—"the only time," says the Associated Press dispatch, "that a Democrat has been called to preside over the house since the Republicans gained control." And Mr. Hammond voted against the bill.

Five Minnesota members—more than half the delegation from this state in the house—fell down. They forgot their pre-election poses, or at least let us hope that it was lapse of memory instead of something else. They forgot their progressiveness—if they ever had any. They forgot that another election is coming sometime and that they must stand up before the voters again and tell what they propose to do. And they forgot that the only way the voters can judge whether they will keep those promises is by looking back to see how well other promises were kept.

Forgetfulness is a good name for it. Not an accurate name, you understand, but a sort of let-'em-down-easy kind of a name, a "good" name in the sense that it is kind and gentle and all that. But these men had better remember that the people back home in Minnesota have not such convenient forgetters as that, and that next time it will take something more than baseless promises to convince those people of the candidates' progressiveness and sincerity.

TWO CENTS AND FOUR MINUTES.

A contributor to the Open Court last night urged the readers of The Herald to write to the members of congress from this state, and particularly to the two senators and representatives from their respective districts, and urge them to vote in favor of the Canadian agreement. He reminded them that it would only take a 1-cent postal card and about two minutes of time for each one, and that the effect of a flood of such cards from the people of the state would be sure to show in the attitude of the congressmen.

The Herald wants to emphasize the suggestion. How are your senators and representatives in congress going to know what you want unless you write to them about it? This question of reciprocity was not raised before the election of the men now in the two houses. Unless they hear from their constituents they must "go it blind," in a measure. Tell them what you want, and then you will have a right to complain if they do not obey your wishes.

Another thing, and this also was pointed out by the contributor: The people who are opposed to this reciprocity agreement are working like nailers to beat it. Those who are in favor of it must do some work, too. Somehow an objector's voice always makes more noise than anybody else seems willing to raise, and in this case the objectors have nothing to argue about, so they have to make a big noise to make up for their lack of everything else. Well, suppose you were down there in Washington and you heard a racket from out home. You would listen to find what that racket meant, wouldn't you? And if you found that it represented one side of a question on which you must vote, you would listen for a bit of racket representing the other side. Certainly you would. And you would probably govern your actions somewhat by that racket.

Now supposing you heard a whole lot of noise on one side and little or none on the other. What would you think, and how would you vote?

The opponents of reciprocity are "hollering their heads off," so to speak, about this proposed agreement. The friends of the measure, the people who believe in increasing the nation's trade and establishing a principle that will do away with the custom of making the people pay for the benefit of privileged interests, have got to do some hollering on their own account. We send men to congress because we have confidence in their judgment and ability, but we send them to represent us, and how are they going to do that unless they know what we want?

The McCall bill has passed the house. Now it must pass the senate. Write to Senators Knute Nelson and Moses Clapp today and tell them you favor reciprocity with Canada. Your card will be a direct "swat" at special privilege and it will cost you only 2 cents and four minutes. Do it now.

ANOTHER COMMISSION PLAN.

Another modification of the Des Moines plan of government has come to light, and this time, of all places in the world, it is from Pittsburg. But the proposition is more far-reaching than any yet made elsewhere, for it is that the Pennsylvania legislature be induced to make the plan apply to all cities of the second class in that state. As explained by the Pittsburg Gazette-Times, the plan there is as follows:

Mayor and his duties to remain unchanged.

Council to consist of nine men, constituting one legislative body.

Councilmen to serve four years, four elected at one time and five at another.

Compensation to be $6,500 for each councilman.

Referendum to be possible on all ordinances upon petition of 10 per cent of the voters at the last election.

Initiative to be granted upon proposed ordinances upon petition of 15 per cent of the voters at the last election.

Recall of elective officials to be submitted to vote upon petition of 25 per cent of the voters at the last election.

Nomination to be made by petition of 5 per cent of the voters at the last election.

Ballot to be non-partisan, with no party names or symbols. Names on ballots to be arranged in order determined by lot.

Commenting on the Pittsburg plan and others, the Atlanta Constitution says:

> Administrative features of the plan differ radically according to the temper and the past experience of each individual community, but in no instance are the initiative and referendum, the popular nomination and the recall, ommitted. * * * Back of all the ferments which has extended equally to the smallest American towns, lie two incentives immovably fixed in the popular mind: The determination to secure greater efficiency in government, and the determination to take government further from the professional politicians and closer to the people. In either case, it is wise for the thinking American to remember that no form of government, however ideal in theory, will be effective unless its first ingredient is the untiring vigilance of the average voter.

Efficiency and popular control are the two things sought by the advocates of commission government. There can be no efficiency without definite responsibility, and there can be no real responsibility without there being some power to which the responsible official must answer. The man who wants good government should be willing to bear his fair share of its burden, but it is hard to do that when one cannot find the person on whom to place the blame when instances of inefficiency or misconduct arise.

BRINGS IT ALL BACK.

Somehow that report of Commissioner of Corporations Herbert Knox Smith brings back to mind several things concerning two other men. According to the commissioner's statement, published in The Herald last night, 50 per cent of all the standing timber privately owned, and investigated by the bureau of corporations, is held by 195 persons or corporations; three of these holders own nearly 11 per cent of the total; and the interests and men that have the biggest holdings are crying out against government conservation of resources, and at the same time are "cutting little of their own timber," and "are deliberately tying up natural resources for their own private gain" much more effectively than the government has proposed to do.

Commissioner Smith also makes the interesting statement that "there are many great combinations in other industries, whose formation is complete. In the lumber industry, on the other hand, the bureau now finds in the making a combination, caused fundamentally by long standing public policy. The concentration already existing is sufficiently impressive. Still more impressive are the possibilities for the future."

And further on he says: "Standing timber is not the only question. When the timber has been cut, the land remains. There has been created, therefore, not only the framework of an enormous timber monopoly, but also an equally sinister land concentration in extensive sections. * * * Finally, to the timber concentration and to land concentration is added, in our most important timber section, a closely connected railroad domination. The formidable possibilities of this combination in the Pacific Northwest and elsewhere are of the gravest public importance. * * * The underlying cause is our public land policy, resulting in enormous loss of wealth to the public and its monopolization by a few interests."

The government received about $30,000,000 for these timber holdings, though at the time of the sale they were worth $240,000,000. Today they are estimated to be worth $6,000,000,000. And their holders are opposing conservation of government-owned timber.

Somewhow it all brings back a lot of things about two men—Richard A. Ballinger and Gifford Pinchot. Somehow it makes things look as if Pinchot is vindicated in his charges of monopolistic perils to the people's interests. And Ballinger—by the way, where is Ballinger? Has he resigned—yet?

What does the Constitution say about representation?

An American whose middle name is Morgan is to take charge of the finances of the shah of Persia. Doesn't the shah care what becomes of his money?

Thus far the Minnesota farmers who are opposed to reciprocity with Canada have forgotten to point to the horrible losses they suffer through the lack of restrictions on commerce with North Dakota.

Without meaning to cast aspersions, maybe the man she was to have married is the very one who will be avoided most carefully by Dorothy Arnold.

TALKS WITH THE STATE PRESS

Wiring Home for Money.

Stillwater Gazette: Who says the telephone doesn't pay? J. L. Reams of Belle Center, Ohio, installed a telephone in his home Feb. 9. The first message received over the line informed him that he was heir to $300,000. That is a great advertisement for the telephone.

But it doesn't work that way with all of us.

Senator Nelson's Conge.

Fairmont Sentinel: Senator Knute Nelson is said to want another term. No man in politics was ever wise enough to discover when the people are through with him.

A good many Minnesotans are hoping that he will continue to want it.

Cost of Misrule.

St. Paul Review: A Brainerd Socialist asserts that as long as we vote the old party tickets we lose $6 a day. This is apparently a step towards the spirit of '76.

It isn't what it costs us in money today but what it will cost posterity for ages that is arousing the real spirit of '76.

Artists and Millionaires.

Red Wing Republican: A Chicago millionaire has become famous as an artist, but so far no artist has distinguished himself by becoming a millionaire.

Such a feat certainly would entitle the artist to a full measure of fame.

Maturity of Knute Nelson.

Albert Lea Standard: Senator Knute Nelson voted for ship subsidy and proposes a law to lease Alaska coal lands that tickles the Morganheims. Senator Knute is old enough to know better.

Also he is old enough to know just what he is doing, so there's not much hope for Knute.

Dr. Vincent Big Enough.

Sauk Rapids Sentinel: From what we read of President-elect Vincent of the state university we believe he will make good despite the efforts of the Twin City press to make him think Minnesota is bounded by the limits of Minneapolis and St. Paul.

If Dr. Vincent is the kind of man the Twin City press avers, he has by this time quite disabused his mind concerning the motives of those who overwhelmed him with adulation and mushy praise.

Against Heavy Odds.

Warren Register: The effort to throw a halo of romance around the Decies-Gould wedding is confined to a very few and is a rank failure. The fact is generally recognized that the girl has no better sense, while the man needs the money, and that is the foundation for this "international alliance." Probably after Decies shall have squared matters with his creditors with Gould money, he will cease to see any charm in his young American wife.

Pessimistic, but apparently justified by past performances in the International matrimonial handicap.

Throwing a Scare.

Princeton Union: The editor of an exchange thinks that Bro. Nary of the Maple Lake Messenger contemplates going into the patent medicine business, drawing his conclusion from the fact that he carries a half-tone of his physiognomy at the top of the editorial column. It may be, however, that Bro. Nary merely runs his picture to throw a scare into delinquent subscribers. Who knows?

It it can do that, it must be a fearful and wonderful thing to behold.

Cummins' Plan Approved.

Red Wing Free Press: Senator Cummins contends that not only Lorimer but all tainted senators should be removed. That would, of course, leave the senate without a quorum and the country would have to worry along with a one-house congress. Which wouldn't be a bad idea at all—if practicable.

Coming just at this time, when the British upper house is encountering such intense popular disapproval, this paragraph indicates an open season for houses of lords.

ABOUT THE LEGISLATURE.

Amending the Primary Law.

Buffalo Journal: The legislature is trying to find a way to confine voters to their parties at primary elections. In counties where one of the parties is dominant the voters of the other party assist in making the nominations. If the legislature will change the primary law to include state officers there will be less of this cross-voting, as the minority party in the state would furnish men willing to be candidates for a state office. By adding presidential electors we would be certain of some interest every four years.

Dead Political Ducks.

Rush City Post: The only real important question before the legislature is reapportionment. It is practically a pre-pledged question and every senator should come to it in a manly, honest manner and pass the bill. The fellow who dodges or opposes this time will be a dead political duck for all time.

Toga or Integrity.

Sauk Rapids Sentinel: It is evident that there is hard sledding ahead for reapportionment in the Minnesota legislature. There appear to be numerous gentlemen in Minnesota's upper house who would rather be senators than be right.

More's the Pity.

Two Harbors Journal-News: There's many a slip 'twixt a campaign promise and reapportionment.

Ends Option Hopes.

Morris Sun: With the defeat of the county option bill in the house, all hope for the passage of such a bill at this session seems to be lost, for while the bill is still to come up in the senate, all that it can do will be to put the senators on record. The bill was lost by a vote of 69 to 50, both our representatives, Spooner and Peterson, voting for the bill.

Must Be a Joke.

Ada Index: It is stated that some of the leading men in Northern Minnesota favor making a determined effort to divide the state should a reapportionment bill fail to pass at this session.

But Did He Promise?

Barnesville Record-Herald: How is the Becker county representative going to square himself on the county option question? Before the election we are told, he declared himself for county option, and the vote shows that he voted the other way.

Big Improvement Noted.

Buffalo Journal: A bill requiring all road taxes to be paid in cash has passed the house. Frankfort town has tried out the cash tax plan and finds it a big improvement over the old way of working out the tax.

Some Important Business.

Two Harbors Journal-News: During the first couple of months of every legislative session the members are kept busy considering motions to adjourn

Especially in This State.

Louisville Courier-Journal: A Minnesota woman who was once a stenographer is now farming 2,000 acres of land at a handsome profit. Why try ineffectually to learn spelling when agriculture pays more handsomely?

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

LINCOLN AND THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC

To the Editor of The Herald:

Will you allow, in fairness to the memory of the great citizen whose birth anniversary we celebrated Sunday, a reply to an unjust imputation upon his character contained in a brewery advertisement in your paper of Monday?

I do not wish to say much; only I ask you, give Mr. Lincoln a chance to defend his own memory from such desecration.

Mr. Lincoln was not a "personal liberty" man in any such sense as the article conveys. He did not believe in the liberty of one man to hold another as a slave, or to sell him what would intoxicate and degrade him. In the church in Fremont, Ill., of which my grandfather was then a minister, Mr. Lincoln used to make temperance speeches. This is the pledge which he used to sign and invite others to sign: "The members of this temperance society mutually pledge themselves to each other not to use intoxicating liquor in any form, as a beverage, nor to make, vend or in any way provide the same for use by others. A. Lincoln."

In a temperance speech in Springfield in 1842 he said: "Whether or not the world would be vastly benefited by a total and final banishment from it of all intoxicating drinks seems to me not now an open question. Three-fourths of mankind confess the affirmative with their tongues, and, I believe, all the rest acknowledge it in their hearts. Turn now to the temperance revolution. In it we shall find a stronger bondage broken, (than that of African slavery), a viler slavery manumitted, a greater tyrant deposed; in it, more of want supplied, more disease healed, more sorrow assuaged. By it no orphans starving, no widows weeping. * * * And what a noble ally this to the cause of political freedom; with such an aid its march cannot fail to be on and on, till every son of earth shall drink in rich fruition the sorrow-quenching draught of perfect liberty."

What particular circumstances led him to move to table a resolution for a prohibitory amendment in the Illinois legislature in 1840, I do not know; anyone who reads his life, however, may know that when such an amendment was before the people of Illinois in 1855, Mr. Lincoln stumped the state for it for weeks. From his speeches in this campaign these quotations come:

"This legalized liquor traffic as carried on in the grog shops and saloons is the great tragedy of modern civilization. It is not enough nowadays to answer the duties of American citizenship that a man means well. Citizenship demands that what is right should not only be made known, but be made prevalent—that what is evil and wrong in our midst should not only be detected but defeated, destroyed, outlawed."

"The saloon has proved itself to be the greatest foe, the most withering, blighting curse that has found lodgement in our modern civilization, and that is why I am now and always a political prohibitionist."

"We must push direct organizations for the right—organization, too, on a political basis for prohibiting the traffic, as the state and nation are political organizations. Today and every day our exertions are met by this delusion of intemperance—are met and repelled by the legalized liquor traffic, by the votaries, victims and adherents of the saloon element.

"These saloons are systematically at work to entice and corrupt, recruiting constantly, as we see everywhere, and so sustaining the whole baneful system of destruction. Every saloon, every drinking place, is at work to make drunkards, just as certainly as every mill is run to make flour. In this way it comes to pass inevitably that the legalized liquor traffic is more than a match for all our combined moral suasives. It must be clearly seen by all, that until this self-perpetrating power is broken by law and by suppressing the saloon, all our hopes for holding even those we have rescued must be dashed to earth."

He often closed a speech with the expression of a hope to see the "day when there should not be a slave nor a drunkard in the land."

On the morning of the day on which he was shot, Mr. Lincoln said to his old comrade in the Illinois prohibition campaign of 1855: "After reconstruction, the next great question will be the overthrow of the liquor traffic."

And this is the man claimed by the brewery as its champion! Which do you believe, it or him?

AITKIN MAN HAS AN ORIGINAL PLATFORM.

To the Editor of the Herald:

In a recent "Open Court" column I note "Lakesider" is a candidate for the legislature on a platform of abolishing himself and then proposes to go on the United States senate, repeating the operation there. I herewith tender my support to him. But I, too, am a candidate for the legislature on an original platform, thence on to congress to repeat. My platform is to have laws passed prohibiting great reformers from holding office. That is, a citizen may have reform notions and express them in a moderate way and still be eligible to office, but must stop reforming when he becomes a candidate.

This is aimed at the Miller-Clapp class of statesmen. Miller came into prominence as an "eater-up" of Cannonism. Well he did swallow it, come to think. Then there is Clapp, who was just re-elected to the senate on an insurgent platform. Mr. Clapp has drawn a hundred thousand dollars or so in salary and the only chance he ever had to be of real use to the public—in the ship subsidy steal—he was conspicuous by his absence.

I suppose if we could look far enough into the dim and distant past we would find that Knute Nelson made his first campaign as a reformer. The interests do not help a beginner until he is in position to help them. The people must lift them up, and then if they serve the interests properly they may take their place in rank with sane and dignified statemen. My aim is to get rid of that trait among office holders that is expressed in the old saw:

"When the devil was sick
The devil a monk would be
When the devil got well
'Tis sad to tell
The devil a monk was he."

Voters take notice: I have added a tooth to that saw.

Another plank in my platform is that officials should never inaugurate any reforms. Reforms should start from the people who, having been ground in spots until they are sore, know by experience where the sore spots are.

If "Lakesider" will throw a stone into my garden I will throw a brickbat into his. Of course he may get chesty and say, my platform was inspired by his but he can't prove it.

Doctor Scott's Query.

Blackwood's Magazine: Dr. Scott, joint parent with Liddell of the well known Greek lexicon, was at one time master of Balliol college, Oxford university and master at all times of quiet sarcasm.

A noble lord who had rooms in the buildings which adjoined the master's house and who, contrary to regulations, kept a dog in college, went to complain of the noise made by cats. After he had expatiated for some little time on this grievance Dr. Scott said with the gentle, slow drawl which lent additional force to his sallies:

"Is that a cat, Lord Donoughmore, that I hear barking on your staircase every night?"

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Life: The Professor—I went to the lost property office today and got that umbrella I left on the train last week.

"That's good. Where is it now?"

"Eh, by Jove; I—really, my dear, I'm afraid I—er—left it on the train."

Argonaut: A Detroit millionaire gave his little daughter, on Christmas, a superb doll's house—a doll's house lighted with electricity, that had baths and a garage, and even, in one corner of its garage, a tiny doll monoplane.

"Well, my dear, do you like your new doll's house?" the little girl's father asked her one day during Christmas week.

"Oh, yes, papa; tremendously," she replied. "But I've let it furnished to Cousin Angela for $10 a month."

Judge: "My husband is like a rooster in one respect."

"Indeed?"

"Yes. When he gets up early he crows over it.

Argonaut: The new maid seemed eminently satisfactory, but the mistress of the house thought a few words of advice would be just as well.

"And remember," she concluded, "that I expect you to be very reticent about what you hear when you are waiting at the table."

"Certainly, madam, certainly," replied the treasure. But then her face lit up with an innocent curiosity. "May I ask, madam, if there will be much to be reticent about?"

Houston Post: The resolution that I prized on New Year, with ambitions great, I find, alas, must be revised and cautiously brought down to date.

Human Life: It happened in a crowded street car. The noted Rabbi Hirsch had risen to give his seat to a young woman, but before she could take it a burly young fellow slid into it. The rabbi looked very meaningly at him, and, after an uncomfortable silence, the young fellow finally blurted out:

"Well, what are you glarin' at me for? Want to eat me? Eh?"

"No," calmly replied the rabbi, "I am forbidden to eat you—I am a Jew."

Los Angeles Herald: So many smugglers have been spotted at the New York custom house that it would seem there ought to be enough voters among them to carry the country for free trade.

NUPTIAL MUSIC.

Boston Transcript: It is odd how musical taste deserts the wedding. People whose discrimination is fairly intelligent seem temporarily deprived of it during the period just preceding the ceremony, and they will tolerate anything from the two old dray-horse wedding marches to hymns without the slightest application to the case. We are frequently amazed at wedding music as we would be if some one had had the poor taste to send trading stamps to the show case where the presents are on view.

While this is a theme requiring exhaustive study, long hours of research in the Allen Brown collection at the public library, minute scholarship and and a taste ranging from bold jubilation to the most polished innuendo, let a few hasty suggestions be thrown out until that study can be made. The ceremony should, of course, open with Strauss' "Simfonia Domestica," with augmented orchestra, and the free use of dissonance. This prepares for the worst. Follow with a singing of the "Dies Irae" for full orchestra, organ and chorus. Lighter pieces follow, "Come Fill the Cup," by Liza Lehmann, the "Anvil Chorus" for women's voices only, and "Break, Break, Break," arranged as a part song for all the guests, in veiled allusion to expenses incurred in bearing gifts. To the marital strains of Shubert's "Military March" enter the bridal pair. During the ceremony soloists discourse Mendelssohn's duet for Burns' "O, Wert Thou in the Cauld, Cauld Blast," Rubinstein's trio, "An Angel From Heaven," in deference to the bride, and, for baritone solo, admonishing the bridegroom, "Ich Grolle Nicht," by Schumann. To the Bacchanal from Tannhauser and the music of the second act from Tristan, the wedded pair depart. For conclusion, selection may be made from among the following hymns: For doubters concerning wedlock, "I Would Not Live Always"; for brides, "Be Still My Heart"; for rejected lovers, "Come, My Soul, Thy Suit Prepare"; for an international wedding, "When I Can Read My Title Clear"; for bachelors, "O Happy Day That Stays My Choice."

PLEADS HIS OWN CASE

Richard Cullen Has No Faith Left in Duluth Attorneys.

Sent Out on Search for a "Scilicet" By One Attorney.

Stating that if he employed an attorney he would get nothing out of his case, Richard Cullen, known to nearly everybody in the city, appeared in district court this morning and acted as his own attorney in the case of William T. James against Richard Cullen at all.

The case involved the title to forty acres of land near Tower, Minn., which is valuable both for its timber and the iron possibilities as it is close to the Soudan mine.

Mr. Cullen says that he is tired of attorneys. He says they have "done" him until he refuses to be "done" any more. He is the scarred hero of many a legal battle. In the last few years he has had a great number of cases in the local courts and nearly all of them have been over the titles to land.

Judge Bonham was the attorney on the other side this morning. Mr. Cullen gave a practical demonstration of some real oratory and ended up with a fervent plea for the title to the land, the costs and disbursements of the action and $10 which he claims is due him for attorney's fees.

The little skit in Judge Ensign's room played to good business. It had been advertised in every lawyer's office and they were all on hand.

Mr. Cullen tried to lead his witness, tried to give evidence for his witness and interrupted him several times in an attempt to coach him. Judge Ensign told Mr. Cullen that he should have had an attorney, but Mr. Cullen thought differently on the matter. All attorneys were alike to him.

The case aroused much interest about the courthouse. The same case was up before. At that time Mr. Cullen had no attorney. Judge Dibell drew up his answer for him and after hearing the case found in his favor.

Judge Drew Up Paper.

But yesterday Mr. Cullen made the remark that he could not get a fair trial from Judge Dibell and wanted to draw up an affidavit of prejudice, when a new action was brought, Judge Dibell drew it up for him and sent him to several attorneys to have it sworn to.

After being turned down by several Mr. Cullen finally found one attorney who looked the paper over carefully, knit his brows, looked as puzzled as he could and told him that he could have nothing to do with the paper, as it was not drawn up correctly and contained no "scilicet."

He also told Mr. Cullen that he was of the opinion that Judge Dibell was trying to "slip something over" on him and advised him to see some really responsible person.

Mr. Cullen departed to find the "scilicet" and the responsible party. The "scilicet" has about the same relation to the law that the key to the compass has to the steamboat, and type-dust has to a priting shop. The notary to whom Mr. Cullen went, added the "state of Minnesota, s. s." and the affidavit was filed with the clerk of the district court. This morning the trial went on before Judge Ensign.

The land is described as lot 2, section 31, township 62, north range 14. The plaintiff claims that he owns an undivided half interest in the timber and admits that Cullen is the owner of half the land. He wants a division of the timber by the court, or if this cannot be done, he wants it sold, half the money to be given him.

In his complaint the plaintiff claims that in September, 1902, Mr. Cullen gave W. F. Hackett a deed to half the land including the timber which stood on it. Hackett sold the timber to James, but retained his interest in the land.

Cullen claims that he is the sole owner of both the land and the timber, and wishes to be adjudged as such by the court.

WE WILL BE GLAD TO SUBMIT

Our Case to the Honorable Judges Named By Our Competitor!

We are more than glad to have him name so fair a board of referees as the three Judges of the Eleventh Judicial District of Minnesota (not St. Louis County as our neighbor has it.)

We welcome the chance for fair consideration of our claims. In our ads. of February 7th, we invited our competitor to name a referee. We ourselves might have hesitated at the effrontery of asking the three honorable Judges named by him to act as referees in what might seem to them a trivial matter, but which to us was serious, as the truthfulness of our statements was questioned!

So if our neighbor will arrange for a hearing before the judges he has been so free to name, we will lay the facts before them—and if it is their decision, upon their order, we will Pay the $1000.00 to The Associated Charities of Duluth.

Now, just a word! Alongside we reprint word for word a fac-simile reproduction of the two propositions on which we offered to pay the $1,000.00 if our competitor could prove them untrue.

Now, note this—our neighbor with characteristic shiftiness dodged our two propositions, and tried to twist what we said into an offer of $1,000.00 to the statement that "other Duluth stores cannot now buy any more Elyria Laces direct from the factory!"

This Was Our Offer

Again, we say that was not our offer—

And you who read the photographic reproduction of part of our ad. in The Herald of Feb. 7th, printed alongside, will agree with us.

It might be possible that our competitor might be able in some round about way to get small quantities of lace from time to time, but this fact does not make us any the less the chosen representatives of the American Lace Manufacturing Co. in Duluth.

If he gets any satisfaction from that, he is welcome to it!

We hope our competitor will be able to arrange for a hearing with the judges he has named!

To Any Duluth Charity if Our Disgruntled Competitor Will Prove Untrue Our Claims of our having been given the exclusive sale of fine Elyria laces for Duluth—or that we received a single yard less than 19,828 yards of fine, new Elyria Laces in one shipment.

We will show any reputable accountant or any banker in the city our bill for the laces and our written contract with the company which makes them.

This written agreement was given us by The American Lace Manufacturing Co. because the volume of our business justified them to do so. To get our business they could afford to quit selling everybody else in Duluth.

We Had Over 19,828 Yards of Fine Elyria Laces In This Shipment.

And we challenge the man who wrote the ad. in last night's Herald to disprove it

JOHN ANDERSON FOUND GUILTY

Jury Finds That He Stole Copper Wire From Northern Pacific.

After being out all night, a jury in district court reported this morning a verdict of guilty in the case of the state against John Anderson, charged with stealing some copper wire from the Northern Pacific Railroad company.

It was the second trial of the same case. The first trial, which was held in the early part of the present term, resulted in a disagreement.

Judge Cant, before whom the trial was heard and who received the report of the jury, complimented the jurymen on their verdict.

In quite a little talk given the jury after the verdict had been read, the judge stated that too many men who are guilty of crimes are being allowed to go free by juries in the local court. The judge stated that everybody is innocent in court and that it was easy for the jury to see the defendant's end of the story. He stated that jurors are as a rule very simple about cases where there seems to be a small doubt. He said that no innocent men were being convicted these days and that if the doubt is strong enough, the defendant is usually given a light sentence or placed on probation.

He told the men that in the case against Anderson the chances were 1,000 to 1 that he was guilty.

TRAVELING MAN KILLED.

Falls to Death Trying to Enter Car Vestibule.

Stewart, Minn., Feb. 15.—Frank E. Hall, a traveling man employed by Griggs & Co. of St. Paul, was killed yesterday near here by a St. Paul passenger train. He arrived at the train as it was about to pull out and after the vestibules had been closed. Probably thinking that the conductor would see him and open the doors, he got on the steps and held to the hand rail. His body was found later, with the skull crushed, and it was evident that he had been jolted from the train. An inquest will be held at Browntown, where the body was taken.

OPPOSED TO BOND ISSUE

Fifth Ward Improvement Club Against Municipal Electric Plant Project.

Organization Holds That City Should Not Assume Heavy Obligation.

The Fifth Ward Hillside Improvement club at its meeting in the Emerson school last night, went on record as opposed to the passage of the enabling act now before the legislature. The act will allow the people of Duluth to pass upon the issuance of $700,000 worth of bonds for the acquisition of an electric lighting plant. It was stated at the meeting that when the question of a bond issue has been submitted to the voters it has never failed of passage. The sentiment was that Duluth is not now in a position to burden itself with another issue of $700,000 worth of bonds.

The passage of the last bond issue of $300,000 for the water and light department came in for some discussion, but no particular action was taken. The idea expressed was that if the bonds are not proper the council still has power to prevent the sale of the bonds and that the matter should be left in the hands of the aldermen.

The next meeting of the club will be devoted to a discussion of the commission form of government. It is expected that some interesting points will be raised.

AUTO CROSSES GREEN BAY.

Two Daring Automobilists Cover Twenty-Two Miles on Ice.

Marinette, Wis., Feb. 15—(Special to The Herald.)—Green bay was crossed by an automobile on Sunday for the first time in history. Robert Brott and Fred Grinnell, in a 20-horse power car, made the trip, twenty-two miles to In places where the ice had heaved, In places where the ise had heaved, sheer drops of four feet were encountered. The trip over was made in one and one-half hours. On the return trip they struck a crack twelve feet wide. An attempt to leap the crack resulted in failure, and the front part of the car was submerged in four feet of water. The autoists walked ten miles to Menominee, procured a team and some fourteen foot planks, bridged the crack and completed the trip.

SLOGAN CONTEST TO BE DECIDED

Publicity Committee of Commercial Club Will Pass on Suggestions.

There will be a meeting of the Commercial club publicity committee in the club rooms tomorrow noon, when a number of interesting subjects will be considered, among them the slogan contest recently conducted by The Herald.

It is probable that at this meeting some scheme will be evolved for deciding to whom shall be awarded the $10 prize offered by The Herald for the most acceptable slogan for use, possibly, on the large electric sign it is proposed to erect on the hillside or hilltop. The Commercial club is under no obligation to use the slogan which may be given the palm, as the contest was one with which neither the club nor the publicity committee had any connection. It was started merely for the purpose of getting suggestions that might be helpful when the club gets around to definite action on the project.

The sign proposition is now in committee and there is no likelihood that it will be given official sanction for some time. The Herald's slogan contest demonstrated, however, that the plan is one which meets with much popular approval.

MARQUETTE MAN DEPORTED.

Finn Who Killed Man in Houghton Is Sent Home.

Marquette, Mich., Feb. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eli Karvakka, who has been an inmate of the Marquette prison for the past year, has left in custody of D. J. Povey, an inspector in the United States immigration service, for New York, where he will be put on board a trans-Atlantic steamer and sent back to his native land, Finland.

Karvakka in a drunken row at Houghton stabbed a companion, who died four days later. He was arrested on the charge of murder, and the jury returned a verdict of manslaughter. He was sentenced to spend from one to fifteen years in the Marquette prison. While in prison, the immigration officers investigated his case and determined that he was an undesirable allen. An arrangement was then entered into with the prison officials, whereby Karvakka was paroled at the expiration of his minimum term, on the understanding that he was to be deported.

WILL BEGIN LIFE TERM

Charles Melodrowski to Be Taken to Prison at Stillwater.

Boy Bandit Is Anxious to Begin Serving His Sentence.

Charles Melodrowski, who with Algot Johnson, held up the night clerk at the McKay hotel and later in an attempt to escape, shot and killed Officer Harry Chesmore of the police department, will be taken to Stillwater tomorrow by Sheriff Meining and will begin serving his life sentence.

Melodrowski is very anxious to go. He has talked continually of it for some weeks past. He is looking forward to the train ride, the different surroundings and his life in prison with keen boyish interest. He says that he wishes the journey was a longer one as he wants to get all out of his last train ride that is possible.

The case was finally closed this morning when the records were completed and the papers handed to the sheriff.

Melodrowski was convicted of second degree murder by a jury in district court two weeks ago, after he had killed the officer. He pleaded guilty to the robbery charge, but for this no sentence was imposed.

It will be remembered that the youthful bandits held up the clerk at the hotel, obtained nearly $50 in money and after being captured by Officer Chesmore, shot him while on the street car near Fifth avenue west and Superior street. They escaped for the time being but were later captured in a logging camp about twenty miles from the city.

Algot Johnson, Melodrowski's companion, was convicted of murder in the third degree. He was sentenced to thirty years at Stillwater. As soon as the papers can be prepared, he will be taken away. He, too, is very anxious to begin on his sentence. He spends a good deal of his time at the county jail figuring out how much he can cut down the sentence.

ALUMNI BANQUET WILLIAM FOLWELL

First President of University of Minnesota Honored at Washington.

Washington, Feb. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local alumni of the University of Minnesota gave a banquet last evening at the Sherman in honor of William Folwell, LL.D., first president of the university. It was his 78th birthday and the affair was really under the auspices of the general alumni association of the university. Remarks were made by Congressman C. B. Miller class of '95, W. W. Campbell, class of '75, and now president of Virginia college; K. C. Babcock, class of '89, former instructor in the university and now president of the University of Arizona, and W. M. Hayes, assistant secretary of agriculture and formerly a professor at the University of Minnesota. The most interesting feature perhaps was the presentation to Dr. Folwell of written congratulatory messages from more than 500 of his former students richly bound in morocco. This was a surprise from the general alumni association and deeply affected the veteran educator. Roy Y. Ferne, class of '98, president of the local association, presided.

"Minnesota, Hail to Thee" was sung with much animation and the event closed with the lusty Minnesota yell.

RATIFIED BY THE HOUSE

Reciprocity Agreement With Canada Passes By Decisive Vote.

Five Members of Minnesota Delegation Vote Against the Bill.

Washington, Feb. 15.—President Taft's reciprocity agreement with Canada was ratified in the house of representatives last night through the support of an almost solid Democratic vote. The McCall bill carrying the agreement into effect, was passed 221 to 92. A majority of the Republicans present voted against the measure, the division being 78 yeas and 87 nays. The Democratic was 143 years and only 5 nays. A majority of the Republican insurgents present voted for the bill.

The McCall bill now goes to the senate. What its fate will be in that body is problematical at this time. President Taft believes that, if a filibuster can be avoided and a vote taken, the bill will pass. He is insistent that the senate shall act one way or the other, and has indicated that he would call an extra session of congress if it does not do so.

The passage of the bill in the house came at the end of a long debate which at times was as bitter as has been heard on the floor of that chamber in years. The fight was confined almost wholly to the Republican side. Democratic members joined in from time to time and taunted the majority members for their lack of unity.

The Democratic leaders also put in the claim that the reciprocity agreement was good Democratic doctrine and declared that they were glad to welcome President Taft and many of the house Republicans into the Democratic fold.

The suggestion came from the Republican side that Mr. Taft and Champ Clark might be rivals for the next presidential nomination. Mr. Clark claimed that in a contest of that sort he would win "hands down."

Cloture Rule Applied.

A final vote was reached only through the application of a cloture rule which shut off all amendments and even dispensed with the reading of the bill. This procedure was decided upon only after Mr. McCall, in charge of the bill, had failed to get unanimous consent to do away with calendar today. If that had been secured, he said, he would have been glad to let the debate continue for another legislative day. The Republicans opposed to the bill fought the rule to the very last, denouncing it in caustic language. They directed their fire especially against the Democrats and focused them on the eve of going into power in the house, of enforcing a "gag" rule as drastic as anything against which they had so eloquently inveighed in the past. The Democrats laughed loudly at this and seemed thoroughly to enjoy the discomfiture of their old-time enemies.

Champ Clark took Representative Dalzell of Pennsylvania sharply to task for complaining of the "undue haste" with which the house was acting on the reciprocity measure. The speaker-to-be declared that the Democrats had sat for years, bound and gagged, while the gentleman from Pennsylvania and his associates had brought in rule after rule and had rushed legislation through without giving an opportunity for amendment. Under the cloture rule, which was adopted by an overwhelming vote, the only loophole left to the opponents of the measure, was a motion to recommit the bill to the committee of the whole house with instructions to report certain amendments. When the time came to do this, half a dozen members were clamoring for recognition.

Mr. Dalzell was recognized by Speaker Cannon. He proposed that meat and meat products, flour, prepared cereals, lumber and several other articles be put on the tree list. The Democrats were not shaken by this and the motion was lost 114 to 121.

Feeling Intense.

The cloture rule had been agreed to previously by a vote of 198 to 107. It had been apparent for several days that the reciprocity measure would have an overwhelming majority in the house. This seemed to make its opponents all the more bitter. The feeling displayed in the house was so intense at times, that it surprised members on both sides of the house.

Some of the old guard Republican leaders like Dalzell of Pennsylvania, and Fordney of Michigan, veiled but thinly their predictions that the Republican party would be defeated by reason of what they characterized as departure from the principle of protection and the espousal of free trade.

Mr. Dalzell proposed to stand where he had stood for forty years and to "go down" with his party. Mr. Fordney said he feared that Democratic times were coming and it made him "sweat blood" to contemplate the melancholy fact.

The other speeches from the Republican opposition were in much the same vein.

Speaker Cannon took no part in the debate. He was in the chamber constantly, however, and followed the arguments on both sides with the keenest interest.

There was loud applause and cheering in the house last night when on the first record vote that was ordered, the speaker called Representative Ollie James of Kentucky, one of the leaders of the Democratic side, to the chair. Mr. James sat there all through the roll call and when he announced the vote, the cheering was renewed. This is said to be the only time a Democrat has been called to preside over the house since the Republicans gained control.

President Taft last night gave a dinner to Speaker Cannon. The meal was delayed an hour while the house was voting on reciprocity. It is said the president sent word that he would change the dinner into a breakfast if it was necessary in order to pass the bill. The final vote, by which the bill was passed, was as follows:

LOGGERS DELAYED BY HEAVY SNOW

Cut Will Not Be as Heavy as Expected This Year.

The recent heavy fall of moist snow was not favorable for logging operations. In the woods the snow is three feet deep in many level places and in some regions of the northeastern part of the state the snow measures deeper. While the snow that was on the ground was dry logging operations were not inconvenienced.

The next freeze will result in the formation of a crust on the snow which will interfere with logging seriously. The crust will cut the horses' legs and skidding will be a difficult proposition. Many loggers have done most of their skidding. This is especially true of the operators who have sleigh hauls.

Loggers say that an additional foot of snow would cause logging operations to be suspended. It is likely that the season's cut will be under the prospects which prevailed early in the season. Many large operators do summer logging and a reduced cut this winter will not have any effect on the general market.

CITY JOINS WITH COUNTY

Joint Committee Will Investigate Subject of Workhouse for Petty Offenders.

City Jail Will Be Renovated ---Expense of Work Yard Is Heavy.

The city will work in conjunction with the board of county commissioners in investigating the possibilities and probabilities of a joint workhouse for all short term prisoners. The authorities recognize that some definite action along this line must be taken in the near future.

At the request of the county commissioners President Frank Jordan last night appointed Aldermen Wharton, Shartel and Makowski a committee of three to work with a committee of the county board in making this investigation. The city attorney and the attorney of the board will act with the joint committee in order that all legal phases may get proper attention.

A resolution which would have put the city on record as favoring a separate workhouse for city prisoners was voted down overwhelmingly. The aldermen did not wish to go on record in this manner, stating that they ought to get all information possible relative to the situation before taking any action of any kind.

The Associated Charities sent in a communication telling briefly of what has been done at the Point of Rocks and asking for a further appropriation. The fund now has a balance of but $22.33. It was explained that the cost of running the place has been cut down from $197 a month, to $129.67 a month. The experiment is costing more than was anticipated by some of the city fathers and it is probable that the matter will be thoroughly investigated before any additional allowances are granted.

After much criticism from different sources, the city jail will be thoroughly renovated. The council last night allowed not to exceed $300 for this purpose. Many requests have been made that the jail be enlarged, but this is impossible at this time. Any money expended for purposes of this kind must first be levied by the conference committee. This was not done last fall and the earliest that it can be done is next fall, which will prevent any addition to the jail for at least a year.

COAL MOVEMENT WILL BE LATE

Supplies at Head of Lakes Are Ample, Says Carnegie Official.

Coal supplies at the Head of the Lakes are in fair volume according to C. P. White of Minneapolis, vice president and general manager of the Carnegie Fuel company, who was at the Spalding today.

Mr. White thinks the vessel movement will be late in getting under way next spring and that the receipts of coal will be small during the early weeks of the season.

The ore movement, said Mr. White, will not be very active immediately after the opening. Vessels that could bring coal up the lakes will not be likely to take on cargoes until they can be reasonably certain of return cargoes. This will tend to make the early movement of coal light.

The docks will be short of a few grades of coal but the situation can be regarded as normal, both now and in relation to the future. By the time the new coal begins to move, said Mr. White, the docks at the Head of the Lakes will be fairly well cleaned up.

DEATH OF COMMANDER WILL BE INVESTIGATED.

Newport, R. I., Feb. 15.—Because of certain mysterious circumstances attending the death yesterday in the naval hospital here of Commander Frank Marble, U. S. N., an inquest has been ordered. Commander Marble died suddenly and it was first said that death was due to apoplexy. Later it was announce that a fractured skull caused death. He fell in his bathroom Monday night, striking his head and causing a bad wound. It is believed that the fall was due to an apoplectic seizure Commander Marble had been attached to the naval war college for two years. He entered the naval academy from New York in 1884.

FINDS NEW KIDNEY CURE

Dr. T. Frank Lynott, New York Specialist, Discovers Remarkable Remedy.

At last a perfectly harmless and positive cure appears to have been found. Dr. T. Frank Lynott, formerly of the New York Bellevue hospital, and now a celebrated specialist in Chicago, has a very quick acting formula which has been approved by the best doctors.

The editor of The Herald saw the above clipping from the Inter Ocean and wanted to know of this new formula for curing kidney trouble.

Arrangements were then made by which Dr. Lynott offers Herald readers a free treatment. Dr. Lynott, however, says that he proposes to give the free treatment only for a limited time to convince the public in every part of the United States of the positive wonderful efficacy of his treatment.

Furthermore, Dr. Lynott wants to make it clear that he has no "cureall." He is a specialist in kidney and bladder diseases and rheumatism, so please do not write to him unless you have one of these diseases. If you write at once both the medical advice and medicine are entirely free.

The editor of this paper, The Herald, feels that with such a free offer anybody who stays sick with kidney trouble or rheumatism deserves to be sick.

I know that a good many free offers have been advertised where the public had to send money, but this free offer really IS A FREE OFFER. And remember, that instead of getting an ordinary physician, you get the medical advice free direct from America's greatest of all specialists on these diseases. SAYS KANGAS WAS HER HUSBAND

Woman Must Prove Marriage to Get Estate of Dead Man.

Mrs. David Kangas is trying to prove in probate court that she is lawfully Mrs. David Kangas. By doing this she will establish her right to the estate of Kangas, who died two years ago at Ely, Minn., after having passed as an unmarried man during his residence in that village.

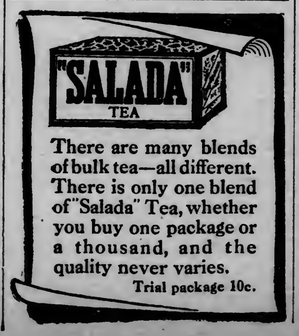

Mrs. Kangas has been trying for a long time to prove her identity. Others claim a share in the estate and claim that while Mrs. Kangas may have lived with the man whom she claims was her husband, she was never legally married to him.

The affair has been dragging through the probate court for some time past and the evidence given by both sides is so confusing that it may never be possible to determine to whom the estate really belongs.

Yesterday Mrs. Kangas presented many letters which she claimed were received from her husband, while he was at Ely and she was living in the old country. In each of the letters she was addressed as wife.

She offered in evidence a picture of herself and Kangas and the children. It was admitted, however, that Kangas had been added to the group.

She claims that she did not come to the United States until a year after the death of Kangas. The marriage certificate she claims is in the hands of a lodge. She claims that the lodge refuses to give it up as it is needed as one of the proofs of death.

PETITIONS FOR RECALL

Of Tacoma's Commissioners Are to Be Circulated.

Tacoma Wash., Feb. 15.—Preliminary to the circulation of petitions for their recall, charges of incompetency, failure to enforce the laws and generally neglect of duty, have been filed against Commissioners W. L. Roys, Owen Woods, Nicholas Larson and Ray Freeland by a committee of the reform element. These men, with Mayor Fawcett, form the municipal commission that governs the city.

The four commissioners are charged with having arranged a distribution of power among themselves, by which each department of the city government was made independent of the others and at the same time removed from the supervision of the commission as a whole. They are accused of having adopted a wide-open policy, allowed a vice district to exist and the holding of "brutal prize fights."

There are detailed accusations against each one individually.

MINNEAPOLIS BANKER IGNORES COURT'S ORDER.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 15.—A. D. Clark, a local banker who got a divorce from his wife in Carson City, Nev., who in turn got a restraining order preventing Clark from disposing of any of his property, which order Clark violated when he disposed of $10,000 worth of Algona State bank stock and sold $100,000 worth of land to the New Salem Land and Investment company of New Salem, S. D., pleaded guilty to the charge of contempt of court before Judge Dickinson. Sentence will be passed Saturday morning.

Judge Dickinson, in answer to Clark's plea, said: "It was very evident Mr. Clark had made every effort to dispose of the Algona State bank stock in a manner that wouldn't be noticed by the court and that a man of Clark's age and experience in life knew very well what was expected by the restraining order by the court."

VICTORY FOR DEFENDANTS

Mixed Bloods May Sell Inherited Lands Without Consulting Government.

Position of Attorney for Defendants in White Earth Cases Sustained.

The position of the attorney for the defendants in the White Earth Indian land cases was sustained by Judge Morris in federal court yesterday in that class of cases involving land sold by heirs of deceased Indians without their having obtained the approval of the secretary of the interior as required by a law of 1902.

Attorney R. J. Powell contended that the Clapp amendment not only removed the restrictions on the sale of original allotments by adult Indians of mixed blood, but removed all restrictions on the sale of land by Indians of mixed blood, regardless of the manner in which they obtained title to the land. Judge Morris upheld the contention.

The point is an important one in one class of cases. The government contended that the Clapp amendment applied only to the original allotments of Indians of mixed blood and that the law of 1902 held good standing with the Clapp amendment and required the approval of the secretary of the interior to the sale of lands by adult Indians of mixed blood who received the land by descent, whether from Indians of full blood or mixed blood. The attorney for the defendant argued that the Clapp amendment removed all restrictions.

The hearing in federal court here closed yesterday afternoon with Judge Morris' decision on that point. The number of cases affected by the decision is not great, when compared to the number filed in cases in which Indians of full blood have sold the land held by them under trust patent from the government. It is probable, however, that the government will obtain a decision from the court of appeals on the question before withdrawing the actions.

The other cases stand just where they did before the proceedings here were begun, the demurrers having been withdrawn by Mr. Powell. The actions will now go to trial at Fergus Falls on their merits and the questions raised by Mr. Powell in his arguments on the demurrers before they were withdrawn, will very likely be decided when the cases are brought on for trial at the May term of court in the Sixth division.

QUESTION WILL BE REARGUED

Rights of Tallas to Island in St. Louis River to Be Determined.

The question of whether the including of John Tallas, a squatter on an island in the St. Louis river as a defendant, was the proper procedure in proceeding against Tallas in the riparian rights action decided in federal court last week by Judge Morris, will be reargued Saturday.

In determining the riparian rights attaching to land owned by the George W. Norton estate on the Minnesota side of the river and the land owned by Robert B. Whitesides and E. P. Alexander on the Wisconsin side, Judge Morris held that since Tallas is in possession of the island lying between the banks of the river, ejectment proceedings would be the proper form of determining his rights.

It is claimed by the main parties to the riparian rights' action that the land on which Tallas is squatting is a portion of the territory covered by the riparian rights and that he has no property rights in the island. Tallas claims title by adverse possession. Judge Morris dismissed the bill as to Tallas and the argument Saturday will be on the court's jurisdiction in equity.

since coming to the senate, but no action was taken regarding it. The effect of referring it back to the senate is practically recognition of the fact that it contains nothing likely to involve the United States in obligations to Canada in conflict with the peaceful trade relations which exist with other countries.

The McCall bill, which was passed by the house last night, was sent to the senate today and after lying on the clerk's desk for a short time was sent to the finance committee. This gives to that committee control of the whole subject.

Will Not be Hung Up.

It is believed to have been determined beyond any doubt that the McCall bill will not be hung up in the finance committee. Although a majority of the Republican members, as well as at least two of the Democratic members, are known to be opposed to it, it is said the committee feels that courtesy to the president demands that it be reported to the senate. Furthermore, the president's interest in the agreement is so great that the committee is not disposed to bear the responsibility of encompassing its defeat by the pigeonhole method.

It was said today that a special meeting of the committee probably would be called for Friday to consider the agreement.

By reason of the absence of Senator Aldrich, the session will be presided over by Senator Burrows. It is known that the Michigan member is opposed to the agreement, and that he will be joined by Senators Hale, McCumber and Bailey, and probably by Senators Smoot, Flint and Simmons.

If all indicated should vote in committee against the McCall bill, it would be reported to the senate adversely. A report against the bill, however, is all that would be needed to get it before the senate.

sentiment thus expressed, does not represent the Democratic party or any party in the country.

What Clark Said.

The annexation doctrine preached by Representative Clark, speaker-apparent of the next house, came in the course of his speech in the house yesterday in favor of the agreement. He said:

"I am for it, because I hope to see the day when the American flag will float over every square foot of the British North American possessions clear to the North pole."

Representative Norris said as he understood it, Mr. Clark favored the bill for at least one reason, "that it will have a tendency in the end to bring Canada into the Union."

"Yes," answered Mr. Clark, "I have no doubt of it."

Asked whether that would have a tendency to preserve peace with Great Britain, Mr. Clark said

"Why, certainly it will. I do not have any doubt whatever that the day is not far distant when Great Britain will joyfully see all her North American possessions become a part of this republic. That is the way things are tending now."

tively in the movement. The capital at Guadeloupe is far from permanent.

Driven from the border, it is now believed Orozco must retreat to Casas Grandes again. It is said that he cannot even threaten the city of Chihuahua for there is a garrison of 1,000 troops defending the place.

Amid cheering and cries of "viva Diaz," "viva Navarro," Gen. Navarro with 1,000 troops from Chihuahua, entered Juarez last evening. The entire trip consuming twelve days, was made by train without firing a shot or sighting the revolutionists. Navarro during the trip was compelled to repair twenty-five bridges and culverts which had been blown up or wrecked by the insurrectos.

The arrival marks the end of the Juarez campaign. Orozco and the other rebel chiefs are scattered east and south of here.

It is impossible to conjecture what will be the next move on either side.

An hour after his arrival, Gen. Navarro was escorted to the custom house, where the Taft-Diaz meeting took place. Here he received members of Col. Rabago's staff and citizens generally. His first official act was to write a telegram to President Diaz reporting his entrance into the city.

Two hundred insurrectos were at Guadeloupe today where the new provisional capital had been established. Orozco was at Samalayuaca yesterday afternoon, but he decamped when Navarro arrived.

Makes Quick Getaway.

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 14.—Francisco I. Madero has disappeared as mysteriously from El Paso as he appeared here on Sunday. Although federal officials hold letters written and signed by him in El Paso on Sunday and have a warrant for the arrest of the Mexican insurrecto "president," they were unable to locate him today. The insurrectos' junta says he no longer wears a beard.

Francisco I. Madero left last night, the junta said this morning. In a statement Madero is said to have made, he declared there is no limit to which the Mexican government would not resort to hold him in this or any other country under the "frivolous and trumped-up charges," if he were once to surrender.

Captures Supplies.

Presidio, Tex., Feb. 13, via Marfa, Tex., Feb. 15.—A scouting party of insurrectos under Emilio Salfado has captured seven wagons loaded with provisions and ammunition intended for the federal garrison at Ojinaga. The town is practically in a state of siege and insurrectos are scattered in the hills within a few miles of the guard line.

Yesterday several American officials and the school teacher from Presidio visited Ojinaga, but were promptly ordered out of town by Gen. Luque, the commandant.

talk with every member. If there was anybody who hadn't had a chance to examine the measure, it was because he didn't want to. The motion, he said, is not so much to get information as to delay action in the hope of beating reapportionment.

R. C. Dunn said that the appeal for delay had only one object, and everybody knew what that was—to secure delay. The bill has been talked over and published in the newspapers and everybody who could read English has had a chance to study it. To those who urged delay he said: "You don't want reapportionment You don't want fair play. But you should meet the issue squarely, and vote against reapportionment if you will, but not try to smother it by delay."

On motion of Representative Edwards of Breckenridge, 500 copies of the bill were ordered printed.

Canadian Reciprocity.

Senators Rockne and Moonan offered a resolution in the sanate urging congress to delay action on Canadian reciprocity until the next session, so the people will have a chance to consider it.

Senator Dwinnell, author of a resolution favoring reciprocity, gave notice of debate on the Rockne-Moonan resolution and both will come up tomorrow.

Senator Sageng's bill prohibiting Sunday baseball was recommended for defeat by the committee, but on motion of its author it was put on general orders in the senate for consideration.

The report of the senate temperance committee favoring the V. L. Johnson county option bill came in, accompanied by a minority report against the bill, signed by Senators Pugh and Coller. Senator Johnson moved that the bill be made a special order for Friday morning, but owing to the absence of Senator Coller the whole matter was laid over to tomorrow.

Froshaug Favored.

The report of the elections committee favoring Senator Froshaug in the Farrington-Froshaug contest came in and was made a special order for Friday afternoon. All the members of the committee, including Senator Boyle of Eveleth, signed the majority report favoring Froshaug. Senator C. F. Cook signed a minority report favoring Farrington, and Senator Cashman did not vote.

The senate passed Senator Boyle's bill raising the state treasurer's salary from $3,500 to $5,000, by a vote of 48 to 7, with no debate.

About a hundred suffragists from the Twin Cities invaded the legislature this morning and had a memorial asking for votes for women read before each house. They were admitted to the floor in both houses.

The house passed Representative Knapp's bill fixing the sheriff's fee for boarding prisoners in St. Louis county at 30 cents a day.

Investigation Ordered.

The house passed the Rockne senate resolution providing for an investigation of the Red Wing boys' training school.

Representative Klemer introduced a bill increasing the tax on vessels from 3 cents per ton to 20 cents, in accordance with the recommendation of the tax commission.

Representatives Frankson, Moriarity, Davies, Farley and Harding joined in introducing in the house the bill offered in the senate yesterday proposing a constitutional amendment providing that no county shall have more than four senators.

Representative Hillman introduced, by request, a bill providing that no common law marriage claim shall be valid hereafter, and also that anybody who has suffered by a judgment based on a common law marriage within a year last past can get a new trial in which the new law shall apply.

German Plans Approved.

The joint committee on state fair, by a vote of 8 to 5, approved the F. G. German plans for an agricultural building at the state fair. The bill has yet to go before the appropriations committee.

The following bills came in:

Senator Cheadle—Providing for a branch school of agriculture at Duluth. Similar to Congdon house bill.

Senator Cheadle—Authorizing joint medical school inspector and health officer, expense to be paid equally by state, school district and municipality.

Senator Denegre—Providing for city chemists in cities of first class.

Representative O'Neill — Separating boards of grain appeals from inspection service and providing them with samplers.

Representative Pfaender — Directing the state university to make a geological survey, for which $10,000 annually is appropriated.

GOVERMENT HEARS ABOUT ENAMELING

Experts Tell of Value of Machine Patents in Bathtub Hearing.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 15.—The merits of enameling bathtubs by hand and later by special machinery were brought out in the hearing of the government against the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing company of this city and fifteen other concerns, at the second day's session of the investigation as to whether the enameled ware firms of the country engaged in a conspiracy in restraint of interstate trade. The government charges violation of the Sherman anti-trust act.

During the conduct of the government's case recently, Edwin P. Grosvenor, special assistant to Attorney General Wickersham, closely questioned Edwin L. Wayman, assignee of three patents used to facilitate the enameled ware industry. It was by means of these patents that the defendants agreed to combine. The government contended that the patents, while useful, were not essential, and that they were assigned to Wayman for the sole purpose of evading the Sherman anti-trust act by screening the real intent of the defendants.

George Shields, a foreman employed by the Standard Manufacturing company, the first witness called by the defense yesterday, continued today.

In an effort to prove that the patents are essential, Attorney Herbert P. Noble of New York, for the defense, questioned Shields as to the merits of enameling bathtubs by hand and by patent process. Shields stated that machinery saved time, accomplished more work and better results. He also claimed it had doubled the compensation of the workmen.

RAILROAD IN FAR PERU

William Manley Returns After a Sojourn in South America.

Gas General Manager of Little Road in Southern Republic.

William Manley, a former employe of the Great Northern railroad, at one time employed at Superior and very well known among railroad men at the Head of the Lakes, is in Duluth today, coming from a long sojourn in Peru, South America, where he was general manager of one of the railroads that circles and zig zags around one of the highest peaks of the Andes. The experience that he had was interesting to say the least.

The railroad is about 110 miles in length. That sounds very small and insignificant, and yet Manley says that it is one of the most important lines in Peru. Though the railroad would be considered a toy system in this country, Mr. Manley stated that the most modern passenger coaches are used on this "short line," cars that in many instances would make some of the rolling stock of the railroads of this country look shabby, and that steel freight cars are used for the hauling of ore.

"If you have ever been to Mexico and seen the peon class of that country, you can get an idea of the poorer class of Peru," said Mr. Manley today. "They are among the lowest peoples in the world. They have no energy and are content to raise enough to barely subsist upon. Chinese, Japanese and Jamaica negroes intermingle and the laws of marriage are lightly looked upon.

"When you get to the higher class of the Peruvians, you will find a vanity that is astounding. They dress in all the finery they can possibly find or buy, wear diamonds that would make the front of a gambler look tired and timid, and in every way seek to impress the stranger. Come to the houses of some of these people and you will find that they have nothing in speak of; that practically every cent they have in the world is in this finery, the jewels that they seek to dazzle and deceive with.

"The Americans are Gringoes down there. We have to pay for the losses the shopkeepers and traders experience in the dealings with their own countrymen. The Peruvians are lax in paying their bills, so the deficit of the shopkeeper thus caused is paid for by the American. The traveler from this country generally pays cash and it might be added that he generally pays two prices, thus paying for the goods taken and not paid for by the indolent native purchaser.

"On the railroad I went over there to manage they had white conductors and engineers with native workmen in the minor positions. They have never been able to get any work out of the natives, which is one great fault with the country. The people lack both ambition and energy, and to the American, or at least to me, it seems that it will be a long time before any of the countries of South America will approach the progress of any of the English speaking countries."

CROOKSTON HOTEL RAIDED BY POLICE

Men and Women Found Drinking Beer in Columbia Hotel; Arrests Following.

Crookston, Minn., Feb. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Following the sensational charge made by President M. W. Hussey at the council meeting last night that it was common talk that a "house of illfame was to be found on every corner of Crookston," Mayor McKinnon, Alderman John J. Kelly, Capt. Eck and Officer Nelson of the police force made a raid on the Columbia hotel shortly after midnight and discovered four young men of the city and O. Osmonson of Fertile in the place. There were as many girls who had been serving beer. Grace Campbell, who runs the hotel, was arrested charged with selling beer without a license for $1 per bottle, and was brought into court this morning and had her hearing set for this afternoon.

Barney Hart, a Great Northern conductor, has been arrested in connection with the affair on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

The city is agog over the raid and more sensational developments are expected.

CAPTURES TWO HOLDUPS.

Carlton County Sheriff Bags Pair That Assaulted Victims.

Carlton, Minn., Feb. 15.—(Special to The Herald.—Two Fins alleged to have held up and beaten Henry Hendrickson and his brother at Moose Lake, are under arrest.

The two brothers were returning from work when they were held up at the point of a revolver. As their victims had no money, the footpads attacked them with clubs and knives and seriously wounded both.

One of the brothers was taken to St. Mary's hospital in Duluth, where he is in a critical condition from a knife wound in the chest.

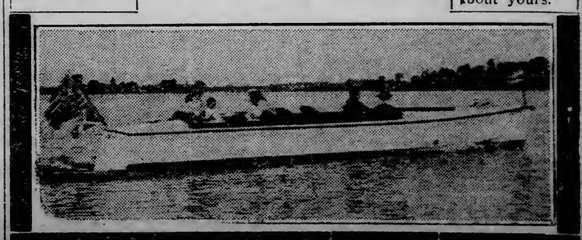

The prisoners are now in the county jail, and will probably be bound over to the grand jury.

Fatal Ride On Engine.

Belle Fourche, S. D., Feb. 15.—William D. Walters was killed on the North-Western railroad near here. He is said to have jumped on the pilot of the engine for a short ride and was thrown under the wheels on a curve, both legs being severed and death being almost instantaneous.

RUMORS OF WAR HEARD

National League Magnates Said to Be Lining Up to Fight American.

Minor Changes in Constitution Adopted at the Annual Meeting.

New York, Feb. 15.—The adoption of minor constitutional amendments and the selection of umpires, were the only definite things done at a meeting of the National League of Professional Baseball clubs yesterday. There was a great deal of talk of an impending internecine struggle, but nothing tangible enough to crop out in the open. The schedule probably will be adopted today as prepared. Dissatisfaction last year disrupted it until a small part of the original remained.

The following umpires were appointed as the staff for the coming season: Henry O'Day, William J. Klem, J. E. Johnstone, Charles Rigler, William E. Brennan, Mal Eason, W. F. Finneran, Jack Dowdy.

Substitute—Robert Emslie.

Finneran, who comes from the Eastern league, and Doyle, an old player, are the new ones. They supplant Steve Kane, who is dropped, and Emslie, who is given the new position of "sub umpire." President Lynch will have sole and exclusive charge hereafter of all umpires.

Amendments to the constitution were adopted whereby a club cannot withdraw a claim after the player so claimed has been awarded to it; and the penalty for a violation of the waiver rules was made $250. It was also agreed that no tied or postponed games are to be played off in the first series of the season. The magnates went on record as opposed to doubleheaders, particularly in the early part of the season.

Changes in Rules Suggested.

While there is to be no change in the playing rules because the American league failed to appoint its end of a joint committee, the National league yesterday recommended two changes which will be submitted to the joint conference for next season. They are that the pitcher must have one foot on his slab or plate when he pitches and that it is a balk if the pitcher enters his box without the ball in his possession. That is, if the pitcher is in the box the base runner may assume, it is proposed, that he has the ball, and that it is "in play."

The Philadelphia and New York clubs were given permission to use a white suit with hair-line stripes on their home grounds. This is an innovation.

Joe Sugden, a former St. Louis catcher, was signed as manager of the Newcastle club of the Ohio and Pennsylvania league, and Jack Warner, one-time catcher for the New York Giants, signed a contract to play with the Erie, Pa., club of the same league.

Rumors of War.

There were many rumors yesterday that forces are being marshalled for the fight next fall when the league must vote to continue or reject the ten-year agreement with the American league. Garry Herrmann of Cincinnati, Barney Dreyfus of Pittsburg, Stanley Robinson of St. Louis and John Brush of New York, are credited with a combine to renew that contract in peace. Horace Fogel of Philadelphia, Charles H. Ebbetts of Brooklyn and Charles J. Murphy of Chicago, are said to desire making more favorable terms with the American league. Consequently both sides are anxious for the vote of the new Boston club. William Hepburn Russell, one of the owners of the club, said he had not aligned it with any faction and would vote independently on all matters.

TWENTY-TWO SIGN DETROIT CONTRACTS

COMMENTS AND OPINIONS ON THE SPORTING PARADE

Is Bill Papke on the Toboggan Slide—That Toehold—Charles Herold's Wonderful Development—Cutler's Tribute to Karl Lehto—Ufer's Ante—World's Champions.

(BY BRUCE.)

How quick they go when once they hit the skids. When death removed the lithe form of Steve Ketchel from the ranks of the middleweights it was believed that Bill Papke would be the king of the division. He is but 25 years of age and is supposed to be a model of all the virtues and proprieties, when it comes to observing the rules of clean athletic living.

Just the other day we were startled by reading of the loss of the battle with Australian Dave Smith by the foul route. Now comes the relating of Johnny Thompson, a boy who has been beaten by Packey McFarland and other of the small lighters of this country, winning a decision over Papke in twenty rounds.

When the pride of Kewanee was beaten by the Smith man many believed that the malaria had taken his vitality and fighting ability off on a long stroll. The sharps couldn't see how Papke could lose to an unknown if he was anywhere near right. Now comes the blow that will cast gloom and despair over the coal-blacked regions of Kewanee; the details of the victory of Thompson, who has never been considered even a first-class welterweight in his own country.

It hardly seems possible that Papke has hit the toboggan. He has not gone the pace that poor Ketchel set before his death, and he has youth and a splendid physique in his favor. The Australian climate must have hit him an awful walop, harder than any Dave Smith or Thompson could have dealt him, ere he has ceased to figure among the first-class fighters of the country.

If Papke drops out of the running for the first flight boys, what star middleweights have we left? It is only dlewelghts have we left? It is only once in a great number of years that two stars like Papke and Ketchel spring into being, and what made it the more remarkable was the fact that they both came to the top at the same time and were both of almost precisely the same age.

There is Hugo Kelly, and he has long since ceased to be at his prime, who never hardly saw the day he was in the late Ketchel's class. There is the somewhat exploded Frank Klaus of Pittsburg, who has shown that he is not what the Pittsburg sports predicted. There is Jimmy Gardner another fighter who is simply hanging on. There, too, is Eddie McGoorty, a clever and shifty fighter, but one who will never reach the class of Ketchel and Papke. If Papke is passing the middleweight ranks will lose the fighter who shares with Ketchel the honor of being the greatest middleweight since the days of Bob Fitzsimmons.

Following the article regarding the agitation that at the present time is sweeping over the country relative to the barring of the toehold from the game of wrestling, some discussion has been caused in local wrestling circles. There are those who advocate the placing of the toe torture under the ban, though there is nothing in the catch-as-catch-can rules that would bar the hold; and there are others, as witness the following communication, who are in favor of the retaining of the Trilby teaser in the game:

"Sporting Department, Evening Herald:

"As an admirer of scientific and clever wrestling, and speaking from knowledge gained in active work on the mat, I desire to express a short opinion on the question of the toehold. The toehold is one of the most scientific holds in the game and an opponent has always a chance to quit and avoid punishment. The abolishment of the toehold would give a tremendous advantage to the giants of Europe, who in most instances outweigh the American wrestlers from ten to forty pounds.

"We Americans are very proud of the fact that the world's wrestling championship is held by an American, for Gotch is really the first American with a clear and undisputed claim to the title, and if only for the reason that it gives an advantage to the American wrestlers, I am heartily in favor of its retention in the catch-as-catch-can game.

"Very seldom is the hold brutal and it is very difficult to secure the hold on a really clever man. It should be retained by all means, according to my opinion, as it is one of the greatest holds ever invented in the wrestling game. WILLIAM TREPANIER."

A Study For the Local Physicians.

Charles Herold, who claims the world's middleweight strength championship, but who prides himself far more on his wonderful development of body and muscle, says he can shake practically every muscle in his body from the top of his head to the toes of his feet. He further claims that he can draw in his body to such an extent that it is almost possible to see the muscular contraction or vibration caused by the beating of his heart.

By invitation the other evening this remarkable young man gave a private exhibition before some of the members of the Y. M. C. A. Some of the facts performed by Herold astonished the onlookers. His control of his muscles is said to be nothing short of marvelous, and his ability to keep under voluntary control practically all of the muscular system is a feat that has seldom been performed by any strong man in this country.

At the present time the science of muscular development is attracting a great deal of interest throughout medical and physical culture circles. Just what control we can obtain over our muscles, how far it is practical to the business man and professional man to develop his muscular system, and at what point of development the nervous system is most developed, are questions that some of the most scientific physical culture instructors in the country, such as Dr. Dudley Sargent of Harvard and Prof. Anderson of Yale, are investigating. The muscular development of Herold and its effect upon his physical, mental and nervous systems, is a study that should prove interesting to the student of health as applied to physical culture.

For years Eugene Sandow created discussions among the foremost medical men of the world. At the present time there is even more interest in scientific physical culture than there was in the heyday of this marvelous man, and it might be said that the man who is making his home in this city for a few short weeks presents a study fully as interesting as that of his famous fellow countryman.

Marty Cutler Praises Karl Lehto.

A quotation from the Daily Mining Journal of Marquette, regarding the victory of Karl Lehto over Marty Cutler, brother of the famous Charles "Kid" Cutler gives the opinion of Cutler on the wrestling ability of the young Finn. The article says in part:

"I have wrestled with most of the best mat artists in the country and I have worked a great deal with my brother, and I want to say that none of the big wrestlers will find Lehto easy. In three or four years he should be the champion of the country. All of the best wrestlers of the country, as a rule, do their best work when they are between 25 and 29 years of age. Charley is now 27 and he is twice the man he was two years ago."

The above is the statement Cutler made after the match with Lehto. It is a fine and sportsmanlike compliment. Lehto is young and like every young wrestler has much to learn of the wrestling game, and yet today he presents the promise of being one of the best wrestlers this country has ever produced.

A Very Placid Looking Sport.

Pictures at hand of F. B. Ufer, the genial German who paid in real money $25,000 for the ownership of the contract for the services of Carl Morris, the rival of Casey Jones when it comes to being a brave engineer, show that gentleman to be a mild looking man, with heavy features and that look of prosperity which makes waiters hustle and chorus girls cast alluring glances.

The offer of Ufer has already passed into ring history. It is about the highest ever paid, and consider, friends, that this is for the management of a man who may make the quince look like one of the leading members of the fruit society. When Ufer hikes East and registers at the leading hotels of the country, reporters will besiege him for interviews, not upon the future of oil, something that he knows something about, but regarding pugilism and Morris, something that he is spending a lot of money to learn of. Such is fleeting fame. Brother Ufer anted $25,000 for his stack o fblue notoriety chips.

What Makes A World's Champion?

Yes, a champion athlete of the world is born and not made. He has something in his blood and sinews that other men do not possess. He is a man physically in ten thousand. That is one of the reasons why men crowd each other off the sidewalk and break hats and crush and pull to get a glimpse at a man who has won the highest athletic honors in any special branch if physical effort.

There was John L. Sullivan, a citizen of Boston, Mass. He probably drank more straight whisky in his time than many of the wrecks who made good anti-saloon literature. His life was not in the least a model one and he failed to observe the rules of health. Think of the wonderful nervous energy of this man, the almost superhuman strength of constitution to stand the rigors of nerve-wrecking, strength-destroying dissipation.

A paper has recently given a review of the famous Sullivan-Kilrain battle fought at Richburg, Miss. Men fainted from the humid heat during the course of the battle and during the later rounds spectators lay in various stages of complete nervous exhaustion, many unconscious, so terrible did the rays of the boiling sun beat down on that hole in the swamp.

For seventy-five rounds these men battled. It was simply a question as to how long human nature could hold out. Kilrain fell first, after putting up one of the most wonderful battles that have ever been fought in this or any other country. That fight showed to the world the wonderful endurance that distinguishes champions from the ordinary run of mankind.

Quite true, William, those champions pack something in their systems that other men have not.

AMERICAN LEAGUE ADOPTS SCHEDULE

Chicago Gets Most Sunday Games—Holiday Games in East.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—Playing dates for the 1911 season of the American league, as tentatively arranged in a schedule drafted by President Johnson several weeks ago, were adopted without a change at the meeting of the club owners and officials of the league held here yesterday.

The season will open April 12, with the Eastern clubs appearing on Eastern fields and the Western clubs playing in the West.

Chicago will open the season at Detroit, Cleveland at St. Louis, New York at Philadelphia and Boston at Washington. After a four-game series, Chicago will go to St. Louis and Cleveland to Detroit, while the Eastern teams remain idle.

Chicago landed the lion's share of Sunday games at home, leading the list with seventeen, while St. Louis was awarded thirteen Sunday games and Detroit fifteen. The majority of holiday games will be played in the East.

HIGH SCORES IN ST. PAUL TOURNEY

Con Sandbloom Takes Lead in Singles With Score of 693.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 15.—Con Sandbloom of St. Paul rolled 693 in the singles in the international bowling tournament yesterday, going into the lead in that event. Creighton of Minneapolis rolled 601, putting him within the money.

Hill and Schmaltzbauer of St Paul went into second place in the doubles with a score of 1,143. Matak and Wolf of St. Paul rolled 1,133 in this event.

Berger and Matschinger of St. Paul went into second place in the five-men event with a score of 2,741. The next highest score was 2,672, made by Butler brothers of Minneapolis.

BRYANT WINS EASILY FROM FRANK SCHULTZ.

Frank Bryant last evening successfully defended his title of Head of the Lakes champion roller skater by easily defeating Frank Schultz of Hibbing, who has claimed the championship of the range. Bryant did not have to extend himself to win the race, pulling in ahead of Schultz by at least twenty feet. The winner was challenged by E. Delanger.

NEW SCHEME FOR WADDELL

Joe Cantillon Will Have Rube Fishing When Away From Park.

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 15.—Bronzed, in the best of health and hopeful of the season of 1911, Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago American league club; Joe Cantillon, manager of the Minneapolis team of the American association, and Otis Clymer, veteran of the major leagues and now a member of the Minneapolis team, ended their annual Arkansas outing Sunday and started northward. Others in the party were Peter Hamler of Chicago and John Burns. Comiskey attended the meeting of the American league schedule committee in Chicago yesterday, and Cantillon will be present when the American association schedule is arranged.

Cantillon declared that this year's pennant is already within his grasp. Cantillon also told of his plans for "Rube" Waddell. He will work often, according to the American association manager.

"Waddell and myself will camp at Lake Minnetonka, out from Minneapolis," he declared. "That left arm is going to bring many a victory to Minneapolis this summer. Waddell is to be my companion, and when he is not pitching he will remain at the camp, fishing."

The Arkansas hunting and fishing was a success, according to the party.

AFTER GAME WITH ADAMS

All-Stars Reorganize and Challenge Crack Adams Indoor Team.

With the hope of defeating the crack Adams indoor baseball team strong in their breasts the members of last year's All-Star team have reorganized and are out with a challenge to play the Adams bunch for the championship of this part of the state. The All-Stars will include in their lineup practically the same stars who played on the team last season and the season before, when the aggregation cleaned up all the teams in this part of the state.

The All-Stars went through last season without a single defeat. They defeated the Adams, the U. C. T. team, several of the range teams and the crack Company A team of this city. Some of the fastest professional players living in Duluth and Superior are members of the team and they make up an aggregation that has confidence in its ability to defeat any indoor baseball team in the state.

It is desired to arrange a game with the Adams before March 20 as many of the members of the All-Stars will have to leave for spring training with professional teams.

Following is the prospective lineup of the All-Stars: Bennett, c.; Simpson, p.; Newt Randall, 1b.; Sam Meneice, 2b.; Summers, 3b.; Irvine, r. s.; McGraw, l. s.; Macauley, l. f.; Schafer, r. f.

MOVEMENT ON FOOT TO UNIFY TRACK RULES.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—National rules in track as well as in football are now available for the colleges and universities of the country. A movement to unify the government of American inter-collegiate track and field meets was announced yesterday by the Inter-collegiate Athletic association of the United States.

A. A. Stagg made public the complete text of the rules drafted by himself. Prof. W. A. Lambeth of the University of Virginia and F. W. Marvel of Brown university, acting for the National association.

The rules as embodied in the report of the professors have been accepted by the association and are now subject to the inspection of the American colleges.

The code, which is the first of a national character, is intended as the first step toward national uniformity and in no way compulsory.

The officials, however, hope that it will be adopted by the various sectional bodies or incorporated into their own rules.

"Ultimate uniformity" is the wish of the committee. The rules do not differ radically from any of those in existence, except in the case of the high jump and pole vault. Instead of allowing the customary three trials at each height, the committee provides that two trials only may be had.

HEROLD WILL BE SEEN HERE

World's Champion Strong Man and Muscular Marvel on Bill With Cutler.

The first appearance in the Northwest of Charles Herold, middleweight strong man, will be one of the features of the February athletic show that will be given at the Lyceum theater a week from Thursday evening.

Herold's act is the same act that has been produced in the music halls of Germany, on the New York vaudeville stage and at various places on the continent.

In his act Herold appears in evening clothes and performs some wonderful and original feats. Then he appears in regular athletic costume and does his weight lifting exhibition followed by the cabinet exhibition of muscular control and development.

This show will mark the return to the mat of William Trepanier, the former star of the Duluth Athletic association, who will meet Gunner Gronlund, world's Finnish middleweight champion, in a two-fall match. Gronlund is open to defend his title against any man in the world, the much touted Young Miller, Hank Gehring or Joe Carr, preferred, and his appearance a week from Thursday evening will be the first time he has ever wrestled before a Duluth audience.

The big card of the evening will be the finish match between Charles "Kid" Cutler and Sampson, the big athlete, who has been steadily wrestling his way to the top of the ranks of the wrestlers of the Northwest. Sampson was a member of the wrestling team that represented Finland in the Olympic games and made a splendid record.

Bemidji is immensely proud of the record of Cutler, who was raised in that little city, and already several seat reservations have been made for Bemidji friends of the Northern Minnesota champion.

KLAUS GIVEN DECISION OVER LEO HOUCK.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 15.—The sledge hammer body punches of Frank Klaus of Fittsburg weakened his opponent, Leo Houck of Lancaster, Pa., at the Armory A. A. last night and after twelve rounds of hard and fast fighting, the decision was given to Klaus.

BILLIARD CHAMPION AND BRIDE GO TO EUROPE

MR. AND MRS. WILLIE HOPPE.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Hoppe have left for Paris. Mr. Hoppe is the billiard champion. He will play exhibition games in Paris and may play some professional games. He recently married Miss Alice Walsh, the daughter of a wealthy clothing man of New York. It was reported that Hoppe would quit playing billiards, but this report has turned out to be untrue.

NEW YORK RECRUITS MAKE EARLY START FOR THE TRAINING QUARTERS AT MARLIN SPRINGS

FULLERTON HANSEL. RUDOLPH LUSH. GOWDY.

Four members of the New York Giants have left for Marlin Springs by way of the steamship Proteus. They were accompanied by Umpire Charles L. Hansel, who is the first umpire to accompany a team on its training trip. Pitcher Dick Rudolph, Third Baseman Clyde Fullerton, First Baseman Harry Gowdy and Outfielder Ernest Lush were the men to leave. Lush is not a member of the Giants and is going South on his own accord. He was tried out last season by McGraw, but did not make a good showing because of sickness. Rudolph pitched several games last season for the Giants and made a good showing. Gowdy also took part in several games and showed that he was of major league calibre. Fullerton will be given a try-out, but it is hardly likely that he will be able to beat out any of the old timers on the team.

KLING HAS MORE KICKS

Famous Holdout Does Not Want to Do Spring Training.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—Johnny Kling, the Cub's premier catcher and charter member of the "Hold-out union," is back on the job with the old wail, according to reports from Kansas City. Kling is said to have delivered an ultimatum that he will not report for spring training before April 5.

The backstop's action is said to be due this year to the squabble between himself and Manager Chance during the world's series when Chance hurt the veteran's pride by refusing to allow him to conduct his own campaign behind the bat.

Kling and Manager Chance had some hot words when the catcher wanted to throw to second base while watching third during the world's series. Johnny says it is one of the best plays he has worked up and that it was no guess with him. He is sure of the throw.

"I've practiced the trick a good many times and know what I can do with it. By keeping my eyes on the man at third I can hold him to the bag and often I catch the man at second napping," said Kling.

He thinks Chance was rather rough with him when they discussed the matter and for that reason also he had expected the manager would include him in some trade. Kling now thinks that Archer will be used at first most of the time and he will be the mainstay behind the bat. While he will not train at New Orleans with the team he will join the aggregation when it is playing exhibition games on its way to Chicago.

ASSOCIATION OF COLLEGE GOLFERS

New Organization Will Hold Tournament and Challenge Eastern Association.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—The Western Intercollegiate Golf association was formed yesterday, plans were made for a systematic campaign through Western schools for the purpose of interesting students in the organization, and tentative plans were made for tournament dates.

The organization of the Western association is the result of the refusal of the Eastern association to permit Charles Evans, Western open champion, to participate in Eastern events. Evans was named president of the Western organization, Evan Webster of Armour Institute is vice president, Paul Hunter, University of Chicago, is secretary, and Harry Kimbark, Wisconsin university, is treasurer.

The new organization will affiliate with the Western Golf association. Through the expansion of the Western Golf association at its last meeting, Canadian school students will be eligible to the new body.

Besides the schools represented in the list of officers, players from the Universities of Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Chicago and Minnesota are expected to join the association and compete in the tournaments.

After considerable debate it was decided to admit secondary colleges in the tournaments. The present plans are for the individual championships to be held just before the Eastern intercollegiate championships, and a formal challenge may be issued for Eastern title holders to play against Western champions.

KODAHPAS MEET BIG DULUTHS AT HOCKEY.

A very important game in its relation to the race in the city hockey league, will be contested this evening between the Big Duluths and Kodahpas. Should the Big Duluths lose the game this evening they will be practically out of the running for first honors. On the other hand, should they win they will again be tied with the Adams for first place. The race is very close and exciting and the game this evening will be watched with a great deal of interest.

The lineup follows:

ADAMS TEAM WINS TITLE

Company A Defeated in Deciding Game for City Championship.

Pitching of Foster Is Too Strong for Militia Players.

Last evening the long drawn out question as to the city indoor baseball championship was settled in favor of the strong Adams team, the West end boys defeating the Company A aggregation by the rather one-sided score of 18 to 7.

In almost every department of the game the Adams showed superiority, but the star clinging of H. Foster, the slab star of the Adams, proved the downfall of the militia boys, for the Foster benders proved plum deceiving and he was steady as a Swiss clock all through the contest.

It might be added that the Adams got the military anger in the very first inning by running up two scores. In the second round the militia men came back with two and a tie, but again in the third the West enders added two more and in the fourth three. In the seventh the Adams clinched the game to a moral certainty by driving in six runs across the plate. The hitting of C. Foster and the two Olsons counted materially in driving these counters across the run register.

One of the biggest crowds of the season witnessed the rubber game between the two teams. It was well played though the soldiers showed poor form on one or two occasions, and was enjoyed by the crowd, particularly the Adams supporters:

The lineup and score:

Score by innings—

Adams	2	0	2	3	2	0	6	3	1	—18
Company A	0	2	0	2	0	1	2	0	0	— 7

SOPHS WIN FROM JUNIORS

Third Year Men Lose Basket Ball Game By 22 to 10 Score.

Team Standing.

	P.	W.	L.	Pct.
Seniors	1	1	0	1.000
Sophomores	1	1	0	1.000

At the high school gymnasium yesterday afternoon the Sophomores defeated the Juniors at basket ball by the score of 22 to 16, thereby tieing the Seniors in the leadership for the inter-class series. The team work of the second year men was better than that of the Juniors and to this fact may be laid the surprising victory.

Mars played one of the best games for the Juniors, caging four baskets and getting into the play well. Elder and Harris were future players for the sophomores. Elder copping four baskets, while Harris threw three and also played a whirlwind game on the floor.

The lineup and summary:

BAD BLOOD OFTEN INHERITED

Bad blood does not always come as the result of careless living, or indiscretions; it is a condition frequently inherited. Normal, healthy blood contains millions of tiny red corpuscles, which are the vitalizing and nourishing element of the circulation, their office being to provide every portion of the system with its necessary strength and nutriment. In weak, impure blood these corpuscles are lacking in numbers, and therefore the blood is not able to supply the proper amount of nourishment to the body. Bad blood manifests itself in many ways, With some it takes the form of skin diseases and eruptions, others become bilious and malarious, with sallow complexions, torpid liver, etc. Bad blood produces Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula and like troubles. Nothing is equal to S. S. S. as a remedy for bad blood; it is the greatest of all blood purifiers, possessing not only the qualities to cleanse and purify the blood, but composed of roots, herbs and barks that tone up every part of the system, and assist in the creation of blood nutriment. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, Skin Diseases, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, Blood Poison and all other blood disorders. S. S. S. makes good blood, and good blood makes good health. Book on the blood free to all.

FURLANI WILL BE SENT HOME

Inmate of Asylum, Who Killed Hibbing Man, Will Be Deported.

Virginia, Minn., Feb. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—An order was issued in district court here yesterday allowing the government to take from the insane asylum at Fergus Falls Guisippi Furlani, who was committed from Hibbing last fall. Furlani is alleged to have assulted Marino Furlani July 4 last, with a heavy steel bar while he was sitting upon the porch at the home up Guisippi in the town of Stuntz, the result of which attack caused the death of Marino Furlani several days later. Guisippi was announced insane and committed to the asylum by Judge Cant. The government officials are desirous of deporting Guisippi to his former home in Italy as an undesirable and the order was issued for that purpose.

The trial of Albert De Vizie, indicted by the late grand jury for assault in the first degree, is now on trial. VIRGINIA COWS STAND THE TEST

Only Two in Dairy of Sixty-Two Found Below Test By Inspector.

Virginia, Minn., Feb. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Plans and specifications for a trunk line sanitary and storm sewer in the southern part of the city as drawn by City Engineer E. F. Johnson, were accepted by the council last night. The district will cover about nine blocks and the construction of these sewers will afford considerable relief to the residents of that portion of the city. Bids for the work will be asked for within a short time.

Aldermen A. C. Osborn, E. C. A. Johnson and A. D. Heritage, to whom was referred the petition presented at the previous meeting for the taking over of the plant of the Virginia Electric Power & Water company, reported that they had made some investigation of the matter and asked for further time.

Milk Inspector Dr. M. F. Guidinger reported that he had inspected sixty-two cows and the milk given therefrom and found only two of these animals not up to the test standard. He also reported that he had inspected and tested milk being shipped into the city and used at the several hotels and restaurants of the city and found that this product registered a percentage much greater than when he had made a previous inspection, some time ago.

Meat Inspector John Byrne reported that he had made an inspection of all meat markets, hotels, restaurants and groceries and found them all complying with the sanitary regulations.

The council adjourned early in order to allow its members to attend the county division meeting at the Fay opera house.

Mr. Nash delivered an eloquent address that elicited much applause. This is believed to be the opening gun of the Socialists in the coming campaign and they are expected to put a full ticket in the field.

The meeting was largely attended and the vote on the proposition was unanimous.

The speakers were Victor Power of Hibbing, and N. B. Arnold and W. J. Archer of this city. A telegram from W. J. Olcott, president of the Oliver Iron Mining company, was read, in which he stated that he was opposed to county division on the grounds that it would invite a tonnage tax and also lessen the strength of the St. Louis county delegation in the state legislature. Mr. Olcott had been invited to attend this meeting, but stated that he would be unable to attend.

EVELETH AGAINST CHANGE IN TIME

Present Schedule on Iron Range Road Preferred in the Range City.

Eveleth, Minn., Feb. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The announcement in Tuesday's Herald, that the Iron Range train leaving Duluth in the afternoon would leave about an hour earlier than at present, was not received here with favor as many Evelethians leave here on the early morning trains for Duluth, and have sufficient time to transact their business at the county seat by the time the Iron Range train leaves at present for the ranges. The residents are naturally in favor of having the train leave Duluth under the present arrangement, and protests may be made to the passenger department of the road so that the order to have the trains leave sooner than at present may be rescinded.

Hibbing, Minn., Feb. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The proposed park board plan was approved by the village council last night and it is now up to Mayor Weirick to fill the positions on the board. He is expected to announce his appointments any day. Three men and two women will probably make up the board but Mayor Weirick has made known his wishes and until he does all appointments are speculation. Fearing that if women predominate on the board iron clad restrictions as to the use of the parks might be required, some people are said to favor a board wholly of men.

To Inspect Dairy Cows.

The council also decided that in the future the dairy cows of the city will be inspected, the inspection being placed in the hands of E. G. Mason, Dr. Pruden, health officer, made a strong recommendation to the council that the matter be taken up and acted upon at once on account of the shipping in of large quantities of dairy cows in the early spring as for sale in the city and the council agreed that it was desirable. A membership campaign will soon be started and efforts made to increase the number of enlisted soldiers to 100. The local company was organized three years ago, and the terms of many of the members expire in April, but it is believed that many will re-enlist.

The militia members are still after better drill quarters, and believe the city hall will be of ample size if enlarged. Others are in favor of having a new joint city hall and armory erected. The present armory has been condemned by the state adjutant general, and the soldiers feel that they should be provided with better quarters.

The local company will attend the state encampment in July.

AMUSEMENTS

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM — Mack-Leone Players in "God's Country."
ORPHEUM—Vaudeville.
EMPRESS—Vaudeville.
ODEUM and LYRIC—Photoplay.

Green Room Gossip.

In putting on a Western play of the type of "God's Country," it is necessary for the members of the cast to become more or less familiar with some facts regarding the big section of the country that has furnished one of the most romantic sides of American history.

For instance, when rehearsals were called for the Mack play it was found that few of the members of the company outside of Mr. Mack and Miss Leone, knew anything regarding the type of characters they were called upon to enact.

William Donovan and George Surtees in the parts of Pete and Sam, respectively, first dressed for the parts as they conceived them after reading the play, and then asked Mr. Mack what he thought of their efforts. They had some pretty good ideas, too, for with some minor changes their original ideas have been carried into effect.

Miss Viola Marshall had some very original ideas as to haw a Western girl would dress and act. She has modified some of them, however, after talking with Miss Leone and Mrs. Annie Adams, for both of the women are familiar with the Western type.

Miss Ida O'Day, who is appearing on the Orpheum bill this week in a little dramatic sketch "Cinders," is hoping that she will be as lucky in real life as she is shown to be in the sketch, in a financial way at least.

In the sketch "Cinders" is given a lottery ticket, which proves to be the winning number. Miss O'Day has a ticket in a Honduras lottery, which was given her by a friend in Indianapolis. The drawing took place several days ago, but she has not yet heard the outcome, as Uncle Sam forbids such information being sent through the mails.

"It is the only lottery ticket I ever owned" said Miss O'Day, "and I think it would be a very artistic coincidence if I should win a prize with it."

Miss O'Day was the dramatic feature of the Orpheum road show last season, presenting a sketch called "A Little Bit of Old Chelsea," which sketch had formerly been used as a curtain raiser by Mrs. Fiske. In her present sketch she appears as a little London "slavey" who falls in love with the young clubman whose rooms she keeps in order. It has quite a dramatic ending.

Ballerini's dogs are great favorites at the Empress this week. These little animals go through their performance with the rapidity and precision of a troupe of well trained acrobats and require little attention from their trainer, who simply sets up the apparatus for them to work upon.

Instead of encouraging boys to think of a life of adventure and crime in the Far West, one film at the Lyric theater this week points out the results that inevitably follow such a career. It is called "The Reformation and tells the story of two boys who start out on a career of crime. They are promptly made to realize the results of such a life, and change their course before it is too late. It is a film which not only passed the censorship of the national board of censors, but was suggested by a member of that board.

WEST END

LECTURES ON TEMPERANCE

Good Templars May Keep Speaker in Northern Field Permanently.

John Hellberg of Stockholm, Sweden, a noted Scandinavian temperance lecturer, who is touring Minnesota under the auspices of the Minnesota Scandinavian Order of Good Templars, will speak for the cause in Duluth, Sunday afternoon, Feb. 26.

Under the auspices of the local Scandinavian I. O. G. T. lodges, he will appear at the First Swedish Baptist church, Twenty-second avenue west and Third street. His talk will be given in the Scandinavian language and will be purely along temperance lines. He is an advocate of county option.

Mr. Hellberg is now touring the ranges. Last evening, he spoke at Ely, tonight he will appear at Two Harbors and Thursday and Friday he will be heard at Superior, where he will lecture before the Good Templar lodges of that city. He will then return to the ranges, until Feb. 26, when he will come to Duluth.

By means of this lecture course, the Good Templars of the local district expect to win many of the Scandinavian people over to their way of thinking in the fight against the liquor traffic. If it proves to be a successful means of stirring up interest, it is probable that a man may be placed in the field permanently. The Good Templars have a membership of about 1,000 in Duluth in three lodges, Lysglimt and Morning Star of West Duluth and North Star of the West end.

A PUBLIC MARKET.

Plans Will Be Made Special Order of Business By Club.

Definite steps toward the establishment of a public market place at the West end this spring will probably be taken up at a meeting of the West End Commercial club Friday evening, when the subject will be made a special order of business.

West end business men are especially anxious to see things started in this direction this year, as it will mean much to their trade. Farmers who heretofore have taken their produce to up-town markets will have inducements to stop at the West end and do their trading in that section of the city.

Free offers for sites made last fall will be looked into by a committee which will probably be appointed at the next meeting and if the offers still hold good, the club will accept.

MIDWINTER FESTIVAL AT SWEDISH CHURCH.

Rev. M. S. Rice, pastor of the First M. E. church of Duluth, will be the principal speaker at a midwinter festival which will be held at the First Swedish M. E. church, Twentieth avenue west and Third street, Friday evening.

AFTER SOFT COAL ROADS.

Suits Filed With Interstate Commission Alleging Discrimination.

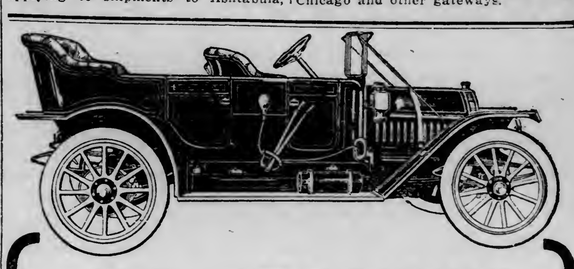

Cincinnati, Ohio, Feb. 15.—Alleging rate discriminations on the part of practically all railroads leading from the soft coal fields of West Virginia and Western Pennsylvania, two petitions for readjustment were filed before the Interstate commerce commission in Washington today, on behalf of the operators of the Pittsburg district and the Coke Producers' Association of Connellsville, Pa.

Announcement of the action came from the Cincinnati office of Wade Ellis, former assistant attorney-general of the United States, who is one of the attorneys for the complainants.

The rates complained of are those applying to shipments to Ashtabula, Ohio, and other lake ports, points in New York and New Jersey on the Atlantic seaboard, and to practically all points west as far as Iowa, including Chicago and other gateways.

Can you find another auto that has all of these good points to recommend it? And if so, can you buy it for these prices:

1st. A solvent, responsible firm, with nine years' experience and successful manufacturing and marketing of Autos, to protect you against experiments and mistakes, and assure the securing of necessary parts.

2nd. A unit power plant, wherein your motor fly wheel clutch and transmission are all contained in one case; all working parts fully oiled by internal lubrication. This avoids the objectionable pan underneath and affords a cleaner car, and does not let the oil escape or dirt get in the bearings.

3rd. Valves in the cylinder head and overhead cam shaft—special features of the Jackson give more power and less noise.

4th. Water circulation without the use of a pump, saves many unnecessary parts.

5th. Rides on four full Elliptic springs. The strongest, less parts; easiest riding of all.

6th. On August 21st, 1909, at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, the first race was held for the Wheeler and Schebler Cup, the most valuable trophy in the racing world. This cup stands eight feet high and is valued at $10,000. It must be won three times to become the property of a competitor. The contest is open to any car of less than 600 cubic inches piston displacement—the entries are not limited to stock cars, and specially designed racers may compete. It is the classic track event of America.

In the first race, nineteen cars started, and at the end of the 50th mile, 17 were still running, with the Jackson stock chassis, driven by Lynch, in 8th place. 100 miles, and the Jackson was 7th; 125, and it was 4th—and when 150 miles had been covered, it led the field by a safe margin. The pace had been terrific, and 9 cars out of the 19 starters had already dropped out. The track was rough, and the jolting was telling on both cars and drivers. The Jackson held its lead safely, but at the end of 235 miles there were only four other cars running, and the race was stopped on account of the dangerous condition of the track. The cup was not awarded. There was engraved upon it, however, the record of the Jackson's performance, and it will stand for all time as a record of perfect and consistent running under the most severe track conditions ever known.

Duluth deserves, requires and wants the Best. And in offering you the Jackson, which I expect to handle for years to come—the very best in automobile value is obtained.

NEW DULUTH CLUB WILL MEET AGAIN.

The newly organized New Duluth Commercial club will hold another meeting this evening at the New Duluth Maccabee hall. Street railway facilities, city water and gas connections and other improvements for the suburb will come up for discussion.

The club will endeavor to have the city council expend $50,000 of the $200,000 bond issue in extending the water mains to New Duluth. Alderman Otto Krueger, who is an old resident of New Duluth and a member of the new club, will probably introduce this resolution at the earliest opportunity.

TWO SUITS IN PLACE OF ONE

Government's Attempt at Compromise Between Settlers Proved Disastrous.

When part of the Fond du Lac reservation was opened for settlement in September, 1908, Michael Zacher and Henry Zimmerman clashed over 160 acres of land, one having filed on the land and the other claiming the right to entry under settlement. They fought the matter out tareugh the land office and the government finally divided the land, giving each eighty acres.

Now there are two contest cases before the land office. Zacher claims the right to enter on the land given to Zimmerman, alleging that Zimmerman has not maintained a bona fide residence on it. Zimmerman claims the same right as to Zacher's land for the same reason. The case of Zacher vs. Zimmerman is being heard today and as soon as it is completed, the case of Zimmerman vs. Zacher will be heard.

COPPERS TIRED; VALUES DECLINE

Market Weakens After Long Upturn---Stocks May Have Been Overbought.

The stock market seemed tired today and it sank aimlessly to lower levels. After the late advance a reaction was natural. In fact, the decline seems to be overdue as the market had discounted too rapidly the improvement in industrial conditions.

Coppers did not display any life and values closed slightly lower than yesterday. The local market was featured by Keating and Calumet & Corbin. The latter seemed to advance in sympathy with Keating. Both mines are in the same district in Montana. Keating sold at $2.56¼, $2.50 and back to $2.56¼. Denn sold at $5.25 to $5.18¾. Calumet & Corbin at 24c to 22c, Carman at 95c, Summit at 74c and 73c.

Amalgamated sold at $65.37½ to $64.87½ to $65. Butte Coalition at $19, Calumet & Arizona at $52.50. Greene at $6.50, Giroux at $6.75 to $6.68¾ to $6.62½. Superior & Pittsburg at $15 to $14.87½. Shattuck at $20 to $20.50.

Hayden, Stone & Co., say concerning Giroux:

The feature of the annual report, as we see it, is the destruction of the generally accepted notion that the Giroux had a large body of disseminated ore and was likely to become a second Nevada Consolidated.

The report gives the concentrating ore reserves as 9,620,000 tons, averaging 1.36 per cent copper. Such a body is commercial neither in quality nor in quantity, under anything like present conditions in the metal market. The company would have to develop a very much larger tonnage, and of higher grade ore, to warrant the management in spending the money necessary to install a surface equipment suitable to treat it.

The company still has a large territory unexplored, it is true, but according to the report, the churn drilling would seem to indicate that whatever values this may contain are of high-grade ore.

It would be good news to the stockholders that the company will be producing high-grade smelting ore within the next three or four months. We think it a little unfortunate, however, that further details are not given as to the provisions that have been made for the treatment of this ore, or as to the volume in which it will be handled.

The Giroux has a large capitalization, and it is of importance to the shareholders to know whether the propects are that the company will produce on a scale proportionate with its capitalization.

The company closed the year in quite a strong financial position, with total cash resources of $686,000.

The Summit Copper company has shipped a car of ore from its mine in Arizona to a smelter. The ore assayed an average of 30 per cent copper. The ore came from the so-called pay streak in the Pasquale vein. The pay streak, said a wire today from the mine, has widened from six inches to three feet to the south and two feet on the north. The vein is running from three to four per cent copper.

The so-called pay streak is carrying phenominally rich values in copper. Two other cars are reported to be on the way to a smelter.

The Butte & Superior company in January milled 12,150 tons of ore averaging 19.8 per cent zinc, deriving therefrom 3,055 tons of concentrates, valued at $23.63 net per ton, figured on a basis of 5¼ cents for spelter. The company also produced 45 tons of silver-lead concentrates, valued roughly at $25 per ton. Earnings for the month were approximately $19,000.

Roy Hill of Superior has returned from Prescott, Ariz., where he visited the properties of the Mink Gold Mining and Development company. He reports splendid progress being made in development work with a large body of ore on the dump ready for the new ten-stamp mill which will soon be in operation.

The Calumet & Arizona in January produced 1,022 tons of blister copper and the Superior & Pittsburg produced 1,007 tons.

Four cars shipped by the Keating Gold Mining company to a smelter have netted the company $53 a ton. The three cars which ran $75 a ton also contained an average of 1½ per cent copper. Both gold and copper values seem to be increasing with depth. When the mine was bought by the present owners they invested in the belief that $20 a ton gold would prove a "bonanza." Needless to say they are extremely pleased with the showing of the property.

OBITUARY

Curt Hoffmann, for twenty-five years editor-in-chief of the Detroit Abend Post, died Feb. 15 as the result of a stroke of apoplexy, suffered last Sunday. He was 67 years old.

Harriet Barney Young, who became a bride of Brigham Young in 1851, died at Salt Lake City, Utah, Feb. 14, at the age of 80 years. She was the last survivor but one of the widows of the Mormon leader, the one still living being Eliza Burgess Young. Mrs. Harriet Young leaves three children and a number of grandchildren.

Thomas William Cross, a veteran of the Crimean war, is dead at Duck Lake, Sask., aged 83 years. Cross was a bugler under Lord Raglan and sounded the assembly at Balaklava and witnessed the famous charge of the Light Brigade, immortalized by Tennyson. He was wounded in the shoulder and leg at Alma in the Crimean war.

THROUGH SERVICE TO THE COAST.

James Thompson, traveling passenger agent of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, here today, stated that on May 28 through passenger service will be inaugurated on the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound railway from Chicago to the Pacific coast, via the Twin Cities, making the run in seventy-two hours.

There will be two trains, one known as the Olympian, which will be the fast train, the other one being slower. The new fast train will make the same time between Chicago and the Pacific coast as the other lines.

GOLOSHES.

Shoe Retailer: Salesmen cannot pay too much attention to the fitting of rubbers, for half the life of the rubber is in the proper fit. I believe in fitting rubbers as large as possible.

Do not stretch a 4½ rubber over a 5 shoe. It puts too much strain on the rubber and it will break before half worn out. Watch and see that the sole does not project over the edge of the rubber.

Do not sell Cuban heel rubbers for low heel shoes and vice versa. We can supply a rubber for almost any heel made today. If you do not have rubbers to fit it is your own fault.

Do not sell a motorman, teamster or any man or boy who gives a rubber hard use a light rubber. You would not sell a light dress shoe for everyday wear; do not do so with your rubbers. Watch sales more carefully and you will have no trouble with your rubber trade.

Watch the heels of the customers' shoes, especially the Cubans. When they get half worn off no rubber will fit or wear over them. Suggest that they get them built up before wearing the rubbers. This causes a large majority of the complaints of rubbers breaking down at the heels, both on men's and ladies' rubbers.

Tell your customers not to use their rubbers like a stick of wood after they have worn them a few times, for freezing up on the stoop and thawing out under the hot stove does not help them any.

Harvard Football Coach Will Wed the Wealthy Niece of Famous Artist, James Whistler

MRS. GWENDOLYN W. HOWELL.

PERCY HAUGHTON, HARVARD COACH.

Percy D. Haughton, the famous football coach, is to be married to Mrs. Gwendolyn W. Howell of New York. She is the niece of Whistler, the famous artist. Richard Lee Howell left an enormous fortune to his wife when he died. She was the beautiful Gwendolyn Whistler, daughter of Thomas Delano Whistler of Baltimore and a niece of James Whistler the artist.

SUCCESSOR FROM RAMSEY COUNTY

New Member of Supreme Court Will Be Chosen From There.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—That the successor of the late Justice Jaggard will be named from Ramsey county was the general belief at the state capitol this morning, but as to who the man will be there was a diversity of opinion. Names from outside of St. Paul have also been mentioned, however.

Those looking for a successor at once turned to the Ramsey county bench, as it is a common thing to take supreme court members from the district court. It is generally conceded that Judge Bunn is well qualified for promotion, and there is much talk of giving him the place. Judge Bunn is a Democrat, but both Republicans and Democrats agree that the place may be offered to a Democrat.

A petition circulated by Senator G. P. Wilson, which is being signed by many members of the senate, asks for the appointment of Former Justice T. D. O'Brien. Senator Wilson is a Republican and most of those who, it is expected will sign the petition, are Republicans, but it is said that the high regard they entertain for Judge O'Brien has prompted the movement.

HILL AND KNOX WILL SPEAK ON RECIPROCITY.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—Representatives of sixteen cities of the Middle West had arrived here by noon today to attend the reciprocity banquet to be given tonight by the Chicago Association of Commerce, at which Secretary of State P. C. Knox and James J. Hill will be the principal speakers.

Ashkosh, Wis., and Duluth, Minn., had large delegations. Other Northern cities represented are St. Paul, Minneapolis and Milwaukee.

Nearly all of the delegations bring with them resolutions passed either by city councils, by chambers of commerce or other public or quasi-public bodies, in favor of a reciprocal trade agreement with Canada.

THE BRITISH ADVERTISER.

In newspaper advertising the English are certainly ahead of Americans in advertisements that make a distinct personal appeal; says the New York Sun. In "Situation wanted" and "Help wanted" their advertisements have a decided literary quality that is lacking in those of this country. There is sameness about most American advertisements. Take, for instance, the familiar lines:

"Stenographer wants position; ten years' experience; $15; highest references."

You haven't a glimmering of the sort of person who is advertising. You know only that it is "Male" or "Female," according to the heading of the column.

It is the same with the woman who wants housework. Almost never is there any clue to the kind of person who is behind the advertisement.

By way of contrast, read the advertisements in the English newspapers and you will find vivid pictures, almost romances, of the advertisers. Here is an "ad" taken from a recent copy of the London Times:

"Gentlewoman, refined, nice appearance, very reduced circumstances, desires temporary or occasional employment; only expert accomplishment graphology and physiognomy."

Imagine, if you can, such an advertisement appearing in the columns of a newspaper in this prosaic town. Few women in this city would advertise "reduced circumstances" anyhow, for it is generally believed here that in order to get employment you must appear not to need it. Another London newspaper published this advertisement a few months ago:

"Young man studying for the church must save immediately £20, or his whole career is wrecked."

And yet they say the Anglo-Saxons hide their emotions!

Still another:

Will any lady or gentleman give employment to young lady left with widowed mother penniless?

It would be interesting to know what response the following advertisement brought:

Has anyone good position, home or abroad, to offer man of good birth and education, with no special abilities and no particular merits save integrity and intelligence?

Even more urgent is this, recalling the situation of poor Nora in Ibsen's "Doll House":

Young wife wants to know if there is not some kind wealthy person who will give her £30 to take her invalid husband to the seashore. Unless he can have the trip his life is despaired of.

Something of the comedy element is in this:

Young married couple without means wish to be adopted by wealthy grandparents.

Even the advertisements of societies take on a more intimate and personal tone than those in American newspapers. The S. P. C. A. might take a leaf from the book of the English organization by copying this advertisement, which is appearing this summer in London papers:

Remember the Cats.

You are earnestly desired to make provision for your cats or other pets while your house is empty during the holidays, and so save them from the terrible suffering of starvation or other cruelties when left in empty houses or turned adrift in the streets.

Then you have the people who advertise their rooms and board. They are not satisfied to give simply street and house number as is done in this country. They have something like this:

A barrister says, "After two years' residence I can confidentially say that 1 & 2 D—— Gardens, Chelsea, is the most comfortable, up to date, and has the finest table of any residential hotel."

So it runs in all their advertising. The pages devoted to advertising purposes, whether of houses, lands, help or work wanted, are full of character, not to say charm, and you gain a better and clearer idea of the people from them than from whole volumes on the social life of England.

A POINT FOR PATRICIANS.

Los Angeles Times: "I rented the first floor of a palace in Naples last year," said a globe trotter, "and the owner of the palace, a Neapolitan count, lived on the top floor with his family. Every day I used to see one of this man's servants trotting up the grand stairway with a pair of carriage doors on his shoulder.

"Yankee-like, the carriage doors made me curious. I did some detective work, and what do you suppose I discovered? Well sir, I discovered that the count shared a carriage with three other gentlemen, and each owner, when he went driving, used his own doors, so as to sport his crest on the panels.

"The Neapolitan nobility are great for show. Every evening, in their handsome turnouts, with two men on the box, they glide elegantly through the steep and crooked streets of Naples. These turnouts used to impress me, but now, when I see them, I smile and ask myself how many pairs of detached doors each carriage in the procession has."

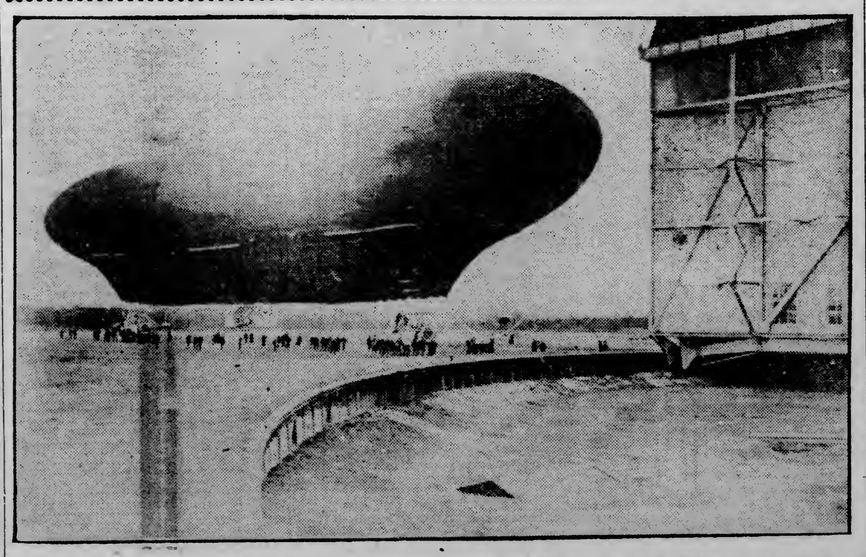

BOILING AN INDIAN VILLAGE.

Milwaukee Sentinel: The government is boiling an Indian village in the Wind River reservation, Wyoming.

Everything about the settlement—tepees, clothing, blankets, harness, etc.—that can be boiled is being subjected to that treatment to destroy traces of smallpox.

This village is where 100 Indians were quarantined while they suffered from smallpox in mild form. There were no deaths, and the quarantine is practically lifted. The hot water method of disinfection was reported to because the Indians more readily understand it.

LARGEST NON-RIGID DIRIGIBLE BALLOON EVER CONSTRUCTED

This is the largest non-rigid dirigible balloon ever constructed. It was built by the Siemens-Schuckert company under the direction of the Military Aerial corps and is to be bought by the German army if its trials are satisfactory. It is 278 feet long, has four motors of 125-horse power each and carries three gondolas with a total capacity of fifty passengers. It showed a speed of twenty-seven miles an hour and was kept well under control during the first trials.

CONVINCED IT WAS MURDER

Minneapolis Men Return From Allen Junction With Parents' Bodies.

The four Lawrence brothers of Minneapolis, sons of Mrs. Newman, who with her husband, E. A. Newman, lost her life when their cabin near Allen Junction burned, called upon Assistant County Attorney Warren E. Greene yesterday and told him that after the investigation it is their opinion that the aged people were murdered for their money, and the cabin set on fire that the crime might be covered up.

While it is known that the county attorney's office is doing some work on the case, neither Mr. Norton or Mr. Greene cares to state just what action will be taken. It is known, however, that they are interested in the murder theory and will do all they can to bring the guilty parties to justice if it can be determined at this late day who they are.

The brothers told Mr. Green about the finding of several household articles about half a mile from the scene of the fire. Among the things found was a flour sieve and some tin dishes. What they wanted of articles of this nature is a mystery. The tracks in the snow showed that whoever had held the articles had stepped out of the beaten path and hurled them into the woods. They were found behind a log and identified as belonging to the Newmans.

They state also that the old people had quite a sum of money in the house. They told Mr. Greene that there was at least $50 in gold in the house and probably more in silver and bills.

The four brothers left with the bodies last night for Minneapolis.

North Dakota House Kills Bill for Electric Headlights.

Bismarck, N. D., Feb. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Electric headlights for locomotives were voted down in the house this morning, the bill making such provision being indefinitely postponed after a bitter fight.

The Mandan fair bill, creating the Missouri slope agricultural exposition, was passed by the house. It carries an appropriation of $5,000 annually.

H. D. PAULSON.

DESERTS SHEPARD.

Senator Roosevelt of New York Votes for Kernan for U. S. Senator.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 15.—The monotony of the daily ballot for United States senator was varied today when Senator Franklyn D. Roosevelt, the insurgent leader, and several of his followers, deserted Edward M. Shepard and cast their votes for John D. Kernan. As a result, Mr. Kernan received 15 of the 30 insurgent balots, while only 3 were cast for Mr. Shepard.

Senator Roosevelt said the increased vote for Mr. Kernan had no significance apart from showing that the insurgents can get together when they wish to do so. Today's vote follows:

Democrats—Sheehan, 8; Kernan, 15; Shepard, 3; Glynn, 2; Littleton, 3; Sulzer, 3; O'Brien, 1; Parker, 1; Dougherty, 1.

Republicans—Depew, 72. Total vote cast, 181. Necessary for choice, 92.

TO INCREASE SALARIES OF SUPREME COURT JUSTICES.

Washington, Feb. 15.—The house today voted to increase the salary of the chief justice of the United States from $13,500 to $15,000 a year and the salaries of associate justices from $12,500 to $14,000. The increase was made by an amendment to the bill codifying laws relating to the judiciary.

DINING WITH ROYALTY.

DINING WITH ROYALTY.

New York Sun: Dining with royalty is rather a formidable matter. The Rev. W. H. Brookfield in "Mrs. Brookfield and her Circle" gives an account of a dinner with Queen Victoria.

"On reaching the deanery," he says, "I received a card of invitation, 'The Lord Steward is commanded by the Queen to invite the Rev. W. H. Brookfield to dine at half-past 8. Frock dress.'

"At 8:30 o'clock the dean and Mrs. Wellesley drove me in a carriage and pair the 200 yards which lay between the deanery and the palace. We assembled round a fire in a grand curvilinear corridor, Van de Weyer and wife, Lady Clifden, dean and lady and self.

"Miss Van de Weyer had been remitted (though a visitor) to the second table, for the queen will not have more than eight at the private table.

"At 8:45 o'clock the queen and Princess Louise came into the corridor. She went up to Mrs. Wellesley and shook hands, made a low courtesy to the gentlemen generally and then went in to dinner.

"Round table: Queen at head, on her right Princess Louise, on her left Van de Weyer, next to him Mrs. Wellesley, then Mrs. Van de Weyer and myself, Lady Clifden on my left, then dean, then princess.

"Neither table nor octagon room where we were was at all decorated; perhaps six dessert sweets of the customary kind. The dishes handed round were two soups, two fishes, pates, cutlets, fricandeaux, stewed beef, something else, roast beef, roast chicken, snipe, plum pudding, creams or sweets and cheese with a glass of port wine.

"Then grace, as before dinner, by the dean, and the queen then, the things remaining on the table, went up and down and said a few words to each person present. I came last, but while the queen talked to the dean and Van de Weyer the Princess Louise took pity on me and conversed a little, though on quite trivial topics.

"The same with the queen, a few words and she retired, when we joined the lords and ladies-in-waiting, who were playing a game which consisted in drawing a head on a piece of paper and creasing it down at the neck; another person drew a body or trunk down to the hips and creased that down, and a third completed the figure.

"Home between 11 and 12—much later, I understand, than usual. Cards were on the table for the people in waiting, if they chose to play. At dinner the waiting was done entirely by the giant Yager, a piper in Highland dress, and four waiters out of livery. The wines were plentifully handed round. They were sherry, claret and champagne."

WHEAT STILL ON TOBOGGAN

Action of House of Representatives on Reciprocity Regarded as Bearish.

Bears Hammer Market After Shorts Cover---Flax Weaker.

Duluth Board of Trade, Feb. 15.—Wheat declined today. May lost 1¼c and July lost 1⅛c. Cash was ½c under May, oats lost ⅜c, rye lost 2c and barley was unchanged. Durum lost ½c.

Flaxseed was weaker. Crushers tried to beat down prices before buying but when they went into the market prices quickly firmed. Increased receipts in the Northwest and the sentimental effect of the proposed reciprocity agreement helped to depress prices early in the session. May flax lost 2c.

Everybody went home short last night in expectation that the passage of reciprocity legislation by the house of representatives would result in a break today. At the opening today a flood of wheat descended on the market. Some of it was from the country which had tired after holding its wheat fruitlessly for many weeks.

Shorts picked this wheat up and following a slight decline the market advanced until it was about ½c higher than the opening. Shorts were covering and as soon as trades were fairly well evened up the professionals jumped on the market again and values slid precipitately. There appeared to be no support outside of the buying power which came from the shorts.

Cables came unchanged to lower. Australian and Argentine offers were liberal. European crop advices were favorable and reports from Russia were favorable. A heavy snow has fallen in Crimea and has afforded the growing wheat protection from severe cold weather. The Black sea is filled with ice and shipping is at a complete standstill.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Lively Buying Counteracts a Declining Tendency in Wheat Prices.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—Lively buying today counteracted a declining tendency in wheat. It was the idea of the purchasers that a rally might naturally be expected following the recent long decline of 10c per bu. Sellers, on the other hand, fixed their course by the reciprocity outlook and with a view to favorable European crop advices, poor cash inquiry and expected improvement of winter wheat Southwest. Offerings, however, were only scattered. The bulls showed an aggressive spirit, and soon had prices back above last night's level. The opening was weak, ⅜c lower to a shade higher. May started at 92¼@92⅜c, a loss of ⅛@⅜c, but swung upward to 92⅝c.

Later because of reports that the tariff agreement and anti-option measures were making progress in the senate, the market sharply declined, touching the lowest point this season. The close was nervous, with May at 91⅜c, a net loss of 1¼c.

The corn trade was slow, with prices steady, in the face of changes either way on the part of wheat. May opened the same as last night to a shade up at 49⅛c to 49⅛@49¼c, touched 49c, and recovered to 49⅜c.

In the last half of the day the market eased off decidedly with wheat. The close was unsettled with May ½@⅝c net lower at 48⅜@48⅝c.

Pit speculators sold oats, but failed to make much impression on the market as a whole. May started a shade lower to a shade higher at 31¾@31⅞c, reached 32⅛@32¼c and declined to 31⅝c.

Provisions advanced, following a rise in hog values. First sales were 5@7½c to 12½c up, with May options at $17.70@17.75 for pork, $9.50 for lard and $9.50@9.52½ for ribs.

MARKET GOSSIP

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "The wheat market at the opening was influenced by steadiness in Chicago yesterday and values were about unchanged to ¼d higher with the principal strength in May, in which some shorts covered. Following the opening there was realizing on a limited scale and values lost ⅛d to ¼d. The market was extremely dull with liberal Australian and Argentine offers. Spot markets were ½d lower with some pressure and European crop advices continue generally favorable with good crop accounts from Russia and lower Buenos Ayres market at the close. At mid-day the market was easier and ⅛@¼d lower to ¼d higher than yesterday. The corn market was unchanged at the opening and later March advanced ⅛d. The advance in America and fewer American offers caused some little support. There remains, however, a very small demand with supplies liberal for the present. Our Russian agent cables that there has been a heavy fall of snow with intense cold throughout the Crimea; the crops, however, are now well protected. The Black sea is filled with ice and shipping is at a complete standstill.

RAPID RISE ON BUYING

Contest for Missouri Pacific's Control Feature of Stock Market.

Downward Tendency in Second Hour and the Close Is Heavy.

New York, Feb. 15.—Missouri Pacific was the feature of the opening stock market today by reason of the pending contest for control of the property. The opening sale of 600 shares was at 60 as compared with 59⅜, last night's closing, and 2,000 more shares sold at 60½ and 60¾. The general list was dull and irregular. Reading and United States Steel declined fractionally, American Car fell ½ and Tennessee Copper ¾. National Railways of Mexico first and second preferred advanced 1¼ and Great Northern ⅜.

Missouri Pacific continued its rapid advance on heavy buying until it had gained nearly 4 points. The flurry in this stock checked the improvement which was in progress in the general list and there was a slight reaction. A good deal of long stock came on the market when Missouri Pacific touched 63 and it reacted to 61¼. It subsequently rallied a point. The general market took a brisk upward turn under the lead of the Hill stocks, Northern Pacific rising 2 points and Great Northern preferred half as much.

Over-night developments gave a nervous tone to trading throughout the morning. Definite news of a pending contest for control of Missouri Pacific was the chief disturbing factor, causing a feverish movement in the stock and hesitation in the general market.

Passage of the Canadian reciprocity bill by the house of representatives was reflected in divers movements in stocks affected by its provisions. Some stocks of the Canadian group advanced and International Paper preferred sustained a further loss of more than a point.

During the better part of the second hour, the market displayed a downward tendency, Missouri Pacific relaxing to 60⅛ and various other leading stocks, including United States Steel, Amalgamated Copper and Reading yielding to a fraction below last night. Bonds were steady.

The market closed heavy. Erie stocks were bought freely in the last hour, the common and second preferred rising a point. The rest of the market was listless, but shaded somewhat in the final dealings, with Missouri Pacific going to 59½ after the Gould statement was given out.

DULUTH FOR RECIPROCITY

Duluth Commercial Club Forwards Strong Resolutions to Washington.

Declaration in Favor of Canadian Treaty Is Formulated.

President Taft's demand for reciprocity legislation is strongly backed by the Duluth Commercial club, the executive committee of that organization having adopted resolutions to that effect and forwarded them to Washington.

The text of the resolutions follow:

"Whereas, our great jobbing interests demand reciprocity for their field will be immediately increased, and

"Whereas, our manufacturing interests demand reciprocity for the same reason, and

"Whereas, our large grain interests, including the elevator system, demand reciprocity for it will greatly enlarge the volume of the grain business and tax to the full limit the elevator capacity, and

"Whereas, our financial institutions demand reciprocity for it will employ more capital and create a larger volume of deposits, and

"Whereas, the farmer and settler, the husbandman in every branch of agriculture, demands reciprocity in order to build up the cities and make better near-by markets for their products, and

"Whereas, the men who work for wages demand reciprocity as it will stimulate manufacturers, jobbing, transportation and commerce and increase their wages, and

"Whereas, our neighbors, the Canadians, are near enough to us to be our friends, we demand the right to do business with them on the same basis as we deal with our own citizens, and

"Whereas, all this can be accomplished by reciprocity, and as it conforms to modern ideas of the highest economy of efficiency of effort,

"Be it therefore, resolved:

"That we support the position taken by the president of the United States and demand that our representatives in congress act at once in accordance with these recommendations, and the message of the president to congress.

"Dated at Duluth, Minn., this 10th day of February, 1911.

"W. E. RICHARDSON,
"E. P. TOWNE,
"B. P. NEFF,
"HENRY NOLTE,
"DAVID WILLIAMS.

"Special committee. Duluth Commercial Club."

The subject of reciprocity was taken up at the last meeting of the public affairs committee and referred to the executive committee, which in turn referred it to a special committee. The special committee completed its work and reported back to the executive committee, which had power to act. Thereupon the resolutions were sent to the capital

"SLEEPS" WILL BE CHEAPER

Missabe Road Reduces Charge for Berths to Winnipeg and Baudette.

Beginning today the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway will reduce the price of sleeping car berths between this city and Winnipeg and will also offer a reduction on the berths between Duluth and Baudette. The reduction also applies to state rooms.

The former rate on berths from this city to Winnipeg was $3. The new rate is $2.50. The price of a sleeping car berth between Duluth and Baudette was $2.50 and the new rate calls only for $1.50. Heretofore the price of a state room from Duluth to Winnipeg has been $11. The new schedule calls for a reduction of $2. The old price of state rooms between Duluth and Baudette was $10 and the new price calls for the expenditure of $8.

The general reduction of the price of sleeping car berths is made, according to the statement from the local Missabe office, because of the general increase of passenger travel between Duluth and the Western Canadian metropolis, which has been geenral over the Missabe and the Canadian Northern.

The officials further stated that the new price was not made because of any regulation requiring a reduction, but because they believed a reduction of the price would tend to increase travel and also that the revenue in the future would be larger than the revenue derived under the higher rates.

ENGINEER MAY BE EMPLOYED

Expert May Be Engaged for the Water and Light Department.

At the next meeting, the water and light board will pass upon the recommendation that D. A. Reed be appointed engineer in charge of the water works system of the department.

The matter was brought up at the last meeting, but action was postponed. It has frequently been suggested that a competent engineer should be in the employ of the department.

SEEK YOUNG PETERSON.

Search Being Made in Lumber Camps for Stillwater Youth.

Cloquet, Minn., Feb. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Friends of Clarence Peterson of Stillwater are searching in the camps in this vicinity for the young man, who as stated in The Herald, has been missing since a year ago, at which time he came home to visit his people, and departing for his work in the lumber woods, has not been heard from since. He was 19 years old, and it is feared that foul play has befallen him. His mother has passed away recently, and her body is being held at the vault at Stillwater, hoping that the son may be located. The boy's father, Charles Peterson is an aged farmer near Stillwater, and is grieving sorely with anxiety over his son, and the loss of his wife.

BILLS OF INTEREST TO NORTHERN MINNESOTA GIVEN CONSIDERATION

FIGHTER FOR DELAY ON REAPPORTIONMENT

THOMAS FRANKSON, Representative From Spring Valley, Who Wanted to Postpone Action on Reapportionment Bill.

Repeal of Law Hindering Sales of State Lands Favored.

Bill to Safeguard the Forests Advocated By Forestry Board.

Delegation From Akeley Asks for Branch School of Agriculture.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Matters of vital importance to the development of Northern Minnesota were up for consideration yesterday afternoon in committees of both house and senate.

The senate committee on public lands, of which Senator James P. Boyle of Eveleth is chairman, considered the Works and Swanson bills providing for reorganizing the state's business of handling its public domain and voted to refer both of them to the judiciary committee for its opinion as to their constitutionality.

There is little doubt that these measures are unconstitutional, because both take away from the state auditor's office the business of selling state lands, and the Constitution seems to require that this function shall be continued as it was when the Constitution was adopted, in the control of the state auditor's office.

If the judiciary committee decides that these bills are unconstitutional, Chairman Boyle of the committee will prepare a proposed constitutional amendment for the consideration of his

OVATION BY LEGISLATURE

Given to Dr. Northrop, Dr. Vincent and Former Governor Lind.

President-Elect of State University Delivers Forcible Address.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The legislature in joint session this morning gave a rousing ovation to Dr. Cyrus Northrop, the retiring president of the state university, to Dr. George E. Vincent, the president-elect, and to ex-Governor John Lind, president of the board of regents. They were present by invitation to address the legislature, and Dr. Northrop, in introducing his successor, said: "The regents, in my opinion, have picked the very best man obtainable in this country. He did not seek the office: the office sought him. He is eloquent, forceful, enthusiastic, thoroughly sane and sensible. I have no doubt that under the inspiration of his leadership the cause of education in Minnesota will receive a new impetus."

Dr. Vincent—keen, incisive, clean-cut both in speech and appearance, pleasing in manners and forceful in address—inspired the confidence of his audience at once. He said in part:

Dr. Vincent's Speech.

"The university, like the legislature, represents the idea of the unity of social and governmental relations. It deserves support because it is a great organ of the common life. The men associated with it are dominated by the broad conception of social service. It works for that efficiency which is the very foundation of modern life, and it is the apex of the educational organization of the state. I can plead for the university as an insti-

United States to Stop Expeditions Going to Central America.

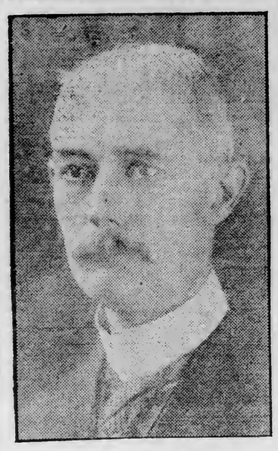

Grand Jury at New Orleans Investigating Case of the Hornet.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 16.—That the United States government is going to put a stop to filibustering expeditions from New Orleans and other Gulf ports to Central American countries, was indicated when an investigation was instituted before the federal grand jury in the matter of the departure from this port on Dec. 22, of the steamer Hornet for use in the Honduran revolution. The proceedings were instituted at the instance of the department of justice at Washington.

Drew Linard, formerly consul at Ceiba, Honduras, was detained in the case yesterday afternoon just as he was preparing to board a steamer for Puerto Cortez. After being served with a summons to appear before the grand

DRAINAGE BILL DEAD

North Dakota House Kills Sorlie Bill on Third Reading.

Bismarck, N. D., Feb. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the house, the bill introduced by Representative Sorlie of Trail county, relating to the draining of lands into natural depressions, met death on third reading, after an effort had been made to place it at the foot of the calendar because of the absence of some members. This bill created a big fight in committee of the whole last week.

Representative Stranahan's expense bill for legislators was indefinitely postponed without debate after it had reached the third reading, while the itinerant vending measure, against which a protest has been raised, was referred to the committee on ways and means. Federal inspection of grain, indorsed by the senate, was concurred in by the house, while amendments offered by the senate to the probate commission bill, making appointments with consent of the senate, were also concurred in.

DOROTHY PAWNED JEWELS LAST FALL

Missing Arnold Girl's Gems Still in a Boston Pawn Shop.

Boston, Feb. 16.—Dorothy Arnold, the New York girl who has been missing since Dec. 12, pawned her watch, rings, neck chain and bracelet, valued at $500 while she was on her week's visit to Boston in September, according to information given out last night. Miss Arnold took the articles to a Boylston street pawnshop and received about one-tenth their value, giving her full name and address.

The articles were pledged on Sept. 23, and the Arnold family was informed as soon as the announcement was made that the girl was missing. The articles are still in the pawnshop.

CLERK REFUSES TO BE HELD UP

Grabs Bandit After He Has Been Shot in the Hand.

New York, Feb. 16.—With the aid of companions in a waiting automobile, a masked bandit early today attempted to hold up the clerk of the Hotel Frederick. The attempt failed because Robert G. Barnard, the clerk, grappled with the bandit after the latter had fired one shot and wounded him in the hand, and because the robber's revolver twice missed fire when he tried to follow up his first shot by two more.

The bandit and his companions got away in the automobile.

Scores of guests who were awakened by the shots, flocked to the corridor in a panic, which the hotel management and police were some time in allaying.

MOB OF NEGROES GUARD PRISONERS

Will Resist Any Attempt of Whites to Lynch Prisoners.

Stanford, Ky., Feb. 16.—A mob of negroes, heavily armed, stood on guard outside the jail here last night prepared to resist any attempt of a white mob to lynch the blacks, Louis Gregory and Curley Johnson, held for the robbery of three white tobacco farmers last Monday night.

At midnight a posse of armed white men drove into town and scouted about the jail. They advised against an attempt to storm the jail, it is believed, realizing that the slightest movement against the negro prisoners would have resulted in a fierce clash between the mobs.

RUSSIA AND CHINA MAY GO TO WAR TO SETTLE DISPUTE

THE POWERS ARE NOTIFIED

By Russia of Intention to Make an Armed Demonstration.

Troops Will Be Sent at Once to the District of Ili.

Trouble Grows Out of China's Persistent Violation of Treaty.

London, Feb. 16.—The relations of Russia and China are strained to the breaking point. Russia today notified the governments of Great Britain, France and Germany of her intention to make a military demonstration on the Russo-Chinese frontier owing to China's persistent violation of the St. Petersburg treaty of 1881.

Russian troops will be sent forthwith to the district of Ili.

The extent of the demonstration, it is added in the diplomatic note, will depend entirely upon the attitude assumed by China.

The vital questions involved are free trade in Mongolia, the extra territorial rights of Russians in China, and the establishment of a Russian consulate at Koebdo, Mongolia.

There have been rumors recently of Provisional President Crosses Border and Locates in Gaudeloupe.

New York, Feb. 16.—The reappearance of Francisco I. Madero, provisional insurrrecto president of Mexico yesterday in the little border town of Guadeloupe, Mex., brought an acknowledgment last night from his brother Gustave A. Madero that the rebel chief had been hiding in American territory.

"My brother has been part of the time in El Paso," said Gustave Madero. "I cannot at this time account for his movements, but it is true that he is now at Guadeloupe and his appearance there is a sign that he feels the situation is shaping itself to his desires. A board of strategy has been formed and he will share in its deliberations, although it is not yet planned that he should take the field in person.

BUREAU OF STATISTICS SAID TO HAVE ISSUED MISLEADING REPORTS

Sensational Charges Made at Pan-American Commercial Conference.

Affidavit By Confidential Clerk Says Exports Were Juggled.

Raw Materials Described as Wholly or Partially Manufactured.

Washington, Feb. 16.—Sensational charges were made at the Pan-American commercial conference today that the government bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor was issuing misleading statistics on the export trade of the United States. The charges were made by Francis J. Lowe of New York, who read an affidavit made by a former confidential clerk of the bureau.

Mr. Lowe, representing a number of export merchants of New York, immediately following a speech by O. P. Austin, chief of the bureau of statistics, announced that the exporters of New York wanted to know whether the bureau still was issuing misleading statistics on the export trade of the United States.

He then read an affidavit made in 1907 by Charles S. Price, for three years the confidential clerk of the

RESOLUTION ASKS AN EXTRA SESSION

Harrison Would Have Further Revisions Made in the Tariff.

Washington, Feb. 16.—Sentiment for an extra session of congress, said to proceed from state legislatures, city councils and chambers of commerce in various parts of the country, resulted in the introduction in the house yesterday by Representative Francis Burton Harrison, the New York Democratic member of the new ways and means committee of a resolution requesting President Taft to reconvene congress immediately after March 4 for the purpose of revising downward the schedules of the Payne-Aldrich tariff act.

Mr. Harrison's resolution called particular attention to the necessity of revising schedules affecting foodstuffs, wool and manufactures of wool, and cotton manufactures.

In a statement explaining his resolution, Mr. Harrison said that the Canadian reciprocity agreement "is but the first step in the right direction" and that congress in a few weeks could reduce the duties on foodstuffs and clothing and give the country a relief that otherwise would be denied nine months till the convening of congress next December. The Canadian reciprocity agreement having been disposed of by the house, the fact that the Republicans probably would act in unison against any measure giving the Democrats immediate assumption of power, it is believed, does not augur the passage of Mr. Harrison's resolution. It was pointed out also that if there is to be an extra session of congress it will proceed from the determination of President Taft to call it, regardless of any action by the house.

GOULDS PASS AS RAILROAD POWER

Influence in Missouri Pacific and Other Roads to End.

New York, Feb. 16.—Pressed by the Rockefeller, Kuhn and Loeb interests, George J. Gould is shortly to relinquish the presidency of the Missouri Pacific Railway company, a position in which his father, Jay Gould, placed him eighteen years ago. He will be succeeded by a railroad man, not yet publicly named, who, to quote one of the new interests in Missouri Pacific, "will eat, drink and sleep on the job."

Mr. Gould himself announced his forthcoming retirement, which will take place just as soon as his successor is chosen.

The fact that Mr. Gould will become chairman of the board does not alter the opinion held in financial circles that yesterday's developments mark the passing of the Gould influence not only in Missouri Pacific, but in the various other railroads with which the name of Gould has for so many years been identified.

Rumors foreshadowing the change have been current for weeks and more recent developments indicated that a spirited contest was to be waged for control of the stock. Several conferences were held yesterday and with their conclusion, at a time too late to have any effect on yesterday's market, the Gould statement was issued. It tells not only of George Gould's forthcoming resignation as president, but of the intended simultaneous retirements of the other members of the Gould faction and family in the directorate. This puts an end to all probability of a contest.

Messrs. Warburg, Marston and Adams will take the places in the directorate now held by Howard Gould, S. C. Clarke and S. F. Prior, the latter two of St. Louis.

FUNERAL OF ARCHBISHOP

Remains of Late Patrick John Ryan Entombed in Crypt.

Cardinal, Papal Delegate and Other Dignitaries Participate in Service.

Philadelphia, Feb. 16.—The body of the late Archbishop Patrick John Ryan was today entombed in the crypt beneath the high altar of the Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul, in this city, following funeral services that were imposing and in keeping with the dignity of the high office held by the prelate. It was one of the greatest funerals ever held in Philadelphia. Practically all the prominent figures of the Roman Catholic church in the United States participated in the services. The cathedral was filled with a crowd of 3,500 people and surrounding the building on the outside was a great concourse of people who witnessed the solemn procession from the church around Logan Square and back to the edifice. The weather was cloudy and raw.

It is estimated that about 75,000 persons passed through the cathedral yesterday and until after 1 o'clock this morning to view the body. Shortly before the doors of the church were closed the crush became so great that nearly a score of women fainted and had to be removed to a hospital. Several became hysterical.

Doors Open At 5 A. M.

The doors of the cathedral were again opened at 5 o'clock this morning to permit a long line of people to take a last look at the dead archbishop, and were closed again shortly before the funeral services began.

With the exception of the heavy black draperies and a few large palms there was an entire absence of decorations in the cathedral. There were no flowers. The body of the archbishop rested upon a catafalque in front of the altar, surrounded by

CATHOLICS INCREASING

There Are at the Present Time 14,618,761 in United States.

Does Not Include Members of Church in Insular Possessions.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 16.—There are at present 14,618,761 Roman Catholics in the United States, according to the 1911 Wiltzius official Catholic directory, which is now in press. The figure given does not include the Catholics in the Philippines, Porto Rico or Hawaiian islands, for if they were added the number of Roman Catholics under the stars and stripes would be nearly twenty-three million.

Although the United States religious census of 1906 credits the Roman Catholic faith with only 12,079,142, the Wiltzius figure is not exaggerated, as the census bureau deducted 15 per cent of its total count for children, counting only communicants.

According to the directory, there are in the United States 17,681 Catholic

ALL INCOMING TRAINS ARE CROWDED WITH TEACHERS

Fully 800 Delegates Expected to Attend Convention Here.

Spend the Day Inspecting the Schools of the City.

School teachers from the range flooded the city today after the arrival of the morning train, which was packed to almost double its capacity.

Later incoming trains brought many more from Carlton, Atkin, Cloquet, Fine City, Itasca and many other smaller stations. They are in Duluth to attend the eleventh annual meeting of the Northeastern Minnesota Educational association, which began shortly after the arrival of the range teachers, with a tour of inspection through the various school buildings of the city.

The convention will be formally opened at the Central high school this evening, when Mayor Cullum will deliver an address of welcome and later an informal reception held. There will be musical selections by an orchestra, vocal solos, readings and short addresses by prominent members of the association. Directly after the program the reception will be held in the corridors of the big building.

J. A. Vandyke of Coleraine, Minn., superintendent of the public school system of that place, is president of the association; Herbert Blair of Hibbing is vice president; Miss Blanche Nichols of Ely is secretary; and Noah A. Young of Eveleth is treasurer.

Mr. Vandyke arrived in the city on the train that brought several hundred teachers from the range. Mr. Vandyke says that the eleventh annual promises to be the most successful meeting ever held by the association. Great numbers from every part of the territory included in the district covered by this association have announced their intention to be here. He expects that before tomorrow there will be 800 teachers in the city. At the present time there were but few others than teachers registered at Duluth hotels.

For the meeting this year an exceptionally talented list of speakers has been secured and this, no doubt, helped greatly in creating the interest and drawing such a large delegation to the city.

General Session.

At the general session to which the public is cordially invited tomorrow night at the assembly hall of the Central High school, Dr. A. E. Winship of Boston, Mass., will speak on "Modern School Problems." Dr. Winship is well known in the educational world and his address will probably be one of the features of the entire series of meetings which will last until Saturday evening. This address is considered of especial interest to the parents and they are especially invited to attend.

"The Regenerating Circle" will be the subject of an address to be given at the meeting tomorrow night by Mrs. Frances Squire Potter of Chicago. Those who had charge of the speakers are congratulating themselves on having obtained Mrs. Potter for an address.

At the meeting tomorrow night there will be music by a chorus under the direction of A. F. M. Custance, a solo by Miss Mary Whitcomb and a special discussion of the subjects on which the out-of-town people talk.

After the teachers had been the rounds visiting the city schools today, they all expressed themselves as being very favorably impressed.

Interested in New School.

It was at the new manual training high school that they lingered longest, however. The new building has rooms for mechanical and freehand drawing, leather work and stencilling, arts crafts room, pottery, cabinet shops, woodworking shop, lathe room, machine and stock room, printing shop, machine shop, foundry, forge room, blue print and dark room, gymnasium and locker rooms. There are also domestic arts and science kitchen, sewing rooms, dining room, bedroom, millinery and fitting room.

All this was very interesting, and they all stated that the new school building and its equipment is probably the finest in the entire Northwest.

In speaking of the improvements at the small town of Coleraine, Mr. Vandyke states that when he went there five years ago there were but two small frame schoolhouses and three teachers were employed.

At the present time the district has three fine brick buildings which represent an outlay of about $160,000. There are two high schools, one at Coleraine and the other at Marble. More than 806 pupils are educated each year and the number is on the increase. The high schools are college preparatory schools and embrace the same subjects and the same courses as the schools located in the larger places. Thirty-five teachers are now employed in the district.

The program for Friday evening follows:

Music under the direction of Prof. A. F. M. Custance, Duluth.
Chorus—"In Spain".....di Chiara
High School Chorus.
Song—"My Hero".....Chocolate Soldier
Mary Whitcomb and Choir.
Address—"Modern School Problems"
Dr. A. E. Winship of Boston, Editor Journal of Education.
Address—"The Regenerating Circle"
Mrs. Frances Squire Potter of Chicago.

RAILROADS

TROUBLE WOULD FOLLOW FREEZE

Railroad Officials Feared Cold Weather After the Thaw.

Had a hard freeze set in after the thaw of yesterday and the day before it is estimated by the railroad operators of the Duluth railroads that not a car wheel would have turned for the next forty-eight hours.

This statement was made this morning by Assistant Superintendent Strand of the Northern Pacific, who also stated that the yards would have been completely tied up until the switches could have been chopped free of the ice and got in working order.

In practically all of the yards of Duluth the tracks were covered by two or three inches of water and slush. Had this frozen solid, which would have resulted had the thermometer dropped, every switch would have been encased in a solid bed of ice and before trains could have been moved it would have been necessary to thaw the ice away.

TRAIN DELAYED.

Some Passengers Walk From West Duluth Junction to Car Line.

The turning of a truck on the Northern Pacific passenger train which was due here at 7 o'clock last evening, caused that train to be delayed at West Duluth Junction. The train was delayed about forty minutes by the accident. Some of the passengers walked two blocks to the street car line and rode in.

Immediate Effect of Great Kidney Remedy is Soon Realized.

I want to tell you what Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root did for me. I was completely broken down. My kidneys hurt me so that when I was down, I could not get up unless I took hold of something to pull myself up with. I would have to urinate five or six times during the night and it was full of sediment like brick dust.

I tried different kinds of kidney pills, but they did me no good. Some one told me to try Swamp-Root. I had no faith in it but to please my wife, I purchased one bottle and took it. I saw it was beginning to help me and kept on taking it until I had taken six bottles and it straightened me out all right.

Swamp-Root is the only medicine that did me any good. I thought I would write this letter and tell every one that is afflicted as I was, to take Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. The six bottles I took cost me five dollars, and did me five hundred dollars worth of good.

MEASURE TO BE PRESSED

Some Action Expected on Election of Senators By Direct Vote.

Borah Not Sure That He Will Resort to a Night Session.

Washington, Feb. 16.—Friends and opponents alike of the joint resolution providing for a constitutional amendment authorizing the election of senators by direct vote of the people began the session of the senate today in the expectation that it would at least bring forth important developments regarding the measure.

Senator Borah was determined to press the measure as rapidly as possible but he was not so sure as when he gave his notice a day or two ago that he would resort to a night session to get a vote. Other considerations have arisen which might render this course inexpedient. One of these is the attitude of the Democratic friends of the resolution, who are somewhat apprehensive that action on the election resolution would have the effect of clearing the way for the tariff board bill, which result would not be pleasing to them.

On this and other accounts the night session may not be pressed but whether it be or not Mr. Borah will hold the resolution before the senate from day to day so long as it does continue in session.

The resolution becomes the order of business at 2 o'clock. It is the Idaho senator's purpose to press for continued consideration to a vote at the first possible moment. So far as is known Mr. Heyburn is the only senator who remains unwilling to have a day named for a vote. There is little hope of getting him to yield but if he stands alone it would not take a great while to wear him out physically.

The two sides are lining up in close formation. The supporters of the measure are meeting Senator Lodge's notification that they must supply two to one on pairs on the final vote with refusals to make new pairs on amendments. Several requests for pairs on the Sutherland amendment were flatly refused yesterday and the Democrats have gone so far as to say that they will break all pairs on this proposition.

CLOTHES LINE THIEVES BUSY

Four West Duluth Families Make Complaint to Police.

Beware of the clothes line thieves!

They are at work at West Duluth and within the last few days have been the cause of much consternation among the housewives who have left their washings out on the line over night.

Yesterday, several complaints were made to the police by people who are living in the vicinity of North Sixty-first avenue west, who claim that some unknown culprit has stripped their clothes lines clean.

According to the complaint of L. J. Gayou, who resides at 217 North Sixty-first avenue west, the thieves have missed nothing, and have not passed up a single article from an old handkerchief to sweaters and blankets.

The residents in this section, which has been plundered by the petty thieves, are keeping on the lookout for the culprits but as yet have not succeeded in getting a clue as to their identity. The police are investigating now.

Mr. Gayou reports the following articles stolen: Two white linen table covers and twelve handkerchiefs.

John Wenberg, residing at 218 North Sixty-first avenue west claims that the thieves took from his place, one lady's sweater, twenty-four handkerchiefs and three suits of underwear.

Mrs. Falls, a neighbor, reports missing, three towels, six napkins, six handkerchiefs and five sheets.

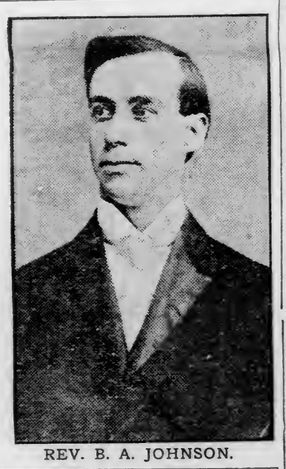

Joseph Anderson of 220 North Sixty-first avenue west, claims that a blanket, two suits of underwear and a pair of heavy woolen socks were stolen from his premises.

and Hibbing for the last time in the capacity of pastor.

Rev. Mr. Johnson came to West Duluth two years ago, direct from the Norwegian Lutheran seminary at St. Paul, where he had finished a theological course. Besides taking care of the work at the local church, he has been pastor of two charges on the ranges.

His successor has not been selected by the congregation as yet. The former pastor of the church was Rev. Herman Sauer.

RIGHT-OF-WAY IS SECURED

New Getchell Road Will Give Farmers an Easy Grade.

A compromise was effected yesterday, whereby the right-of-way for the new Getchell road, connecting West Duluth with a shorter route to Proctor and the Morris Thomas road, was secured from the Gilley estate by the board of public works.

The settlement was made without condemnation proceedings and now the board can let contracts for the grading and work on the thoroughfare. Bids will be received soon and the work rushed as soon as spring comes.

The road, which at its steepest point, will have less than a 5½ per cent grade, connects West Duluth with the surrounding farming district. Its completion will mean a great deal not only to the farmers but to West Duluth.

It starts at the intersection of Highland street and Fifty-sixth avenue west, runs southwest to Huntington street and Fifty-seventh avenue, from there takes a winding course around the southern end of Oneota cemetery and north along Keene's creek, crossing the stream about a mile and half north of the cemetery, from which point the road runs into a northwesterly course. It leaves the city limits at the southwest corner of section 26, striking section 35 of Herman township and intersecting the Morris Thomas road, a half mile from the section line which divides sections 35 and 36.

The steepest grades are in West Duluth proper and will be encountered on Fifty-seventh avenue approaching Highland street and on Highland to Fifty-ninth avenue.

With the Curlers.

In the Burns event last evening at the West Duulth curling rink, Wade defeated Method, 18 to 10 and Olson won from Macauley, 13 to 11. Three more games in this event will be played this evening, Zauft vs. Keyes, Evered vs. Buckley and Scott vs. Judson. Olson and Wade are drawn in the Union Match company event tonight.

PROCLAMATION BY PRESIDENT

Calls for Funds to Aid Famine Sufferers in China.

Washington, Feb. 16.—President Taft has issued the following proclamation calling for funds to aid the famine sufferers in China:

"As president of the American Red Cross appeal to the people of this country to aid the unfortunate multitudes who are dying of starvation because of famine in China, either by money contributions, which should be sent to the local Red Cross treasurers or to the Red Cross, Washington, D. C., or by assisting in raising a cargo of flour and other suitable supplies to be sent to these people. Congress has granted the use of an army transport to the Red Cross for this purpose. The Commercial club of Seattle, Wash., is co-operating with the Red Cross and will act as receiving and forwarding agent for all supplies. I trust that our people will respond generously and that the transportation lines will aid in the delivery at Seattle.

VICTIM IS DETECTIVE

Tom Marks Locates Man He Believes Took His Roll.

After All-Night Search Suspect Is Located in Superior.

Waking up at 1 o'clock this morning with a throbbing head and a sickly dizziness in a Bowery rooming house to find that he had been relieved of his roll of about $70, Tom Marks, a woodsman, set out to find the man who he suspected of having done the job.

He had been drinking all yesterday with a companion named Mike Whitney, another lumberjack, and remembered that his erstwhile companion had put him to bed. At that time he was certain that he had the major portion of his wealth, but when he jumped out of bed he felt that he was broke. A thorough search of his clothes failed to disclose a cent.

Running across a companion named Charlie Patten, he told him his troubles. Despite the lateness of the hour the two started out to look for Whitney, determined to find him before they quit. After going through the Bowery neighborhood they started or, foot for Superior, having a "hunch" that the alleged thief had gone to the other side of the bay.

Long before daylight they reached the Wisconsin shore, and scorning sleep, continued their man hunt. From one place to another they went. It was not until towards the middle of the forenoon that they located Whitney, but they were greatly pleased that their search had terminated so successfully.

Walking up to Whitney, Marks accused him of having rolled him for his stake after putting him to bed in this city. Whitney denied it. "Well, you'll go over to the other side to the police station with me right now, or I'll break your head," Marks shouted at Whitney. Whitney went. He is now at the police station locked up as a suspect. When searched by Jailer Dave Butchard, $11 was found on him, hidden in his underwear. He was not arraigned in police court this morning.

DR. JETTIE J. RESNIK.

DR. RESNIK AT WORK.

New York city does not boast the only woman ambulance doctor. Long Island has one—Dr. Jettie J. Resnik—who entered the Hempstead hospital as an interne at the suggestion of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont. Dr. Resnik is a graduate physician of course and has had a year's experience in the Woman's Infirmary of New York. At the hospital she gets a much greater variety of experience. LOCAL COPPERS SHOW STRENGTH

Eastern Market Declines---Keating and Corbin Are the Features.

The general market declined today, but the outside influence had no effect on the Duluth Stock exchange. While the local market was a specialty affair, yet the strength displayed by two or three stocks gave a firm tone to the entire list which closed strong.

More than 7,000 shares were traded in on the Iacol exchange. In the balmy days of a year ago, when the market was considered active, the best trading seldom caused a volume of more than 10,000 shares daily. The feature of the day was Keating Gold. On reports that this company can eventually pay annual disbursements of about $1 to shareholders without mining the rich ore which has appeared on all levels the stock walked forward from $2.62½ to $3 and closed $3.06¼ bid, at which price there were no offers. In Keating 3,145 shares were traded in and the offerings were absorbed at an advance. The selling on the bulge did not cause the stock to weaken at any stage of the upturn and its closing bid price was the highest of the session. A large part of the buying came from Butte.

Calumet & Corbin was a second feature, running Keating a close second for attention. This mine is also in the Radersburg district and it is said that high values in copper and ore have been disclosed in the property on which a shaft will be put down. The stock got good support and advanced in sympathy with Keating. It sold at 31c, 30c, 32c and 34c, closing strong. Of this stock 3,000 shares changed hands.

Amazon was strong and sold at $1.12½, $1.25 and then at $1.31¼; Denn sold at $5.25 to $5.18¾; Cliff advanced from $1.18¾ to $1.25.

Amalgamated sold at $64.75 to $63.50. Calumet & Arizona at $52 to $52.50 to $52; Giroux at $6.75 to $6.56¼; Greene at $6.25; Cactus at 19c; North Butte at $29.25 to $28.50 to $28.62½; Superior & Pittsburg at $14.87½ to $14.75 to $14.87½.

Calumet & Corbin showed considerable life yesterday and it acted well today. It is reported that a contract has been let to put down a shaft on the property. The exploration has disclosed rich values in gold and copper and the management will soon begin work of active mining. The Calumet & Corbin is in the Radersburg district and is about a mile and a half from the Keating which is showing phenomenal progress. The Black Friday and the Ohio-Keating which are mining rich ore are in the same neighborhood.

The annual meetings of stockholders and directors of the Butte-Alex Scott which have been in session at Pittsburg, Pa., have been concluded. The control of the property is now held in this city. Officers elected follow: President, N. F. Hugo; vice president, W. C. Heimbach; secretary and treasurer, Thomas Furniss, all of Duluth.

THRILLERS.

Chicago News: "I'm going on a railroad journey," said the hardware man as he stepped into the book store, "and I want a rattling good story to read on the train. Something that will make a man's hair stand up straight, you understand. I don't want any of your wishy-washy problem novels, unless it's a corking good detective yarn."

"Here's a story that's having a great sale," remarked the bookseller, handing over a volume with a gorgeous cover. "It's about siege and battle in some little kingdom over in Europe."

"I reckon it's one of those near-Zenda stories, and it won't do at all," said the hardware man. "I'm tired of yarns of that sort. There's always a hawk-faced American hero, who butts in at the critical moment and defeats all the crack swordsmen of the kingdom at their own game and marries the princess and lives happy ever after.

"Honestly I'm sick of hawk-faced American heroes who do wonders with the sword. I've never seen an American c'tizen in my life who didn't look like a regular yahoo when he had a sword in his hand.

"Then these fake kingdoms are a chestnut. There are so many real kingdoms that I don't see the sense of writing up imitations. There's the material for a million novels in Portugal or Mexico or Nicaraugua, and yet our grass-fed story tellers pass up all such opportunities and invent kingdoms away on the borders of Germany or Russia. There ought to be a law against such foolishness."

"I guess you're right," agreed the bookseller. "Here's a wild west story that is highly recommended by people who have read it. It treats of the war between the sheep men and the cattle men and is highly exciting."

"Oh, that sort of stuff makes me tired," said the hardware man. "The bare mention of a cowboy leaves a bad taste in my mouth. Nearly every magazine you see has a picture of a cowboy on a bucking broncho on the cover and all the stories of that sort introduce characters who speak a dialect that never was heard in any country. Bret Harte was responsible for the silly idea that as soon as men go into a mining or cattle country the first thing they do is to organize a new dialect. The later writers simply can't break away from it.

"The cowboys all say 'thar' for 'there,' 'yuh' for 'you,' and so forth. The people in the cattle country talk just the same as the people in this state and they don't spend their time doing circus stunts on broncbos or shooting up the nearest village. I like a sensational story, but it must be true to life."

"Well, here's a historical novel of the period of Queen Elizabeth. The illustrations indicate that there's plenty of action in it."

"Oh, you can't work off any such dope as that on me," said the hardware man. "I've read about a carload of such stories and I know just how they go. The characters always are saying 'gadzooks' and 'odsfish,' and the same old marvelous swordsman looms up in the third chapter and has a fight on a stairway defending a girl who is the queen's ward. He keeps on killing people all through the book, and then in the last chapter he confesses that he is the crown prince of Belgium or Kalamazoo in disguise, and he and the girl are married by the archbishop of Canterbury, while the earl of Leicester passes around the doughnuts and ice cream. Every story of that period drags in the earl and Amy Robsart.

"And old Queen Elizabeth always throws a fit and boxes somebody's ears. You can't spring any such book on me unless you administer anaesthetics.

"I don't see a book on your shelves that's fit for a white man to read. It seems to me that literature has hit the toboggan since I was a young man. Then a man going on a journey could find a good story to read at any book store or news stand."

SONS STILL CLAIM PAIR WAS MURDERED

They Arrive Home From Allen Junction With Remains of Parents.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Newman, 2848 Thirty-eighth avenue south, has returned from Allen Junction, seventy-two miles north of Duluth, with his brothers, Charles, Nathan and Wallace, bringing the remnants of the bodies of their father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Newman, from the ruins of their cabin in which they are believed to have been murdered and the building set afire.

William Newman said the theory of murder and robbery was strengthened by the failure to find any trace of silver and gold coin to the amount of $200 and a quantity of jewelry, known to have been in the possession of his father and mother. A short distance away a sack of flour and other groceries were found, indicating that the robbers found part of their plunder too heavy to carry away. The St. Louis county authorities have been notified but have no clue.

The bodies were taken to the undertaking rooms of J. M. Gleason, 141 Ninth street south. The funeral probably will be held Saturday afternoon, with interment at Lakewood cemetery

LYCEUM—Mack-Leone Players in "God's Country."
ORPHEUM—Vaudeville.
ODEUM and LYRIC—Photoplay.

Green Room Gossip.

How much is the general public interested in life behind the scenes, in the details of the actors life and his methods of work? That is a question that managers and writers for the papers have often speculated upon, and in some instances managers have experimented with it.

During the present week, if you were permitted to drop into the Lyceum theater, cold and bare and in the process of being overhauled, you would find the members of the Mack-Leone company walking through the parts of the four one-act plays that are to be put on next Sunday, and at the same time asking Willard Mack questions about some of the "business" of "God's country."

To rehearse one play and at the same time have the lines of the play you have just learned running through your head, might seem impossible. It isn't; the Mack-Leone's do it. It is training, and that is the reason, perhaps, why the training of the stock actor is more thorough, than the member of the profession who jumps into the road company, receives.

The three Misses Weston, who are presenting a musical act at the Orpheum theater this week, are daughters of the famous old-time minstrel, Sam Weston. Sam Weston will be remembered by the theater-goers of a generation ago as a member of the team of Wood Beasley and Weston brothers. He appeared with some of the famous old-time minstrel organizations, and later went into vaudeville with two of his daughters. He died about three years ago, and the three sisters are now presenting an act themselves. The three girls are barely out of their "teens," but two of the sisters have been in vaudeville seven years, making their first appearance when they were little children.

"We are going to remain in vaudeville another season or two," said Miss Catherine, the eldest of the sisters. "And then we hope to buy a ranch in the West and move there with our mother to live. Our home at present is in New York city, but all three of us and our mother also are anxious to move to the West, and the ranch life appeals to us especially."

New bills for the last half of the week opened at the Odeum and Lyric theaters yesterday. At the Odeum the feature film is a war photoplay showing the scenes of '61 to '64, and called "The Spy." Other films are "Priscilla's Engagement Kiss" and "The Trail of the Pomos Charm," a story of Arizona life. At the Lyric the feature film is a strong dramatic story of the dangers of city life to a business man and his wife, who is lured by the social whirl. There is also a good comedy film and an interesting Western tale, and a new illustrated song, "My Broncho Maid."

Next week the Lyric patrons will see the famous films showing the lassoing of wild animals in Africa.

"Miss Nobody from Starland" drew one of the largest audiences that has crowded the Metropolitan this season and made a lasting hit with everybody," says the Grand Forks Times. "It is a real musical farce with side splitting comedy, excellent singing and superb dancing as its features while pretty girls, rich costuming and an excellent cast serve to make it one of the best mirth provoking attractions that has ever been seen here. The second act which presents the stage behind the curtain on the opening night of a new musical comedy was the big feature of the show and was so realistically done that the scene will probably be brought to mind every time one goes to the theater in the future.

"There was no real continued story to the theme but each character seemed quite as important as another and all were stars. Miss Olive Vail, however, was the favorite and her singing brought forth enthusiastic applause, especially the 'Jingaboo Man,' which was the song hit of the evening. Katherine Witchie was a charming soubrette and with Joe Niemeyer put on some of the cleverest dancing that has ever been seen in musical comedy. Miss Beaumonte was another talented member of the cast, both her singing and her dancing being splendid, and Ralph Riggs proved himself equal to any occasion. The parts of the two old love sick men were excellently done and among the musical features were the quartet and double quartet which sang with Miss Vail."

SERIOUS RIOTING OCCURS IN OPORTO

Many Persons Murdered in Religious Fight in the Streets.

Oporto, Portugal, Feb. 16.—Serious rioting occurred last night following a meeting of the Catholic association and many persons were wounded.

As the Catholics came out from their hall they were jeered by a crowd in the street. One of those insulted fired a revolver and badly wounded two Republicans. This was the signal for a general conflict. Shouting, a rapidly swelling mob marched upon and destroyed the offices of the Catholic newspaper La Parole and the headquarters of the Workmen's Catholic club.

During the clash many shots were exchanged. The police were powerless. In consequence of the rioting the civil governor of Oporto resigned today.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

DETERMINED TO PASS AGREEMENT

Extra Session Certain If Senate Fails to Pass Reciprocity Bill.

Washington, Feb. 16.—Failure of the Canadian reciprocity agreement to pass the senate will force President Taft to call an extra session of congress, as the administration is determined to pass the agreement. This declaration was made today by Senator Smoot of Utah, following a conference at the White House with the president over pending legislation. Senators Lodge and Root were present.

Senator Smoot announced that the senate would be given all opportunity to discuss the reciprocity measure and that the McCall bill would not be smothered in committee nor delayed in any way. The senator entertained the belief that once in the senate, however, the bill will meet obstructive tactics that would prevent a vote before the close of congress March 4.

Shortly after the White House conference ended Senator Burrows, ranking member of the finance committee, called at the executive mansion and was closeted with the president. On leaving the White House he announced that he would call a meeting of the committee either tomorrow or Saturday to consider the bill. He refused to venture a guess as to the length of time the measure would be held in the committee.

It is generally reported that there will be a further meeting at the White House tomorrow to discuss the legislative outlook and certain provisions of the agreement. Secretary Knox, who will return from Chicago tonight, will be present at the discussion and certain objections to the measure will be taken up.

WOULD LIE AWAKE ALL NIGHT WITH ITCHING ECZEMA

Terrible Sufferer Ever Since He Can Remember. Utterly Intolerable. Seemed Beyond Medical Power to Cure. "My Disease Was Routed by Cuticura Soap and Ointment."

"I take great pleasure in praising the wonderful Cuticura Cures. Ever since I can remember I was a terrible sufferer of eczema, and other irritating skin diseases. I would lie awake all night, and my suffering was intolerable. A scaly humor settled on my back, and being but a child, I naturally scratched it. It was a burning, itching sensation, and utterly intolerable, in fact, it was so that I could not possibly forget about it. It did not take long before it spread to my shoulders and arms, and I was almost covered with a mass of raw flesh on account of my scratching it. I was in such a condition that my hands were tied.

"A number of physicians were called, but it seemed beyond their medical power and knowledge to cure me. Having tried numerous treatments without deriving any benefit from them, I had given myself up to the mercy of my dreadful malady, but I thought I would take the Cuticura treatment as a last resort. Words cannot express my gratitude to the one who created 'The Cuticura Miracles,' as I have named them, for thank heaven there was such a miracle as the Cuticura Remedies sent to the suffering world, and now I feel as if I never suffered from even a pimple. My disease was routed by Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and I shall never cease praising the wonderful merits they contain. I will never be without them, in fact, I can almost dare any skin diseases to attack me so long as I have Cuticura Remedies in the house. I hope that this letter will give other sufferers an idea of how I suffered, and also hope that they will not pass the 'Cuticura Life Saving Station.'" (Signed) C. CLEARINGS $185,305,817

Duluth Clearing House Association Holds Its Annual Meeting.

W. G. Hegardt Succeeds A. L. Ordean as President of Association.

Bank clearings in Duluth for the year ending Feb. 10, 1911, were $185,305,817.96, according to the report submitted at the annual meeting of the Duluth Clearing House association yesterday. Although the light grain movement caused a slight decrease from the clearings of the previous year, the record for the past year compares favorably with other cities of Duluth's size, the weekly average of nearly $3,600,000 being a very satisfactory one, considering the conditions which prevailed during the year.

The clearings for the year ending in February, 1910, were $190,962,629.68, the decrease shown by this year's report being $5,656,811.72. The net decrease does not represent the total decrease through the light grain movement and the general clearings average well up to those of the previous year. The association includes in its figures only the checks which are actually presented in the clearing house.

W. G. Hegardt was elected president of the association yesterday, succeeding A. L. Ordean, who was president since the organization of the association in February, 1909. W. I. Prince was elected first vice president, succeeding Mr. Hegardt, and D. H. Williams succeeds Mr. Prince as second vice president. J. W. Lyder was re-elected secretary and treasurer and I. S. Moore was re-elected manager.

OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER

COLDER

The "stickiness" is still in the air and the slushy, slippery walks menace the pedestrian. The promised cold weather did not materialize last night, the lowest temperature being 28 deg. The air today feels like it should in the latter part of March and of the sluggishness caused by the weather, would welcome a cold snap. Somewhat colder weather is predicted for tonight.

A cold wave descended on Duluth a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 7:11 and it will set at 5:24, giving ten hours tnd twenty-three minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"During the last twenty-four hours rain or snow fell over the Rocky mountains, Eastern slopes, the Upper Mississippi, Missouri and Red River valleys in connection with the Southwestern low barometer area. This low pressure condition also caused warmer weather over the Lower Mississippi valley and Southwest. A marked increase in pressure is attended by much colder weather in Western Canada, Western Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana and Western Washington. This delayed turn to colder should reach the Head of the Lakes tonight."

General Forecasts.

Chicago, Feb. 16.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Friday:

CONCESSIONS TO CLERKS.

Employes in Railway Mail Service Given Shorter Hours.

Washington, Feb. 16.—Official notice has been given to clerks of the railway mail service that on the lines where their work is heavy continuously for six days each week, the standard of the service hours shall be considered as six hours.

Second Assistant Postmaster General Stewart, in a letter to General Superintendent Grant of the railway mail service, expressed the opinion that "a minimum daily average of six and a half hours' road duty should be required generally, but that exceptional cases should be considered upon their merits, and these are cases where a less number than this is warranted."

It is announced also by the second assistant postmaster general that credit for overtime will be given to clerks who do terminal work at either end of their runs, or extra work that requires them to remain on duty beyond the standard number of hours. With this arrangement the clerks generally have expressed themselves as satisfied.

ROOSEVELT TO VISIT HELENA

Ex-President and Former Montana Ranchman Accepts Invitation of City.

Helena, Mont., Feb. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Theodore Roosevelt, former president of the United States and former Montana ranchman, will be the guest of the people of Helena some time in April. His visit to this city will be in the nature of a home-coming, so far as the state is concerned, as many of his ideas of stories of Western life were secured in the vicinity of Wibaux, Mont., where two decades ago he mixed fortunes with the cowman and the pioneer.

Col. Roosevelt's Western trip will include but two stops in Montana, Missoula and Helena.

Mayor Frank J. Edwards has received the following letter from the former president, accepting the invitation of the Helena city council to be the city's guest.

"My Dear Mr. Mayor—Through you, I wish to thank the common council and the people of Helena for their more than kind invitation. I accept with great pleasure. I naturally have a strong and peculiar feeling for the people of Montana, and I look forward once more to seeing them and visiting their capital city, where I have spent so many pleasing days in the past. Faithfully yours,

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

WELL-TO-DO, KILLS SELF.

Prosperous Montana Ranchman Takes His Life With Rifle.

Lewistown, Mont., Feb. 16.—Yesterday morning a man driving along the East Fork road, ten miles from this city, saw the body of Brabant Doler, a well known stockman, lying at the gate of the Dolar place. He had been shot through the head and a 22-caliber rifle was still clutched in his left hand. One of the pockets was turned inside out and some silver was scattered on the ground, while there were foot prints leading out of the gate to a railway grade near by.

This gave rise to the belief that the man had been murdered, but the officers were soon convinced that it was a case of suicide. Dolar had been acting in a strange manner recently and had made remarks now construed to mean that he contemplated suicide.

Dolar was a French Canadian and had lived here thirty years. He had no relatives in the state, so far as known. His estate is estimated to be worth $50,000. He had always lived alone, but numbered among his close friends such men as Mayor Phillips and other prominent old timers.

TAKE 3 DAY CURE

FOR DRINK HABIT.

No Hypodermic Injections—No Injury to Health

Stimulants afford only temporary relief to tired nerves. When a man gets to the point where he begins to feel that he needs a bracer, before he tackles his job, he ought to regard that as a danger signal. The effect of the bracer passes away. The craving grows on what it feeds on. Depression is sure to follow. Next time the drink will be bigger; then it will take two and next three to brace up the system to the sticking point. The drink habit once acquired soon becomes the master of its victim. His friends fall from him as he goes downward. The road down hill is easy. It leads to unhappiness, to pauperism and to crime.

BUT—The habit can be cured. The poison can be eradicated from the system. Instead of a craving for liquor, a revulsion against it and a loathing for it may be set up. This has been demonstrated in the cases of over three thousand patients who have taken the Neal Treatment. The Neal Cure is not a gold cure. It does not involve hypodermic injections which leave the limbs discolored, swollen and scarred. No opiates or other powerful drugs are used. The Neal Cure is absolutely harmless and the Neal Cure is a sure cure. It never fails. It cures in just Three Days. It makes no difference whether the patient is a habitual drinker, whether his sprees are continuous or periodical, whether the habit is of long standing or whether he is merely in the first stages of alcoholism, in either case the Neal Cure eradicates the poison from the system. It sets the man who takes it on his feet. It makes him the master of the liquor habit instead of its slave. It is the greatest discovery of the age—a message of good cheer to men disheartened and to women hoping against hope for the victim whose weakness is destroying their happiness.

This Week's Sunday School Lesson

WRITTEN FOR THE HERALD BY REV. J. S. KIRTLEY, D. D.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: FEB. 19. I. Kings xviii, 41-xix, 21: Elijah's Flight and Return.

THE CONNECTION.

Elijah had accomplished his purpose, in showing that Jehovah was God and that he was God's prophet, in calling the people to repentance and new allegiance to God, and in mightily affecting the mind of the king. That work done, he takes his place as a dutiful subject of the king again, running before his chariot and showing a kindly interest in him. He thought that, as God had shown his power in the fire test and in the drouth and rain, the repentance of the people was permanent and he would be safe as a prophet of God. He failed to take proper account of the satanic power of the infuriated Jezebel and the fickle character of the people. He did not trust Jezebel and he stayed outside the walls of Jezreel. This depression is his spirits was quite remarkable.

THE LESSON.

I.

His Flight, 1-4.

"And Anab told Jezebel all that Elijah had done, and withal how he had slain all the prophets with the sword. Then Jezebel sent a messenger unto Elijah, saying, So let the gods do to me, and more also, if I make not thy life as the life of one of them by tomorrow about this time. And when he saw that, he arose, and went for his life, and came to Beersheba, which belongeth to Judah, and left his servant there. But he himself went a day's journey into the wilderness, and came and sat down under a juniper tree; and he requested for himself that he might die, and said, It is enough; now, O Jehovah, take away my life; for I am not better than my fathers."

1. FEAR.—It was a sudden relapse into unbelieving fear. He trusted God, but no one else, not even himself. He had held on to Ahab hoping thereby to protect the weak king against the domination of the fanatical queen. Ahab's report of the killing of Baal's priests waked her to unequalled frenzy. She raged and her fury swamped her judgment. She sent Elijah word of her bloody purpose. Or, was it the result of her fear of him and did she purposely give him a chance to escape? If she was so enraged she could not keep from sending him word, how could she control herself enough to postpone killing him? It does look as if she feared the hated man too much to encounter him and hoped to scare him out of the country. She had lost her 450 priests through him and had saved her 400 household prophets by keeping them at home. She could not but fear Elijah. She succeeded in alarming him to the very core. The sudden reaction from the nervous tension of the past few days, the thought that the queen was not awed by the mighty power of God and that the king and his court would at once fall under her influence again, made him afraid, now that the tests were over and there was nothing more he could do. His fear was strange after his great victory. Her message and her awful oath chilled him to the bone. He fled in panic, did not stop till he had gone through Judah and put ninety-five miles between him and her.

2. DESPAIR.—His despair was due partly to reaction from his exalted state, partly to weariness from labor and lack of food, partly to unselfishness in thinking himself unworthy of any special help from God, partly to his anxiety for God's honor and for the people's reformation, now so sorely disappointed, partly to his ignorance of the real conditions around him.

His despair showed in his search for the lonely spot, for he was a man of solitude. The servant was left behind. He lost faith in himself, not in the rightness of his moral purpose but in the success of it. He despaired of the world, despaired of the future of faith and righteousness. When he started in, he thought he would succeed better than the former prophets whom he called his fathers, for God was using him in radical ways. His patriotism and piety were wounded, not his vanity. Nor had he had those various experiences which would give him the finer forms of self control.

II.

His Recovery. 5-15.

"And he lay down and slept under a juniper tree; and, behold, an angel touched him, and said unto him, 'Arise and eat.' And he looked, and, behold, there was at his head a cake baken on the coals, and a cruse of water. And he did eat and drink, and laid him down again. And the angel of Jehovah came again the second time, and touched him, and said, 'Arise and eat, because the journey is too great for thee.' And he arose, and did eat and drink, and went in the strength of that food forty days and forty nights unto Horeb the mount of God.

"And he came thither unto a cave, and lodged there; and, behold, the word of Jehovah came to him, and he said unto him, 'What doest thou here, Elijah?' And he said, 'I have been very jealous for Jehovah, the God of hosts; for the children of Israel have forsaken thy covenant, thrown down thine altars, and slain thy prophets with the sword; and I, even I only, am left; and they seek my life, to take it away.' And he said, 'Go forth, and stand upon the mount before Jehovah.' And, behold, Jehovah passed by, and a great and strong wind rent the mountains, and brake in pieces the rocks before Jehovah; but Jehovah was not in the wind; and after the wind an earthquake; but Jehovah was not in the earthquake; and after the earthquake a fire; but Jehovah was not in the fire; and after the fire a still small voice. And it was so, when Elijah heard it, that he wrapped his face in his mantle, and went out, and stood in the entrance of the cave. And, behold, there came a voice unto him, and said, 'What doest thou here, Elijah?' And he said, 'I have been very jealous for Jehovah, the God of hosts; for the children of Israel have forsaken the covenant, thrown down thine altars, and slain thy prophets with the sword; and I, even I only, am left; and they seek my life, to take it away.' And Jehovah said unto him, 'Go, return on thy way to the wilderness of Damascus; and when thou comest, thou shalt anoint Hazael to be king over Syria; and Jehu the son of Nimshi shalt thou anoint to be king over Israel; and Elisha the son of Shaphat of Abelmeholah shalt thou anoint to be prophet in thy room.'"

We cannot but think of the marvelous tenderness of God in getting the poor fellow's spirits restored. We notice five stages in the process. First, God began with his body—gave him sleep, then food, then more sleep, then exercise, in travel down to Sinai. Next, God let him take it out and that did him good. Once more He displayed His power in the great forces of nature, the wind, the earthquake and the fire, followed by a touch on his heart with the voice of gentle stillness. That brought God near. Next, he assured him that there were many other good men in Israel. Finally He assigned him some definite work to do, work with novelty and cheer for the future —anointing two kings and his own successor.

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

Much of Elijah's strength misses proper direction because he was subject to the sharpest reaction. The recoil is inevitable when an object is sent full speed; reaction is always seen when great energy has been displayed. When stress is laid on, strain must follow. ● The man who knows when his reactions are likely to come, how to regard them when they do come, and how to rise above them in thought, has learned a most valuable lesson in life. A simple, sincere faith will overcome any reaction. Children, particularly, are subject to depressions of spirit.—J. R. Brown.

A distinguished minister, who had lost his wife, said that he had no comfort afterward till he resumed his work. Kind friends had sent him to one place and another, assuring him that change of scene would do him good; but his first consolation came to him when, like Elijah, he returned to his work, and received comfort through his ministry for others. Work is wholesome for all of us. The standing pool breeds malaria and harbors the croaking frogs. It is the running stream which purifies itself as it flows, and sings a happy song as it hurries forward to turn the wheel of the mill and do the work for which it was created.—Banks.

The program is either by English composers, or have reference to English subjects. This is in accordance with the idea of making each of the remaining concerts stand for some composer, or some nationality. The next will be Scotland, with the pipes to the fore.

The vocalist is for the first time on the program and brings splendid recommendations of his ability and standing as an interpretive singer, which his selections will enable him to show.

The organ music heads the program with a descriptive piece by Paull, "The Charge of the Light Brigade," the celebrated English cavalry regiment whose achievements in the Crimean war shed undying luster on the British forces, following which is a portion of the burlesque English light opera, the "Mikado," probably the best of the Gilbert and Sullivan productions.

The first of the second group of organ pieces is the celebrated "Lost Chord," by the English composer Sullivan, followed by three dances from "Nell Gwyn," by German, embracing a dainty country dance, a slightly more clumsy pastoral one and a rollicking merrymakers' dance. The genial, bright and tuneful overture to Nicolai's "Merry Wives of Windsor," precedes the closing number arranged by Fred Godfrey, the celebrated English military bandmaster, in which may be heard many of the old English song tunes, such as "Down Among the Dead Men," "Barbara Allen," "Sally in Our Alley," "Sir Roger de Coverly," "Poor Tom Bowling," "The Keel Row," which, although Scotch by tune, is much sung in the northern portions of England;" "The Bay of Biscay, O," "Rule, Brittannia," and others. The last concert will be given on the Sunday before Easter Sunday, completing the series of twenty-four.

ICEBOAT GOES INTO WATER HOLE

Michael Gallagher Has Narrow Escape While Sailing on Lake Ice.

While iceboating on the lake about one mile below the canal, Michael Gallagher experienced a narrow escape, the boat running into a water hole while it was traveling at such a speed that the spar was snapped off short.

His plight was discovered from shore with the aid of a pair of glasses, and assistance was rendered by Capt. McLennan of the life-saving crew and Walter Murray of the police force. They towed both the man and the boat to safety. Iceboating or skating on the lake at present is considered extremely hazardous.

FREE RINKS ARE ABANDONED

If Children Want to Skate They Must Clear Ice Surfaces.

If Duluth "kids" want to skate any more this season on the free rinks, they will have to expend some of their own energy in cleaning off the ice. Owing to the lateness of the season and the low condition of the fund allowed for this purpose, the park board officials have decided to close them officially for this season. The present warm spell has put them out of use, the surfaces resembling a slush pond. If cold weather sets in with some prospect of staying a while, it is likely that the youngsters will get busy with their shovels.

FOUNTAINS WILL BE INSTALLED

Old Drinking Cup System to Be Abolished at Courthouse.

Sanitary drinking fountains, such as are used at the Central high school, are soon to be installed at the new St. Louis county courthouse.

The Herald some time ago called the attention of the county commissioners to the fact that the old drinking cups were the one mistake in the finishing of the courthouse. They at once shut off the water and had the cups removed while they decided what system to install.

They have now decided that the fountain of gushing water is the most sanitary of the new systems in drinking fountains and yesterday men were at the courthouse taking measurements that they may give the county an estimate on what the change will cost.

The old fashioned drinking cups were the only thing that the commissioners overlooked in finishing the courthouse. Under the marble lion's heads a larger slab will be installed and the bubbling water substituted for the old tap and cup system. There will be one drinking fountain on each floor.

The roller towels now in use may also be done away with and individual or paper towels substituted. The damp roller towel is said to be very insanitary.

CENTRAL CLUB IS ALSO OPPOSED

Resolution Against Proposed Bonding of City for Electric Plant.

Following the action of the Fifth Ward Hillside Improvement club, the Central Hillside Improvement club passed a resolution last evening opposing the passage by the legislature of the enabling act whereby Duluth can issue $700,000 worth of bonds for the purchase of an electric light plant.

The speakers stated that they feared Duluth would become too heavily burdened with bonds between the water and light plant and the electric plant. At the previous meeting the club went on record as favoring the measure, but it is explained that the attendance was much smaller.

STAMPS BY THE CARLOAD

Duluth Is Made the Distributing Center for the Northwest.

The postoffice department has made the Duluth postoffice a distributing center for the entire Northwest, and three carloads of stamps, stamped envelopes and postal cards were received yesterday at the local office.

The consignment is the first of a number of shipments which will be made to the Duluth office. Instead of being supplied from the main storehouse at Washington, the small offices throughout the Northwest will apply to the Duluth office for their supplies. A barred room for the storage of the supplies is being provided in the postoffice, and several clerks will be added to the staff to attend to the distribution.

AUTONOMY OF CANADA IS SECURE, SAYS KNOX

Secretary of State Allays Fears of Canadian Annexation.

Refers to Breadth and Unselfish Nature of Reciprocal Pact.

SECRETARY P. C. KNOX.

Chicago, Feb. 16.—Though the people of the United States and Canada are "a substantially homogeneous people," with "deep moral and racial reciprocities," the benefits of the proposed commercial reciprocity with Canada "ought not to be obscured by the fear of relations too cordial and conceivably dangerous to the great Canadian loyalty to England," in the opinion of the secretary of state, Philander C. Knox, who addressed the Chicago Association of Commerce here last night.

Mr. Knox declared that while migrations proceeded as constantly and as freely between Canada and the United States as between two states of this country, and while the two peoples have been welding together for two centuries, "there is not the slightest probability that this racial and moral union will involve any political change or annexation or absorption."

"It is an ethnological fact that political units of the English-speaking people never lose their autonomy," said Secretary Knox. "Like bees, they give off their swarms, who set up for themselves independently, but they do not make political combinations among themselves. Since the revolution there has been almost undisturbed peace and amity between the two countries, and however governmental changes have been bruited in the past, it is probably more true today than ever before that the weight of sentiment and opinion, both in Canada and the United States, while desiring closer relations in all other respects, is crystallized in a belief that the present political separation is desirable and will lead to the best development of each nation and to better and more satisfactory relations between them.

"In the higher atmosphere and broader aspects of the situation it is certain that if there should be any great world movement involving this continent, Canada and the United States would, as a matter of course, act in the most perfect concert in defense of the common rights of a common blood and civilization."

Canadian Autonomy.

Declaring, however, that the reciprocity proposition was "economic, not political," Mr. Knox asserted: "The United States recognizes with satisfaction that the Dominion of Canada is a permanent North American political unit and that her autonomy is secure. The United States appreciates the advantage to the common welfare of the continent that Canada contributes by her own strength plus the strength of Great Britain."

Secretary Knox prefaced his argument allaying fears of Canadian annexation with an outline of the trade realtions between the United States and Canada up to the work of the present administration and then remarked that "for more than half a century the statesmen of Canada, of Great Britain, and of the United States have by repeated effort testified and reaffirmed an abiding and fundamental belief in the principle of American-Canadian reciprocity."

Sketching briefly the negotiations between Canada and the United States from the time of the passage of the reciprocity treaty of 1854 and its abrogation in 1866, Mr. Knox spoke of the subsequent efforts on both sides of the line to promote reciprocal trade. The Canadian pilgrimages to Washington, "the cold reception given the eminent Canadians who made those pilgrimages and the appeal to imperial and political sentiment by their opponents at home."

"Our task was, despite all this," continued Mr. Knox, "to submit to the people of the United States and to the people of Canada an opportunity to cement the commercial links which it is declared shall unite us. The agreement submitted to congress by the president is the result. It is comprehensive in principle and avoids the objection which was one cause of the abrogation of the Elgin-Maroy treaty of 1854—that is, it is not limited to one class of commodities. It is meant for the conditions of today and the conditions of the future.

To Reduce Cost of Living.

"Recognizing the condition which exists in our own country and without undertaking to define the causes which have led to the increased cost of living, the agreement seeks to give our millions of wage-earning consumers the benefit of drawing upon the surplus food supplies nearest at hand. It seeks by providing for the freest possible interchange of commodities across a political boundary which when it comes to production and commerce is an artificial boundary, to prevent those manipulations and those speculative fluctuations in prices which are harmful to the producer and to the consumer. It may be stated as an axiom that the more abundant the source of supply and the more free the movement of products the less chance there is of decreasing the legitimate profits of the producer and of increasing the cost to the consumer by artificial scarcity.

"While a reciprocity agreement limited to natural products would be beneficial, nevertheless in order that such an agreement should be really comprehensive the terms should include manufactured commodities also. This, too, is done. Rates are mutually reduced on a large variety of manufactures. The list would have been even larger had the dominion reached the stage of industrial development in which she felt that she could include a greater number of articles.

"On our part we have had in mind that while providing for the freest possible interchange of natural products we should have special regard for our great class of agricultural producers. It happens that in the sections where there are the greatest productive resources of the cereals nature has not provided forests. So we have made rough lumber free and have given the prairie states the boon which they have so long desired. Having in mind the interest of the farmer we have also made free barbed and galvanized wire fencing, and a number of iron and steel products which our Canadian friends are now manufacturing. The interest of both consumers and producers are maintained in every part of the agreement."

For the Farming Classes.

"In making a reciprocity arrangement it is proper and right that we should consider the market which our neighbor has to offer us as well as the market which we offer her. Thus, we provide that the agricultural classes of a great section of our country should have the benefit of the free admission of cotton seed oil into Canada. We also obtain the exemption from duty of all fruits and vegetables and various other agricultural products of which some sections of the country as widely separated as California and Florida have a surplus at certain seasons, while we are not unmindful of the producers of the border states who at times have large quantities of surplus products which will be benefited by free entry into the Canadian market.

"It was also just that we should give consideration to the legitimate expansion of our manufacturing industries. Some of the greatest of these industries, employing large numbers of workmen, for which the growing Canadian market offers opportunities, are located in the Middle West. We obtain very material reductions of duty on all classes of agricultural implements. We secured important concessions for the rapidly developing motor-vehicle industry. We obtain remissions of duty which will benefit numerous other industries; and thus it has happened that a genuinely reciprocal and mutually advantageous trade agreement was negotiated which fully met the broad principles laid down by the president.

Free Wheat.

"That this agreement will benefit large numbers of people in all sections of our own country will be apparent the more its terms are examined and analyzed. Nor will any class be injuriously affected by it. It has been said that in some sections the farmers will be hurt by the free admission which we offer to Canadian wheat and other cereals, but I am persuaded that the more the agreement is studied, the more the present economic conditions are analyzed, and the more the tendencies of trade in the present day are examined, the clearer it will be that the benefits are generally distributed and that no permanent injury to any producing class is to be apprehended. We must recognize the great increase in the value of the farm lands of the grain-producing sections of the country within the last few years. We have to take account of the difficulties of increasing the wheat acreage.

"In providing for free wheat we also take into account the facilities which the United States possesses for handling a part of the surplus Canadian crop and thus preventing the demoralization of prices which results through the dumping of large quantities upon the European markets, where the world's price is fixed. The free admission of grain from Canada thus meets the present situation and provides against future contingencies when the Canadian surplus becomes greater by placing the control in the hands of our own grain growers. They have no cause to fear a demoralizing influx under the conditions which will result from the reciprocity agreement.

"The principal complaints against the measure come from the politicians who have been endeavoring to persuade the farmer that his interest in the protective tariff is based on the tariffs on agricultural products rather than upon the general prosperity of the country, or they are heard from some local special interest.

Broad and Unselfish.

"It is significant how little is said about who got the best of the bargain. The general observation is one of gratification that the arrangement is beneficial to both countries. The breadth and unselfish nature of the agreement has surprised and gladdened the friends of good relations between the countries and disconcerted those upon both sides of the line who expected a horse-trader's bargain.

"A generous measure of reciprocity between Canada and the United States is but a natural expression of their interdependence. Efforts to restrain, hamper, and interfere with its realization will be as futile and unprofitable as were the early ruinous trade wars between the states. The narrow statesmanship of that period was expressed in measures to hamper and restrict, if not to destroy, the commerce of neighboring states, but happily proved impotent to do more than temporarily delay the existing absolute commercial freedom which exist between our own states to the common benefit of them all.

"The argument against reciprocity with Canada now is just the same argument Governor Clinton used against reciprocity between New York and New Jersey; just the same argument that might have been and probably was advanced against extending the normal development of the resources of our territory across the continent. This argument is for a policy so economically and morally unsound that the thirteen original states, impelled by the desire to kill it root and branch, urged its baleful effects upon their peace and prosperity as the original reason for forming the more perfect union of the states which now exists under the Constitution they adopted.

"So that the reasons for reciprocity are very real and striking, and ought to lift the consideration of the result of the recent negotiations to a high plane and large-minded comprehension of the greater reasons and motives of human and national relations and rise above the mere balancing of trade advantages."

Mr. Hill Speaks.

James J. Hill also spoke on the reciprocity pact. The agreement is an example of constructive statesmanship, contrasting to many matters before congress, according to Mr. Hill.

"It is fashioned to large national ends," he said, "and inspired by a policy the greatest minds of the country have approved.

"The price of any commodity of which a country produces a surplus for export is fixed in the market where it must be sold. The demand of the whole world for wheat meets the supply of the world in the Liverpool market. This Liverpool quotation regulates wheat prices in all the markets of the world. It is cabled daily to New York, Chicago, Minneapolis, Duluth, Winnipeg and the other primary markets of wheat-exporting countries. The price in each of them varies daily with the Liverpool advice. It is therefore impossible that this price should be affected by the trade relation of any two of the countries to each other.

Why Prices Differ.

"But what, say some well-meaning and ill-informed people, about the difference in price? Is not wheat regularly from 5 to 10 cents higher in Minneapolis than in Winnipeg? Is there not a corresponding difference in the prices of barley? Do we not owe this advantage to the tariff? If that is taken off, will not the market be flooded with Canadian wheat, and the Minneapolis or Chicago price be reduced to the Winnipeg level? Official figures prove that this will not happen.

"These variations in the local market are not due to the tariff, or to any general cause, but to a larger local demand, created by great milling or brewing centers. They exist between different markets in the United States. They affect adjoining states exactly as they affect the United States and Canada.

"Our mills need wheat from Canada. For this reason it is probable that the price of Canadian wheat would advance under reciprocity. It is certain that the price of American wheat could not decline appreciably. The case of barley is exactly the same. If Canadian barley would flood the American market and reduce the American price, why does not the barley of Kansas and Nebraska, distant only a few hours' travel by rail, drive the barley of Missouri down to the same price?"

committee, removing this constitutional stumbling block to adequate legislation for the conservation and development of the state's resources.

The committee recommended for passage the bill by Senator D. M. Gunn of Grand Rapids, repealing the law which requires purchasers of state land to make certain improvements within five years. State Auditor S. G. Iverson appeared before the committee in support of the bill.

The law proposed to be repealed was introduced in the house in the session of 1905 by A. L. Cole, then a representative from Cass county and later a defeated candidate for governor. It was intended to keep the state lands out of the hands of speculators and to put them into the hands of bonafide settlers. One law, limiting the number of acres that any individual can buy to 320, remains unrepealed by Senator Gunn's bill. The law that is to be repealed if the Gunn bill becomes law requires that within five years after the purchase the buyer of state lands must do one of the following things: First—Fence 25 per cent of the land for pasture and convert it into pasture land. Second—Cultivate at least 5 per cent of the land. Third—Build a house and live on the land at least twelve months.

While these requirements seem wholesome, it is claimed that their effect is to militate against sales of state land and to divert business that the state ought to be doing to private land dealers, who make no such requirements and who, in addition, let the buyer take the timber on the land, which the state withholds.

To Safeguard Forests.

The house committee on forestry put in all of yesterday afternoon considering the state forestry board's proposed bill to safeguard the forests by providing forest rangers and patrolmen such as the federal government provides for its timbered lands.

Members of the forestry board appeared before the committee in behalf of the bill, including Z. D. Scott of Duluth and H. Oldenburg of Carlton. G. E. Marshall, supervisor of the Cass Lake federal forest reserve, and F. S. Cheney, acting director of the Minnesota state college of forestry, also addressed the committee, approving the bill and making practical suggestions for the state's attempt to take care of its remaining timber wealth.

Showing the need of a forest patrol, Z. D. Scott of Duluth said that the fires which burned timber owned by the Oliver Mining company last July, causing a loss of $500,000 were burning for weeks before the real damage was done, and that they could have been put out and the property saved by half a dozen men.

Representative N. S. Hillman of Two Harbors, a member of the committee, took exception to the provisions that impose punishment on employes who cause damage while working under the direction of their employers. He said that the employers alone should be held responsible, and that if this is done they could be trusted to look out for the acts of their employes. An employe, he said, could not refuse to obey orders, even though they might involve violation of such a law, without quitting their jobs.

This and other details of the bill will be considered later by the committee. Another meeting will be held this afternoon, at which a sub-committee will probably be appointed by Chairman T. M. Ferguson of Barker to go over the bill thoroughly and incorporate in it such suggestions as may be made by members of the committee.

The bill proposes an entirely new system of safeguarding the forests and the settlers and communities within the forest areas. The state forestry board is given real powers, which it hasn't now. It is to have full charge of the work; it is to recommend to the governor the man whom the governor is to make state forester, and it is to report to the state auditor on illegal cutting or trespassing upon state timber.

The State Forester's Duties.

The state forester is to be a technically trained forester, certified as such by the secretary of the department of agriculture. He is to receive $5,000 a year and necessary expenses, and he is to appoint such office assistants as the board may deem necessary at salaries to be fixed by the board. The state forester is to have direct charge of all forestry work, and is to direct the management of the Bruntside forest reserve, Pillsbury forest reserve, Itasca state park and such other forest reserves as may be established. He is to have charge of forest fire protection, is to investigate the origin of all forest fires, to prosecute all violators of this act, to prepare maps of the timbered areas, to inquire into the character of such lands, and to co-operate with other state officers and departments and with local officers in all matters pertaining to forestry and forest fire prevention.

The board, upon the recommendation of the state forester, is to report an assistant state forester at $3,000 and expenses, who shall work under the direction of the forester and take his place during disability or absence. A secretary of the board at $2,500 is provided for.

The state forester is to divide the state into not more than twenty-five patrol districts, covering the timbered area, including not only public but private forest lands. There are to be district rangers at $100 a month, to be transferred from one fire patrol district to another as the state forester directs. In the employment of these rangers, preference is to be given to timber cruisers, expert woodsmen, game wardens and forestry students who are known for reliability and efficiency. Under the direction of the state forester, the district rangers are charged with preventing and extinguishing forest fires in their respective districts, and the performance of such other duties as the forester may require. Among their duties will be the building of trails, fire lines, posting notices, warning municipal officers, railroad companies and settlers, and enforcing the law. They are authorized to arrest without warrant anybody caught violating the law.

Each district ranger is to divide his district into fire patrol districts, and sub-divide them if necessary. In times of drouth or danger from fire, he is to employ fire patrolmen to patrol such territory as may be assigned to them. The patrolmen are given the power to summon citizens to their aid, and a fine is provided for those who refuse to respond. All the field officials of the forestry service, from the forester down to the patrolmen, are vested with the power of game wardens, and it is made their duty to report violations of the game laws.

Elaborate rules and regulations are provided in addition to those already stated. The state forester is given the power to order railroad companies to provide for patrolmen to follow each train during dry weather. It is also made the duty of the railroads to patrol their rights of way after the passage of each train during dry weather, in order to prevent fires. The state forester is given authority over the burning of slashings. Strict rules are provided, with proper punishment, for those who are negligent or criminal in handling fires in the forest regions.

Villages and cities in the forest regions are directed to clear away fire-breaks around the communities. There must be at least two fire-breaks not less than ten feet in width, at least twenty rods apart, between which back fires may be set. Town supervisors, constables and clerks of towns, mayors of cities and presidents of village councils are made fire wardens in their respective districts.

To carry out the provisions of the fact $50,000 is appropriated for the current fiscal year, and $150,000 a year thereafter.

Dunn's Good Roads Bills.

Representative R. C. Dunn appeared before the senate committee on roads and bridges yesterday afternoon to explain and advocate the good roads bills which the house has passed. One proposes a constitutional amendment authorizing a 1-mill state tax for roads, and the other provides for a system of administering the road fund, in the meantime increasing the state road tax from one-twentieth of a mill to a quarter of a mill.

With one or two exceptions, the members of the senate committee seemed favorable to the bills, though no action was taken.

A delegation from Akeley appeared yesterday afternoon before the house committee on agricultural schools to present that community's claims for a branch school of agriculture, similar to that which is now located at Crookston. Those who appeared before the committee were C. F. Scheers, M. J. Woolley, B. L. Mathiesen, C. R. Flink, George McIvor, G. L. Brown, E. R. Bell and Frederick Kleinegger, all of Akeley. No action was taken by the committee.

Bills are now before the legislature asking for such schools at the following places: Akeley, Duluth, Waseca, Olivia, Mapleton, Rochester, Fairmont and Heron Lake.

Besides these, the village of Pipestone will shortly get into the game with a proposition very similar to that which got Morris a state agricultural school four years ago. As at Morris, there is at Pipestone a government Indian school, with property said to be worth $200,000, including a dozen or more stone buildings and a section of land. The government is about to close the Indian school, which now has about 100 pupils, and it is said that it is willing to turn the plant over to the state if it will use it as an agricultural school. This is exactly the situation on which Representative Lewis C Spooner based his successful campaign for an agricultural school at Morris.

Assessment by County Assessors.

The house committee on taxes and tax laws yesterday afternoon voted to introduce as a committee bill the measure advocated by the state tax commission providing for a system of assessment by county assessor instead of the old system of assessment by local assessors. The tax commission urged this bill two years ago, but it was defeated largely, it is said, through the influence of town and village assessors.

The committee also recommended for passage Representative Kneeland's bill, also recommended by the tax commission, providing for a new inheritance tax law with rates graduated not only according to amount but according to the degree of relationship.

Two measures relating to the taxation of credits were referred to a sub-committee consisting of Representatives Fowler, C. E. Stone and MacKenzie. One, by Representative Davis, provides that the property-owner may, at his option, list his income from credits and have it taxed at 5 per cent in lieu of listing his credits for taxation in the usual manner. The other, by A. J. Peterson, provides for a nominal tax of 3 mills on credits in lieu of all credits.

The pending bills increasing the gross earnings tax on railroads from 4 per cent to 5 per cent will be taken up for hearing before the committee a week from tomorrow afternoon.

Senator C. S. Marden's bill prohibiting public drinking cups in this state will go before the senate this afternoon. Last week the senate committee on public health and pure food voted to recommend the bill for indefinate postponement, but yesterday afternoon Senator Marden appeared before the committee and made such a good case for his bill that a majority of the committee voted to recommend it to pass.

Game and Fish Laws.

Bass fishing on Memorial day will be no longer legal in Minnesota if a bill which the house in committee of the whole yesterday advanced to the calendar becomes a law. The bass season now opens May 29, so that fishing may begin on Decoration day. The bill before the house provided that the season shouldn't open till June 15, but an amendment was adopted making it begin June 1, after which the house advanced the bill to the calendar.

Another change in the game laws approved by the house in committee of the whole requires non-residents to take out licenses at $1 each before they can fish in Minnesota waters. Still another change provides that when fish are shipped as now permitted by law, the packages must be labeled so as to show what kind of fish is within, and how many of each.

While hunters are permitted to kill two deer in a season by the law as it stands at present, only one deer and one moose are allowed according to the provisions of another game and fish bill which the house yesterday advanced to the calendar.

Senator James P. Boyle and Representatives C. T. Knapp and John Healy, the Iron range members of the legislature, have received such a flood of letters relating to county division that it is a physical impossibility to answer them. They have joined, therefore, in issuing the following statement to those who have written them:

"We desire, through the medium of the press, to acknowledge receipt of many letters relative to county division. They are so numerous that it is a physical impossibility to answer them and keep pace with our other duties. While we regret our inability to answer all of these letters personally and directly, we wish to take this opportunity to state that all of the letters will be given the consideration their importance deserves.

"JAMES P. BOYLE,
"C. T. KNAPP,
"JOHN J. HEALY."

While this statement does not say so, the fact is that practically all of the letters received were against the pending county division bill.

P. H. McGarry of Walker, a member of the last house, was visiting the legislature yesterday. His appearance reminded old members of his fight two years ago for the bill providing for a new normal school at Cass Lake. Assisted only by his colleague, Representative Ferguson of Carlton county, he pushed the bill through the house in one of the historic fights of the legislature. A great majority of the house doubted the need of the new normal school, and the passage of the bill was a high tribute to Mr. McGarry's persistence and personal popularity. Senator D. M. Gunn got the bill through the senate, but Governor Johnson vetoed it.

When The Herald stated that the tonnage tax bill was introduced merely as a back-fire against reapportionment, it was no "idle dream," as events are proving. Yesterday two of the authors of the bill, Representatives Frankson and J. N. Johnson, fought to delay the special order on the reapportionment bill, and later in the day the other joint author of the tonnage tax measure, Representative Moriarity, joined with Representative Frankson and others in a bill proposing a constitutional amendment prohibiting any of the large counties from having more than four out of the sixty-three members of the senate.

Patrick Gerron Fatally Hurt When Log Rolls Upon Him.

Marquette, Mich., Feb. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—An effort is being made to learn the wishes of the relatives of Patrick Gerron relative to the disposition of his body. He died in a local hospital last night as the result of injuries received in the Hebard lumber camp, near Pequaming a few days ago when a log rolled on him. He was brought to the hospital Saturday afternoon and was found to be seriously injured internally. He was 28 years of age and his nearest relatives reside in Canada.

PASSED AT LAST.

Bill Creating National Forest Reserves in East, Through Senate.

Washington, Feb. 16.—After many years of delay, the bill looking to the creation of national forest reserves in the White mountains and the Southern Appalachians passed the senate late yesterday, the vote standing 57 to 9.

The negative vote was cast by Senators Bristow, Burton, Clark of Wyoming, Cullom, Gronna and McCumber, Republicans, and Senators Davis, Paynter and Shiveley, Democrats.

The bill passed the house of representatives last session, and as it was accepted by the senate without change, it lacks only the signature of the president to elevate it into a statute.

Owes Health and Happiness

to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Scottville, Mich.—"I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me. I live on a farm and have worked very hard. I am forty-five years old, and am the mother of thirteen children. Many people think it strange that I am not broken down with hard work and the care of my family, but I tell them of my good friend, your Vegetable Compound, and that there will be no backache and dragging pains for them if they will take it as I have. I am scarcely ever without it in the house.

"I will say also that I think there is no better medicine to be found for young girls to build them up, regulate, and make them well. My eldest daughter has taken the Compound for painful, irregular periods, and it has always helped her.

"I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for the Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies. I tell every one I meet that I owe my health and happiness to these wonderful medicines."—Mrs. J. G. Johnson, Scottville, Mich., R. F. D. 3.

When shown such positive and reliable proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound really does cure such cases wouldn't any sensible woman conclude that the same remedy would also benefit her if suffering the same?

MORE GENUINE AND CONVINCING PROOF:

Elwood, Ind.—"I was sick three months and could not walk. I suffered all the time. I tried doctors, and they said I could not get well without an operation. I could hardly stand the pain, but my right side was the worse. I couldn't sleep at night, and I was troubled with a weakness.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me. I began to feel better when I had taken only one bottle, but I kept on until I was cured."—Mrs. Sadie Mullen, 2728 N. B. Street, Elwood, Ind.

What more proof can any one ask?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

WHO'S WHERE?

There are indications that the vote on the McCall reciprocity bill in the senate is to be quite as interesting to study as the one in the house. There will be the same drawing of lines between the sheep and goats—the same show down that will prove who are the real progressives and who are progressives for politics' sake. It looks mighty different to a man whether the thing for which he is shouting himself hoarse is a more or less distant and abstract proposition or whether it is an immediate issue on which he must cast his vote.

Disappointing as that fact is to his admirers, Senator Cummins, regarded throughout the country as a progressive of the progressives, is among those who are in the uncertain light just at present. It was expected that his speech in New York would furnish some ringing material for the advocates of reciprocity. Instead it gave only some hesitant phrases about the possible value of the agreement with Canada, and included some pretty extensive demands as to amendments of the agreement. It was a poor speech, viewed from the standpoint of those who expected Cummins to take as firm a stand for piecemeal revision of the tariff now as he has taken in times past. With the McCall bill coming to a vote in the senate the Iowan will get no chance to hedge. The country soon will find out his true position on the questions he has been so ready to discuss heretofore.

It is impossible to consider the reciprocity question just at this time without reference to Champ Clark's injudicious speech in the house Tuesday. The question of annexation (there really is no such question, but for argument's sake let us grant that there is) has no bearing whatever on the reciprocity agreement. This is not the age of conquest, and if the United States wanted ever so badly to annex Canada, she could do absolutely nothing to that end unless Canada wanted annexation quite as badly as the United States did, and unless England was willing to let go of one of her most valuable possessions.

Advocates in Canada of the reciprocity agreement say that Clark has given the opponents of the agreement their only argument against it. That his words will get plenty of attention on that side cannot be doubted. The fact that they were spoken jestingly will be ignored by those who want to use them politically, and thousands never will know or realize that he was only having some fun out of the situation. It is to be hoped that the earnest statement by President Taft that no political union entered into the minds of the framers of the agreement will overcome the unfortunate utterances of the Missourian.

At any rate, knowledge of the effect in Ottawa of Champ Clark's speech gives a fresh line on the actions of the men in the United States senate. Knowing how the sentiments he expressed were received across the border, it is plain that no real friend of reciprocity will raise that same bugaboo in the senate, however impassioned or jocular a member may become in his advocacy of ratification of the agreement. Knowing, too, that the agreement as presented with the McCall bill was framed by the joint efforts of men from both sides of the international boundary line, no senator who has the mutual ratification of the agreement really at heart will imperil such action by seeking to change the terms.

In fact, the course open to the senators with regard to the reciprocity agreement is exceptionally well marked. It is a case of take it or leave it; vote in accordance with the demands of the people of the country, or defy the voters. The action of the members of the house was an interesting showing of hands. The action of the senators will be equally interesting.

And by the way, if you haven't personally instructed Senators Nelson and Clapp to vote for ratification, you had better do it right away. Remember it will take only 2 cents and four minutes.

SEX HYGIENE IN THE SCHOOLS.

Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard university, has once more stirred the educational world. But this time it is with no theory of a five-foot bookshelf, but with a question that has been sidestepped altogether too long by a prudery that has contributed innumerable volumes to the history of individual and social disgrace and suffering. In brief, he advocates the teaching of sex hygiene in the public schools. He made that theme the feature in his address the other day before the American School Hygiene Association of New York. Coramenting on the occasion, the Survey says that "this body of educators and physicians has left off discussing whether or not sex hygiene should be taught, and addressed itself to the method of teaching. This is perhaps no less significant of the times than the fact that the subject was presented by an ex-president of Harvard university in such a way as to attract the attention of the whole school world."

Dr. Eliot recognized only two objections to such teaching. The first he found in the common theory that it is an unclean subject about which the old practices of mystery and silence should be continued. The utter failure of those practices he declared to be the best answer to that objection. The second he named as the belief that such instruction should be given in the home, not in the schools. This he met by the declaration that "the great majority of parents do not now possess the necessary knowledge or the faculty of expression" to give such instruction, and he asked further what is to be done in cases where there is no father or mother.

He pointed out that in connection with school courses in botany and zoology there is the best possible opportunity to teach the entire subject of reproduction of species in a manner that will be both inoffensive and beautiful. To quote him directly:

> These subjects, if properly taught with collecting box, scalpel, microscope and paper and pencil, are just as pure and innocent for children under 13 as chemistry or physics are. There is nothing sensual or unclean about them, nothing which does not tell of order, purpose, adaptation, co-operation, and achievement. Through much of the botanical instruction and more of the zoology runs the thought that the transmission of life requires two individuals of different quality. Children should be made thoroughly acquainted with this principle before any sex emotions begin to stir in them.

Dr. Eliot has struck at the very root of one of the most serious conditions in the social life of the nation and of every community in the nation—ignorance of things about which every boy and girl must know sooner or later, but which a vast majority learn only through distorted, evil interpretations of half-truths and with minds prejudiced or to some degree unbalanced by repeated encounters with the foolish policy of mystery and silence. Which is better—for your child to learn one of nature's most beautiful truths from the lips of somebody who can teach it properly, or to learn it from the whispered words, mysterious giggles and uninformed ignorance of a playmate or chance acquaintance? It seems as if Dr. Eliot answered every objection when he said:

> Does any one protest that this educational process will abolish innocence in young manhood and womanhood and make matter of common talk the tenderest and most intimate concerns in human life, let him consider that virtue, not innocence, is manifestly God's object and end for humanity, and that the only alternative for education in sex hygiene is the prolongation of the present awful wrongs and woes in the very vitals of civilization.

If anybody questions the wisdom of Dr. Eliot's proposal he should talk with some physician about the sufferings and illness that result from the ignorance born of prudery and false secrecy and from making mysterious one of the greatest truths of nature. He should remember that correct knowledge is a safeguard of health and virtue, and that thousands of instances of disgrace and suffering originate in the fact that the sufferers "did not know" because they were the victims of one of the most inexcusable systems that ever cursed any race of beings.

OREGON AND ITS WIFE-BEATERS.

Those Oregonians are an independent lot. When Governor West vetoed the bill repealing the law that provided for the punishment of wife beaters at the whipping post, the legislature turned right around and passed the repealing act over the governor's veto. "The whipping post is a barbaric institution," the lawmakers said. "Wife beating is just as barbaric as the whipping post and ought to be punished by the barbarous method," was the governor's retort. But the legislature had the last say, and the whipping post is to go.

Lest the spirit of strife be stirred afresh, let us say that both the governor and the legislators were right in their designations of practice and punishment as barbarisms. To punish a man by public whipping not only hurts his back, but lowers his self respect. On the other hand, no man with any self respect beats his wife, and the beating hurts the wife's back or shoulders or head as the case may be.

Take it by and large, it looks like a knotty problem. Not very long ago a Northern Minnesota judge advocated the whipping post as a punishment for wife beaters. He was moved to that advocacy by the same kind of conditons that led to its establishment in Oregon in the first place. He said that wife beating had become so common as a custom or practice or pastime or something in his jurisdiction, that he believed the only way to educate the devotees away from that kind of sport was to give them public lickings, put them through a sort of compulsory education, you see, based on the theory of similia similibus curantur, or as our friend the mikado put it, "make the punishment fit the crime, the punishment fit the crime."

Now The Herald would not for the world advocate a return to barbarism. Minnesota is civilized, in spite of the weird animal stories that sometimes originate within her borders, and in spite of the long standing of the need of reapportionment of legislative representatives. But when you come to think of it, the whipping post cured the Oregon wife beaters, and maybe Minnesota's excessive users of the same exercise would be benefited by a bit of barbarizing or barbering or whatever you prefer to call it.

WELCOME TO THE TEACHERS.

Duluth extends the glad hand to the Northeastern Minnesota Educational association. It is to the care of the teachers that the parents of the whole country entrust a large part of the training of the children. It is to the care and ability of the teachers that every rising generation must look for its instruction not only in the things that will enable the pupils to make their way in the world after leaving school, but, to a degree that too often is not recognized, in the things that control formation and development of character. It is a privilege to be able to meet with men and women who occupy so important a relation to the common welfare of state and people.

But while we recognize the value of the teachers' work and the burdens they assume, we must remember that after all they are men and women, and not mere machines. They have individual likes and dislikes. They get tired, sometimes. They like recreation, and they profit by it as much as do those engaged in any other occupation or profession. And they like to know that their work is appreciated. When there are complaints the teachers hear them soon enough. But when all goes along smoothly, though that fact may be due to the efforts and ability of the teachers, who ever takes the trouble to tell them of the good work they are doing?

The teachers are with us for a few days. They will be pretty busy during a good deal of that time, studying methods and comparing ways of doing their work—in short, perfecting themselves as teachers. But there will be some chances for them to meet other people, too, and chances for those other people to show that they appreciate the work the teachers are doing. So when you meet one of these visitors and have a chance to exchange a few words, show your appreciation and you will be helping materially in the performance of duties that often take on much of the character of drudgery. This does not mean that you should indulge in inordinate flattery. It means simply that you treat the teachers as human beings, with hopes and feelings the same as everybody else. Maybe what you say will help to tide over the next "spell of blues" for somebody. If it does, it will have been particularly well worth saying.

Once more, here's a hearty welcome to the teachers. May they have a good time while they are with us, and get something that will be of help to them in their future work.

Four score and seven years ago the Monroe doctrine was declared as the policy of the United States.

WHAT IS LUCK?

By SAVOYARD.

Is there a divinity that shapes our ends, rough-hew them as we will? Is everything connected with our lives fixed and determined from our births? There is authority for it, sacred and profane—the Apostle Paul and the poet Shakespeare. On the other hand, is there an element in our lives known as luck, chance, fortune, casualty? Are we subject to the whim of accident? Napoleon the Great implicitly believed in luck. He saw in Marshal Suchet a much more capable lieutenant than Marshal Murat, whom he characterized as "a brilliant ass," but the mighty Corsican thought Suchet unlucky and never afforded him opportunities which his conspicuous abilities justified.

If luck plays a decisive part, of what does luck consist? Is it the child of genius? Is it the handmaid of will? Is it the companion of daring? Is it any of these? Possibly it is all of them, and possibly it is the foreordination of God from the foundation of our world. All we know is that we do not know.

It is related that in our war with Mexico a party of American soldiers, abut a score in number, on a foraging expedition were captured by the enemy, who denied them civilized treatment, but tried them by drumhead proceeding, condemned one of them to immediate and ignominious death, and the others to cruel imprisonment. The victim destined to be hanged was to be selected by lot. Among the prisoners was a young Kentuckian—Wake Holman his name. The requisite number of beans—nineteen white and one black—were placed in a receptacle and the prisoners drawn up in a circle around the fatal box. Holman was the second man to draw, and he got a white bean. Among the rest was a youth, yet in his teens, who had shown in battle that he was daring and intrepid, but now horror was on his countenance, and death painted in every lineament. Pity took hold on Holman, and springing to the side of the young fellow, he dragged him out of the circle, drew again in his stead, and lo, again he got a white bean, which he passed to the boy thus saved! Another, who drew later, was the victim, and he was executed on the spot.

What was that? Was it luck, the whim of chance? Or was it fate, the decree of an immutable law? Is a man immortal till the work appointed him to do is finished? The question is as insoluble as that which pestered the patriarch of old: "If a man die, shall he live again?"

In '49, in a large and busy mining camp at Coloma, Cal., a stranger with pick, shovel and saw entered a canvas tent that served for tavern and asked for breakfast, which was refused him by the proprietor unless the price was forthcoming. Not possessed of the wherewith, the moneyless man leaped into an abandoned claim some yards away that had been worked diligently for weeks by him who had staked it off, and without one cent's return. But this stranger had not dealt a dozen strokes with his pick ere he unearthed a large nugget which he sold for $600.

Was that luck? Was it will? Was it daring? Or was it foreordination established by Him

"That doth the ravens feed,
Yea, providently caters for the sparrow?"

Perhaps it is in the interesting memoirs of John Cam Hobhouse—or is it in the delightful recollections of Lady Dorothy Nevill?—that is related the story of a poor devel of a Grubstreeter, living on the crumbs that fell from the publisher's table. One day he bought a lottery ticket for a guinea, and ere the drawing he was without a penny and very hungry. Strolling in the park, he saw his publisher, and offered him the ticket for half price. The trade was made, and the ticket drew the capital prize—some thousands sterling. What was that? Was it luck? Or was it the execution of a decree of heaven, sealed from the foundation of the world?

It is written: "Jacob have I loved, but Esau have I hated." But Jacob had cheated Esau. Again it is written: "Hath not the potter power over the clay of the same lump to make one vessel unto honor and another unto dishonor?" Then we hear from St. Paul of vessels of wrath fitted to destruction. We hear of Dives and Lazarus, of peer and peasant, of wise and simple, of saint and sinner.

Thackeray was a thorough believer in luck. "Catherine" is not only an exact picture of the England of Queen Anne and William of Orange, but it is a most delightful narrative. Here is a passage:

"Think of your disappointments and your successes. Has your striving influenced one or the other? A fit indigestion puts itself between you and honors and reputation, an apple plops on your nose and makes you a world's wonder and glory; a fit of poverty makes a rascal of you, who were and are still an honest man; clubs trumps, or six lucky mains at dice, make an honest man for life of you, who ever were, will be and are a rascal. Who sends the illness? Who causes the apple to fall? Who deprives you of your worldly goods? Or who shuffles the cards and brings trumps, honor, virtue and prosperity back again?

TALKS WITH THE STATE PRESS

Mr. Haskell's Special Aptitude.

New Ulm Review: Having retired at least temporarily from politics in Oklahoma, Governor Haskell will now have more time to devote to the practice of defendant in lawsuits.

There is a widespread conviction that he can do that better than anything else. But that conviction hasn't been saddled onto Haskell, by the courts or by any one else.

Mr. Root and the Rent.

Little Falls Herald: Senator Root pays $24,000 a year for his New York flat of twenty-two rooms. He doesn't save the rent out of his salary, evidently.

Undoubtedly the rent is paid out of Mr. Root's salary. Senator Root's salary will serve for car fare, perhaps.

Correcting a Misapprehension.

Bemidji Pioneer: Of course Venus is inhabited by intelligent beings. Cupid lives there.

Intelligent? Why, he's the most undiscriminating brute in the universe. Ask any school boy of 16.

What That Y Stands For.

Deer River News: And nobody has it out of the lieutenant governor yet, what the "Y" in his name stands for.

"Yap," according to some politicians of more than local fame, or notoriety, in Minnesota; "Yentleman," according to some who know him well and read his paper every week. Although shaped like a wedge, it has been incompetent to penetrate the shell of silence with which the lieutenant governor has encased the horrid truth.

Problem Not Solved.

Eveleth Star: Warships are becoming obsolete so fast that it seems a fleet on moving picture films is about the only safe and sane investment left in that line.

But by the time the films were put on view the public would be clamoring for "something new and up-to-date."

Not Alone in That.

Anoka Herald: Robert La Follette is mighty anxious to become the next president of the United States.

And a whole lot of other folks are a mighty sight more anxious for him to become president.

Pipes of Different Kinds.

Walker Pilot: This talk of spending two or three years coloring up a meerschaum before it is fit to smoke, is more or less of a pipe dream.

Perhaps, but you can pipe a lot of geeks doing just that and believing just that.

Working of Law of Compensation?

Mankato Free Press: An evangelist remarked that this world is not "fool proof." Were it so, many men who are now living by their wits would have to go to work.

They probably figure that there's no use of going to work until the fool killer gets through with his allotted task. Then they'd better look out.

Helping Hand Society Notice.

Carlton Vidette: Five cents instead of 50 is the royalty now proposed by the senate to be paid by the Guggenheims for Alaska coal. Some day the the "Guggies" will probably be paid for "developing the resources of Alaska."

With a senate constituted as the present one is, such a proposal probably would not encounter serious opposition.

Princeton's Spry Octogenarian.

Princeton, Minn., Union: Monday was N. M. Smith's 87th birthday anniversary and a spry old man he is for his age—the microbe of senility has dealt very kindly with him. He told us on Monday that he never felt better in his life, but he admitted that he could not walk as many miles in a day as he could sixty years ago. At that time he could pace off fifty miles and feel no ill effects from it. "Milt," as he is familiarly known, possesses a remarkably strong constitution and bids fair to live until he is 100 years old.

High Cost of Dying.

New York Herald: Rivalry between undertakers has begun again in New Jersey, and the high cost of dying has been materially lessened.

A Genuine Testimonial.

Milwaukee Sentinel: A Pittsburg man sought to cure insomnia by drinking carbolic acid. He succeeded.

A LUMBERJACK'S PLAINT.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I see an account in your paper recently where some of the lumber men were complaining of being short of help, which I think is only a bait to get more men to come into the woods so they can keep cutting the wages as they have been doing ever since the first of the year. Some campanies hire them in the fall at $40 or $45 per month, providing the men stay all winter, and if they don't stay they get paid off at a dollar a day, and if one stays they cut the wages from $5 to $15 per month, even though they agree to pay them straight wages till spring, so you see the lumberjack gets skinned no matter what he does. But that is the justice a working man gets. Thanking you for your sensible and broadminded articles on your editorial page, yours truly,

BERNARD LERCH.

PARK POINTER POINTS POINTEDLY AT CAR LINE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

When is a snow plow not a snow plow, unless it is a rotary snow plow, which it is not?

If you could, without weeping, gaze upon the futile efforts of Mr. Johnson and his army of two shovelers, attacking the pile of wet, sticky snow, you would have something on most of us 'uns who, unfortunately in the winter, and fortunately in the summer, live down on Duluth's watering resort, Park Point.

In your mind's fitful fancy, can you see two inches of snow, a mantle of purity so befitting its accepted environment, lightly lying on the Interstate Traction company's wrong-of-way, said snow stampeded by sudden gusts of windy wind from the frozen bosom of the "largest body of fresh water in the world" piling to the tremendous pile of at least three feet in some places? Ah, but listen:

"Get out the plow," commands Mr. Johnson, and the plow is got out. Then a dinky car that no one is afraid of, hunches up behind the so-called, alleged, understood-to-be, not-believed-to-be snow plow; there is a sizzling sound under the dinky's wheels and the so-and-so snow plow dashes to the fray.

"Up and at' em!" encouragingly calls Johnson to his brave crew, and the snow plow dashes at the first snow pile, because it cannot dash around it, said snow pile being on the same track.

Then, suddenly, indeed one might say instanter, there is a grand finale—with the what-you-may-call-it snow plow furnishing the defeat and the snow lying still, white, without a wrinkle on its placid surface.

"Splosh!" That's the plow's only word, and it is disgust incarnate.

"Zzzzz—zzzz—z z z!" That's the car wheels beating it around on one spot.

"Busted!" That's the comment of the brave motorman.

"Ding, ding, ding!" That's the bell telling the motorman to "Go ahead." To which the motorman says—but that don't matter.

"The shovel for ours!" says the conductor of the dinky.

Mr. Johnson comes up, resolution marked strongly in every feature.

"To the shovel, men!" he cries, and at the time when yours truly started for the tail end of the Point, the dinky was alert with lights burning brightly, the thing-a-ma-rig snow plow was snubbing around in three feet of snow, and Mr. Johnson and his gallant crew were shoveling once overy so often.

All the above could have been told in twenty words, but the writer is a stickler for truthful detail where history is concerned.

Obviously, what we need and what the Interstate Traction people should supply, is an up-to-the-minute rotary plow, one that would go through the light or heavy drifts of snow on the Point, and go through in time to permit the company to deliver the goods—which means, get us home and to work.

Folks take a chance in going to the Point for the winter, but they should be assured of transportation at all times, barring really impossible weather, and they will do the rest.

Up to date no one has seen any conductor fail to collect the full fare for a ride from Fourteenth street on.

There is no reason why the Point, which is Duluth's most beautiful residence section in summer, and one of the most gloriously beautiful scenic districts about Duluth in winter, could not be treated just as if human beings lived there, instead of making the residents "pay the penalty" for daring to live there.

ABOUT THE LEGISLATURE.

It Surely Ought To Be.

Mankato Free Press: Seems as if reapportionment ought to be accomplished without the necessity of an extra session.

Whooping Her Up.

Fairmont Sentinel: If the legislature doesn't reapportion (and it probably will not) and if Governor Eberhart keeps his promise to call an extra session (and he probably will) there will be more fun than a box of monkeys. Let the galled jades go to it!

Trying Hard Not to Believe It.

Two Harbors Journal News: Both the Republican and Democratic state conventions last year went on record strongly as favoring reapportionment. Now, according to all reports, if reapportionment is secured at all it will be because cetrain members from the southern counties are forced to vote for the right. And yet, some of us are persistent enough to believe that all politicians are not liars.

And It Probably Will Be.

Walker Pilot: We are of the opinion that the bill in the legislature abolishing Sunday baseball, ought to be fanned out as soon as it comes up.

Tired of the Old Jokes.

Sandstone Tribune: We are likely to have an amendment to our election laws allowing railway men and traveling men to vote wherever they may be on election day. The purpose seems only fair if the working can be securely guarded to prevent fraud. But we don't want that hoary joke about voting "early and late" to become an acknowledged fact.

Not a Bit Anarchistic.

Gilbert Herald: If public officials prove derelict in their conduct of the peoples business, shouldn't the people their masters, have the right to remove them from office—that is what is meant by the recall. Nothing very anarchistic about those doctrines, is there?

Hanging Sometimes Too Good.

Ortonville Herald-Star: A bill will probably come before the legislature to abolish capital punishment, and as there is considerable sentiment against it, it is likely to pass. In some cases hanging is too good.

Up to the Lawyer Solons.

Red Lake Falls Gazette: With so many lawyers in the legislature, the grand stand play of passing laws that the court won't stand for ought to be made easy—or energy properly directed might put a stop to the practice.

Referred to the Herald-Star.

Bemidji Pioneer: With senators from the southern districts acting up as they are, it is no time to think about doing away with capital punishment.

And This Is the Seventh.

Northfield News: If the legislature was as prompt to do other business as it is to pass the legislative expense appropriation the session need scarcely last six weeks.

Their Interests Are Mutual.

Ada Index: Northern Minnesota has nothing to gain and much to lose in cutting down the representation of the cities in the legislature. The three cities are directly interested in the welfare and development of this section and they can always be depended on for fair play.

Would Help a Whole Lot.

Aurora News: If the state legislature will pass the initiative, referendum and recall we will forgive many other oversights, omissions and false steps. The people should have a more direct say in their government.

Oldest Civic Regalia.

Pall Mall Gazette: The crystal mace with which the lord mayor of London has just claimed the right to be present at the coronation will be by far the most ancient piece of regalia in evidence at that historic ceremony. It dates from the Saxon times, as the workmanship of its cyrstal and gold shaft with jeweled head declares. From the time before the Normans this mace, which is barely eighteen inches long, has symbolized sovereignty over the city, when the lord mayor was still known as the portreeve, and London was an independent state. It is the oldest piece of civic regalia in the world, and it is seen only at the induction of the lord mayor on Nov. 8 and at the coronation of the sovereign.

"And 10 to 1?"

The bookmaker explained that this might mean fil.

"Yes, now I understand," she said; "but what would happen if I put a sovereign on exactly at 1 o'clock?"

London Onlooker: They had had a good day on the moors, and the conversation after dinner turned naturally on bags and shooting in general and particular.

"What, sir!" exclaimed George Washington H, "do you think I'd perjure my soul for one bird?"

Argonaut: A letter came from the clothing firm saying that the cloth that had been sent them was full of moths. Was the wholesale house taken aback? Not it. By return post went a missive to this effect:

HEARD AND SEEN IN HOTEL LOBBIES AND ELSEWHERE

Comedy of the Three Slices of Roast Beef, the Chef and the Traveling Man—Freaks of Frigidity in the Silent Places of the North—Why He Couldn't Eat the Soup—An Attorney Who Roasted Himself—Futile Pursuit of a Missing Suit Case.

IF YOU were chef in a busy restaurant, and thoroughly imbued with the spirit of loyalty to the management of which you might happen to be a part, how would you like to be taken from your pots and ranges and hustled to the police station via the big vag truck, there to waste more than two hours of the busiest and most profitable part of the day?

That's what happened to Senor Don Sul Liban, which is not quite his name.

A. I. Braun, a commercial traveler, lunched yesterday at the restaurant over which the senor presides. He ordered a slice of roast beef. When it came he said it wasn't thick enough to suit him. He sent it back, and the next offering met with the same criticism, so a third was served and he ate it with gusto and relish. When he looked at the check he made what is technically known as a holler. The check indicated he was being charged for all three slices, although only one of them had remained on the table more than a moment and he had not attempted to eat the other two.

Senor chef appeared upon the scene of a wordy war at the cashier's desk and intimated that the primal instinct of self-preservation should induce Mr. Braun to pay the amount the check called for, to which the latter gentleman replied that the chef could go to the police, which he did.

It being the noon hour, the official Solomons were not on the bridge of the ship of state, which is a sufficiently mixed metaphor, so the disputants dawdled about, waiting and wrangling. Just before 2 o'clock Walter F. Dacey, municipal prosecuting attorney, showed up and the case was put up to him.

Braun paid for one slice of beef.

"UP in Winnipeg there's a chap who's telling around that he has found more freaks of frigidity than any other man extant," said Osmund Ewald at the Lenox last evening.

"His limit is reached when he tells about finding a Northwest mounted policeman frozen stiff on the prairie, the horse going at a gallop at the time the freeze happened. He said that he never before saw anything that reminded him so much of the Logan statue on the lake front in Chicago."

"What did he do when he found the horse and man frozen?"

"He told me he built bonfires all around the natural statue and kept them going until man and moun twere thawed out enough to be on their way. My friend's reputation for truth and veracity has suffered some mutilation since he began to tell that story, however."

"Everybody knows that in the Far North it sometimes gets so cold that men's remarks freeze as soon as they are uttered and fail to reach their goal," put in a hitherto silent member of the group, "but very few people know that most of the criminals who seek refuge in the great while waste are tracked down by the mounted police by means of the lingual trail they thus leave. But that's teh case. Of course, the officers sometimes make mistakes and track parties who are innocent of any offending, while the real criminals silently push their way to the North, but ordinarily the nature of the remarks they thaw out by fire, when the sun fails to do it for them, suffices to identify the trail-makers.

"I have heard of one case that was especially peculiar. Two men were fugitives. One was extremely tall and another absurdly short in stature. But their voices were practically identical. So like were they that when sun or fire thawed out the remarks, the pursuers were unable to tell which came from the tall and which the short man. This was an important consideration, for the two fugitives separated and one was wanted more than the other. Luckily, the snow crust had hardened just before they took separate routes, and it was possible to tell then which was the trail of the tall and which was that of the short man.

"How? Well, you see, the remarks of the tall man had quite a distance to drop after they came from his lips. When the officer came along and thawed out the sentences, he quickly realized the difference between the two. The short man's sentences ran along just as before, but the tall man's talk was in broken English.

"It had so much farther to fall, you know."

"WHAT'S the use of lining up the glasses so carefully and evenly when you begin right away to spoil the effect by taking glasses away, making the line uneven and ragged?" asked a patron.

"This glassware is precious stuff," answered the head bar man. "We just installed a complete new equipment of bar glass, $800 worth, 1,500 pieces, and if we just dumped it onto the back bar in any sort of fashion the $800 worth wouldn't last long. Besides, it looks good, doesn't it, to have the glasses neatly arranged? They are not put there merely for show, though. It's the most convenient way to handle them.

"Breakage loss is not so great as might be imagined. It is very seldom that a glass is broken here in the Spalding at any of the cafe tables, although accidents will happen. Most of the breakage is traced to service. Waiters pile glass on glass until their own weight breaks them.

"This new lot of glassware, for instance, when unpacked contained only a dozen broken glasses, and only one glass was broken during the unpacking. As there were 1,500 pieces, that's not so bad.

"Because of the value of the goods, it was necessary for me to do all the work of unpacking myself. I took the glasses out of the straw, cleaned them and placed them in position on the back-bar. The job took about fifteen hours of solid work. Now I'm tired."

HE DIDN'T seem to be a bit grouchy as he sat at a table in a Superior street restaurant after giving his order to the pretty young miss, but when she came with his soup he looked at it and then at her, as she moved away toward the kitchen. She returned to him, an inquiring look in her eyes.

"I can't eat this soup," he said, his tone not plaintive but casual.

The waitress looked sharply at the soup, then carried it away. In a moment she returned with another bowl of soup and awaited his pleasure.

"I can't eat this soup," he said, after a pause.

Again she carried the bowl to the kitchen and again returned with another.

(Same pause business.)

"I can't eat this soup," said the man, in the same quiet, casual way.

This time the girl actually snatched the bowl from the table and marched in high disdain to the manager, to whom she spoke rapidly and with vehemence.

"What's all this?" growled the manager to the patron. "You say you can't eat that soup. Now I want to know why you can't."

"Because," quietly and with a sigh and a deprecating gesture, "I have no spoon."

ATTORNEY R. J. POWELL of Minneapolis was arguing a case before Judge Morris in the federal court several days ago under difficulties, which were atmospheric. The courtroom was hot. It was a warm day and the heating system is a good one, designed more to create heat than to moderate it.

The judge was uncomfortably warm, attorneys perspired, and there seemed to be a spirit of restlessness pervading the room.

"It's hot, your honor, I realize," said Mr. Powell, "and perhaps I am in a way responsible for it. Before I entered the practice of law I was in business as a contractor, installing heating systems. The one in this building is the last that I put in."

This confession didn't lower the temperature of the room, but it seemed to have a beneficial effect on those who were in the room.

"I SEE that Chicago has put the ban on big buildings," said H. L. Towey of New York city at the Spalding today. "That sort of thing may go in 'Chi,' but not in little old New York. When I left that burg three weeks ago Manhattanites were interested in the construction of what will be the tallest building in Gotham. The Woolworth building at Broadway, Barclay street and Park Place will be 750 feet high, the tower rising ninety-two feet above the Metropolitan, now the tallest in existence. Besides the great height, the building will go down into the earth a distance equal to nine stories of an ordinary building.

"The people seemed to be most interested in the sinking of the steel caissons which are being sunk from 106 to 116 feet beneath the surface or eighty feet below the water level, so that the building may have an anchorage. Each caisson weighs 1,500 tons and has a diameter of 16.6 feet. The caissons are being put down by the New York Foundation company, which has done considerable work on the Mesaba iron range.

"New Yorkers do not have much of an opportunity to watch a 'sand hog' at work and every nearby building or place of vantage always holds a gallery of spectators."

"MR. HINE, I must catch that 6:15 train, and my suit case is in the check room, but I have no check for it," said a traveling man guest at the Spalding. "I distinctly remember giving the suit case to the porter when I came in this morning, and he took it to the check room for me, but I was in such haste to keep an appointment that I failed to get a check."

The guest was directed to the check room to identify his luggage, but he failed to find it there. He had not much time to spare and became excited, so highly excited that it was necessary to send a bell boy through the hotel with a pass key to look into every room in the hotel for that suit case, as it was possible another guest had carried it from the check room by mistake.

The case was not found, and the search was continued, with unvarying lack of success, and Mr. Traveler missed his train.

About 10 o'clock in the evening he stood in the rotunda, idly thumbing his vest pocket, when suddenly he was galvanized into purposeful animation. He thrust his fingers into the pocket and brought forth a check. He looked at it, with a crestfallen air, and then humbly carried it to the desk.

It was a Union depot check.

"But I've been punished enough in missing my train," he pleaded, and everybody seemed to agree with him.

of the register of deeds shall be placed on a salary basis, caused a good deal of debate in the senate. The bill provides that the register of deeds shall be paid a salary ranging from $1,200 per year to $3,700, according to the assessed valuation of the county in which he is elected. This bill, if it become a law, is going to make a change in many of the offices in the state, and there was a difference of opinion as to the justice of the measure. By some it is called a "salary grab bill," and by others it is contended that it will cut down the pay in some instances until there will not be a living wage in the office of the register of deeds. The bill was finally passed by a vote of 26 to 9.

Primary Election Date.

There was much discussion of the bill proposing to change the date for holding the primary election, there being a difference of opinion as to whether changing the date until the latter part of July would make it easier for the rural voter to get to the polls or not. Allen of Emmons county opposed the change on the ground that there would be no chance to get out the vote and other senators contended that the present date was fully as much of a hardship on the farmers, if they desired to exercise their right of franchise. Duis, Democrat, stated that for his part he would like to see the primary election held in August or September, as then the Republicans who had put up a good, hard fight in the primaries would not have time to heal the sore spots before the general election, and victory would be more easy for the Democrats. The bill was finally referred back to the committee on election and privileges, and will be reported out again in the course of a few days.

The Banking Commission Bill.

Further complications threaten the banking commission bill, fathered in the senate by Mr. McDowell of La Moure, and in view of the new opposition that has arisen to a certain feature of the proposed measure, amendments will be proposed to the bill doing away with the creation of a separate banking department by retaining the present system and leaving the banks and public offices under the direction of a single commissioner or examiner.

Opposition to the creation of the new department of banking must be laid to politics, as a number of the prominent Republican leaders have expressed their disapproval of the commissioner feature of the bill in view of the fact that it would create another office to be filled by Governor Burke. The commissioner of banks is made, by the bill, the appointive officer of the banking board, but rather than endanger the passage of the measure those principally interested in its passage have expressed their intention to advocate such amendments as will do away with these objections.

These amendments would result in retaining the commissioner of banks and public examiner in one office.

Indications at the capitol point strongly to no action by the judiciary committee of the senate on the question of calling a constitutional convention. The sub-committee appointed from that body, of which Senator Gilbert is the chairman, does not appear to be intensely enthusiastic over the idea, and Chairman Gilbert has clearly expressed his own views on the subject. The Constitution, he says, is held dear by a great portion of the people of the state, and any attempt to tamper with it, especially by the calling of a constitutional convention, would not be looked upon with favor by them. The Prohibition forces would be particularly opposed to the plan as they would contend that it opened the way to the abolishment of prohibition in the state, if such a thing was possible.

An amendment to the city commission law by which the recall would be provided, has received the approval of the house committee on elections and privileges. In fact, that committee is so ardent in its support of the measure that it has added an emergency clause to the bill that will make it effective immediately upon passage. The bill originated in the senate and has already passed that body.

an intention by Russia to bring pressure to bear upon China because of alleged violations of the Russo-Chinese treaty. That the situation was acute, however, has been denied both by the Chinese foreign board and the Russian legation at Pekin.

It has been admitted that there were differences in the interpretations of the international agreement as made at St. Petersburg and at Pekin. The treaty adopted in 1881 expires this month and it has been reported that China was unwilling to renew it at least not until certain modifications had been made. The exchanges have been closely guarded by both powers, and at that stage the negotiations have reached was not indicated yesterday when the St. Petersburg Gazette announced that an important conference had been held at the war ministry to consider "China's persisting flouting of treaty stipulations."

The province of Ili to which Russian troops will be sent lies in the northern part of the Chinese empire. By a provision of the Russo-Chinese treaty of 1881 the western portion of Ili is incorporated with Russia in order to serve as a place of establishment for the inhabitants of Russia, who having adopted Russian dependence, had to abandon the lands which they possess there. On the question of free trade in Mongolia article 12 of the treaty says, in part:

"Russian subjects are authorized to carry on as in the past trade free of duties in Mongolia subject to China in places where there is a Chinese administration and also in those where there is none. Russian subjects will equally enjoy the right of carrying on trade free of duty in the towns and other localities of the provinces of Ili, of Tarbagatal, of Kass Gar, of Urumtsi and others situated on the slopes north and south of the Chain of the Tied-Shan as far as the Great Wall. This immunity will be abrogated when the development of the trade necessitates the establishment of a customs tariff conformable to an understanding to be come to by the two governments."

On the subject of extra territoriality, Article 11 says:

"All the affairs which may rise on Chinese territory on the subject of commerical or other transactions between those under the jurisdiction of the two states will be examined and regulated by a common agreement, by the consuls and the Chinese authorities."

Article 10 on the subject of consulates provides that Russian government may establish consuls of Kobdo and other specified points "in proportion to the development of commerce and after an understanding with the Chinese government."

The treaty of 1881 provided for the re-establishment of the Chinese government in the province of Ili, which had been occupied by the Russian armies since 1871.

Interest in the Russo-Chinese situation will have to do chiefly with the attitude of the other powers, though Russia's understanding with Japan and the other powers would appear to have paved the way for any coercive measure contemplated against China.

"We do not feel that the failure to storm Juarez is a set-back. Rabago and Navarro advanced to the relief of Juarez from Casas Grandes and Guerrero, both important strategic points which they had to abandon. Chihuahua is now garrisoned by only 750 federal troops and between Juarez and Chihuahua the country is in our possession.

"What do we care how many men the government coops up in Juarez? They do us no harm there and what we want is to spread the revolution. The more the country is left open to us the quicker progress we shall make. When we solidify our forces, it will be an easy matter to starve Juarez out. It is cut off from the south already."

Gustave Madero made the unqualified statement that many federal officers suspected of sympathy with the insurrectos have been executed secretly at Mexico City but that so strict has been the censorship no word hinting either at disloyalty in the army or at discipline by the government has been permitted to leak out to the newspapers.

jury. Mr. Linard went aboard ship to confer with Dr. Fausto Davila and Dr. Alberto Membreno, representatives of the Bonilla government in Honduras, who were passengers for Puerto Cortez and a bench warrant was issued for his arrest.

Mr. Linard explained that he had no intention of departing from the country after the summons and was permitted to return to his hotel without bond on the promise that he would appear before the grand jury Friday. Capt. Charles Johnson, master of the Hornet, was subpoenaed to testify, as were several other members of the crew.

The detention of Mr. Linard caused considerable surprise because it had been announced that he was going to Puerto Cortez at the request of Gen. Manuel Bonilla to participate in the peace negotiations. It is said that Mr. Linard left New Orleans on the Hornet and was with Gen. Bonilla at Ruatan, where the first landing of the revolutionary forces was made. Mr. Linard returned to New Orleans several weeks ago with fourteen members of the Hornet crew.

He says he has not been connected with the government service since his resignation as consul at Celba a year ago.

BUREAU OF STATISTICS SAID TO HAVE ISSUED MISLEADING REPORTS

bureau, stating that while employed in the bureau instructions were issued in regard to the export of manufactures which would tend to mislead the manufacturers of the United States and that the proof could be shown by referring to Schedule "E" of the bureau in which raw materials are described as "wholly or partly manufactured," and which made a tremendous difference in the declared exports of manufactures wholly.

Mr. Lowe said export merchants wanted to know where all the exports noted by the bureau of statistics were going. Steamship companies, he added, were withdrawing vessels from their service and the issuance of charters to ships had fallen off considerably.

Mr. Austin denied the accusation, asserting that the full summaries of the bureau gave accurate and detailed information, but added that he would issue a statement in reply.

Charles M. Pepper of the state department, who represented the United States in the Canadian reciprocity negotiations, spoke briefly of the advantage of the Panama canal to the merchants of the United States. Julius G. Lay, United States consul general at Rio de Janeiro, told of the railroad development in Brazil and the commercial progress of the country.

Senor Alberto Yoacham, charge d'affaires of Chili, discussed the possibilities for American merchants in Chili and the advancement made in recent years in commercial intercourse with the United States.

lights and the guard of honor. It was dressed in the rich vestments of the office of archbishop, including the mitre.

The services began with the chanting of the divine office. The antiphonarians who performed this office included Cardinal Gibbons, clad in the scarlet of the sacred college and surrounded by his assistants.

Procession Formed.

With the end of the service, the officiating clergymen retired to the sacristy where the procession for the pontifical mass of requiem was formed. First came the cathedral altar boys, then the seminarians from the Overbrook seminary, then the priests, bishops and archbishops. Last came the officers of the mass, including Cardinal Gibbons, who presided, and Bishop Prendergast, auxiliary of the archdiocese, who was the celebrant. With them walked Mgr. Falconio, the papal delegate to the United States, representing the pope, and Archbishop Glennon of St. Louis, who preached the funeral sermon.

There were thrones for the papal delegate, cardinal and archbishop. The throne of the dead archbishop remained vacant.

Beautiful and Solemn.

When the dignitaries had reached there places the scene was beautiful as well as solemn. The mellow lights of the candles, the rich vestments of the high churchmen, and the more subdued raiment of the other clergy made a picture of splendor.

Bishop Prendergast was assisted as celebrant by Mgr. Turner, vice chancellor of the archdiocese. During the offertory of the mass there was singing by three priests of the archdiocese famous for their voices. Following the reading of the gospel at 11 o'clock, Archbishop Glennon ascended the pulpit and delivered the funeral sermon. It was an eloquent tribute to Archbishop Ryan as priest and man and brought tears to the eyes of many of the assemblage.

It is estimated that nearly 100,000 persons saw the unusual and solemn procession as it wended its way slowly around the Logan square. Seven hundred and fifty policemen kept perfect order.

The beautiful conch casket containing the body was sealed in a leaden case before it was entombed and while this last ceremony was being performed the "Benedictus" was chanted by the seminarians together with the clergy.

tution that is bound up with the state's welfare, and I can pledge you that all associated with it will be vividly aware of what they owe the state and what is due the state in return."

Dr. Vincent's speech was finely instinct with the sense of the common cause and interdependence of humanity, and with the appreciation of the force of co-operation, idealism and loyalty.

Ex-Governor Lind made a plea for the university, with particular reference to the proposed men's building. He said that it was plain that the legislature approved the board's choice of a president, and he hoped that it would have equal confidence in its other recommendations. It is not enough, he said, that the university should create culture and economic efficiency, for these are as nothing without the sense of humanity that comes of social intercourse.

Power to Make Rates.

Senator Duxbury introduced in the senate a bill giving the state railroad and warehouse commission broad powers in the making of rates, making it the board's duty to investigate all rates and classifications on its own initiative, and to make new rates wherever justice demands. This measure is proposed because of the Otis decision that the laws do not make clear the board's power to exert such functions.

COUGHING BURST BLOOD VESSEL

Says Danger Avoided and Cures Coughs in 5 Hours.

A writer for the medical press states that coughing is responsible for the bursting of blood vessels quite frequently. A cough or cold means inflammation (fever) and congestion, and these in turn indicate that the body is full of poisons and waste matter. Simple relief as found in patent cough medicines, and a whiskey, often result in more harm than good; as they cause more congestion. A tonic-laxative cough syrup will work marvels, and here follows a prescription which is becoming famous for its prompt relief and thorough cures. It rids the system of the cause, except it be consumption. Don't wait for consumption to grasp its victims, but begin this treatment which cures some in five hours. Mix in a bottle one-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Take twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times a day.. Give children less according to age.

WHY SHE DIDN'T CRY.

The Designer: "It wasn't much fun," says Annette P. McCrea, one of the most successful women architects in the United States, when speaking of her early struggles. "I left the youngsters with a housekeeper and they had a cheerful way of writing me every day that they were lonely and miserable.

"I used to sit up half the night answering their letters, writing in bleak, cheerless hotel rooms—I had no money for luxuries. The craving to be with the children was a thousand times harder than the work. Sometimes, when I could not bear it any longer, I dragged them around with me.

"No part of it was easy. For every step forward in my work I had a thousand disappointments. I remember one day I went to a man's office expecting to land a good contract I failed; somebody else had landed it. When I walked out onto the street I thought I'd die if I couldn't cry. But there was not any place to cry, so I didn't."

WINTER DIVERSIONS IN KANSAS.

Kansas City Journal: Western Kansas farmers are finding profitable pastime in burning the several and sundry kinds of bugs which infest their summer crops.

It was always thought that the straw stacks and rubbish heaps furnished the winter quarters for the little pests, but investigation has developed the fact that the bugs hold forth in native clump forming grasses, and these clumps are being burned to good advantage.

Middle Aged Women With Youthful Looks

(From the French Beauty Monthly.)

"There is no reason why the passing of every year should leave a mark on a woman's face. If there were a good reason for premature wrinkles and age discoloration of the skin, all women would be similarly affected.

"There are many women of forty who look not more than twenty; there are many women in the twenties who look as if they were in the forties. A little care and attention will keep off wrinkles, dark or yellow spots and other blemishes of the complexion for many years.

"Women who have been most successful in retaining their youthful appearance do not resort to paints, powders or other cosmetics. A simple yet effective complexion beautifier is made by dissolving an original package of mayatone in 8 ounces of witch hazel. Massage the face, neck and arms daily with this lotion and the skin will be fresh, fair, smooth and velvety. Wrinkles, wild hairs, patches and other blemishes can be prevented by the use of mayotone and witch hazel."

LEAVES WITH A FORTUNE

Duluth's Most Notorious Woman Acquired $200,000 Here From Vice.

Her Property Sold for Business Purposes---Going to Paris.

With about $200,000, gained directly and indirectly from vice in Duluth, Mary La Flohic, better known as Madame Gain, the most notorious "madame" the St. Croix avenue "red light" district knew in its checkered career, will leave within the next two or three months for her old home in France, there to spend her declining days on the tainted product of the traffic in which she was engaged for years.

Deeds were filed with the register of deeds yesterday conveying from the madame to the Alecsi Real Estate company all the property formerly owned by her in Duluth. She said aver the telephone today that as soon as she can she will sell her Superior property, and then with the proceeds will leave for France. The madame has been living in Superior for about a year, to escape arrest on an indictment charging her with keeping an immoral house.

The consideration for the Duluth property was $135,000 cash. The Lincoln hotel on First street, between Third and Fourth avenues west, brought $85,000. A property at 111 East Superior street, was sold for $31,000. A lot in West Duluth brought $500 and $38,000 was paid for two pieces of property on St. Croix avenue, in the "red light" district.

Sale Is Significant.

The latter sale is significant. The men composing the Alecsi Real Estate company have not been disclosed, but it is known that they are substantial business men, who are opposed to the use of the property for immoral purposes. The purchase is the first made with a view to wiping out the district of vice and turning the property over to legitimate uses. Not moral considerations, but the belief that property on St. Croix avenue, which is valuable for wholesale and railroad purposes, should no longer be given over to the uses of the demimonde, is said to have operated toward the passing of Madame Gain's property into the hands of people who will frown on the practices which have been allowed in the district in the past.

No "madame," who operated in the St. Croix avenue district in the history Madame Gain. Her record is ninety-of Duluth has had more notoriety and more clashes with the authorities than seven arrests in nine years. When the district was closed up during the Haven administration, she transferred herself to the Clifton hotel, now the Lincoln, which she acquired and fitted up as a hotel. She did not escape clashes with the police there, for numerous arrests were made and the woman herself was haled into court no numerous occasions to answer for alleged violations of the law.

She returned to one of her houses on the point and there she clashed with the police several times, the culmination coming with the indictment, from which she fled to Superior. She has lived at 1017 Ogden avenue in that city for about a year.

Although the questionable business in which she was located here made her a wealthy woman, Madame Gain has no warm spot in her heart for Duluth.

"Can't Fight Police."

"I am through with it all," she said over the telephone today. "The police hounded me for years, but they could not drive me out of town until they got an indictment against me. Then I wouldn't have left if my attorney had not advised me to do so. I was willing to stay and fight them, but what was the use One woman can't fight the police department and the courts.

"Why didn't they indict any of the other landladies? the madame screamed over the telephone. "Why did they send stool-pigeons to my hotel and then to my house on St. Croix avenue time after time? I wasn't guilty of the charge they cooked up against me on the indictment. I was living in my house all alone and I wasn't breaking the law. It was my house and I had a right to live in it."

"You aren't quitting the country poor, are you?" she was asked.

"Well, I've got a few cents, even if I did pay a lot of fines over there" she replied. "No thanks to anybody but myself, though. I saved my money, invested it and made it earn more. They didn't want a smart woman in Duluth, so they drove me out."

Madame Gain came to Duluth in 1900. She came here from Chicago and had formerly been engaged in the same traffic in other cities. She was notorious in other cities, it is said, for her flagrant flaunting of vice and disregard of police restrictions and the number of times she appeared in court here indicates that the stories of her reputation were not overdrawn.

Her name first appeared in the court records here May 31, 1901, when she paid a fine for conducting an immoral house. During the years that followed she appeared in court regularly to pay the fine of $100 which was imposed monthly under the old regulations under which the St. Croix avenue district was allowed to be operated. She was involved in civil litigation several times, but it was not until the district was closed Jan. 1, 1909, that she leaped into the limelight of notoriety.

Almost every week she was in court. Her first arrest was Jan. 25, 1909, when she was discharged after a trial on a charge of keeping an immoral house. She was convicted of the same charge March 31 and April 19 of that year, paying $105 on each occasion. She then transformed her residence to the Clifton hotel, announcing that she was through with the district below the "dead line." The Clifton acquired an unenviable reputation through a number of arrests made there and the madame's residence and she afterwards returned to one of her houses in the district. She owned two at the time the district was closed.

More litigation followed and her last appearance in municipal court was Feb. 13, 1910, when she again paid a fine of $100. When the indictment followed the madame got wind of it and decamped.

NO DANGER OF SPRING FLOOD

No Records Broken for Heavy Snowfall This Winter.

Fears of many Duluth people that great property havoc will be wrought by the melting of the snow now on the ground appear to be rather groundless.

Many statements have been made that this is the greatest amount of snow which has been on the ground in this vicinity for years, but the records at the weather office show this conclusion to be wrong. At the present time there are approximately twenty inches of snow, melting at a fairly rapid rate during the day. The two previous years there was comparatively little snow, but in 1907 the records show that between Feb. 2 and Feb. 8 there were thirty inches of snow on the ground, while in March of 1904 the ground was covered with thirty-one inches of snow. The usual spring floods will likely be experienced, unless the snow melts very gradually, but they will not be any worse, and likely not as bad, as some others which Duluth has gone through in recent springs.

YOUNG HOODLUMS GROWING BOLD

Snowball Containing a Stone Tears Hat of Street Car Passenger.

John D. Mahon of the Omaha railway is wearing a derby hat with a hole in the crown today and incidentally he is loking for the tough youth who tore his headgear with a snowball containing a rock.

Mr. Mahon was standing in the vestibule of a Third avenue west street car last night and at about Thirty-first avenue west as the car passed a gang of hoodlums who were throwing snowballs at every movable object, he received a biff on the head that gave him a start. A stone fell to the floor and the railroad man's hat sailed off into space. The conductor stopped the car and accompanied the owner of the hat back to where it lay in the snow, the two searching in vain for the young rowdies who were throwing the snowballs. Mr. Mahon says if the missile had struck him a few inches lower he would probably be in the hospital today. Numerous complaints have been made in the last few days of boys old enough to know better, snowballing street cars and the street car company is anxious to bring some of the offenders into court.

MOHAWK MINER KILLED, COMPANION IS INJURED.

Calumet, Mich., Feb. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Carl Waisenen, aged 20, was killed early yesterday at the Mohawk mine by a fall of ground. At the inquest a verdict of accidental death was returned. Waisenen had no relatives in this country as far as can be ascertained.

Another miner was seriously hurt at the time Waisenen met his death, but beyond the fact that his injuries are likely to prove fatal, nothing else can be learned of the man, owing to poor telephonic communication with Mohawk.

Isadora Duncan Is Returning to America

ISADORA DUNCAN.

Isadora Duncan is coming back to dance for us. She is coming from Paris, where she has been basking in the admiration of all the artistic and literary communities. They take Isadora much more seriously than we do in America. In Germany, as well, she is regarded as a great artist. Painters vie with one another in their desire to put her features on canvas. Henri La Vaden goes into ecstacies over her grace and charm. Isadora was not a great success in her own country until she appeared in combination with Walter Damrosch and his symphony orchestra. This combination crowded the Metropolitan opera house again and again. This year Isadora is to give us a pedal interpretation of some of Wagner's music.

NAMED AFTER DULUTH MAN

The W. C. Agnew Will Be Seen in Duluth This Year.

W. C. Agnew of this city has the honor of having a large and modern steamship named after him.

The W. C. Agnew, launched at Lorain, Ohio, the day before yesterday, is named in honor of the Duluth mining man. The big vessel is 560 feet in length and is of fifty-four feet beam, being of all steel construction and one of the most modern boats on the Great Lakes.

The W. C. Agnew will take the place of the F. H. Goodyear, the big boat that was lost on Lake Huron last season. It is owned by the John Mitchell Navigation company and will be sailed by Capt. Charles Galton, who last season was the captain of the Kennedy.

The vessel cost in the neighborhood of $400,000 and is under the sailing orders of the Helm agency of this city.

NOT COMPETITOR OF THE BUREAU

Western Traffic Association Will Work With Duluth Traffic Commission.

William G. Patton, special representative of the Western Freight Traffic association, with offices at Merriam Park, Minn., adjacent to the Minnesota Transfer, has given to several of the jobbers of this city and to the members of the Duluth traffic bureau a statement of why the Western Freight Traffic association is coming to this city in search of business.

Briefly Mr. Patton states that the securing of customers in this city will help the Duluth traffic bureau to secure many of the things that it is after at the present time. Mr. Patten further states that the firms in the Twin Cities that are members of the two traffic associations of the Twin Cities are also members, in many instances, of the Western Freight Traffic association, as the latter association has helped in many instances where the other associations' work did not apply.

"I want the shippers to have the right idea of us," said Mr. Patton. "If they only knew it, we would help the members of the Duluth Traffic association. We have never secured a firm as a customer where we have not worked with the traffic manager of that firm. We have helped him and enlarged the scope of his work instead of reducing his duties and interfering with him in any way.

"The object of the Western Freight Traffic association is to secure the best and cheapest rates on any commodity on application of the firm that hires us; to give the best route for the shipment of goods; to examine the classification of all commodities submitted to us by our customers; to give the best effort possible to secure a reduced or proper classification on any commodity, upon request or petition, to audit and present for payment all overcharges on freight expenses; to adjust and collect damage claims, and in general to keep the firm that hires us acquainted with the latest rates and ruling and fully protecting their interests at all times."

APPEAL TO PRESIDENT.

Anti-Saloon League Objects to Constitution of New Mexico.

Washington, Feb. 16.—Declaring that fraud and corruption were used in the passage of the New Mexico constitution, appeal was made today to President Taft by representatives of the Anti-saloon league, the W. C. T. U. and other interests to use his influence against the adoption of the constitution.

CONVENTION CLOSES.

Religious Education Associations Meetings Very Profitable.

Providence, R. I., Feb. 16.—The closing days of the Religious Education association's eighth annual convention was the busier of the two days' session. The six departments of the association met this forenoon and in the afternoon held joint conferences.

Of the six sectional meetings this forenoon the most interesting was the joint session of the departments of the home and the elementary and secondary schools, at which the sciences of eugenics and the great moral responsibility of parents were discussed. President G. Stanley Hall of Clark University, Worcester, spoke on "Eugenics, its Ideals and What it is Striving to Do." George F. Dawson of Springfield, Mass., professor of psychology in the Hartford school of religious pedagogy, chose for his subject "The Right of the Child to Be Well Born," and Dr. Helen C. Putnam of Province, discussed the "Education of Parenthood."

Others meetings were the Sunday school and churches and pastors departments.

NECKS AND LEGS OF ANIMALS.

Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette: With few exceptions there is a marked equality between the length of the necks and of the legs of both birds and quadrupeds, and whether they be long or short is determined chiefly by the place where the animal must go for its food.

This is especially noticeable in beasts that feed constantly upon grass, in which case the neck has just a slight advantage in that it cannot hang perpendicularly down.

Crocodiles, lizards and fish have practically no necks. Fowls that feed in the water also offer an example of this correspondence between the members, with the exception of swans and geese and some Indian birds, who gather their food from the bottom of pools and must have long necks for that purpose, while the short legs make it more convenient for them to swim.

THE DIPLODOCUS CARNEGII.

Strand: The diplodocus, recently erected in Carl Hagenbeck's "Prehistoric Zoo" at Stellingen, measures some sixty-six feet in length, and is virtually a duplicate of the skeleton in the American Museum of Natural History with the flesh on. At the Natural History Museum at South Kensington is a skeleton of the Diplodocus Carnegii, the largest of the dinosaurs, measuring some eighty-four feet from snout to tip of tail, and towering some thirty feet in height. It was decided, however, to build a specimen on the New Fork model, this being known to be correct. Indeed, over seven-tenths of the skeleton of this wonderful beast in the New York museum is built up of the animal's own bones.

The skeleton was obtained in 1899 from the famous Bone Cabin Quarry in Central Wyoming — a veritable graveyard of prehistoric animals and the richest deposit of fossil remains known. Like many other great finds, it was discovered by accident. Indeed fossil-hunting is like prospecting for gold, for the collector never knows when he is going to unearth some treasure and strike it rich. In the days when this animal and its fellows were alive the country which now comprises Wyoming, Montana, Colorado, New Mexico, and the Dakotas possessed a tropical climate, not unlike that of Brazil today, the region including great lakes of salt or blackish water, the sedimentary remains of which form the "Bad Lands" of our day. This creature had a long, thick tail, like a lizard; a long, flexible neck, like the ostrich; a thick, short, slab-sided body, and straight, massive, post-like limbs, suggesting the elephant. When alive, such a creature would turn the scale at twenty-five to thirty tons. The animal was amphibious, living chiefly in shallow water, feeding upon the abundant vegetation. Although the biggest creature that ever walked on four legs, it was singularly ill-fitted for holding its own in the struggle for existence and was, no doubt, killed off by the smaller but more powerfully-built carnivorous dinosaurs of that day. It possessed a very small brain, and even in those early days it was brain and not bulk that told in the long run.

A BRICK CARRYING RECORD.

London Daily Graphic: Edward Ashbee, an employe of the High Broom Brick company, near Tunbridge Wells, holds the record of having carried considerably over 40,000,000 bricks on a wheelbarrow in the past thirty years.

The weight of the bricks is estimated at nearly 103,000 tons, and in the course of his work he has walked nearly 55,000 miles, or more than twice the distance round the world. Ashbee is a man of fine physique and looks much younger than his 50 years.

WILL ENTER STATE 'SPIEL

At Least Three Rinks Will Go to St. Paul Next Week.

Will Compete for Merriam Medals and State Championship.

Several Duluth rinks will leave Tuesday afternoon for St. Paul where they will compete in the one-day state curling championship to be held in the Saintly City on Tuesday evening continuing on Wednesday, Washington's birthday.

There is a fine bunch of jewelry for the winner of this event and the winning rink also has the right to label itself "state champions" at curling.

Last year there were no Duluth rinks entered. This probably accounts for the fact that Bob Dunbar of the Capital City club found it easy picklings, carrying off the jewelry and the label with ease.

Dunbar has been wearing the Merriam medals for a year and several Duluth skips will endeavor to bring back the new ones for exhibition purposes in the Zenith City.

It is not known definitely just yet which rinks will go from Duluth but it is believed that there will be two from the Duluth club and one from the Western Curling club. It is known that Duluth will in any event be represented.

All who wish to go are welcome and it is hoped that even more than three rinks can be induced to go. Any one thinking of making the trip is asked to notify Wilfred Kilchil, the secretary of the local club.

The St. Paul curlers send a cordial invitation to Duluth rinks to attend and promise a good time to those who go down.

IN FAVOR OF ANNEXATION

Representative Bennet Introduces a Resolution in the House.

Washington, Feb. 16.—Representative Bennet of New York, one of the Republicans who voted against Canadian reciprocity today introduced in the house a resolution requesting the president to enter into negotiations with the British government looking to the annexation of Canada by the United States. The resolution was referred to the committee on foreign affairs.

In speaking of his resolution Mr. Bennet insisted that he was both serious and sincere. He declared that in his mind annexation was the logical result to be looked forward to following reciprocity. He declared the reciprocity measure passed by the house was not satisfactory and would not please the majority of the people.

For instance, he said, it placed wheat on the free list, but kept a duty on flour; it put cattle on the free list, but maintained a duty on meat and meat products. Mr. Bennet is from New York city and he asserted that city people wanted benefits from finished products. He insisted he would ask for consideration of his resolution in the committee on foreign affairs of which he is a member.

IMPORTANT AMENDMENTS

Governing Collection of the Corporation Tax Are Announced.

Expected That Tax This Year Will Yield $25,000,000.

Washington, Feb. 16.—Important amendments to the regulations governing the collection of the corporation tax have been approved by Secretary MacVeagh and were officially announced today.

Principal among the changes is a provision for the depreciation of mines, oil or gas wells and other deposits of natural resources. The problem of how to tell how to properly tax a well or a mine which was being exhausted by continual working, was a knotty one, and to solve it, some of the noted mineral experts of the country were called into conference.

Hereafter in such cases in computing the net income, deduction will be allowed for depreciation from ore and mineral deposits upon the basis of the original capital investment cost. A further deduction will also be allowed although not including the same in the item of gross income, for the unearned increment represented in such properties on Jan. 1, 1909.

This will be determined from an estimate of the fair market value of the deposit on that date, which will be based on the total disposal value of the deposit exclusive of the value of improvements and development work and will be reduced to the unit of the value, per ton or barrel. Deduction will then be allowed on that basis at the rate of the original cost.

Other amendments affecting depreciation are:

Depreciation of a company's stock is a loss to the stockholders, but not a loss to the company issuing it and cannot be allowed as a deduction.

Deduction on account of depreciation of property, its cost and its value and its use.

Good will represents the value of a business over and above the value of the property and is chargeable only to capital investment account and is not an allowable deduction from the income.

Removal of timber from lands merely by cutting will not be allowed as a depreciation, but will be considered a change of form of assets.

The other amendments affect many classes of corporations.

Charitable institutions supported by voluntary contributions or state appropriations will be exempt from tax.

Building and loan associations which lend moneys to other than members are not thereby removed from the exempted class.

Pensions paid by corporations to retired employes or their families or others dependent upon them or on account of the injuries received will be proper deductions under "ordinary and necessary expenses," but gifts or gratuities to employes of a corporation will not be allowed in that class. Donations made for the purposes connected with the operation of a property when limited to charitable institutions, hospitals or educational institutions, conducted for the benefit of employes will be allowed as a deduction.

Returns for the current year are now being compiled, and Commissioner Cabell of the internal revenue bureau estimates the government will collect about $25,000,000 this year from the corporation tax.

PORK RIND FOR BLACK BASS.

"I have been fishing for black bass for years," said a New York angler, "and I rather flattered myself that I knew the game pretty well until last winter, when I spent several weeks in Florida. Within a radius of ten miles of the little hotel where I was stopping there were a hundred fresh water lakes, some of them little more than ponds, to be sure, but all containing big-mouth bass.

"In the climate of Florida these fellows keep on growing all the year round, with plenty to eat, and the consequence is they attain a size unheard of in the lakes of the North. A ten-pounder is by no means uncommon, and I have seen them weighing up to eighteen pounds; great, big, sluggish fellows, but at the same time identically the same fish as our Oswego bass of this climate.

"In the inland lakes of Florida the guides use for bait a live shiner anywhere from nine to twelve inches long. Just why I don't know, but they say it is impossible to get these shiners in bait seines, and all have to be caught first with hook and line. Dough mixed with cotton is the favorite lure for them. My guide employed a couple of boys, who fished all day long for his shiners, which, added to his own charge and carriage hire, made a day's fishing somewhat of a luxury.

"The accepted method of fishing for bass in these waters is to troll with a big float. The water is of a uniform depth, about four feet, and you adjust your float accordingly, so that the bait can't quite reach the weeds on the bottom.

"When you get a strike you just sit and wait till you think the fish has had time to gorge your big bait, paying out line if you think it necessary. And when you strike him you've got to strike mighty hard to drive the hook home, for you'll find that big float coming as it does to break the connection between you and your fish, makes a lot of difference. I broke a $25 Bethabara rod in three pieces striking a bass that when I pulled him in hand over hand I found wasn't much larger than the bait he had been trying to swallow. I used a heavier rod after that and caught some weighing over ten pounds.

"In these lakes, just out of curiosity, I tried various methods I had frequently used in the North, but either the conditions were different or the fish were educated only to the one way of fishing. At any rate I had little luck, except with the live shiners and the big float trolled slowly after a rowboat.

"From Lakeland I went to Ponce Park, on the east coast, where it's all salt water fishing. At this point Spruce Creek empties into Turnbull bay, and my guide told me one day there were plenty of black bass up there. We waited for a day when the tide was right and made the fifteen-mile trip up the creek, getting a glimpse of several alligators on the way.

"My favorite method of bass fishing is to cast a strip of pork rind with a silt half way up, which with a little motion of the rod in retrieving the bait gives it the appearance of a frog swimming. I use a rod with the reel below the hand built on the lines of a fly rod except that it is heavy enough to cast a frog. I strip the line in by hand, coiling it in the bottom of the boat, and rarely using the reel at all. It is necessary to use the finest quality of braided silk line for this, otherwise it is apt to kink.

"When we reached the fresh water my guide shut off the power of the boat and began to paddle. The stream was about a hundred feet wide, with overhanging water birches and cypress trees, and under the shadow of the trees I began casting close up to either bank. Old Deacon Jones was my guide, and this sort of bass fishing was quite foreign to his ideas. But how those bass did jump at that pork rind.

"We only had about four hours of fleshing, and when at 2 o'clock we counted our catch and found we had forty-two bass, the largest weighing a trifle over nine pounds. I was quite ready to quit. The deacon had a profound respect for me after that, and during my stay at Ponce Park we made several trips up Spruce creek, but never exceeded our first day's catch."

GRIZZLIES HAVE MOVED.

"While it isn't likely that the grizzly bear will ever become extinct," said Capt. Jerry Kreiter, an old time plainsman and Rocky mountain prospector, "it has all the same come to be something of a rarity in many of his original haunts, and the hunter seeking sport with him now must journey into the fastnesses of the far Sierras and Coast Range mountains or into the wilderness of the British provinces in the Northwest.

"In former days, when the hunter and the ranchman had only their double barrelled guns, the grizzly had little fear of them. But when the repeating guns and the rest of the destroyers began to confront him he gradually but reluctantly fell away from the pleasant borderland and sought safety in the deepest isolation.

"When there were buffaloes on the plains the grizzly bears were keen and persistent hunters of them. A herd of buffaloes on its journey seldom escaped attack from grizzlies all along the line. When a grizzly and a buffalo came to battle there was sure to be a savage contest, although it never lasted long, the buffalo usually being the vanquished.

"Confronted by a bear a buffalo bull would invariably charge furiously upon its big and ugly foe. This was as the bear expected. He waited, erect on the haunches, the onset of the buffalo. As the latter rushed forward with lowered head and was almost upon the bear the bear would throw himself to one side wit hastonishing quickness, and at the same instant deliver a blow with one of his powerful forepaws that seldom failed to break his antagonist's neck. It sometimes happened, though, that a bull was young and agile enough to evade this blow long enough to give in turn a deadly thrust of his horn into the bear's side, making the combat a mutual slaughter.

"Some old Rocky mountaineers are of the opinion that the retreat of the grizzly bear to the inner fastnesses of the wilderness of the farther Northwest is due to the passing of the buffalo. There is no doubt but that the passing of the buffalo had much to do with the grizzly bear leaving its old haunts, but it wasn't so much the mere passing of the buffalo as the causes of that passing. Instinct told the grizzly that those same causes would in time bring about his own passing if he didn't get away from there, and he got.

"But there are plenty of grizzlies yet, if one cares to undergo the toil and trouble of going where they are. If I were going after sport with these tough and ugly beasts today I would not stop until I got at least two good days journey into the wild mountain region of Southwest Idaho. The man who will camp in that country when the grizzlies are on the move will have a chance to bag the biggest and most tenacious members of that big and tenacious family to be found outside of the Manitoba Rockies.

"There are plenty of silver tip and cinnamon bears in that wild Idaho country too, and some sportsmen think there are more excitement and danger in chasing or being chased by a silver tip than there is in chasing or being chased by a grizzly. That is all a matter of taste or opinion, but you may take it from me that if any one who has ever stood up and pumped lead from a repeating rifle into a Rocky Mountain grizzly rear and seen it keep right on in its savage charge toward him until it fell to the ground riddled by the ceaseless leaden pellets wants to face a more formidable bunch of fierceness and deadly fury than that he is welcome to the chance. And it is further my opinion and belief that he will have to go off of the American continent to find it.

"Grizzly bears, like all the rest of the bear family, have the curious habit, never yet satisfactorily explained, of rising on their hind feet against a tree and reaching up as far as they can with their forepaws, making marks in the bark and wood by tearing at it with their claws. I have come upon these marks made as high as twelve feet above the ground.

"Imagine coming suddenly upon a beast capable of such a reach as that, with all the corresponding attachments of bulk and power, in some deep ravine or isolated spot almost impassable owing to the down timber heaped and tangled on the ground and surrounded by rocks and thick underbrush. The sight of his great jaws, open and red, and his eyes flashing in fury as you as he towers and snarls—for the grizzly bear is in a chronic state of bad temper—is something, the hair-raising quality of which, can only be appreciated by being seen."

WOLF-HUNTING ON HORSEBACK.

From "To Bokhara and Beyond," in the Wide World Magazine: The chief peculiarity of Central Asiatic scenery is the plateau-world. Besides the lowlying steppes and deserts, there are highlying uplands and pastures. The fine grazing available here in summer attracts the nomads from the plains, which gives a great variety of life to the Kirghiz. It seems as if the steppe breeds the Kirghiz, for wherever it holds sway, from the Caspian to Lake Baikal, whether it is on the lowland or up on the "roof of the world," there you find the nomadic Kirghiz. The plateaux have an extreme fascination of their own. There you have the expanse and freedom of the desert with the bracing air of the mountains. Here you can gallop for miles over beautiful grassy downs, undulating and flower-strewn.

Across this plateau, whose actual height is over 10,000 feet, I traveled late in the summer and found that the Kirghiz had already left it, their herds having grazed off every green thing, so much so that there was scarcely any food left for my horses. Neither was there any fuel, and for days in succession I could not get hot drink; for six weeks I did not see so much as a twig. The utter barrenness of the plateau at this season testified to the immense size of the Kirghiz herds, and drove me to seek fodder in the neighboring ranges. All these Pamir valleys, as they may be called, are walled in all round by still higher ranges, and in the secluded valleys of these I found the nomads encamped. In this happy valley, where there was plenty of pasture, we had some very exciting hunts. Over the hills the Kirghiz huntsmen and myself indulged in the strangest of sports—wolf-hunting on horseback on the edge of the eternal snows.

Wolves are the most deadly enemies that the shepherds have to reckon with, and a chance is never lost of bringing one to bag. Ten or a dozen of us, mounted on little mountain ponies, and followed by a number of small greyhounds, scoured the hills until we found a pack of wolves. When the pack was sighted, then the fun began, for the hills were so precipitous that riding seemed out of the question. However, we not only rode, but galloped at full speed down the slopes, following the hounds, which soon turned a single wolf out of the pack and brought it to bay. While the dogs baited the wolf on one side, one of the hunters dashed in and secured the animal by the throat before it had time to bite him. Then they made a rope of horsehair pulled from the tail of one of their ponies, and, slitting a hole in the skin above the wolf's nose, passed the rope through and tied up his mouth. The animal was then hitched to the saddle of one of the hunters' ponies, and we all galloped back to camp.

CARING FOR BIRDS IN NEW JERSEY

Lower Creek correspondence Salem Sunbeam: Birds and the small wild animals in this township were hard pressed for food during the days the ground was all covered with snow. The miller at Hancocks Bridge secured a little seed in front of the mill door, and larks, some of them so weak they could scarcely walk, and other birds gathered there and ate, not afraid of man or the moment, so emboldened were they by hunger.

A turkey buzzard entered a farmer's hen roost for shelter and was removed to his pig pen. So hard pressed for food was it that it ate corn.

SWIMMING BY MACHINERY.

Chicago Tribune: A 10-pound swimming machine that may be packed in a suit case is the invention of a Frenchman. It is a safe and rapid semi-craft for the man who swims or the man who doesn't. At the front of the apparatus is a cylindrical metal float, with conical point and a depending rudder. At the rear is another metal float, with stirrups acting upon a propeller, the two ends connected by a wooden bar on which the swimmer lies as if on the water.

Kicking with his feet and alternately pushing and pulling with a cross handle bar just back of the forward float the swimmer on the swimming machine gets a maximum of exercise while making a speed impossible to the ordinary swimmer on the open water.

How to Stop Pimples

In Five Days You Can Get Rid of All Skin Eruptions By the New Calcium Sulphide Wafers.

Trial Package To Prove It Sent Free.

Any man or woman gets awfully tired going around with a pimply face day after day. And other people get awfully tired, too, seeing them go around with faces full of disgusting pimples.

If you are one of the unfortunates who can't get away from your pimples, and you have tried almost everything under heaven to get rid of them, take a few of Stuart's Calcium Wafers every day. Do that steadily for a few days, and in less than a week look at yourself in the mirror.

You will then say that Stuart's Calcium Wafers are a wonder in getting rid of the eruptions.

These wonderful little workers contain the most effective blood purifier ever discovered, calcium sulphide.

No matter what your trouble is, whether pimples, blotches, blackheads, rash, tetter, eczema or scabby crusts, you can solemnly depend upon Stuart's Calcium Wafers as never-failing.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers have cured boils in three days and the worst cases of skin diseases in a week. Every particle of impurity is driven out of your system completely, never to return, and it is done without deranging your system in the slightest.

Most treatments for the blood and for skin eruptions are miserably slow in their results, and besides, many of them are poisonous. Stuart's Calcium Wafers contain no poison or drug of any kind; they are absolutely harmless, and yet do work which cannot fail to surprise you.

Don't go around with a humiliating, disgusting mass of pimples and blackheads on your face. A face covered over with these disgusting things makes people turn away from you, and breeds failure in your life work. Stop it. Read what an Iowa man said when he woke up one morning and found he had a new face:

"By George, I never saw anything like it. There I've been for three years trying to get rid of pimples and blackheads, and guess I used everything under the sun. I used your Calcium Wafers for just seven days. This morning every blessed pimple is gone and I can't find a blackhead. I could write you a volume of thanks. I am so grateful to you."

Just send us your name and address in full today, and we will send you a trial package of Stuart's Calcium Wafers, free to test. After you have tried the sample and been convinced that all we say is true, you will go to your nearest druggist and get a 50c box and be cured of your facial trouble. They are in tablet form and no trouble whatever to take. You go about your work as usual, and there you are—cured and happy.

Send us your name and address today, and we will at once send you by mail a sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 175 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

Northern Minnesota is well represented, Duluth, Two Harbors, Cloquet and other points sending full delegations.

Men prominent in Y. M. C. A. work will take part in the program and the daily sessions promises to be unusually interesting. The citizens of Albert Lea have made extensive preparations to care for the visitors and it is announced that no one need stay away for fear of not getting good accommodations.

Fine Male Quartet.

The splendid program which has been prepared has many very interesting, instructing and inspiring features and one of the strongest and most entertaining features is the male quartet which will render selections from time to time during the convention and the members of the quartet will also give solos and duets.

Paul J. Gilbert of Des Moines, leader of the quartet is an almost world renowned singer and has sung to large audiences in the leading cities of England, Ireland, Wales and America, and is first tenor of the National quartet. It was he who enthused London with his singing in the great Albert hall before 10,000 people.

The other members of the quartet of whom E. W. Peck of Minneapolis is a member are all well known singers of ability and will not fail to both please and entertain those who hear them at the convention.

The quartet is composed of: Paul J. Gilbert, tenor; H. E. Griebnow, tenor; H. Chase Ballou, baritone; E. W. Peck, bass.

FARMERS' REST-ROOM PROVIDED

Minot Commercial Club Furnishes Convenience for Visitors From Country.

Minot, N. D., Feb. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A farmers' restroom is a novelty in Commercial club activities, supplied by the business men of this city for the farmers and their families who do their trading in town. The entire basement of the Masonic temple has been remodeled and redecorated for this purpose, and will be opened within a few days. There are settees, rocking chairs and reading material, and a special room for the care of infants or where old people may take a nap. The furniture has been donated by the merchant members of the Commercial club, and the Woman's exchange will have charge of the care of the place. The exchange will also conduct a counter where coffee and sandwiches may be secured for a nominal sum, but the use of the rooms will be free to all farmers.

FRIEND OF MARCUS DALY.

Colorado, Nevada and Montana Pioneer Crosses Divide.

Butte, Mont., Feb. 16.—Julian Smith, a well-known citizen and a pioneer of the city, is dead after a few days' illness, at the age of 75 years. He was born in Glasgow, Ky. He went to Denver in 1858, and in Colorado Springs erected the first log cabin. In Virginia City, Nev., he met the late Marcus Daly and they became fast friends. Mr. Smith came to Butte when the camp consisted of a few cabins. He built the old Alice mill, the Colorado smelter and the smelter in Meadowville. He was the last survivor of a party of five that formally named Garden of the Gods in Colorado.

WAS PIONEER WOMAN.

Mrs. Cynthia Richmond, Survivor of Indian Massacre, Called.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Feb. 16.—The death of Mrs. Cynthia Richmond, mother of Mrs. George C. Miles, occurred at Mr. and Mrs. Miles' home Tuesday morning. Mrs. Richmond was born at Catskill, N. Y., Dec. 11, 1824. She and her husband were among the pioneer residents of Minnesota and at the time of the Indian outbreak in 1862 they were residing near the village of Richmond, in Stearns county. The Indians burned their residence and the family had a narrow escape at that time. Shortly after the outbreak, they moved to Melrose, where Mr. Richmond's death occurred in 1878.

HOTEL MAN BURIED.

Thief River Falls Boniface and Pioneer Passes Away.

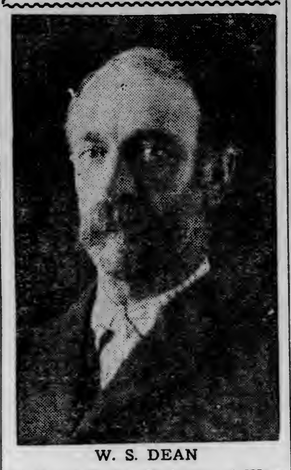

Thief River Falls, Minn., Feb. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Funeral services were held Tuesday for Charles Robbecke, one of the proprietors of the Ogema hotel, who died in a St. Paul hotel of cancer of the stomach. He was one of the very earliest settlers in this section, arriving here when there were not more than five white men in as many square miles. He opened up a hotel for traders and persons traveling up river to the woods in early years and has continued the business in the same place ever since, and the deceased was a great favorite with the traveling public, as he was popular with his fellow townsmen. Several of the fraternal organizations with which he was affiliated conducted the funeral ceremonies and there was also tendered a public funeral, the religious exercises taking place in the city auditorium, Rev. J. B. Smith preached the funeral sermon and a select choir furnished the music.

Bemidji Healthy City.

Father O'Dwyer feels that this report should be the means of inducing many people to visit Bemidji who are not enjoying the best of health, and that it proves that the climate here is of the very best.

GOVERNMENT TO PROVE THE LAND

Entrymen Need Not Establish Mineral or Non-Mineral Character of Land.

Minot, N. D., Feb. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—That entrymen, who filed on homestead land prior to July 7, 1910, are not obliged to prove the character of the land and that this duty falls on the government, is the statement of Congressman Gronna in a letter to Clark Hovey Tuesday.

The Minot land office has ruled that entrymen must prove the character of the land, whether it is mineral land or not. Congressman Gronna says that this ruling is a mistake, and he is going to so inform the office. There is some expense in connection with securing experts to determine whether the land is mineral or not, and Congressman Gronna says that under the rules of the United States land office, this expense should not fall on the homesteader.

NORTH DAKOTANS TIRE OF LIVING

Pair in Rural Sections Shuffle Off, One By Hanging, Other By Shooting.

Fertile, N. D., Feb. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Hanson, a rancher living a mile from this city, was found at the door of his shack with his head blown off and a revolver lying near his side. Suicide was the verdict of the coroner's inquest. Mr. Hanson had no relatives in this country as far as is known and mingled little with his neighbors. It is supposed that his isolation resulted in despondency.

Farmer Hangs Self.

Cando, N. D., Feb. 15.—George Lightfoot committed suicide by hanging at his farm home four and a half miles southwest of this city. He was 35 years old and despondency over family affairs is supposed to have been the cause of his rash act.

SEVEN WOLVES BITE DUST

When North Dakota Farmer Gets His Rifle to Working.

Upham, N. D., Feb. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—There are seven wolves less in this locality as the result of the shooting ability of H. K. Martsell, a German farmer living north of here. Incidentally he had a thrilling experience with a pack of the brutes that he will not forget soon.

He had been out looking over his traps when the pack came upon him and the first shot from his gun so frightened his horses that they ran away, leaving him with only the ammunition which was in his rifle and a few extra bullets as protection. With this he succeeded in killing seven and would then have been left to the mercy of the betsts only that he discovered a hay stacking machine nearby and by a hasty sprint was able to climb to the top of it. For three hours he tried to lift his voice above the angry howling of the wolves and finally attracted the attention of a man who was hauling hay who came to his rescue.

MOTORMAN IS BLAMED

For Sheboygan, Wis., Accident That Claimed Three Lives.

Sheboygan, Wis., Feb. 16.—Responsibility for the death of three women last Thursday when a car of the Sheboygan Street Railway company plunged through the open draw bridge into the river, was placed on Motorman George Thieme by the coroner's jury. The company is also scored for its lack of protective measures.

The jury in its report cites the death of the Misses Anna Mather, Tannica Van Ouwerkerk and Olga Willimit.

Motorman Thieme is still in a state of collapse and no statement could be obtained from him, nor from President Ernest Gonzenbach of the street railway company.

CLOSING INSTITUTE AT THIEF RIVER FALLS.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Feb. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A farmers' institute was held in the gymnasium of the Lincoln high school building Tuesday afternoon. It was under the auspices of the department of agriculture of the local high school and was conducted by Prof. Tomhave of the state college of agriculture. The subject discussed was stock. Dr. Newell, a veterinary surgeon, also devoted some time to a description of contagious diseases and their prevention. Charles Gustafson addressed the farmers on the breeding and feeding of dairy cattle. This meeting was the third of a series of six which are being presented to the farmers in this section by the high school. They will close in March with a pure seed contest.

Moorhead—Thomas Barry, one of the oldest settlers in the Felton neighborhood, died Monday evening. Mr. Barry has been failing for a number of months and for some time his friends have been prepared to hear of his death. Anemia seems to have been the chief contributing cause to his death. Beautiful Hair Not Hard to Have

(Mme. Linar in Fashion Monthly.)

"It is not so difficult to keep the hair in good condition as many discouraged women believe. The head should not be washed oftener than once in two or three months. Water and the alkali found in many soaps tend to make the hair coarse, brittle and matted.

"Many heads are covered thinly with faded hair today because of too much moisture.

"Dry shampooing is a common sense, satisfactory method of keeping the hair in condition. It can be done quickly—before dressing the hair for any special occasion. Put four ounces of amotone in a jar and mix with it half a pound of corn meal, either white or yellow. Sprinkle a tablespoonful of this mixture on the head once or twice a week and brush thoroughly through the hair. This treatment makes the hair long, soft and silky, for amotone is one of the best hair growers known, while corn meal removes every particle of dust, oil and dandruff."

NO REASON FOR IT

When Duluth Citizens Show the Certain Way Out.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of any kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what a Duluth citizen says:

Mrs. J. E. Kennell, 324 N. Twentieth Ave. W., Duluth, Minn., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have given entire satisfaction in our home. About a year ago a member of our family was so crippled with his back that he could hardly straighten. This person had much pain and lameness in the kidneys and there were other troubles in evidence which plainly showed what was wrong. Doan's Kidney Pills were publicly recommended and a supply was procured. This remedy brought relief and thus proved its merits."

BIG DULUTHS DEFEATED

Kodahpas Take Fast and Exciting Game By 1 to 0 Score.

The Result Makes Adams Strongest Contenders for Hockey League Pennant.

Standing.

	W.	L.	Pct.
Adams	5	1	.833
Kodahpas	5	2	.714
Big Duluths	4	2	.666
Fairmonts	1	5	.166
Park Points	0	5	.000

One of the greatest games played the present season in the City Hockey league, resulted last evening in a victory of the Kodahpa club over the strong Big Duluths, the aggregation which has generally been picked by the dopesters to win the hockey league pennant. The score was 1 to 0 and it required ten minutes over time play to decide the issue.

Asher Taylor, one of the fastest players in the City league, made the deciding score, registering the only score of the game on a long pass from the side on one of the prettiest shots that has been made the present season.

Taylor secured the puck well down the ice and carried it down the side until about thirty feet from the goal, when he made a pretty shot for the net, the duck going in straight as a die.

Up until the time the overtime contest was decided by the one score there had been little to choose between the two teams. The ice was not in the best condition, owing to the snow and water, but despite this handicap both teams showed about the fastest exhibition of the great outdoor sport that has been seen the present season.

Earl Cummings and Taylor both scored goals earlier, but as both scores were made after the bell had announced the calling of time, neither was counted.

The playing of Feetham at goal for the Kodahpas was one of the features of the game, while little Mackenzie for the Big Duluths put up a sterling contest.

It now looks as if the Adams team has the best chance for the pennant. The Big Duluths and Adams have a postponed game to play off, and should the Big Duluths win this contest it will mean a three-cornered tie for the league leadership.

The lineup:

Kodahpas.	Position.	Big Duluths.
Feetham	g.	Al. Wood

Waterworth	cp.	Geo. Wood
Clark	r	Cummings

GOPHER STAR IS INJURED

Lisle Johnston, Football Leader, Breaks Leg While Training.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 16.—While working out in the wrestling room at the university armory yesterday afternoon, Lisle Johnston, captain of the '10 football team sustained a broken leg. The accident was a peculiar one and proves conclusively that the bones of the Gopher athlete are unusually fragile for one of his physique.

The accident was so peculiar and entirely unexpected from the manner of its occurrence that those who witnessed it could scarcely believe a bone had been broken. Johnston was behind another student on the mat when a sudden roll caused him to fall upon his right leg. A sharp snap was audible to every one in the room and Johnston said his leg had been hurt. Dr. Williams was called and pronounced the leg broken, although the bones were not displaced so as to require setting.

The injured member will be placed in a cast today. Johnston will be able to get to his classes in the law school Monday. He will be confined to his bed only long enough to allow the bones to knit.

Johnston has had both legs broken in athletics at Minnesota, the left one in 1909 at Omaha during the Nebraska football game. The accident yesterday comes as a keen disappointment to Johnston who in all probability would have represented Minnesota in the coming wrestling tournaments. It also impairs his chance of playing on the baseball team in the spring.

FIGHTER SELLS HIS CONTRACT

Al Kaufmann Will Be Under Barney Gerard for Next Two Years.

Chicago, Feb. 16.—Al Kaufmann, the heavyweight pugilist, has sold his career for two years to Barney Gerard of New York for $50,000. Another contract was also signed whereby Gerard promises to pay all of the pugilist's traveling expenses and board bills during that time. The papers were signed on Saturday in Baltimore.

It is doubtful if ever a greater chance agreement was drawn up between two men. Recently Kaufmann has been receiving flattering offers from William Brady, Jack Gleason and others, which caused Gerard to sit up and take notice.

Gerard believes that eventually Kaufmann will fight Johnson and that he will be returned the winner.

A win over Johnson would make Kaufmann the biggest drawing card that has ever been known to go behind the footlights. He would pack theatrical houses week after week, and the amount of money that would be brought to the purse of Gerard would be far more than what Kaufmann is to receive for his two years.

PLANNING FOR NEW LEAGUE

Hibbing and Virginia Are Invited to Attend Duluth Meeting.

Notices have been sent to Virginia and Hibbing asking the men interested in baseball in those cities to set a date for a meeting to be held in this city for the discussion of plans for the organizing of a semi-professional league that will possibly include the Twin Cities, together with Duluth, Superior Virginia and Hibbing.

Plans are for the organization of the six teams and at the present time action is said to be waiting on the decision of Judge Brady of Hibbing and whoever will tackle the Virginia end of the proposition.

Several reasons are pointed out why the proposed league will be a success from the jump. The good feeling between the ranges and Duluth and the number of range people here every day would assure a good attendance at the games played in this city between a team from the range and a local team.

Then, again, it is pointed out that there are a number of fast players on the range ready to break into semi-professional company, and these players would add interest to the game. The same condition is true here, for a fast team could be recruited from among the best of the local talent.

It is expected that definite news of the new proposition will be forthcoming within a few days.

HUSTLING CAMPAIGN ON FOR DOWN TOWN PARK

Will Duluth have a down town ball park the present season?

A campaign is being made at the present time with the idea of bringing as much pressure as possible to bear on the officials of the Northern Pacific railway, in the hope that they will consent to give the members of the Duluth Amusement company, or whatever holding company may be formed for the building of the park, a lease on the grounds back of the F. A. Patrick building.

In Superior the business men lined up and sent petitions to the railway company with the result that a park in the heart of the city was secured and baseball was placed on a paying basis in the suburbs.

If the Duluth business men would fall in line behind the petition that is being circulated at the present time and aid the gentlemen behind the baseball association in securing the consent of the Northern Pacific officials to the leasing of the grounds in question, Duluth would be a long ways nearer to the point where it could jump into bigger baseball in the near future, if not the present season.

The idea is to secure as many names as possible of prominent business men who are in favor of having a down town park. If the men behind the movement are willing to run chances of having the ground taken over for railroad use at a very short notice, and signify this willingness in the terms of the contract, there should be a willingness on the part of the officials to lease the grounds, if it is reasonably certain that the grounds are not going to be used in the near future.

WITH THE WRESTLERS

More challenges are directed at Sailor Jack. The latest is from Jack Santell, manager for George Brunnell, who is touted as the welterweight champion of New England. Santell would like to bring his man to the Head of the Lakes to wrestle the marine, and writes here to ascertain the chances regarding a match.

It is expected that the sailor will be home within two weeks, as a letter was received from him the day before yesterday, in which he stated that he was on his way to Duluth. When he gets here he will find a stack of challenges as thick as a ledger awaiting his inspection.

One Billy Hoke, comes out in a Minneapolis paper and runs a long winded insinuation against the abilities of the sailor. He ends up by challenging him on behalf of a certain Joe Carr.

It has generally been understood that Carr is a widdleweight. If he makes the welterweight limit, there should be no trouble in arranging a match between Carr and Jack.

Karl Letho will wrestle William Dementral on Feb. 18 at Calumet, according to the present arrangements. The match should be one of the most interesting ever wrestled in the Copper Country. Lehto is getting better all the time. His improvement the present season has been marked and the battle with Dementral, one of the fastest of the second division wrestlers in the United States, should be a good one.

This will be the first big match for Calumet this season. Negotiations have been carred on for a match between Dementral and Lehto for some time, and now that the two men are tied up for next Saturday evening, interest in the contest is running high. If Calumet likes the match it is very probable that other contests will be staged there the present season.

After Lehto's match Saturday and on Feb. 22, negotiations will be entered into between Gus Friland, manager of the Finn, and the manager of Sampsin, for a finish match between these two men for the championship of the Finnish race.

Interest has been increasing in the prospective bout since the announcement that Sampson was on the trail of Lehto. It is generally believed that Sampson is a comer, as his easy defeat of Martin Johnson would indicate, and his countrymen are showing a great deal of interest in his coming contest with Charles Kid Cutler.

Regarding the sudden discussion about the toehold, if it is shown here that the toehold is not in favor with the many wrestling enthusiasts of this city, it will be barred in the contest between Cutler and Sampson. Several opinions have been published in The Herald, and none have been more clear in view than the following, which seems to hit the nail on the head:

"To the Sporting Editor of The Herald:

"Wresting is a game of science and strength. It is almost as old as man—certainly as old as competitive athletics. It is a game that, when properly conducted and properly practiced by its exponents, wins popular favor and popular support.

"Occupying the position it does, wrestling must not suffer anything which will tumble it from the pedestal. Rather its position must be made more secure by eliminating everything that savors of bad faith with the public and likewise overything that is brutal and objectionable. People who decry prize-fighting as brutalizing will commend wrestling, but if the well known torture tactics with which wrestlers and wrestling followers are familiar are allowed full play, the public will not be long in expressing disfavor.

"The toehold is furnishing a question now. "Should it be barred?" the experts and followers of the game are asking. I say it should. Though the toehold calls into play science and strength in both offensive and defensiev wrestling, it also calls into play brutal torture that has no place in wrestling.

"The primary object of the wrestler is to put his opponent down. The toehold has for its object making the sufferer quit. It doesn't put him down. He lies down to prevent his leg being broken or his ankle badly sprained. It doesn't accomplish the primary object of wrestling.

"A man may have as much endurance as you will, but he cannot hold out against the toehold successfully clamped on him. His science, strength and endurance might better go to working for and against the recognized legitimate holds of wrestling and the public would be better satisfied. Not trickery, but ability should count. The considerations which worked toward the abolishment of the strangle hold should operate to the same end in abolishing the toehold.

"A WRESTLING FAN."

Blaine Team Defeats Association at Basket Ball By 35 to 22 Score.

The Y. M. C. A. basket ball team of this city was defeated last night by the Blaine Alumni team by the score of 35 to 22, the contest being played in the Superior normal school gymnasium. At the end of the first half the score was even at 10 points, and the supporters of the Duluth team looked for a win. In the second half the Duluth aggregation weakened while the Superior boys played faster and stronger and opened up a lead on the Duluth players.

Hamilton was out of the lineup of the association team, and his absence weakened the Duluth boys somewhat. O'Donnell and Ward played a strong game for Duluth, while Bradley and Clark were the stars for the Blaine bunch.

A contest between the Blaine Alumni second team and a picked five resulted in a victory for the Alumni boys by the score of 28 to 16.

BIG BONUS FOR USING BASEBALLS

National League Gets Half Million Dollars for Making Contract.

New York, Feb. 16.—For a bonus, said to be $500,000, the National league, in session here yesterday, made a 20-year contract with a sporting goods firm to use a baseball of its manufacture. It is the ball now in use, and in adopting it again, the magnates rejected an offer from a Cincinnati firm of $325,000 in twenty annual installments of $16,250, of which half was to be in cash and half in baseballs supplied.

Heretofore it has been supposed, even among the players, that the big leagues paid about 97 cents apiece for balls which sell at retail at $1.25. But the developments of today show that they not only pay nothing, but receive all the balls they use free and a considerable cash sum besides.

The league schedule was adopted yesterday without change and the schedule already prepared and sent out stands for the season. This shows that all of the clubs will travel a grand total of 89,733 miles during the season.

Minnesota Loses.

Chicago, Feb. 16.—Northwestern university's basket ball team last night defeated the University of Minnesota team, 21 to 18.

Oakland, Cal., Feb. 16.—Johnny McCarthy of San Francisco won the decision over Morris Bloom of Chicago after a fast six round bout last night.

COMMENTS AND OPINIONS ON THE SPORTING PARADE

Athletics as They Apply to the Life and Welfare of a Nation—Harry Steinfeldt's Peeve—A Fergus Falls Hercules—Henry Ordemann to Learn New Tricks.

(BY BRUCE.)

Let's gather around and have a little heart-to-heart talk. Those talks do us all good now and then.

This talk is to be on athletics in general; on the moral influence, whether athletics are degrading, and where the stern line of suppression should be drawn.

The day before yesterday in one of the women's clubs of this city the subject of athletics came up. Some of the women present were for the suppression of fighting and wrestling, including the two sports in the same category. An opinion was expressed that both sports were degrading in their moral influences and had a bad effect on the community.

For one thing, going to the premises of the theory, wrestling and fighting are entirely different. The element of brutality has seldom been introduced into the wrestling sport in this country and no place has the sport been placed under the ban of the legal statutes.

But, turning to athletics in general—are they brutalizing? Is football a brutal sport? Is boxing brutal? Why would you class wrestling as brutal?

It is a far reaching question. It is one that has not been left alone for this generation to solve. The destinies of nations have ben more or less associated with athletic development, and today the physical development of the youth of this country is one that is taking importance right beside the question of the mental and ethical culture of the growing boy.

Stand on the corner of one of the crowded streets of any large city and observe closely the men who pass. See how many men have what might be called a fine physique. Apply the test right here in our own city. Observe the faces of many of the hurrying throng. Note the evidences of the dissipation of nerve force, the many outward evidences that no physical culture has been taken in regard to improving the body, that in many cases nature has been even hindered in doing its work.

There is a newer and finer philosophy coming into our education regarding the mission of the human body. There was an old and Puritanical notion holding that it really did not matter much what care a man or woman took of the body, so long as the mind and heart were kept clean and pure.

This later creed that is gaining strength every day, holds that the better care the man or woman takes of the body, the stronger, the finer and purer will be the mind that dwells in the temple of clay. The view we are taking of our athletic sports, the view we are going to take in the future, is bound to be associated deeply and vitally with the future development of the coming American men and women.

Schools and colleges are awakening to the seriousness of this great phase of the education of the youth of the land. The sports of the nations of the past have left their mark down through the many chapters, dating from the early days of Greece to the present time. The student of history who has gone below the surface of dates and romantic incidents is well sure of this fact.

Brutality in sports invariably mark the decay of the greater, more healthy, shall we say, games spirit of the people of any nation. We can turn to the decline of Rome, which was marked by the lust of its people for brutality in all the sports of the Roman arena. Skipping blithely along down the trail of history, it is only necessary to point to the decadence of Spain, the aversion of the Don for all healthy forms of athletic sports, and this same characteristic is plainly apparent in the case of the men of Mexico and the Latin countries of South America.

That is one of the lessons of history, the great recorder of the collective action of millions of people.

There is the everlasting question in regard to the brutality of football. It is a rough, manly, vigorous sport; loved by men because it is manly, often misunderstood by the man whose very body shivers in nervous chill at the thought of violent physical effort and shock of combat, because he has never taken the first normal care in the development of his body. Honestly, asking the question squarely, is the man knocking, crying out for the abolition of football, always a healthy, vigorous, even normal man?

It has been a matter of business of the writer to be present at many prize fights. Any opinion must necessarily be personal. It is the honest opinion of the writer that in the main prize fights are not brutal.

They are made brutal when two untrained boys are permitted to box; when the referee is a man of such poor judgment that he permits the combat to go to that point where one contestant so far overshades his beaten antagonist that the fight becomes brutal from the very fact that the beaten man is unable to defend himself and is too plucky to quit, something that American men hate to do.

Then we come to wrestling. It is only fair to ask that no sport be condemned without a hearing. When one knows not the difference between fighting and wrestling, it might be considered rather unfair to condemn the game of grappling.

Wrestling will live just as long as the promoters will conduct the contests fairly and squarely.

A wrestling match is not a fight; it is an exhibition of skill and strength. It develops men and makes their bodies strong and symmetrical. It is being taken up in our schools and colleges. When a true knowledge of wrestling is gained by men interested in athletics, when it is generally understood by all those discussing athletic sports with a view to their suppression, that wrestlers don't strike bite or gouge, and that it is a game where strength, skill and the highest development of the human body count, then the prejudice built upon the foundation of misinformation will be swept away.

Athletics are part of the national life. Do away with them and you are weakening the national vitality, are striking at a vital spot in the structure of a nation. Some day a bureau of physical education is going to be established by the government. The increase of flat chested men and the alarming increase of diseases that feed on wasted vitality, will eventually compel this very important step.

This question is a big, live, national one. It is not local in its application. It is one that should be approached wth the understanding of knowledge. No sport should be decried or condemned out of prejudice founded on ignorance of the subject.

If prize fighting is to continue in this country, it will do so because it has become legalized under conditions imposed by state and municipal authorities. Only recently, we have been given many evidences of the attention that is being given to it by legislators throughout the country. If boxing lives it will be because the element of brutality has been driven from the game.

Any plea for athletics is an earnest one, if sincere, for it is a question of grave importance in this rushing, exciting life of ours, where the fine body is ceasing to become an ideal, where health and in some cases the common rules of hygiene are forgotten in the material race for the things that money will buy.

Now that Carl Morris, who has taken the place in the public press that was formerly occupied by another fighter, and an awfully, good one, Theodore Roosevelt, has secured a trainer with a thoroughly and picturesque Irish name, we may all expect developments form the Oklahoma camp.

Let The Parade Proceed.

Verily it is to be hoped that the leash will be slipped from the dogs of war and that the Sapulpa Cyclone will get under way on the heroic hike through the ranks of the heavies that will lead up to the vanquishing of the cause of Lil' Artha. Sturdy and progressive action on the part of Carl will be hailed by interest extending from the higher political purity of Washington to the sanctum of the ethical culture circles of Boston.

We are all more or less human, and then, besides, the Mammoth Morris chap has been very well advertised.

Just at the present time Harry Steinfeldt of the Chicago Cubs is sending out letters from his Kentauk home, telling of his ambitions on the come-back path. It always seems that some mean and unfeeling person is throwing a banana peel on the prospective path of the come-back kids. A writer has come out and told of the great third baseman in the two leagues, and he never mentioned the name of Harry.

Discouragement Much for Harry

On the face of all the literature that Steiny has sat up nights to compose and direct to Charles Webb Murphy, this might be considered in the nature of a low-down trick.

Some one from Fergus Falls sends in an item connecting the name of Manley Pecoy with a lot of the Herculean stuff. This man of imagination calls him the Iowa Hercules. Manley may be there with the big biceps and the shoulder cords that resemble a huge coiling and writhing Phillppine reptile, but he should change his name to some cognomen carrying more romantic suggestion.

How's This Hero's Name?

If poor Pecoy would write to one of the adjective agents of a circus, enclosing stamp and small fee for return delivery, he might be sure of sailing the wrestling seas under a name calculated to inspire the people and also to adorn the billboards.

A Minneapolis dispatch states that ancient Farmer Burns, 50 years of age and as young as a farm-bred colt, may come to Minneapolis and train Henry Ordemann. Since his defeat at the hands of Kid Cutler, Henry and his advisors have been devising ways and means of circumventing the decree of fate.

Henry Is Going To Learn New Tricks.

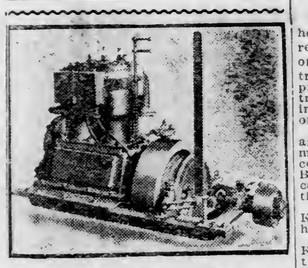

The Minneapolis hint also states that the Norsk may come to the Head of the Lakes and study from the advantage of a ringside seat the art of Brother Cutler.

Capitol engines have exclusive and distinct features that make them absolutely the best marine engine on the market. You will note that the fly-wheel is at the rear of the engine, that the reverse gear is combined with the fly-wheel, thus eliminating 80 to 100 pounds of weight. The fly-wheel being on rear of engine takes up any sudden jar from propeller instead of same reaching the crankshaft. Capitol engines have their own oiling system, which is absolute and simple, using the same oil over and over which makes a big saving during a season's run. Capitol engines come with complete outfit, ready to install, including a universal shaft coupling and copper gasoline piping and fittings. Get a Capitol and all you need is some gasoline and not much of that, as Capitols go farther on a gallon of gasoline than any other engine. Call at our show room and see Capitols in operation.

Rheumatism Comes From Bad Kidneys

Once Your Kidneys Work Properly, Rheumatism, Kidney Disease and Bladder Trouble Disappear—How to Cure Yourself.

It is no longer necessary to spend months and months undergoing a complicated treatment for rheumatism, kidney or bladder trouble, or spend a good many dollars in doctors' bills.

A new treatment can now be obtained which seems to act more like a marvel than a medicine. This treatment has produced such satisfactory results in a short time that it is now guaranteed from first to last.

There should be no more doubt about the rapid cure of rheumatism, no fears of the fatal termination of treacherous kidney disease or dropsy.

Rheumatism means nothing more nor less than that your kidneys do not work properly. Your blood passes through the kidneys hundreds of times a day to be filtered and purified. When the kidneys are weak, the poisons are not taken out of the blood as they should be. This leads to various diseases, such as rheumatism, terrible Bright's disease, diabetes, dropsy and bladder trouble.

The new guaranteed treatment is Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills. One day's use of them will prove their remarkable effect. M. T. Ridenour of Lima, Ohio, says: "When I feel bad in my back, I just take a couple of Derby's Kidney Pills and get immediate relief."

If you have rheumatism anywhere, back pains, cloudy, foul urine, pains in the bladder, Bright's disease or diabetes, put your whole confidence in Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills, and you will not be disappointed.

Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills are sold at all drug stores—60 pills—10 days' treatment—25 cents, or we will send them direct from the laboratory of Derby Medicine Co., Eaton Rapids, Mich., prepaid if you wish. If you want to try them first, just tell your druggist to give you a free sample package.

You will enjoy living when your room is in the handy, fireproof

WOMAN'S REALM.

Several subjects which will be of much interest to women will come up at the different meetings of the Northeastern Minnesota Educational association which will begin this evening with a reception at the high school building for the visitors in the city. The range trains to the city all day have been crowded with teachers and other educational workers who will attend the meetings.

Mrs. Frances Squire Potter of Chicago, who is so widely known as an interested and powerful worker for women and children will arrive tomorrow morning and will give an address on "The Regenerating Circle" at the afternoon meeting which will begin at 2:00 in the auditorium of the Central high school. Mrs. Potter is such an eminent speaker and will be remembered here with interest from her previous visits and talks here, that a great many women who are not active in the educational work here will attend the meetings.

Mothers will be interested in the discussion on "The Social Side of High School" which will be led by Superintendent W. C. Cobb of Brainerd, and Miss Charlotte Johnson of Chisholm.

Miss Elizabeth Mascord, kindergarten director of Hibbing, will read a paper on "The Melting Pot," or the influence of kindergarten and primary school effort in making American citizens of the foreign born children.

"The Child, Literature and the School," will be the subject discussed by Miss M. Adelaide Holten, primary supervisor of Minneapolis city schools. Miss Holten is well known in educational circles and her talk ought to prove one of the most interesting of the course.

"Household Economics" ought to be a topic which would appeal to the women strongly. This address will be delivered by Mrs. Margaret Blair, department of Domestic Arts and Science, school of Agriculture, of the Minnesota university and a round table talk will follow, conducted by Mrs. Blair. An opportunity will be given to ask questions and to discuss topics of interest. All members of women's clubs or other women interested will be welcome to attend the meeting of this section.

APPARENT FAILURE.

Fourth Lecture in the Series on Browning.

"What of the man who through weakness or willfulness is overcome by temptation and sinks lower than the brute instead of rising from the brute to God? It is this phase of the human problem and Browning's answer to the questions thus raised that we shall study tonight." With this remark Rev. John Walker Powell opened his fourth Browning lecture at the Endion Methodist church last evening before a good-sized audience. "Apparent Failure" was the subject of the talk.

"First of all, let us recognize that Browning does not shrink from facing the problem in all its intensity," he said. "He paints all sorts and conditions of men, from the whitest saint, through every gradation of ignorance and weakness and folly and sin down to the very depths of moral degradation. Let us look briefly at some of these types. In 'The Confessional' we have the girl who yields to the temptation of illicit love and likewise the intriguing priest of the Inquisition, who makes us of her confession to entrap her lover in an offense against the church and secure his death. In 'A Forgiveness,' a wronged husband who has discovered the infidelity of his wife and has murdered her for it, makes his confession to the very priest who was her lover, gloating the while over his writhing victim. In 'My Last Duchess' the cold-blooded, cynical nobleman who describes his wife, before her portrait, to the envoy of the man whose daughter he now seeks to marry, unconsciously reveals the gentle sweetness and beauty of the late duchess. In 'St. Praxed's' the dying bishop gives instructions regarding his tomb to his sons, euphoniously called 'nephews.' Of this poem Ruskin said: 'I know no other piece of modern English, prose or poetry, in which there is so much told as in these lines of the Renaissance spirit—its worldliness, inconsistency, pride, ignorance of itself, love of art, of luxury and of good Latin.'

"Now what are we to think of all these folk? How far can we maintain our optimism in the face of these things?

"To begin with, Browning shows that no sin, however blindly or ignorantly done, fails of its penalty, that is to say of its proper consequences in life. It is through these consequences that men learn the evil of sin, and come to appreciate its destructive power.

"But this is precisely the chief lesson that men need in the moral sphere. Accordingly Browning bel'eves that when this lesson shall have been fully learned by all men, the end of life will be achieved. Some men learn through their struggle with sin and its penalty. He refuses to believe that any soul can ultimately be lost, but he declares that the soul that persists in its rebelliousness will have to pass into

"'That sad, obscure, sequestered state
Where God unmakes, but to remake
The soul
He else made first in vain, which must not be.'"

SOCIAL EVENING.

Lakeside Circle Entertained By Mrs. Howard.

About fifty guests enjoyed a pleasant social evening given by the Lakeside circle of St. John's Episcopal church last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Cook Howard. Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Howard were Rev. Quinn and Mrs. Bonham, president of the circle.

The latter is taken from Browning's "Pied Piper of Hamlin." He spoke of the change in the plays now and in those of Shakespeare's time and noted the fact that in the days of Shakespeare all feminine characters were taken by men and boys while now a great many important male characters are taken by women.

C. A. Knippenberg sang "The King of the Main," and responded to an encore with "Dalsies."

THE EVENING STORY

TIME TO CAST AWAY STONES

By David Lyall.

"I never heard so much nonsense and, what's more, I don't believe it," said Miss Ellen Purves so emphatically that her thin lips came together in a sort of snap. "Mind, it's my cousin, John Purves, you are speaking about, Mrs. Carmichael, and though he is getting on in years, I have never heard it said that he is dotty."

Mrs. Carmichael of the trimming shop, smiled at the sharp words of Miss Purves, and moved a little nearer the light, to see that she was matching her scrap of cloth properly.

"I'm only telling you what I've heard, Miss Purves; but I think it's true."

"True! I tell you it can't be true! My cousin, John Purves, to build a new house at Piedmont at his time of life! Pray, why would he do sich a thing?"

Mrs. Carmichael hesitated a moment. In two minds about the matter. Should she or should she not tell Miss Purves the rumors of which the whole town and countryside were full?

"Mr. Purves is not an old man yet, Miss Purves. I've never seen him look fresher or more attractive than he did today."

It was such an extraordinary speech that Ellen Purves stared in mute astonishment at Mrs. Carmichael, and then changed the subject, with a wave of her hand.

"If that's the best ye can do wi' the worstad, Mrs. Carmichael, I'll have to try Grindlay's. And take my advice, don't spread silly tattle. It has a way of comin' home to roost."

Mrs. Carmichael merely smiled as the small, erect figure of the irate lady passed out of the door.

"Poor girl," she murmured. "I wonder what she'll say when she learns the whole truth, and who will be the first to tell her? I couldna do it myself."

Ellen Purves standing a moment on the edge of the pavement swept the street from end to end with her penetrating eyes. All the country seemed to be in. Up by the hotel and the market were the usual little groups of agriculturalists discussing the season and its prospects.

Presently, she beheld the figure of her cousin John Purves, the wealthy bachelor of the community, emerge from the door of the hotel and cross the street. He was very well dressed, never had she seen him look so handsome. He was not a young man; by some he was considered an old one. Ellen herself knew his age to a day, and that he would be 63 on the 19th of the month. She grasped her umbrella firmly in her hand, and stalked up the middle of the street, until she brought herself into the line of his vision. Then he smiled, and with a word to his companion stepped forward to greet her.

"Hullo, Ellen! Where have you been all this time, and what are you doing here today?"

"My weekly shoppin', John," she answered.

"Have you had your dinner yet, Ellen?"

"Not yet."

"Then come to the hotel with me, and we'll eat together."

"John! It's no place for a woman."

"Oh, they'll have a quiet corner somewhere. Besides, I want to speak to you."

So great was her curiosity that she accepted an invitation which at another time she would probably have declined with scorn. In ten minutes' time they were seated at a small round table in the one private dining room at the hotel.

"I heard a very queer thing since I've been in town this mornin', John," said Miss Purves presently. "It was in Mrs. Carmichael's shop. She told me you are going to build a new house."

"It's true this time, Ellen," he answered calmly, but without lifting his eyes from the plate.

"Whatever for, and what ails the old house, John?

"It's ramshackle, damp, uninhabitable."

"An' it might serve you to the end, that's what I think. A sheer waste of money, and what for?"

John went on steadily at his plate for a few moments, and on his kind, fine face there dwelt a very odd expression. He was a shy man, and all his life long had stood in some awe of his cousin Ellen's sharp tongue. But she was all the feminine kin he had and she must be told.

"Had Mrs. Carmichael any more gossip about Pitrane when she was at it?" he asked at length.

"No, and that she had not; and I'm thinking it will be some time before she turns over silly tittle-tattle to me again."

"But it was true this time, Ellen," he reminded her.

"The more the pity. I don't want to speak about it, John. If you want to scatter your money, at least you might do it to some purpose, an' to do some good with it."

"The Proverbs says there's a time to cast away stones, and a time to gather them together," he remarked.

"I read my Bible with a discernin' mind, John Purves. By the time you get a new house built on the place, there'll be somebody comin' after you, Sandy Kinross' daughter very likely."

"That was a good bit of meat. A bit of cheese, my good lady, an' a cup of coffee."

She removed the meat course, and set the other things on the table.

"Will you come up in the morning, Ellen? There's somebody to be there I would like you to meet."

"Who is it?" she asked, fixing him with merciless gray eyes, so like him, but without their softening gleam.

"You'll see when you get there. I'm to be married, Ellen, and that's the secret of the casting away of stones."

"To be married, John Purves, at your time of life! It's sheer nonsense you're talking now, surely."

"No, it's the truth, Ellen, and my only regret is that I have taken such a long time to bring my mind to it; but I suppose it was because the right woman never happened to come along. I've never had a home. What does a man body dwelling by himself know about a home, or a lonely woman either, for that matter."

"Who is she?"

"Come up the morn, and you'll see," he said, and the twinkle came in his eyes again.

"That's not a way to speak to me, John. Are you making a fool of yourself or are you not? If it's a flip of a girl I'll never forgive you, nor darken your door again."

He walked to the window, and there was a shyness upon him like that of any school boy. To name her by name was a sheer impossibility, but at the moment fortune favored him.

"Come here, Ellen; here she is in the street at this very moment."

Ellen Purves skipped across the floor with a lack of dignity for which she afterwards reproached herself.

"Where is she? I see nobody except Miss Susan in her cart."

"Well, that's her."

For the space of a full minute Ellen Purves did not speak a word, but her eyes never for a moment left the face of the woman who sat in the open trap before the door of the hotel, waiting for her order to be fulfilled. She saw a straight, erect figure in a driving coat, a fine, strong, kindly face under the neat hat with the pheasant's wing—not a young face, by any means, but one full of strength and courage, and a hint of womanly tenderness about the lines of the mobile mouth. Miss Susan Seton, the proudest woman in the county, if the poorest for her station, to become the wife of John Purves! It was unthinkable.

"You are going to marry Susan Seton, John?" she gasped. "How did ye ever have the face to ask her?"

"I don't know," he said humbly. "She's a lonely woman, and I'm a lonely man. At least, we are going to try it, and it has made an uncommon difference to us both."

At that moment she looked up, and seeing her lover at the window, smiled.

"A lonely woman she was. "Well, I could tell her she is not the only one," said Ellen Purves with a bitterness that her cousin must have noticed had he been less happily absorbed. How could he tell that she had loved him all her life.

The Doctor

Pigeon Breast.

In the case of rickety children one of the commonest deformities caused by their condition is that popularly known as "pigeon breast." What happens is that the ribs are flattened at the sides, so that the chest becomes at once narrower from side to side and deeper from back to front. The breast bone appears too prominent and the lower part of the stomach projects. The child generally complains of shortness of breath and sometimes also palpitation. Efforts should always be made to correct the condition by means of plentiful nourishing food, abundance of open air exercise, and properly directed gymnastic and respiratory exercises. Sometimes nothing is of much avail, and the patient grows up rather deformed in consequence, liable also as middle age is reached to suffer specially from bronchitis and emphysema.

The Value of Walking.

The man, or woman either, who has cultivated the habit of the daily walk has minimized the chances of falling a victim to a good many different ills, and those who have not yet got into the habit cannot do better than begin straight away. Winter is a good time for walking; there is no dust or hot sun, both of which sometimes prove rather a drawback to one's enjoyment, and the cold, sharp air makes brisk movement a pleasure.

When it is impossible to keep warm indoors, even with the help of a fire, you can do it easily enough outside, swinging steadily along, sometimes it may be without an overcoat, provided there is no wind. Every day a short walk should be taken, and the distance, when feasible, may be increased with advantage till tramps of ten miles or more are indulged in without undue fatigue.

But this must be done gradually; the man who, after sitting for months at his desk and neglecting exercise almost entirely, suddenly sets out on a twenty-mile tramp will be only upset and put out of gear. Begin with a short distance, and above all keep the practice up regularly, and you will soon feel a different being; your liver will work like a clock, the blood will be purified and will course gently through every vein, while the brain will feel as if swept clear of cobwebs, and invigorated to perform the daily task without fatigue.

Within bounds I would counsel walking in all weathers, even in the rain. It will do you good, and the habit of going out, wet or shine, will make you far less susceptible to ordinary colds.

WHEAT UP; SHORTS RUN

Market Advances Sharply---Champ Clark's Speech Bull Factor.

It May Hinder Reciprocity---Rains Fall in the Southwest.

Duluth Board of Trade, Feb. 16.—Wheat advanced today sharply. May gained 1¼c and July made a similar advance. Cash was ½c under May. Oats closed ⅜c up, rye and barley were unchanged. Durum gained 1 c.

Flaxseed was unchanged. There was some buying by crushers. May closed $2.67 bid. Cash equalled May. Most of the flax in store here has been sold for unchanged. Durum gained 1c.

The market has seldom been influenced by politics or impending legislation as at present. The bulge today was partly influenced by the seriousness with which the humorous remarks of Champ Clark were regarded by many Englishmen and Canadians and the implied rebuke conveyed in Mr. Taft's suggestion that the incident was regrettable. Mr. Clark, it appears, jokingly alluded to a United States of the Western hemisphere, of which he might be president. English and Canadian newspaper men lifted this thought from Mr. Clark's speech and telegraphed it to their papers. The journals opposed to reciprocity put especial emphasis on Mr. Clark's remarks.

The market regarded the situation as a possible barrier to the reciprocity agreement and shorts ran to cover at the opening. People who had got rid of their speculative lines jumped to the long side and the shorts were forced to run. The market advanced sharply. On the bulge there was renewed selling, but the strength of the market caused the eleventh hour shorts to buy back their wheat and this accumulation started another upturn.

Aside from the political situation, the market had chiefly bearish factors to consider. Within the last three days Kansas has received liberal moisture and additional rains fell last night. There was moisture in some parts of Nebraska. Kansas, Texas and Oklahoma. More rain or snow is predicted for the Southwest tonight. Colder weather will follow.

Argentine shipments will show an increase of 1,400,000 bu this week it is believed. Plowing in the northern part of that republic is proceeding under favorable circumstances. Cables came higher on account of cold weather in Russia and the United Kingdom. The Black sea is blocked with ice and shipping is at a standstill. The Buenos Ayres market is firmer and new offers of wheat are higher.

The receipts of wheat here and at Minneapolis are exceedingly small. The sharp decrease in local receipts are a result of the higher cash market at Minneapolis yesterday and before. The local market walked ahead of Minneapolis early today and seemed to be stronger on account of heavy short covering. Chicago and the Southwest were not as strong as the Northwest. It was popularly supposed that many Canadian hedges in the Northwestern markets were being removed, contributing to the strength in the Northwest.

The Price Current of Cincinnati says that snow and rain give additional encouragement regarding the general situation and the outlook for the wheat plant in the Southwest is regarded as fully up to the average at this period of the year. B. W. Snow in a report to Bartlett-Frazier said that his reports from the Southwest indicate that the ground has been broken and that there has been a great improvement in the wheat. Spring reports, he thinks, will probably show the wheat up to normal on the tremendous acreage that was seeded last fall.

MARKET GOSSIP

Somers-Jones: "The barley situation is again becoming acute. Maltsters are anxious buyers, fearing a shortage of supplies before the end of the season. There have been heavy malt sales, and consumers evidently are beginning to realize that the situation is a serious one as far as supplies are concerned until another crop is available. The market shows an advance of from 12@15c a bu in the last three or four days, 97c being paid today for several round lots of from 25,000 to 50,000 bu.

The Winnipeg Grain Growers' Guide, a weekly journal devoted to the interests of farmers of the Canadian Northwest, has the following on its front page cover this week:

"The proposed new tariff arrangements with the United States will prove of much benefit to the people of Canada generally. Its chief weakness is that it does not go far enough. Manufactured goods are still to have very high protection, for which the consumer must continue to pay. There is still hope for some relief during the present session of parliament by an increase in the British preference. Every friend of the Canadian people in the house of commons should take a firm stand for lowering the duty on British imports. If congress ratifies the new tariff, one more step will have been made toward democracy in Canada. There are still many steps to go. Only by every man putting his shoulder to the wheel will progress continue."

Capt. J. M. Phillips of Newton, Kan., says that the wheat is not up yet in 70 per cent of the acreage that produced the wheat crop of Kansas last year. Nevertheless, he believes that it will not be possible for Kansas to lose as much wheat area as in 1910. The rainfall thus far he counts insufficient.

Chicago Record-Herald: "I cannot see where the recent decline has improved our flour trade a particle," said B. A. Eckhart of the Eckhart-Swan Milling company. "We must go to a price that will give us an export outlet. We have accumulated too much high-priced wheat in this country, carrying it here, while other countries have been supplying the demand. The carrying charges that are running on the property will probably eat up a good part of any possible advance that we may have from any cause before the new crop comes in and it looks as though we would have to carry a big surplus of old wheat into the new crop."

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "The wheat market at the opening was easy with prices 1d lower, new crop with the principal pressure in March. Weakness was in the way of realizing due to the weakness in American markets yesterday, favorable advices from Argentine and forecast of heavier Argentine shipments this week and the favorable reports from the American winter wheat belt. Following the opening there was a heavy covering movement by shorts and also prominent buying, and prices quickly advanced 1¼d to ⅞d with the principal support in March. Buying was due to the very cold weather in the United Kingdom and reports from Russia that the heavy ice in the Black sea will delay shipments, improved demand for Australian cargoes at the recent decline and the comparative strength in Buenos Ayres at the close yesterday with Plate offers firmer and not pressed for sale. Cargoes were more firmly held with a good demand from the continent and the market appears oversold. At mid-day the market was strong and ¼@½d to ⅞d up from the opening and ¼d to ½d higher than yesterday. The corn market opened ¼d lower with America and later advanced ½d in sympathy with wheat.

Foreign wheat markets closed: Paris, ¼@¾c lower, flour, unchanged to ½c lower; Antwerp, ⅝c lower; Liverpool, ⅝@¾d up, corn unchanged to ¼d lower; Berlin, ⅜c up; Budapesth, ½c down.

After the close The Herald received this wire from Chicago: Views are very much unsettled in regard to the outcome of reciprocity agitation, somewhat disturbed by the renewal of anti-option discussion at Washington and bearish crop situation somewhat offset by the decrease in stocks of 200,000 bu at Minneapolis and good milling demand for the cash wheat at May price to 2 cents premium. The little scare of trouble between Russia and China contributed to the bull news later in the session and caused a slight turn, but a good many in the local trade are inclined to sell on all hard spots.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Prices React From Wednesday and Close Higher.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 16.—Wheat prices reacted from yesterday's new low. May closed 1⅛c higher than yesterday, July 1⅛c higher and September, ¾c higher. The market was nervous and wild. Fluctuations were sharp although not in especially wide range. Local elevator stocks of wheat decreased 400,000 bu for five days. Washington advices were not as favorable for the reciprocity treaty and this had a strengthening effect on the market. Minneapolis today received 139 cars of wheat against 188 a year ago; Duluth, 56 against 32 and Winnipeg, 107 against 133. May wheat opened, 97c; high, 98¼c; low, 97c; closed 97½c; July opened 95c; high, 99¾c; low, 95c; closed 98¾@98⅞c. September opened 92c; high, 94c; low, 92c; closed 93¾c.

Cash wheat was steady to a trifle firmer today. Demand was strong for choice spring grades and slow for lower varieties. Both local and country millers were good buyers. No. 1 northern sold for the even May contract to 2c above. Closed: No. 1 hard, 98¾c; No. 1 northern, 98@99¾c to arrive, 98@99¾c; No. 2 northern, 95@97⅜c; to arrive, 95@97¾c; No. 3 wheat, 92@95⅝c; No. 3 yellow corn, 42@42½c; No. 3 white oats, 29@29½c; No. 2 rye, 77c.

Millstuffs — Shipments, 1,956 tons; brokers underselling mills caused easier undertone. Eastern demand nil; western demand good. Market not as strong and quotations lowered. Bran in 100-pound sacks, $21@21.50.

Flour—Mills are having hard time to get enough business to keep from closing down. Demand slow and shipping directions very lax. Small export sales. Prices unchanged. Shipments, 53,012 bbl. First patents, $4.45@4.85; second patents, $4.35@4.75; first clears, $2.95@3.35; second clears, $1.95@2.55.

Flax—Receipts, 15 cars; year ago, 17; shipments, 2. Demand continued strong for both spot and to arrive at the even Duluth May price, closing $2.67.

Barley—Receipts, 35 cars; year ago, 39; shipments, 36. The barley market held about steady today. Closing prices were unchanged from yesterday. Malting barley in strong demand and feeding grades slow. Closing range, 63@94c.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 16.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: While there was a good attendance of buyers at today's sale, they did not seem anxious to fill their orders and the bidding was comparatively weak. While a good number of horses changed hands, the movement was not what it should be and dealers had a good number of offerings left over. Values received were unsatisfactory to both shippers and dealers and buyers were slow to take advantage of the situation.

Cotton Market.

New York, Feb. 16.—The cotton market opened barely steady at a decline of 10 to 14 points with May deliveries touching 13.70 or 18 points below the high record of the session, under continued heavy liquidation, stop loss orders and bear pressure inspirted by easy cables, talk of more rain in Texas and further nervousness over that Scott bill. Covering was active at the decline, however, English spot sales were larger, the official estimate for today's port receipts were under last year's figures and prices rallied quite sharply after the initial break, although it looks as if there was still some long cotton coming out on advances.

Futures closed steady; closing bids: February, 13.60; March, 13.68; April, 13.78; May, 13.85; June, 13.88; July, 13.89; August, 13.58; October, 12.65; December, 12.56.

Spot closed steady; middling uplands, 14.00; middling gulf, 14.25; sales, 1,000 bales.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Confident of a Favorable Reaction, Many Traders Buy Wheat.

Chicago, Feb. 16.—Confidence that some reaction would follow the recent 12-cent break in wheat made a majority of traders take the buying side today. In consequence, the market was given a material lift. Prospects of smaller world shipments helped the bulls. Forwardings from Russia, it was reported, were being delayed by heavy ice in the Black sea. The opening was a shade to ⅜@½c higher. May started at 91¼c to 91⅝@91⅞c, a gain of ⅜c to ⅝@½c, dropped to 91⅜c, and rallied to 91⅝c.

Russo-Chinese war talk and rumors of export sales twisted prices higher. Denials of anti-option danger helped. The close was firm with May at 91⅞@92c, a net gain of ½@⅝c.

Wet weather west of the Mississippi river resulted in a little advance for corn, but selling on the part of pit traders nullified all of the effect. May opened ⅛c to ⅛@¼c up at 48⅝@48¾c to 48¾c, and fell back to 48½@48⅝c.

Although oats were dull, prices showed a tendency to rise with wheat. May started 1-16c to ⅛@¼c higher at 31½c to 31⅝c and kept within that range for some time.

Later the market rallied with wheat and because of rains making many roads impassable in Illinois and the Ohio valley. The close was firm with May ¾c net higher at 48⅞@49c.

A bulge in the hog market sent pork upward, but liberal offerings held down other products. First sales were 10c higher to 2½c down with May options at $17.65 to $17.70 for pork, $9.42½ to $9.45 for lard and $9.45 for ribs.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Bears Hold Full Sway and Hammer the Prices Vigorously.

No Support From Banking Interests and Close Very Weak.

New York, Feb. 16.—Missouri Pacific was again the feature of the stock market at the opening today and was feverish on heavy dealings. It opened with a sale of 2,000 shares at a gain of ⅝ and advanced to a point over last night's close, but quickly relapsed to a fraction under yesterday's final price. The general market was steady. Northern Pacific gained a point, Chesapeake & Ohio ⅝ and Reading and Union Pacific ¼.

Missouri Pacific was offered in such large amounts that it broke steadily until it sold 2 points below yesterday's close. Bear operators seized the opportunity to make a drive at the general list and forced a substantial reaction. Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, St. Paul, Lehigh Valley, Reading, Wabash preferred and Interborough Metropolitan preferred sold 1 to 1½ under last night's close. General Chemical opened 3 points higher at 125 and jumped to 135 on the next transaction. Liquidation of long stocks in anticipation of possible decisions by the supreme court on Monday in the more important anti-trust cases was largely responsible for the general reaction in the active issues during the morning session. Losses were more general and substantial than on any day in several weeks. Bear operators put out extensive lines and uncovering of stop-loss orders gave added impetus to the downward movement.

Continued heavy offerings of Missouri Pacific and its material decline gave color to statements that on account of yesterday's developments inside selling of this and other stocks had already been begun. The list reached a substantially lower level during the second hour with nearly all the active stocks selling from 1 to 2 points below yesterday's closing. St. Paul, Lehigh Valley, Missouri Pacific and Reading were the chief sufferers. Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis advanced 3 points. Bonds were steady.

The market closed very weak. The bears held full sway and hammered prices vigorously. The absence of any support from the banking interests which had been behind the recent rise in prices, encouraged the bears to sell stocks recklessly and prices dropped 2 to 3 points in many cases. A report of the severe illness of a large capitalist, which was subsequently denied, lent its force to the decline.

NOT ALL HERALD AD-READERS MAY BE WISE BUYERS BUT ALL WISE BUYERS ARE HERALD AD-READERS

IS THE BUYING FOR YOUR HOME DONE INTELLIGENTLY?

Some housewives, harrassed to the verge of nervous breakdown by trivial annoyances, devote no real attention to the "buying" problem. They buy when they HAVE TO—perhaps at "the nearest place"—when, very likely, better values and lower prices are advertised by three or four different stores.

The housewife who does not give as much attention to a study of the ads as she gives to other things in the daily routine, that are of half as much importance, will never find any real interest in the business of home-making.

The ad-studying housewife buys INTELLIGENTLY. She knows her "market" as well as any broker or merchant knows his. And she will never stop to tell you how "hard it is to find anything in the stores nowadays that one wants and can still afford to buy." For, to a Herald ad-reader, that is not such a hard task!

CASHMAN TARIFF BILL MAY GET DEATH BLOW BY ATTORNEY GENERAL

Effect on the Pending Railroad Rate Cases Is Feared.

Bill on Express Company Deliveries Favored By Committee.

Opposition to Borgen's Mechanics' Lien Bill Is Withdrawn.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

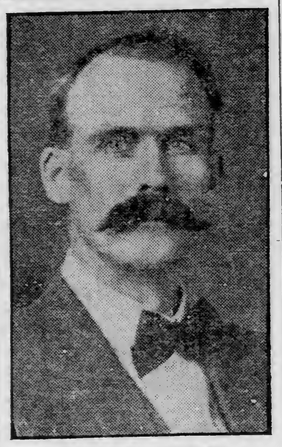

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Unless he finds decisions likely to change his mind, Attorney General Simpson will within a day or two hand down an opinion that is likely to prove a death blow to the Cashman distance tariff bill. The opinion will be in response to a request from Chairman Sundberg of the senate railroad committee, which has recommended the bill to pass.

Aside from the broader questions of whether the Cashman bill really reaches the admitted evils at which it is aimed, and whether it does not involve injuries at least as great as those imposed by existing conditions, a vital question in this matter is the effect the passage of the Cashman bill, or any other bill affecting freight rates in this state, will have on the pending cases in the federal courts involving the state's right to regulate railroad rates.

Attorney General Simpson's present opinion is that the passage of the Cashman bill would have a disastrous

MEETS INSANITY PLEA IN CRIMINAL CASES

KERRY E. CONLEY, Representative From Rochester, Who Would Prevent Accused Persons Escaping on Ground of Insanity.

CHINESE HAVE TWO WEEKS TO DECIDE

If They Fail to Act Then, Russia Will Carry Out Threat.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 17.—The Novoe Vremya in discussing today the announced purpose of Russia to make a military demonstration in Ili province in Chinese Turkestan, describes the note presented at Pekin by Minister Korotovitz as a semi-ultimatum, as it does not specifically make the term by which China must comply with the demands of St. Petersburg.

The paper adds, however, that if the Chinese government fails to act before the lapse of a fortnight the semi-ultimatum will be amplified.

When, under the treaty of 1881, Russia withdrew from the Ili region, it was in consideration of certain political and trade concessions in that and the adjoing Chinese possessions. It is now asserted that China has not kept faith in the matter of the treaty stipulations. Hence the forthcoming return of Russian troops to Ili and a probable occupancy pending a new and more definite understanding between the two governments.

OREGON PLAN IS FAVORED

House Elections Committee Decides to Report the Keefe Bill.

Also Recommends Sullivan Bill for the Referendum Only.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Oregon plan of popular election of United States senators will come before the house within a short time, and there is a good chance that it will pass.

The house elections committee yesterday afternoon voted to recommend for passage the bill by Representative Joseph R. Keefe of North Redwood, providing for the Oregon plan. Representative Campbell, who has a bill before the committee of a similar character, withdrew it in favor of Mr. Keefe's bill. Representative Kunze of Minneapolis also had a similar bill before the committee, but the committee selected Representative Keefe's bill to go before the house.

The Keefe bill provides that candidates for United States senator shall be nominated at primary elections, and that the successful primary election candidates shall be voted on by the people at the general election. Candidates for the legislature are required to sign one of two statements. Statement No. 1 binds the candidate, if elected, to vote for the choice of the people as indicated at the polls. Most candidates sign this pledge. Statement No. 2 is simply to the effect that the candidate will regard the verdict of the people on the senatorship as advisory.

The house will also have to consider shortly the issue of direct legislation.

The elections committee yesterday afternoon, after a long debate, decided

LOOSENESS CENSURED

House Takes Action on Publishing of Constitutional Amendments.

Senate for Exclusive Use of Minnesota Materials in Buildings.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.—Debate consumed most of the time in both houses this morning. The house spent an hour and a half over the majority and minority reports of the committee on public accounts and expenditures relating to the bill to pay the cost of publishing the constitutional amendments last fall, and finally, after voting down the minority report, 33 to 81, adopted the majority report. The minority report, while censuring the illegality of the practices criticised by the majority report, recommended that the newspapers, which published the matter in good faith, be paid. The majority report as adopted provides that only such payments shall be made as the law authorizes. However, the house will probably frame up a bill to make full payment, this morning's action being intended largely to censure the looseness of previous practices.

The senate had a long debate on pensions, based on the resolution introduced by Senator Anderson urging congress to pass the Sulloway bill increasing pensions. A motion to suspend the rules and put the resolution on its final passage was lost, and that will probably be the end of the resolution.

WILL RESUBMIT TO THE PEOPLE

Voters to Say Whether Maine Shall Remain a Prohibition State.

Augusta, Me., Feb. 17.—Whether the prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor shall continue under the Constitution of the state of Maine, is to be determined by the voters of the state at a special election next September. By a vote of 105 to 40, the house of representatives yesterday passed the senate resolution resubmitting to popular vote the Constitutional prohibitory amendment adopted in 1884.

In 1851 the legislature of the state of Maine adopted a prohibitory liquor law and in the following thirty years it was more or less enforced. Gen. Neal Dow was the father of the measure and it was due to his efforts that in 1884 a constitutional amendment was submitted to the people and carried and the manufacture and sale of liquor was forever prohibited in the state. The enforcement of the law depended upon local sentiment and in some places in the state bars were run, being merely screened by a cigar or confectionery store in front. The liquor dealers were fined regularly which acted as a sort of license. In other localities the law was strictly enforced. The law provided for liquor agencies in the cities where liquor could be obtained for medicinal or mechanical purposes and these agencies did a land office business. A number of years ago the violations of the law became so frequent and pronounced that the Sturgis law was enacted giving greater powers for the enforcement of the law and resulted in reducing the traffic to a large extent.

TERMINAL RAILROAD DEFEATED

Supreme Court Upholds Contention of the City of Duluth.

Duluth Terminal Road Excluded From Access to Interstate Bridge.

Cannot Condemn Right-of-Way Without Getting City Franchise.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supreme court, in a decision written by Justice Simpson and handed down this morning, holds that a railroad cannot condemn a right-of-way along a city street without regard to the wishes of the community, but must obtain a franchise from the council. This sustains the position taken by Former City Attorney C. S. Wilson, City Attorney Bert Fesler and others, and for which the city of Duluth has been fighting for some time.

The case is that of the Duluth Terminal Railway company against the City of Duluth. It was tried in the lower court before Judge H. B. Dibell by Former City Attorney Wilson, and

BANKERS EXPLAIN CLEARING HOUSE

New Yorkers Disturbed By the Rumors of an Investigation.

Washington, Feb. 17.—New York bankers, disturbed by a report that the department of justice was about to investigate the New York city clearing house for alleged violations of the Sherman anti-trust law, have submitted to Attorney General Wickersham a brief explaining the organization and functions of the association. James M. Beck, former assistant attorney general, prepared the statement for the clearing house and the supplementary statement for the American Bankers' association was prepared and presented by Thomas B. Paton.

The New York bankers took alarm at a recent attempt to have a grand jury investigate the clearing house association at New Orleans. In that case Attorney General Wickersham held that the New Orleans clearing house did not come within the scope of interstate commerce and ordered the proceedings dismissed.

So far as could be learned today no proceedings against the New York clearing house are contemplated, but the bankers explained they wished to present their case as a precautionary measure.

Jury Returns Verdict in Celebrated Poisoning Case in Russia.

Penal Servitude for De Lassy; Imprisonment for Expert Poisoner.

Verdict of Not Guilty Returned in Case of Mme. Muravieff.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 17.—A verdict of guilty was returned last night against Count O'Brien de Lassy and Dr. Pantchenko for the poisoning of Count Vassilli Bouturlin. In the case of Mme. Muravieff, a verdict of not guilty was returned. The jury recommended mercy in the case of Pantchenko on account of extenuating circumstances. De Lassy was sentenced to penal servitude for life and Pantchenko to fifteen years' imprisonment.

The trial aroused enormous interest and developed some startling testimony. Prior to the beginning of the proceedings Pantchenko made a confession in which he accused De Lassy of hiring him to poison Count Vassilli, who was heir to Gen. Bouturlin's millions. De

CLING TO A TREE FOR MANY HOURS

Wheatland, Iowa, Feb. 17.—Chilled, numb and hungry after clinging for thirty-six hours to the branches of a tree, Harold Tyron and Charles Rice, trappers living on an island in the Wapsipinicon river, were rescued late last night.

Tyron and Rice were camping on the island and woke up Wednesday to find their boat swept away, their tent surrounded by water and the river full of floating ice. The water rose rapidly and the men were obliged to climb a tree for safety. They remained in the tree until rescued by Fred Schocker in a skiff.

TRAINER SHOOTS HIS FAVORITE HORSE AND THEN TAKES OWN LIFE.

Pine Bluff, Ark., Feb. 17.—John Mullins, widely known as a trainer of trotting horses, killed his favorite racing mare yesterday and then sent a bullet into his own brain. Master and beast were both dead when a negro stable hand, attracted by the reports of the pistol, reached the horse's stall, the body of the man lying across that of the horse. No motive is known. Among other horses Mullins trained the pacer, Billy H., which established a world's record at Buffalo several years ago.

AVIATOR PLUNGES INTO HUDSON RIVER

Motor Stops While Inexperienced Airman Is 1,000 Feet High.

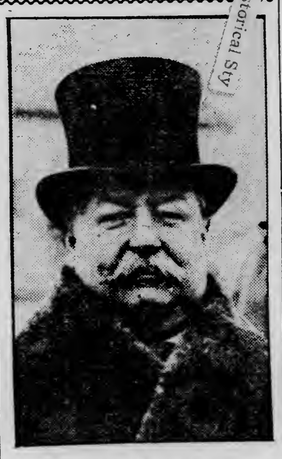

New York, Feb. 17.—Charles F. Morek, a professional, though comparatively inexperienced aviator, was forced to dive into the Hudson river with an aeroplane yesterday while trying to fly from a point near the New Jersey Palisades to Central Park on Manhattan Island. He narrowly escaped with his life.

The motor stopped when Morek was nearly 1,000 feet above the river and about 100 yards from the New Jersey shore and within sight of thousands he plunged into the water.

In descending his aeroplane sideswiped the mast of a schooner and sank like a stone, carrying its operator nearly to the bottom of the river before he released himself. Morek weighs 204 pounds, but although hindered with two pair of heavy trousers and a sweater he came to the surface and kept himself afloat until picked up by a passing launch.

BENNET'S RESOLUTION ON ANNEXATION OF CANADA SQUELCHED

WILLIAM H. TAFT, While Doing Missionary Work in Aid of Reciprocity Agreement.

House Committee Quickly Reports Adversely on the Measure.

Certain Parties in England Much Disturbed By Talk.

Interpellation Will Be Made to Government on Matter.

Washington, Feb. 17.—To offset the Canadian annexation talk which the administration feared might affect the reciprocity agreement, the house committee on foreign affairs today by a vote of 9 to 1, reported adversely on the resolution introduced yesterday by Representative Bennet of New York, for the opening of negotiations with Great Britain looking to the annexation of Canada.

Mr. Bennet was the only member of the committee who voted for the resolution, and the committee's action followed conferences of Chairman Foster of the committee, with President Taft today.

Chairman Tawney of the appropriations committee yesterday suggested to Chairman Foster of the foreign affairs committee, that the committee be called together to hear Secretary of State Knox, with a view to meeting the annexation talk. The meeting

GOES AFTER INSURGENTS

Gen. Navarro Marches Toward Guadaloupe With 700 Men.

Will Attempt to Capture Madero and Other Rebel Chiefs There.

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 17.—After fifty hours of inactivity following his arrival from Chihuahua, Gen. Navarro marched out from Juarez this morning with 500 infantrymen, 200 cavalry and two field pieces, marching east in the direction of Guadaloupe, where Madero Gonzales and the insurgent chiefs are located. They should reach Madero's location in about five hours.

Active in Lower California.

Calexico, Mex., Feb. 17.—Screened by the smoke of a still burning railroad bridge and smouldering mesquite bushes, the insurrectos began a movement yesterday evidently intended as a return attack upon the Mexican federals.

In the judgment of the United States officers, Governor Vega's men were repulsed Wednesday, and apparently it is the intention of the rebel leaders, Generals Berthold and Leyva, to turn their advantage into a decisive victory. The rebel loss in the fight is now placed at five killed.

Governor Vega of Lower California, was in personal command of the attacking force. He was among the wounded.

The rebels had all the advantage of position. Berthold and Leyva disposed 300 armed and unarmed men in a zigzag line across the arroyos leading to the New river. From this protection they poured a heavy fire into Vega's troops. The latter displayed much daring. Once they charged the rebel position, but being outnumbered, they were easily hurled back.

It was in this charge that the federals suffered their heaviest losses.

MANY ARE DYING FROM THE GRIP

Epidemic in New York City Shows No Signs of Subsidence.

New York, Feb. 17.—The epidemic of grip here shows no signs of subsidence and health department records show a large increase in the number of deaths from grip and pneumonia over last year. Inclement and changeable weather is the cause of the unusual number of cases of grip.

Records of the board of health made public today show that during the month of January there were 753 deaths in New York city from pneumonia. Also there were 152 deaths from grip. Last year in January grip caused 47 deaths and pneumonia 709.

Emperor William Will Attend Unveiling of Memorial.

London, Feb. 17.—The recent announcement that Emperor William would attend the ceremony of unveiling the National Memorial to Queen Victoria, which will take place in front of Buckingham palace on May 16, was confirmed officially today. The news is heartily welcomed by Britishers, among whom his majesty is personally very popular. He will be accompanied by Empress Auguste Victoria and it is expected that the two will be the guests of King George and Queen Mary for several days after the unveiling.

LETTER CARRIER MAKES CHARGES

Accuses Postmaster at Omaha of Violation of Civil Service Law.

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 17.—Benjamin F. Thomas, postmaster of Omaha, is charged with serious violations of the civil service law in a complaint sent yesterday to the civil service commission by Daniel W. Tilletson, a letter carrier who has been connected with the Omaha force for twenty-three years.

Tillotson claims that because he refused to support candidates and measures in the last campaign as directed by Mr. Thomas' subordinates, he has been punished by reduction in rank, which involves corresponding reduction in pay.

He further charges that employes of the Omaha postoffice were compelled to make campaign contributions to Postmaster Thomas in the last campaign.

Opposed to Reciprocity.

Davenport, Iowa, Feb. 17.—The Scott county grangers at a convention last night ordered its officers to telegraph Senators Cummins and Young requesting them to use their efforts to defeat reciprocity.

IN LEAGUE WITH TRUST

Bonilla Can Never Be President of Honduras, Says Envoy.

Outlook for a Peace Settlement Is Not Very Bright.

Puerto Cortez, Honduras, Feb. 17, via wireless to New Orleans—"The people of Honduras will never accept Manuel Bonilla for president, because he is in league with a fruit trust of the United States."

This declaration, made today by Gen. Maximo B. Rosales, peace envoy of President Davila, does not give promise of an early settlement of the revolutionary troubles of the country, as Gen. Bonilla is determined to resume fighting if the presidency is not turned over to him. Already the revolutionary troops here under Gen. Lee Christmas are growing restless because of the feeling of the peace proposal of President Davila was merely a ruse to gain time. They anticipate further fighting.

Gen. Rosales says that if Gen. Bonilla will sacrifice his personal ambition to regain the presidency, the peace negotiations may be concluded within a few days. As the representative of President Davila he will favor the selection of a third man for the presidency, who shall rule until an election can be held.

The gunboat Wheeling will go to Puerto Barrios Saturday to meet Thomas C. Dawson, who will represent the United States in the peace conference to be held aboard the Tacoma, beginning Monday. Gen. Bonilla will remain in Celba during the conference.

President Davila claims that the entire country, with the exception of the North coast, is in the control of the government. He claims that Gen. Buron, who captured several towns in the department of Cholute several weeks ago, has been driven across the frontier into Nicaragua.

MRS. POTTER TELLS OF HER NEW WORK IN WINDY CITY

"I love this state and I am always happy to get back to it," said Mrs. Frances Squire Potter in an interview this morning shortly after her arrival in the city.

"My work this year keeps me in Chicago, but we are doing a big work there, which is simply a magnificent thing and will really result in a people's university. What we are trying to do is to better and educate the class of people who are too poor to get a common school education, although they get a practical education which the rest of us fail to have.

"I am helping Mrs. Raymond Robins, who is president of the National Woman's Trade Union league, in developing an educational policy for working girls and women. I have charge of the literary department of the new industrial magazine called Life and Labor.

"The entire city of Chicago has been blocked off into wards and districts in which the Chicago Woman's Trade union is investigating the working conditions of women and children and striving to promote a healthy social atmosphere for them. We have immense classes in English for the foreign speaking people and have established circulating libraries in their own foreign languages. I am also trying to present to them the American poems and bits of prose in such a manner as to give them the American ideals and make them Americans."

Beside this settlement work, Mrs. Potter is chairman of the committee on literature and library extension work of the General Federation of Women's clubs. She is working on a synopsis of study for women's clubs throughout the country which will make their study universal and organized. They are also taking up the Bible as a work of literature and record of experiences and not as a theological text book. "The Bible" she said, "has been shouldered out of the public schools on account of the difference in religions of the children and it really is read very little. We hope in this movement to bring it to the popular consciousness and make it a book which is widely read again. The clubs in Ohio, Washington and Vermont are all recommending the reading of it and the Chicago Women's clubs have taken it up extensively. Other cities have taken it up also and its favor is growing rapidly as a literary work.

"Our committee will recommend the study of industrialism in literature and the labor problems as they confront the men and women of today. This is practically a new field and the journalistic literature plays an important part in this study.

"The modern drama we are taking up, too, and expect to start a definite campaign to eliminate the poor stuff from the stage and help the dramas which interprets our age. The Drama League of America which has its headquarters in Chicago is making its influence felt throughout the country.

"Another topic which we will prepare will be on 'Litterary Study of the Scientists of the Nineteenth Century.' This study is essential to modern culture, and especially in developing the scientific vocabulary as scientific terms are being used more and more.

"Still another branch of our work takes up the collection of folk lore, folk dances, ballads and colloquialisms, and this make a most interesting study. North Carolina has taken up this principle through its clubs and has collected quite a little interesting matter. Miss Josephine Brower of St. Could, Minn., is in charge of this department and has written books on folk dances and has recently done an edition of Washington Irving's 'Alhambra Tales' for which I wrote the introduction. The book was published by Houghton & Mifflin and was such a lovely piece of work that Charles Brock of Cambridge, Eng., the noted illustrator, was glad to draw the illustrations."

MRS. FRANCES SQUIRE POTTER.

Mrs. Potter has just returned from the University of Cincinnati, where she gave some lectures under the University Extension course and she has lectured in many of the principal cities of the East.

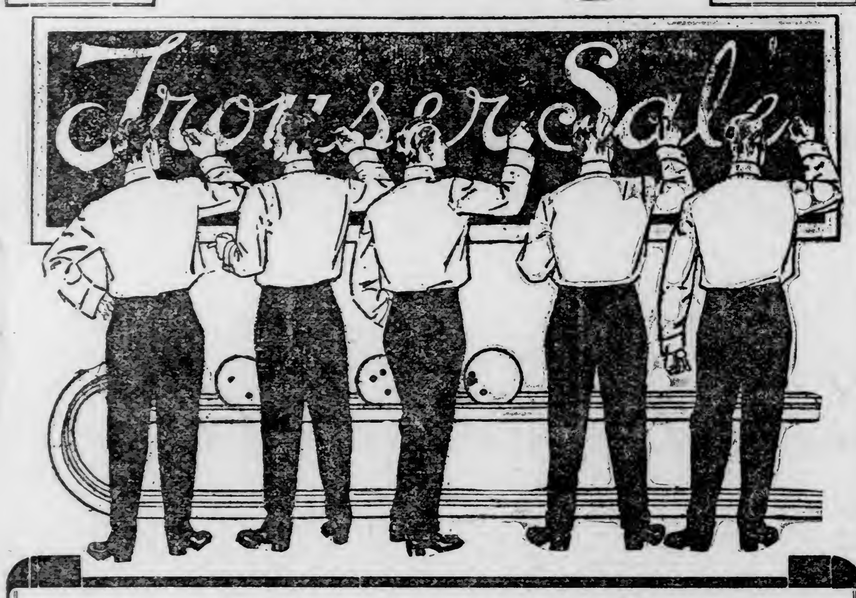

When asked about her work as a suffragist, she said "I am just as much of a suffragist as ever but I believe not in suffrage alone but in taking universal suffrage for granted and tying it up with an educational policy and immediate citizenship. By that I mean work for the classes such as the Woman's Suffrage party is carrying on. This party is the most advanced wing of the suffrage movement and has more members right now than the old association has ever had. This is because it is more normal and appeals to men and women who can work at home. They have no special pleading but are seeking information for the benefit of workers rather than demanding something for themselves. They work instead of talk. Educational centers have been established at Baltimore, New York, and are being established at Chicago and San Francisco and in many other places and I expect that this plan will be adopted everywhere in the country."

Mrs. Potter is here to give a talk at the Northeastern Minnesota Educational association meeting this afternoon.

"STUNG" ON A PIANO RAFFLE

West Enders Claim Woman Sold Tickets Without Owning Instrument.

Unwillingness on the part of her alleged victims to appear in court and prosecute her, was responsible for the release by the police of Mrs. Frances Emmons of 14 Twelfth avenue west, who sold tickets from 1 cent to $1 on a piano which did not belong to her, it is claimed.

The woman was arrested last evening on the complaint of several people who notified the police that they had been "stung." The piano in question belongs to her daughter and she has no interest in it whatever, it is alleged.

She is reported to have sold several tickets, most of which were for $1, each on the claim that she was raffling a piano. No one appeared against the woman this morning and she was released.

He was born in Bradfield, Mass., and was married at St. Paul in 1890 to Miss Minnie Hayes of Warsaw, Mo.

CLOQUET'S GREAT DOG.

Budweiser Said to Be Largest Carlton County Canine.

Cloquet, Minn., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Cloquet boasts of the largest dog in Carlton county. The animal belongs to R. C. Peterson, proprietor of the Crescent hotel. Budweiser, as he is called, is a handsome specimen of St. Bernard and Great Dane breed and is known throughout the city. He is the playmate of Mr. Peterson's little son, and a watch dog with whom it is not seemly to trifle. Budweiser, from tip of tail to the end of his nose measures 7 feet 4 inches, and stands 33 inches high. He weighs 215 pounds and his great body measures 49 inches in circumference, and he wears a 34-inch collar. He is 3 years old and was such a tiny puppy that Mr. Peterson carried him home in his pocket.

Not Going to "Carry Over" a Single Garment

Final Clearance Tomorrow, Saturday, February 18th

THIS is the end of the chapter—the climax—the final reduction toll. Depleted by former reductions until only mere fractional lots remain, the balance of these Suits, Coats and Dresses have been once more relentlessly reduced.

Prices long ago broke thru the margin of cost and in many instances now barely represent the value of material alone. It is not only economical to buy at these prices—it is folly not to do so.

Furs

The woman who needs furs, now or next season, may buy them Saturday to more advantage than at any other time of the year. The iron-clad rule, that every season's goods must go with the season, is the "why." Reliable Furs—Coats, Sets and single pieces are offered at one-fourth, one-third and one-half less than their standard prices.

Baby Craft Shop

offers lower prices on dainty things for wee people. Saturday's quotations are made with the view of cleaning shelves, counters and tables for New Spring Goods already coming in.

The "Rengo Belt" Corset

For Women Who Have Lost Their Figures"

The introduction of this New Model will be a subject of much satisfaction to the woman who laments "her lost figure"—as a matter of fact, she needs only an appeal to the right kind of corset.

This woman, however, can not be put straighway into stiff bones and contil. She could not stand the physical discomfort of having correct lines suddenly thrust upon her.

The Rengo Belt—a soft, beautifully flexible corset—is the sort that molds, not forces, correct lines.

There is absolute freedom thru the diaphragm, absolutely no compression to interfere with digestion or respiration. The woman who tries on a Rengo Belt immediately feels at home in it.

There are a few innovations about the make up of this new model that our corset people will be pleased to show.

It is the best model of its kind that we could find at $2.50 and $3.50.

Fittings by experts who know that no corset is correct unless correctly put on.

We have decided to dispose of some models in American Lady and C. B. Warner Corsets—that's why they are selling tomorrow: the up to $5 grades at $2: the $2.50 grade for $1 .

Special Events

The disposal of Blankets, Comforters, Pillows, etc., continues Saturday—prices average a third less.

New '11 Wash Goods are going in a way that's inspiring—especially the better grades. Exclusive patterns at moderate prices is the keynote of their popularity.

Warm Wash Fabrics are lowered in price, like this—Flannelettes from 15c to 9c—Scotch and French Wool Flannels from 65c to 39c—silkolines from 12½c and 15c to 9c—cretons from 18c and 20c to 14c.

It's buying time.

LYCEUM—Mack-Leone Players in "God's Country."
ORPHEUM—Vaudeville.
ODEUM and LYRIC—Photoplay.

Green Room Gossip

"Henry Savage has a great record of successes this year," said B. J. Riley, business manager of the "Madame X" company, who is here arranging for the appearance in Duluth of his company. "Among his productions which are proving great successes are: 'Madame X,' 'The Merry Widow,' the new play, 'Everywoman,' the revival of 'The Prince of Pilsen,' 'Excuse Me,' and Henry Kolker in 'The Great Name.'"

Mr. Riley is one of the best known managers in the theatrical world, and has a wide circle of friends in Duluth as a result of his annual visits here.

"The Suspect" will be the feature of the vaudeville bill which will open at the Orpheum next week. This is a dramatic playlet which has a record of 3,000 performances in England. It is being produced in this country by William A. Brady. Dr. Wilmar's Spirit paintings will be the second feature act on the bill.

At the Lyric theater next week there will be a remarkable film showing the famous pictures of lassooing wild animals in Africa.

Four one-act plays will be the offering of the Mack-Leone Players for the two performances of Sunday.

"The Open Range," is a sketch written by Mr. Mack, around a dramatic incident that occurred in the West.

"Kid Corrigan's Romance," has to do with a professional prize fighter, and as Mr. Mack has had the chance to study some of the leading wallopers at close range, he has gathered the material for the play at first hand.

"When Lee Surrendered," is the name of the sketch that Mr. Mack has written around the most dramatic incident of the Civil war. "The Strike-breaker" is a story of the great problem of capital and labor.

Mlle. Lydia Lapokawa, the Russian dancer, who is appearing at the Orpheum this week, is planning to remain in this country when her Orpheum engagement is ended.

She is under orders from the Czar to return to Europe in July, and if she disobeys and remains in this country, it will mean that she will never be able to return to Russia, without danger of severe punishment. The discipline in the Russian ballet is almost as strict as that in the army, and she would be treated as a deserter from the army, if she disobeys the czar's order.

The little dancer, however, says she has fallen in love with America, and she is anxious to remain here. She enjoys the freedom from the routine of the ballet at St. Petersburg, and its rather monotonous life, and she has been imploring her manager to secure an extension of her tour in America, even if it involves breaking the czar's orders and her permanent banishment from her native country. Her brother takes a more business like view of the situation, and is not willing to remain unless he can foresee something in the nature of a permanent engagement here.

On Saturday matinee and night Feb. 18 at the Lyceum the big Chicago musical comedy production, "Miss Nobody for Starland," will be presented for the first time, coming direct from the Princess theater after an entire season's run.

Percy Hammond in the Chicago Tribune says:

"It is bright in color, rich in fabric, graceful in movement, melodious in score. A happier audience never attended a first night at the Princess."

James O'Donnell Bennett in the Chicago Record-Herald says:

"The girls are pretty, the music is pretty, and that Cuban dance in the fourth scene as pretty a conceit as has been devised in a long time."

Has Lumbago.

New York, Feb. 17.—William Rockefeller, brother of John D. Rockefeller and active for many years in the management of the Standard Oil company, is confined to his home here with an attack of lumbago, following a cold which he contracted a few days ago. Shipping Man Denies Lake Ports Are Outclassed as Handlers of Package Freight By European Cities—"Bill" Phillips Makes a Switch—"Walter" Only Name State Treasurer Hears—Golden Gleams in Spalding Rotunda.

CAPT. JOHN MASSEY, one of the best known shipping men at the Head of the Lakes, scoffs at the assertion that European countries are possessed of better equipment for the handling of package freight than are the lake ports.

"I would like nothing better than to take that professor who was here last summer on a personally conducted tour of the docks when lake traffic is at its height. I can show him that we can and do handle package freight more speedily than his European friends can do it. The volume of our package freight is an important factor in lake shipping, and it is not true that we are handicapped by lack of facilities to handle it.

"I will venture the assertion that at any large lake port the package freight business is handled more quickly and efficiently than it is at any European port."

W. G. PHILLIPS of Calumet, Mich., who has spent so much of his time in Duluth of late years that he has come to be considered a Duluthian, has switched from one main line to another. Mr. Phillips is perhaps better known for his singing than for his business talents in this city, he having been sololst in a number of local churches and being frequently called upon to contribute to the program at social assemblies.

"Bill" Phillips is exceptionally popular with all the Duluthians he has come in contact with, and deservedly so. He is genial, has a generous measure of executive ability and doesn't let his musical talents interfere with his business.

For some years Mr. Phillips has represented the Taylor Iron & Steel company of Highbridge, N. J., which makes castings. The first of the month he severed that connection and joined the selling staff of the Chicago Pneumatic Tool company, which makes air compressors of many types and sizes, as well as rock drills and pneumatic tools. W. H. Traver, manager of the company's mining contract department, is accompanying Mr. Phillips on his first trip in his new position. Mr. Phillips is the direct representative of the company, the Lake Shore shops at Marquette being merely an indirect agent.

Mr. Phillips and Mr. Traver were guests at the Spalding yesterday, leaving for Michigan in the afternoon.

WALTER L. SMITH of St. Paul and Eveleth, treasurer of the state of Minnesota, who has been in the city for a couple of days, returned yesterday to St. Paul, accompanied by F. B. Myers of Biwabik, who was called to the capital on business.

The popularity of Walter Smith has not lessened since his election. Rather it has increased, and nobody in St. Paul seems to know the treasurer's last name. Here in Duluth almost everybody knows him, many of his closest friends being Duluthians. It is more or less notable that among his friends are conspicuous that generation of young men who made their start in the early days of Tower. In the group are many who have advanced rapidly in the business world.

While in Duluth Mr. Smith spent a day in the witness chair at the county courthouse, testifying in a litigation involving Eveleth school matters. He was formerly clerk of the school board and it was for that reason he was subpoenaed in the case. His testimony was the most protracted of any, which did not tend to please the treasurer.

While here Mr. Smith made an incidental trip to Virginia and Eveleth.

NEW LIGHTS are being put up in the Spalding rotunda and they are very attractive ones, of graceful design and unusual construction. Gold leaf covers every visible part of the fixtures so that they gleam most brilliantly from the high ceiling. The installation of this new lighting service is the finishing touch of the redecoration of the hotel.

The fixtures are made after an exclusive design especially for the Spalding by a Chicago concern, which has a number of men here putting them up. No metal is used in these fixtures, except for a strip that serves as a basis on which to build, or rather as a reinforcement for the completed fixture. The rest of the material is a composition, which is handled like the sculptor's putty, and then hardened.

A large quantity of gold leaf is needed to cover one of these fixtures, which brings their cost up pretty high.

INSPIRATION SHOULD BE CONTROLLING FORCE

Dr. A. E. Winship Addresses Teachers on "Modern School Problems."

Mrs. Frances Squire Potter Also Speaks at Afternoon Session.

Inspiration rather than discipline should be the controlling element in modern school work, according to Dr. A. E. Winship of Boston, who delivered the main address this afternoon at the first formal session of the annual meeting of the Northeastern Minnesota Educational association. The session was held in the Central high school audltorium.

Other features of the session were an address by Mrs. Frances Squire Potter and the music, directed by Prof. A. F. M. Custance. Mrs. Potter gave an extremely interesting talk on concerted effort toward realizing the best there is in humanity and reclaiming those who are debased by environment.

Dr. Winship, who is editor of the Journal of Education, and Mrs. Potter, who is engaged in settlement work in Chicago, were kept busy this morning, receiving calls and making visits. Dr. Winship inspected the new Washington grade and manual training school and spoke warmly in praise of the building and its equipment.

The first session was held last evening at the high school. It was informal and in the nature of a reception. Today's session was largely attended and thoroughly enjoyed by the teachers attending the convention.

Modern School Problems.

Dr. Winship's remarks this afternoon are given in part as follows:

"A problem is that through which nobody sees. The American problems are modern. The school problems of no other country are American problems. No problems of yesterday are those of today.

"American problems of today are questions of life, and not of form. They are biological rather than mineralogical. No one can teach, supervise or administer schools of today on his own theory or on anybody's theory of yesterday. If any man has a crystalized philosophy, psychology or pedagogy, he would better be looking for a job as an insurance agent. Any woman of that kind should join a 'matrimonial bureau.'

"Our pupils are not to be fitted to do work even five years ago. No child is to acquire knowledge such as the teacher acquired in her school, no matter how recent her graduation. The problem is to teach children to know how to know how to do things and not to teach them to do things. What they do is done merely that they may get in practice to learn how to do the same thing better.

"Modern problems have to do with raw material, with power, with market, with conditions, with spirit and with purpose.

Should Not Repeat Year's Work.

"The first responsibility of a school system is to be educated. Every person who desires to broaden his education ought to intensify it from 6 to 16. It's not only what he desires, but what he needs. Any child that slips out of the system under 16 without having had the best possible training that the school can provide is an impeachment of the school. To make a child repeat a year's work is so serious a matter that it ought not to be possible until experts have decided whether or not another year's work is a wise use of his time. No teacher, no principal should be allowed to condemn a child to a second year in any grade. To take a year out of ten years of a child's training is too serious a matter to be made possible on any mechanical scheme or possible prejudice.

"The school is not to provide a child with a certain amount of information or skill in processes. It is to give physical, intellectual, social and moral power. The school is only one of the influences that makes for such power. At the end of each year, if there is any any question about the child's promotion, experts should pass upon the one question: Would he get more physical, intellectual, social and moral power by going forward or by going backward?

"The education to be given in any city must be somewhat modified by the market for the child's knowledge. There are schools in Minnesota in which there are more than twenty nationalities. The first aim of the school is to transform what the child has learned, intended for his own country and language, into the market of America, in language, custom and experience. Children in an industrial community should have their education differently focused from that of a mining community, or of an agricultural community, although the child's life that is spent in an agricultural community may have his adult life in an industrial community, but he must always have his power developed in the environment in which he lives when he studies. It's impossible to train for mining life in a cotton mill environment. But the one who has developed power to advantage in an industrial community has established habits of learning that will enable him to transform himself into any other community under proper conditions.

Must Create Conditions.

"The development of power, physical, intellectual, social and moral, must depend in large measure upon the conditions. Trainers of trick animals spend much time in creating the conditions that make it wise for the animal to learn the trick. Making conditions is the chief element in the training. This is equally true in school work. Mining corporations spend much money on a sociological department and the reason they give for it is that the best money they pay out is that which puts their laborers, socially, and domestically, in condition for work and for life where they work.

"Another problem of vital importance is the spirit in which the work is done. Work not relished is never well done. No song is well sung that is purely mechanical. It is only when an artist puts her soul into it that there is the flush and glow that lifts it into the realm of art. Nowhere is this quite as true as in the case of young people during their school years. Knowledge is to be discounted in its value when it is attained for the purpose of passing an examination. The sub-conscious activity of the mind is just as urgent to forget it when the examination is past as it is to remember it when the examination is taken. More depends upon the spirit of the school than upon its methods and devices combined. A scintilla of inspiration is better than a flood of discipline.

"And, finally, the great problem of all is that of purpose on the part of the child, the teacher, the principal, the supervisor and the administration."

To this the speaker devoted much attention, illustrating it by many experiences in school life.

Improvement of Environment.

Mrs. Potter's address was heard with exceptional interest, many club women of the city attending the afternoon session to hear her. The speaker is one of the best known women in the country, and as a professor at the university she became particularly well known in Minnesota.

Her address related to the efforts that are being made to counteract all vicious tendencies in modern life. "The regenerating circle" she described as the opposite of the vicious circle of which so much is heard. Improvement of environment as the best and most effective method of improving the lives of those most readily susceptible to harm from the vicious circle was the central thought of her address.

Minnesota, she said, is a noble state, and one which is fortunate in the stock and class of the foreigners who have come here to make their homes. The Scandinavian people, she said, were essentially noble.

Mrs. Potter spoke with much feeling of her love for Minnesota and devoted considerable attention to possibilities for general moral and material betterment in this state.

Mayor a Suffragist.

In an address of welcome to the teachers at the high school last night, Mayor Cullum said he had been finally won over and was now ready at any time to declare himself in favor of women's suffrage.

There were evidently a great number in the audience who felt the same way about it for they applauded vigorously at the conclusion of the mayor's remarks.

There were nearly 500 teachers in the city last night to attend the convention. The convention opened with the meeting in the assembly hall of the high school last night and the reception in the corridors which followed it.

President J. A. Vandyke of Coleraine addressed the teachers, telling them the chief work to be done at the convention and giving many excellent reason why the teachers of a certain section should get together at least once a year for the purpose of discussing school problems and obtaining new ideas.

Miss Agnes Johnson recited "As the Moon Looked." Miss Josephine Saunders rendered a "Polka" from Raff, and Stanley Lamb recited 'My Irish Philosopher." He responded with "Jim and Me."

Evening Session.

This evening at the high school there will be a literary program and a series of short addresses on "School Problems of Northern Minnesota." Among those who are to speak are: George B. Aiton, Supt. R. E. Denfeld, Supt. W. E. Maddock, Supt. Lafayette Bliss, Supt. C. L. Newberry, Dr. L. W. Kline, Andrew Nelson, Charles Mitchell, and a representative of the State Bankers' association.

Saturday morning the sectional work begins. Each teacher will attend meetings at which her special line of work will be discussed.

NOTES OF BOYS' DEPARTMENT

The boys' department members will be guests of the central department of the Y. M. C. A. next Sunday at 3:30 to hear Miss Katherine Jewell Everts of Boston, who is to give a program of readings. A special section of seats has been reserved for the boys, and an invitation is extended to all boys in the city 15 years and over. The boys' building will be closed Sunday.

The second game in the Boys' Department Intermediate School Basket Ball league was played yesterday afternoon between the normal and Nettleton schools, and resulted in a victory for the Nettletons with a score of 15 to 0. at 11:45 Saturday morning the Franklins and Endlons will meet, and part of the Saturday night program will be a game between the Lakesides and Washingtons. The league this year is not an open one, but is composed only of intermediate boys' department members.

The committee in charge of the Washington birthday program has arranged a program that will not only take in the members of the boys' department, but every boy in the city under 19 years of age. The morning will be devoted to an aquatic meet. This is the first open meet that the boys' department has arranged, and the plan is to make it an annual affair. The records will be kept and the winners will hold the city championslip until the record is officially broken. The sports will start at 10 o'clock in the natatorium of the central department, and the events are: 20-yard dash, 25-yard swim on back, 40-yard dash, dive for distance, under-water swim, and floating contest. There will be two classes, boys under 15 years and boys over 15 years. Medals will be awarded the champion in each class, and the winners of first and second places in each event will receive silk badges.

The afternoon program will be an indoor meet, which will be open to any boy in the city under 19 years of age. There will be two classes, as in the aquatic meet, and medals and badges will be awarded the winners. The events are: Shotput, broad jump, running high jump, pulls up, and a one-eighth-mile run. All contestants will receive certificates giving their record.

For the evening the Sunday club committee has arranged to put on a play entitled "The Millionaire Janitor," in two acts. Those who will take the parts are Palmer Bevis, Glen Merritt, Kenneth Harris, Omer Browkaw, Charles Diers and Walter Wlander. The annual auction will close the evening program.

COLONISTS' RATES HAVE SLIGHT EFFECT ON TRAVEL.

From the present indications passenger travel to the West and Southwest, as measured by the colonist and homeseekers' rates, will not be so heavy the present season as in past years. One of the reasons given is that homeseekers and colonists are not waiting any special time to travel and for that reason many of them pay hardly any attention to the inauguration of the annual rates.

The movement to the West and Southwest has been fairly heavy during the past few months and railroad men are looking for no special movement when the rates go into effect.

Will Use Omaha Depot.

Beginning the first of next month the Northern Pacific will run into the Northwestern depot at Ashland, Wis., instead of the Soo depot, as at present. The change is made, according to local information for greater convenience. It is stated that the change will make it more convenient for the Northern Pacific officials and also for the passengers.

SIX HOURS, DAY'S WORK

New Hours in Railway Mail Service Interests the Clerks.

May Be Dispute as to What Is a "Heavy Line".

While the new order of Second Assistant Postmaster General Stewart as to hours of service in the railway mail service will undoubtedly cut the working day on heavy lines to six hours or thereabouts, there is some question among railway mail clerks as to whether conditions in general will be remedied.

The order of the department applies to "heavy" lines, but the clerks believe that "heavy" may be a relative term, calling for differences of opinion between superintendents and clerks, and that there are loop holes left by which excuses may be found for long hours such as caused the general disaffection among railway mail clerks during the Christmas holidays and the first days of the new year.

Mr. Stewart's letter to General Superintendent Grant of the railway mail service expressed the opinion that "a minimum daily average of six and a half hours' road duty should be required generally, but that exceptional cases should be considered upon their merits and these are cases where a less number than this is warranted."

Mr. Grant's letter to the division superintendents is not so specific, but the clerks are willing to await the working out of the new order. A recurrence of the conditions complained of this year will undoubtedly bring another protest from the clerks.

Mr. Grant's letter says:

"The second assistant postmaster general directs that on heavy lines where the amount of mail is such that the clerks are required as a rule to work continuously from one end of the road to the other in both directions six hours should be the standard, but that upon any such line if the clerks, under the present organization, are making from five hours and forty-five minutes to six hours and fifteen minutes, no reorganization is necessary.

"If the average hours of duty are below five hours and forty-five minutes it is desirable that some additional work be required of such clerks so as to bring their average hours of duty as near as possible to six hours six days in the week, provided this can be done in such a way that the clerk will know just exactly what he has to do and when. This is not the case where clerks are temporarily vacant on the line.

"If the average daily hours of duty exceed six hours and fifteen minutes some arrangement should be made to reduce them to the standard, that is, six hours. This can be done in many cases by reducing the amount of advance or terminal work."

to recommend for passage the Sullivan bill providing for the referendum only, 10 per cent of the voters being required on the petitions that refer pending legislation to the people.

The committee decided also to report out without recommendation all of the pending bills providing for both initiative and referendum, being unable to agree on one of them. These bills are by Representatives Campbell, J. N. Johnson, Pfaender, Hillman, Spooner, Stone and Kelly, and they differ largely as to the percentage of the voters required to put them into effect. They range all the way from the Hillman bill, which requires 8 per cent of the voters to start the initiative and 5 per cent under the referendum, to the Pfaender bill, which requires 35 per cent of the voters to initiate a measure and 10 per cent to refer one to the people. It is stated that the Campbell, Hillman, Spooner and Kelly bills probably will be withdrawn by the authors, leaving the Johnson, Pfaender and Stone bills to be fought over.

Representative Knute Knutson of Swift Falls has introduced a bill providing for uniform and secure ballot boxes. The bill provides the county shall furnish the ballot boxes, instead of having each precinct furnish its own boxes. They are to be of metal, substantially made, with a cover overlapping, so that ballots cannot be pushed in after they are sealed. They are to be equipped with Yale locks or equivalent, and only the county auditor and the town clerks are to have keys, which shall be kept in a secure place.

The object of this bill is to prevent hereafter irregularities similar to those found by the senate elections committee when examining the ballot boxes in the Farrington-Froshaug election contest.

LIFE FOR COUNT AND FIFTEEN YEARS FOR DOCTOR PANTCHENKO

Lassy's wife is the daughter of Gen. Bouturlin and the removal of Vassilli would naturally mean that the general's great estate would go to his daughter.

Thought to Be Insane.

On the witness stand Pantchenko denied the confession and made so many erratic statements that he came to be thought practically insane. Much evidence was adduced, however, to show that he and De Lassy had very intimate dealings together. At the end of the trial De Lassy was quite overcome. He attempted to make a speech to the jury but ended abruptly by saying: "I cannot talk. I leave the fate of myself and relatives to your minds and your hearts."

Pantchenko, in an incoherent speech, said he did not repudiate his confession, but wished to specify the degree of his guilt. He said the question now was whether a Russian physician was capable of such a dastardly crime and to this he proudly answered no.

Author of Poisoning Story.

Petro Pavolovsky, he declared, wishing fame, was the author of the poisoning story and that a newspaper helped him. "De Lassy did exhort me to poison Bouturlin," continued Pantchenko, "and thinking I had accidentally poisoned him, I told the magistrate so. But this confession seemed too little for him. He continually drummed into my ears, 'confess, confess,' and suggested various poisons. Finally, in a weak moment, I told myself that if the truth doesn't serve, then I will lie. The magistrate then said, 'now we are going to be friends.'

"Whatever the verdict may be, my conscience is tranquil with reference to Bouturlin, but tortures me because of four families whose peace I have violated out of rank fear."

Mme. Muravieff refused to say anything. The jury retired and remained out for three hours.

the opinion handed down today completely sustains Judge Dibell's decision. The argument in the supreme court was made Jan. 17 by City Attorney Fesler.

The court holds that the franchise granted by the city to the Soo railroad for a right-of-way up the approach to the interstate bridge excludes the Duluth Terminal railway from access to the bridge on the ground that the Soo road has the prior right and that there is only room for one railway on the approach. The question decided is probably the most important one that could arise in the city's dealings with railroads requesting franchises from the city, as it requires the consent of the council before a railroad can occupy a city street, thus giving consent of the council power to dictate the terms on which such occupancy shall be granted. On this point the court says:

"The petitioner is seeking, in this proceeding, to acquire a right to construct a railway along Arthur avenue extended, a street in the city of Duluth, without obtaining a franchise from the city so to do. It cannot so acquire that right. We hold that the general laws of this state do not authorize a railway company, whether organized before or since 1893, to acquire by condemnation proceedings the public easement on any portion of a street within a city or village to construct, maintain or operate a railway of any kind along such street, and that a franchise conferring such right must first be obtained from the city or village before a railway company can acquire the right to construct, maintain or operate a railway along a street in such city or village."

was called but it was deemed unnecessary for Mr. Knox to appear.

Disturbs Some Englishmen.

London, Feb. 17.—Whether, as is suspected in some quarters, Congressman Bennet of New York, had no more sinister motive than to embarrass the reciprocity forces in his own country, there is no room for doubt that his Canadian annexation resolution introduced in the house of representatives yesterday has greatly disturbed certain minds on this side of the Atlantic.

So seriously is the matter taken by the imperial preference party that it will be made a subject of interpellation of the government in the house of commons on Feb. 21. Premier Asquith will be asked at that time if he intends to send any communication on the subject to the United States government.

The flurry caused by Representative Champ Clark's declaration that he hoped to see the day when the American flag would float over the British North American possessions had scarcely passed when the cables brought Mr. Bennet's resolution asking the president to enter upon such negotiations with the British government as he might deem expedient for the annexation of the Dominion of Canada to the United States.

At once the dying agitation in opposition to the United States-Canadian reciprocity agreement was revived. The Liberal press refused to take either the speech of the future speaker of the house or Mr. Bennet's resolution seriously, but a portion of the tariff reform press is making the most of both for their own uses.

Among the Liberals there is a disposition to view both moves from the standpoint of partisan or fractional expediency while there are not a few who think that the congressmen are having a bit of fun at the expense of their British cousins.

tory was poured out was the majority and minority reports of a committee appointed to see whether or not the use of Minnesota stone and other building materials should not be required in all state buildings. The majority report, favoring the exclusive use of Minnesota materials, was adopted. The minority report by Senator Sageng approved the use of Minnesota stone, and pointed out that a good deal of it is being used; but opposed the policy of restriction.

The house talked a while, too, over whether it should sustain the report of a committee killing a bill requiring thrashing machine operators to clean their machines between jobs, so weed seeds would not be spread. As a result of a debate between agriculturists from city and country, the committee was reversed and the bill given a chance.

Senators Clague, Klein and Gunderson joined in introducing the Gillette workingmen's compensation act, which provides for an alternative system of industrial insurance. George M. STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

Rochester Minister to Leave.

Rochester, Minn., Feb. 17.—Rev. A. Oftedal, for seven years pastor of the Bethel Lutheran church of this city, has tendered his resignation to that society to accept the pastorate of a newly organized English Lutheran church in Minneapolis, where he formerly lived.

DRINK CURE AND A SQUARE DEAL.

At Least One Chemical House Gives Its Patrons Good Value for Their Money.

The following letter from a grateful woman in the Middle West, whose home has been saved, speaks for itself. The name of the writer, is, of course, withheld, for all such correspondence is considered by the Company absolutely confidential:

"Dear Sirs:—As I feel I owe you a debt of gratitude I can never pay, thought I would drop you a few lines and tell you what your medicine has done for my husband. He has not touched a drop of anything to drink in over a year. My home is like a heaven on earth since that awful curse has been removed and I feel that I can never thank you for your kindness in benig so prompt in sending the medicine. Husband took it willingly and is more than proud to think he can go to town and not want to visit the hotels and saloons. When I think of the years I lived with a drunkard when so little would have stopped it, I cannot help but feel that I cannot thank you for what you have done for me."

If the White Ribbon Remedy Company, the well-known manufacturers of the famous Remedy for the alcohol habit, succeed in carrying their splendid treatment into the homes of the drinkers in this city they will have earned the lasting gratitude of the homes saved and of the community at large. Hard drinking means hard times for the family as well as the loss of health and manhood for the drinker.

The White Ribbon Remedy is honestly made by honest people, with the sincere desire to help the homes that are being injured and, perhaps, even desolated by alcohol. It is odorless, tasteless, contains absolutely no habit-farming drugs, may be administered secretly if desired, and has proven its efficacy so many times that those who earnestly desire to win the drinker from the alcohol habit may begin treatment with the utmost confidence that splendidly gratifying results will follow.

White Ribbon Remedy costs $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00; and may be obtained of all the Hegeman & Co. stores, New York city, or direct from the White Ribbon Remedy Co., Boston, Mass.

OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER

FAIR

The break in temperature didn't come last night and the mildness is still with us. The mercury has not mounted above the freezing point, however, and the mildness is not so uncomfortable as to be objectionable. Today is cloudy and "sticky." Fair weather and lower temperatures are promised for tonight and tomorrow.

A cold wave was working a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 7:09 and it will set at 5:35 this evening, giving ten hours and twenty-six minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"During the last twenty-four hours rain or snow fell over the lake region, Ohio, Upper Mississippi, Missouri and Red River valleys and a large part of the Southwest as a result of low pressure areas central over Lake Huron and Texas. In general the temperatures are moderate for the season except that much colder weather attends the strong high pressure condition overlying the region north of Montana. Somewhat lower temperature should arrive at the Head of the Lakes tonight."

General Forecast.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Saturday:

Upper Michigan — Light snow tonight or Saturday; colder tonight.

Minnesota — Generally fair tonight and Saturday; colder tonight.

Iowa—Threatening weather tonight and Saturday, with rain or snow in south portion, colder tonight.

North Dakota—Fair tonight and Saturday; not much change in temperature.

South Dakota—Cloudy tonight and Saturday; colder tonight.

Montana—Fair tonight and Saturday; warmer tonight.

Wisconsin—Threatening weather tonight and Saturday; colder tonight.

Shippers' forecast: Protect thirty-six-hour shipments of perishables against temperatures of zero to 10 deg. above in the Dakotas and Western Minnesota and 5 deg. to 15 deg. above in Eastern Minnesota, Wisconsin and the Michigan Copper country.

EGG PRICES AT LOW POINT

Efforts of Storage Holders to Force Values Up Are Failure.

Cost of Living Is Declining, Many Staples Being Affected.

A drop of several cents a dozen in the price of eggs was the feature of trade in produce circles in the last few days. The break sent prices to the lowest level touched in February in several years, and followed an attempt on the part of traders to force the market slightly higher in a final effort to unload accumulations at a minimum loss. The recent heavy snow storm seemed to be what holders wanted to help them out of their troubles, as they took it for granted that such climatic condition could mean nothing but a material curtailment in production. They got under prices and succeeded in jacking up values slightly.

But Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri were not troubled with cold weather, and hens in those states continued to be prolific layers. The egg supply of the Central West continued to be sufficient to meet the consumptive demand. Receipts at leading centers from the states indicated steadily increased, and in the last few days were the largest in any similar period in several weeks. Under more favorable conditions dealers could have taken the shipments from these states, held them from the market and supported values at the slight advance of last week, but experience taught them that such tactics were dangerous, and they let the surplus supply move into sight, with the resultant drop in prices.

Following the long period of drouth, eggs came forward in excessive quantities last September, and dealers placed them in cold storage to keep values from declining. At that time they believed that the heavy movement of eggs from poultry farms would not be of long duration, and that they would have little trouble in clearing holdings at a profit later in the year. Receipts continued of excessive volume longer than had been expected, and when values began to ease off, there was a sudden rush to liquidate. Recent developments are traced back directly to last September's heavy egg production. Eggs were not held in check in the last few days because that product was held back last fall.

At the close of the week eggs are at the lowest levels in many years and it is not likely that prices will go much lower. In fact, it is generally conceded that no such radical decline as has been witnessed in the last three weeks will be seen again this season. Prices in March and April undoubtedly will be lower than prices recorded in the same months last year and it is certain that eggs will go into storage this year at a much lower cost than last year.

The cost of living is getting cheaper so far as staples are concerned. With the decline in the price of eggs there has been a heavy slump in the price of flour. As their higher priced stocks are wiped out by consumption, retailers, will doubtless reduce prices in proportion to the reductions made by the mills. The public does not always get the cuts in flour prices that are made by mills in accordance with the fluctuation of the wheat market. In the last month the wheat market has declined to the lowest levels in nearly three years and flour prices have slid just as precipitately. The best grades of spring wheat flour are 50 cents lower than in the middle of December and 30 cents lower than several weeks ago. Retail prices have not gone down as rapidly, but it is expected that there will be further declines in retail prices as the higher priced flour is removed and the cheaper flour takes its place.

Butter prices are slightly firmer, values being up ½@1c. Buyers followed the appreciation with little reluctance and the situation, in fancy creameries at least, appeared to be sound and safe. Some dealers expect a collapse in butter prices similar to the slump which has taken place in the egg market. Recent reports indicate that speculators are not yet "out of the woods," but the possibility of excessive weakness in the market seems more removed than when prices were slightly lower. Butter stores are greatly in excess of supplies in existence a year ago.

Practically all of the butter that goes out of storage seeks a market at a loss. Holders, however, are not so anxious about prices as about finding an outlet. It is said that considerable butter is being exported and recent reductions in storage stocks indicate that a foreign outlet must have been found as all domestic channels are seriously glutted and could not have absorbed even a small share of the goods reported to have been removed from storage houses.

Cheese values are slightly weaker and holders have manifested a noticeable disposition to sell although they were not as uncomfortable as the egg dealers. Few cheese merchants look for any material improvements in the situation and it is generally believed that stocks are large enough to preclude the possibility of values going to a much higher level.

Poultry dealers continue to enjoy prosperity. Receipts are fairly plentiful without being excessive and a broad demand furnishes an outlet for all offerings at moderately firm prices. Chickens have been particularly active and ducks, turkeys and geese have moved freely when in supply.

Inclement weather has interfered with the movement of potatoes and prices are holding firm. There are practically no price changes in other vegetables, supplies of which are about equal to the demand. Exceptions are a few fancy California vegetables which are slightly higher. Egg plant is a comparatively new vegetable and is meeting with a healthy demand.

Oranges and apples continue firm. Oranges are in lighter supply and buyers are paying slightly higher prices for choice offerings. Strawberries are much cheaper on account of larger receipts which have been unusually heavy for this period of the year.

There is no particular activity at the present time in any item of the canned goods or dried fruit lines. A quiet interest, however, is manifest in every article. No. 10 gallon apples seem to be a leader in the canned goods trade. The demand for this article comes chiefly from hotels, pie bakers and restaurants. The heaviest season is in the summer.

Beginning with a short pack, canned apples, like dried prunes, have been getting into such small compass as to make the trade alert for possible bargains, but there have been none thus far and there will not be, according to indications. Stocks in first hands out of the 1910 pack are so small as to make the packers practically indifferent as to trading.

Spot coffee in Eastern markets is weaker but there has been no reflection of the weakness here. As this market did not take full advantage of the late upturn in the East it has not been affected by later Eastern weakness.

Another Minneapolis Safe Blown.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Burglars blew the safe in George E. Woodsill & Co.'s grocery, 4501 Nicollet avenue, early yesterday, getting $15 for their trouble. The door of the money box was blown completely off by a heavy charge of nitroglycerin, which created havoc generally in the store. Vegetable cans were blown from the shelves and scattered all over the store.

MAKES ATTACK ON EXPLORER

Representative Macon Denounces Commander Peary as a "Fakir."

Washington, Feb. 17.—Representative Macon of Arkansas, speaking in general debate on the naval appropriation bill in the house last night made a sensational attack upon Capt. Robert E. Peary, denouncing him as a "fakir" and declaring that he "should be driven from the naval service."

The bitter words uttered by the member from Arkansas called out a quick reply from Peary's friends. Representative W. Hampton Moore of Pennsylvania, after vainly attempting to interrupt Mr. Macon, finally got the floor in his own right. He characterized Mr. Macon's speech as "unjust, outrageous and offensive." He said there was always some one to be found to suspect every performance by men of genius and courage. He referred to Capt. Hobson's exploit of the Merrimac and to Dewey's victory at Manila bay.

"Heroes like those," said Mr. Moore, "have not the time to stop and deal with every dog that barks at their heels."

Macon, who evoked a roar of laughter in the house several days ago by announcing that in using the language "wilful and deliberate liar, dirty little pilferer of words and contemptible little cur," he had gone about as far as his "fellowship with the Methodist church permitted," added some original phrases to the history of the debate in the house tonight. He declared that Peary's whole story was "a fake, pure and simple." He said his contempt for "fake heroes" was supreme and he intimated that he put the hero of San Juan high in that class. Mr. Macon denounced the Peary Arctic club and charged that it had maintained a paid lobby in Washington. He said that President Taft's judgment in this matter was not be accepted, for he had congratulated Cook as heartily as he did Peary.

Paying his compliments to the editors of the New York Times and the New York Post, Mr. Macon characterized them as "unblushing know-all tit-bits and pea-eyed, pin-headed, putrid-tongued infinitesimals."

He referred to Peary as a "fur trader," pictured him as a self-exaggerated, self-opinionated, puffed-up "near-hero," and finally denounced him as "an unfaithful servant and an idle loafer who ought to be driven from the service instead of being promoted."

CARELESS DENTISTS

Are Scored By St. Paul Tooth Artist in Course of Address.

St. Paul Minn., Feb. 17.—Dishonesty among dentists, many of whom do imperfect work so that their patients have to return at frequent intervals, was charged yesterday afternoon by Dr. E. K. Wedelstaedt of St. Paul, who spoke on "Failures" before the members of the Dr. G. V. Balck Dental club in annual session at the old capitol.

"The failures of the dentists," said Dr. Wedelstaedt, "are the result of neglect in performing the fundamental requirements in filling teeth, and stand in the way of permanence of workmanship. Many dentists are lured on by their greed for wealth, and leave teeth in such a condition that another filling is necessary in a short time."

Continuing Dr. Wedelstaedt bitterly denounced those of his profession who practice this sort of thing as well as charging exorbitant fees for unimportant work. In the discussion which followed the St. Paul man's denunciation was upheld and attention was called to the fact that one of the chief aims of the club is to promote higher ethics in the profession.

WARNS STATE EDITORS.

Not to Pull Magazine Men's Chestnuts From Fire.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Minnesota has a business center with 500,000 population, and while there is a common interest between the city and county, our city brothers will have to be watched, or they will get away with the pie."

This was the note of warning to the country editors g'ven by H. S. Saylor of Buffalo, president of the Minnesota Editorial association, at the opening session of the forty-fifth annual meeting of the organization yesterday in the city hall.

"They have assumed," he continued, "the guardianship over the country, and advise what we ought to do to promote our prosperity."

The annual meeting of the association opened with more than 100 editors in attendance. Mayor Keller welcomed them on behalf of the city

E. W. Randall, chairman of the public affairs committee of the commercial club, welcomed the delegates on behalf of the club.

In his annual address, President H. S. Saylor warned the editors against engaging in the fight the magazines are waging on the postoffice department in the face of the recommendation of Postmaster General Hitchcock that advertising matter be taxed.

"Country publishers," he said, "should be very cautious about pulling chestnuts out of the fire for the general circuation periodicals. The less the relations of the country newspapers and the postoffice department are disturbed the better."

Yesterday afternoon the editors were addressed by Governor Eberhart and Dr. George Edgar Vincent, president-elect of the University.

For the Thin and Bloodless!

The thin and bloodless with pale checks, white lips and frail angular physique, of this community have been much interested in the reports of physicians and others concerning the effectiveness of the treatment for increasing the red and white corpuscles of the blood, thus adding color and weight with its accompanying vigor to the depleted system. A gain of from ten to thirty pounds is not at all unusual where the treatment is regularly used for several months, while the color improves almost from the beginning. Most good apothecaries supply it in the form of three-grain hyponuclane tablets, put up in sealed packets, with directions for home use. Its action aids assimilation and absorption of the food eaten very promptly.

LOSES HIS LIFE SEEKING MONEY

Farmer Near Karlstad Perishes in Destruction of His Home.

Karlstad, Minn., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—While groping in the smothering smoke in an effort to recover money from the fire, Pete Anderson, a farmer in Lind township lost his life in a fire which burned his house.

He was seen by Gilbert Olson, a neighbor, running from the barn to the house and Mr. Olson rushed to the scene, but upon arriving found Anderson's dead body just inside the door, a sack wrapped around his head. It is believed that he went in to try to recover a sum of money and had used the sack to protect himself from the heat and smoke. It is thought that the fire started from an overheated stove. Anderson was 45 years old and unmarried.

ISANTI COUNTY TRAGEDY.

Man Kills Himself After Trying to Murder His Wife.

Cambridge, Minn., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Now, you must die," declared Christian Gillert, aged 63, of Oxford township, as he grabbed hold of his wife and fired at her with a pistol. He fired twice as the woman struggled for possession of the weapon. One bullet shot off her ear and the other inflicted a flesh wound in the hand. Then she escaped and Gillert turning the weapon upon himself took his own life.

GREAT NORTHERN LUCKY.

Engine Slows Down Just Before Passenger Train Leaves Track.

Grand Forks, N. D., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The north-bound Great Northern local known as the Hannah train, was derailed yesterday between Dresden and Wales, a disastrous wreck being narrowly averted. A broken journal on the rear truck of the tender threw it from the track drawing two coaches after it. Fortunately the engine had slowed down at that point and the cars were not overturned. Beyond a severe shaking up and bad scare the passengers were unhurt. A wrecking crew was sent out from this city and the track cleared late last night.

Foley Youth Takes Life.

Foley, Minn., Feb. 17.—Noah Chevallia, aged 20, son of Israel Chevallia, a farmer living near here, wound up a spree Tuesday afternoon by going to the home of Albert Walbridge, his brother-in-law, about a quarter of a mile from town and shooting himself dying instantly.

Sues P. McDonnell.

Bessemer, Mich., Feb. 17.—(John Moren of Watersmeet has started suit against P. McDonnell, the Duluth contractor for $20,000 for injuries alleged to have been sustained in this county when a stone hurled by an explosion on one of McDonnell's contracts struck him in the head as he was eating his dinner.

Every Man Read This.

This treatment is said to have acquired a wonderful reputation throughout the East, owing to its peculiar propensity to fortify the nerve force and generate health and a consequent personal magnetism, so essential to the happiness of every normal human being. It is claimed to be a blessing to those who are physically impaired, gloomy, despondent, nervous and who have trembling of the limbs, dizziness, heart palpitation, cold hands and feet, insomnia, fear without cause, timidity in venturing and general inability to act rationally as others do. Also of great benefit to writers, professional men, office workers and the victims of society's late hours and over-indulgence in wines, liquors, etc.

By preparing the treatment at home secretly, no one need know of another's trouble, while the ingredients are much used in filling various prescriptions, so that even the purchase of them separately need occasion no timidity.

If the reader decides to try it, get three ounces of ordinary syrup sarsaparilla compound, and one ounce compound fluid balmwort; mix and let stand two hours; then get one ounce compound essence cardiol and one ounce tincture cadomene compound (not cardamon) mix all together, shake well and take a teaspoonful after each meal and one at night.

This contains no opiates whatever and may also be used by women who suffer with their nerves with absolute certainty of prompt and lasting benefits.

FUN AT ELKS' MINSTRELS

End Men and Interlocutors Have Some New Tick-lers to Spring.

Vaudeville Acts Are in Hands of Artists of Experience on Stage.

Have you ever laughed until you felt ready to quit and then have to burst into another irresistable roar of mirth?

Of course you have, and you'd have repeated the experience last night if you had attended the rehearsal of the end men and the interlocutor, who will be among the star performers at the big Elks minstrel and vaudeville show which will be on the boards at the Lyceum theater Monday and Tuesday nights.

There wasn't an old "gag" in the entire list. Every line sparkled with wit and fun. There are jokes of all kinds and varieties, but those which will be sprung Monday and Tuesday nights will be of a type that the Duluth public hasn't had an opportunity to enjoy in many months.

The last of the finishing touches are being put on by those who have the performances in charge. Owing to the large number of people in the cast extra staging will be required and the carpenters are completing the work as far as possible. The last pieces of the costumes, which will be the most elaborate that have ever been used for a local theatrical performance, are being prepared. No expense has been spared either in them or the other stage settings.

"Art" White and "Joe" McLaughlin will appear in a black face act which will be a "scream," in the language of the matinee enthusiast. Mr. White is one of the most accomplished black face artists in the Northwest. While in Minneapolis and St. Paul he made such a hit that he received repeated offers of large salary from some of the leading vaudeville circuit managers of the country. The Elks are congratulating themselves on being able to secure his assistance. Mr. McLaughlin has also had considerable experience in this line and will be a most efficient collaborator.

Everybody downtown knows "Dub" Tresise, the only rival of Harry Lauder Duluth has produced. But he can sing any other kind of a song as well, and is billed for "Send For Me." "Dude" Abraham, who is also acquiring a reputation in the vocal art, will sing "I Love It," and Stanley Lamb will render a take-off on "Kelly," which promises to be one of the big cards of the show.

George Mason and F. Wegman will be the most realistic "cry baby" and teacher ever seen or heard and E. N. Hagenson, who also has refused good offers to appear on a vaudeville circuit, will have a dialect "stunt" of the Ole Olson school which will be an entertainment in itself.

Victim of Drink Needs Orrine.

Drink cunningly destroys the will power, and while the drunkard wants to do what you tell him, he wants a thousand times more the drink that he craves. Medical treatment is necessary. Orrine destroys the desire for liquor, so that the drink will not be missed and restores the patient to health.

This remedy is thoroughly scientific and is so uniformly successful that it is sold with a guarantee to refund your money if after a trial it has not benefited. Booklet free on request. CASHMAN TARIFF BILL MAY GET DEATH BLOW BY ATTORNEY GENERAL effect on pending legislation involving this question.

He is inclined to the belief that the passage of new rate regulation measures of any kind would make the pending controversies "moot cases," involving only a principle without concrete bearing on the rights of any individual or corporation. In such cases it is the practice of the courts to refuse to rule.

If Mr. Simpson is right, it seems clear that the work and expense thus far invested in the pending rate cases would be made waste. It would be necessary to start all over again, and to cover at the expense of additional labor and money the ground already covered. The rate cases have thus far cost the state more than $130,000, and they have covered two years' time. All this would be lost, it is feared, if the state at this time makes a new attempt to regulate rates.

There is another important point involved. There is a state law which provides, in effect, that in the event that the state wins its case, shippers who have in the meantime paid the higher rates imposed by the railroads may recover the difference. Mr. Simpson fears that this recovery would also be jeopardized if the pending cases were made "moot."

It is important to the state that it should be finally and definitely decided just where it stands in the matter of rate regulation. It is important not only to this state but to other states. The question is in process of determination, and when the pending cases are decided by the supreme court of the United States, this state and other states will know what their situation is.

If the passage of a new rate regulation law would nullify the progress already made toward the solution of these vital issues, the state would be that much farther away from the final adjudication of its position in relation to railroad rates. In other words, the fear is that the passage of the Cashman bill would wipe out all the progress that has been made, make the state's enormous expense negligible and without result, and put the state back where it started two years ago.

If Attorney General Simpson's further researches confirm his present opinion, there is little doubt that his advice will result in the final defeat of the Cashman measure at this session.

His opinion will be handed down before the bill comes up for action in the senate as a special order next Thursday afternoon.

Express Company Deliveries.

Express companies will be compelled to deliver all parcels within the limits of all cities of more than 5,000 population, if a bill recommended to pass yesterday afternoon by the house committee on express and electric railways becomes a law. The bill, which was introduced by Representative T. J. Greene of St. Paul, reaches a source of widespread complaint. Duluth has had its share of difficulty, the express companies having refused to make deliveries outside of certain limits specified by themselves, unless those to whom parcels were consigned paid extra for the service.

Practically all of the express companies were represented at yesterday afternoon's meeting of the committee, and they were bitterly opposed to the bill, which they said would cause them to lose money on parcels delivered outside of reasonable distances from their offices.

The committee also recommended for passage the Spooner bill making railroad companies parties to proceedings before the railroad and warehouse commission involving the reasonableness of express charges.

To Make Two Reports.

The house committee on public accounts and expenditures, after several weeks' investigation, agreed yesterday afternoon to make two reports on the bill providing for paying for publishing the proposed constitutional amendments last fall.

Both reports agreed as to the facts, which are that the bill calls for payment to more newspapers, and for more pay to each newspaper, than the law allowed.

The law provides that three publications shall be made in three newspapers in each county. The secretary of state, who has charge of the work, not only authorized four publications in each newspaper, making the bill $100 each where it should have been $80, but gave the business to more than three papers in some counties. About twenty-five more papers than the law contemplates got the publications, and each newspaper was allowed to run a bill of $100 when the law limited it to $80.

It has appeared at the hearings that this is according to a custom of many years' standing, and that Secretary of State Schmahl, in violating the law, responded to the wishes of many members of the legislature.

The majority report, signed by the Republican members of the committee, recommends that payment be made only to the number of newspapers entitled to it under the law, and that only the legal amount be paid to each. This leaves it up to somebody to decide which three of the four newspapers in each county shall be paid, and which newspaper in each county shall go unpaid.

The minority report, signed by Chairman Pfaender and other Democratic members of the committee, includes the same finding of fact, but recommends that since the publications were made in good faith and according to custom of long standing, a curative act be passed to make full payment, with the understanding that hereafter publication and payment be strictly according to law.

To Investigate Health Board.

At the request of Representative N. S. Hillman of Two Harbors, a member of the committee, it was decided to appoint a sub-committee to look into the bills of the state health department, particularly a bill of $1,009 paid to Secretary Bracken of the state board of health for a trip to Europe. It appeared that the bill was not properly itemized, and there were intimations that other bills had been allowed by the state auditor without proper itemizing. The committee was instructed to look into this matter.

Sub-committees were also authorized to make the usual investigation into all the state departments.

The senate committee on mines and mining, of which Senator T. M. Pugh of Duluth is chairman, yesterday afternoon voted unalmously to recommend for passage Senator James P. Boyle's bill appropriating $35,000 for a building at Hibbing to house the state mine inspection forces. The house committee has recommended for passage Representative Knapp's bill of a similar character, and both bills will have to be passed upon by the finance committee of the senate and the appropriations committee of the house.

The committee also recommended for passage Senator Nelson's bill, recommended by the state auditor, providing for a mines experiment station at the state university, to operate in conjunction with the state school of mines with the view of making the work of that school of practical benefit to the state as the work of the agricultural college has proved to be. This bill also must pass the scrutiny of the finance committee.

The senate finance committee yesterday afternoon voted to recommend for passage Senator Putnam's bill appropriating $87,000 for fifteen more county agricultural schools. There are ten such schools now provided for by law, and if the Putnam bill passes twenty-five will be authorized. The bill provides that there cannot be more than one such school in each county.

The C. E. Stone bill, providing for a state school for dependent children of 10 to 18 years of age in which they shall be taught agriculture, domestic science and industrial work, was recommended to pass yesterday afternoon by the house committee on appropriations. The school is to be located near an agricultural school, the place to be selected by the governor, secretary of state, attorney general, one senator and one representative. The bill appropriates $125,000 to be used for buying a site, and whatever is left after the site is bought is to go toward starting a building.

Representative Conley has prepared for early introduction a bill intended to reach the frequent plea of insanity in criminal cases. It provides that if, on the trial of any person accused of law-breaking, it shall appear to the jury that the accused person is guilty, but is insane, the jury may return a verdict of "guilty but insane," and that the convicted person shall be sentenced to an asylum for the criminal insane for such term as he would have had to serve in prison if convicted. If the convict is still insane when the sentence expires, he is to remain in the asylum. In cases where the penalty would be death for a sane person, a person found insane is to be sentenced to the asylum for life, though the governor may pardon him if he thinks it will be safe to the public to do so.

Senator Frank Clague and Representative J. R. Keefe were escorting about the capitol yesterday three Sioux Indians, members of a colony of farmer Sioux in Redwood county. They were here to get the right to hunt without regard to the game laws, which they claim belongs to them by virtue of treaties. They exhibit letters signed by Governor Sibley and others, showing that they were friendly during the Sioux outbreak—or rather that their fathers were, since the letters were written to those of the preceding generation.

In accordance with the agreement by the house reapportionment committee that districts might be changed if the representatives united without affecting the general scheme, four districts will be changed. Faribault county is left alone instead of being joined to Martin county in a senatorial district, and Watonwan county is left joined to Martin, as now, instead of being joined to Cottonwood. A district is made of Cottonwood, Jackson and Murray counties, and another out of Nobles, Pipestone and Rock. Each district is given two representatives except Faribault, which gets but one. These changes are by agreement among the members affected, and they will reduce the vote against the bill.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

MONEY IS PUT INTO DRAINAGE DITCHES.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The money which the state some days ago turned from the revenue fund to the investment fund in taking up the $250,000 of the state capitol certificates has been put to use on drainage ditches in the northern part of the state.

Bonds amounting to $29,320 of Kittson county were taken up this morning and Roseau county pledged $125,210 for the building of state ditches.

LARKE SELLS THE GAZETTE

Former Duluthian May Enter Newspaper Field in Kansas City.

George H. Larke, a former well known newspaper man of this city who left The Herald to take the management of the Ohio State Journal of Columbus, Ohio, has sold his interest in the St. Joseph Gazette, in which he became interested four or five years ago after leaving the Ohio State Journal.

Mr. Larke received a large sum of money for his interest in the Gazette and will probably re-enter the newspaper business in Kansas City, Mo. He is now investigating for the owners the editorial and business departments of the Kansas City Post and the Denver Post, which are owned by the same management. He has offers from Kansas City, Denver and Los Angeles and he has not decided to which city he will go. It is rumored that he will purchase an interest in the Kansas City Post. He has many friends in this city who are interested in his career.

DEATH AFTER EXPOSURE.

Erick Jacobson Is Victim of Pneumonia at Cloquet.

Cloquet, Minn., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Erick Jacobson, about 47 years old, died at the Cloquet hospital Thursday, after a brief illness from pneumonia. Jacobson had suffered several days from cold and exposure, and Monday night was found sleeping on a roll of paper at the paper mill. He was brought to the hospital, but was so ill that nothing could be done for him. His wife is dead and his relatives are all in Finland.

The body of Emil Peterson is still unclaimed at the Kelly & Moses morgue. Peterson was brought down from the Cloquet company's logging camps, ill with grip, and died very suddenly last week of heart failure. Nothing except his name was known at the camp, and it is thought that the name was assumed, as the young man was a Finn.

The remains of Clifford Martinson, a 13-month-old child, were brought here yesterday from Superior for interment, accompanied by an uncle, H. Martinson of Scanlon. Death was due to tuberculosis, to which both parents of the child succumbed a few months ago at Scanlon.

COPPERS WEAKEN; THEN ADVANCE

Market Shows Strength When Shorts Run to Cover--- Local Profit Taking.

Coppers opened weak and declined slightly, then became nervous and finally advanced sharply at the close when the market became oversold.

Trading was light and there was not much interest in the market. News was colorless and the market was unaffected by anything but traders' sentiments. The market was strictly a professional affair. The market is a scalping proposition and seems to have lost considerable strength after the advance. It is absorbing liquidation well, however, and the technical position of the market is improving.

The local situation was slightly weaker as there was some profit taking in stocks which have had sensational advances, such as Keating, which sold at $2.75, $2.81¼, $2.87½ and back to $2.75, closing strong at $2.81¼ bid. The part paid Scott sold at $3.25, Butte Ballaklava at $4.87½, Denn at $5.25 to $5.18¾, Giroux at $6.50 to $6.56¼, Calumet & Corbin at 32c, 31c and back to 32c, Calumet & Sonora showed life by advancing from sales at $7.12½ to $7.50, Cliff sold at $1.13¾ and Summit at 72c.

Amalgamated sold at $63.50, $63.87½, $63.50, $64.25, $63.87½ and then to $64.50. Ojibway sold at $6.75, Butte Ballaklava at $4.87½, Calumet & Arizona at $52.50 to $52, Greene at $6.12½, North Butte at $28.25 to $29, Superior & Pittsburg at $14.75 to $14.62½.

JAGGARD FUNERAL OCCURS NEXT WEEK

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Word has been received in St. Paul by friends of the late Justice E. A. Jaggard, who died Monday evening in Bermuda, that funeral services would be held in St. Paul either Wednesday or Thursday of next week.

The body is expected to reach New York next Monday afternoon and the plans are now to bring it to St. Paul immediately. Mrs. Jaggard and relatives of the justice will accompany the body to St. Paul.

According to the information received it has not been decided where the remains will be interred. The Jaggard burial lot is in Philadelphia and there is a possibility that after the services here the remains will be taken to that city and placed beside the graves of Justice Jaggard's father and mother, whose remains were recently removed from Altoona, Pa., to Philadelphia.

BRANCH OFFICES:
A. Jensen, 330 North 57th Ave. W. J. J. Moran, 316½ North Central Ave.

ONE DEAD; THREE DANGEROUSLY ILL

Mrs. Fred Edlund Dies, While Her Parents and Brother Are Afflicted.

With three other members of her family dangerously ill with scarlet fever, Mrs. Esther Lillian Edlund, wife of Fred Edlund, a butcher, residing at 714 North Fifty-sixth avenue west, died this morning from the effects of a cold which she contracted three weeks ago.

Her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Paulson, and one brother, Clarence, are quarantined at the Paulson home, 5722 Highland street, on account of scarlet fever, from which the three are suffering. Mrs. Edlund was formerly Miss Esther Paulson.

The Paulson family are old residents of West Duluth, having lived in the western section of the city for several years. Besides her husband, Mrs. Edlund is survived by one child, a daughter, 2½ years of age, three sisters, Mrs. Victor Cralson of 502 North Fifty-sixth avenue west, Miss Ella and Miss Marie Paulson, and four brothers, Adlerd, Fred, Clarence and Reuben.

The death of Mrs. Edlund is the third in the Paulson family in four years. Edith, aged 22, died four years ago, and Levi, aged 22, died on July 22, 1909.

The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from Elim Swedish Lutheran church, Fifty-sixth avenue west and Elinor street, to Oneota cemetery. Rev. John A. Krantz, pastor of the church, will conduct the services.

TRADE MEETING TO BE CALLED

Another "trade" meeting may be called by the West Duluth Commercial club in the near future, to work out a plan to keep the West Duluth trade at home and enable the residents who are consumers, to give their reasons for going elsewhere to purchase their goods.

Just when the meeting will be called has not been decided. The proposition may come up this evening, when the Commercial club meets in regular session. It is possible that a date may be set for a mass meeting in the near future.

At the recent "trade" meeting, the merchants discussed at some length their side of the case at which time it was suggested that perhaps the reason, why some of the trade, which naturally should go through the channels of the West Duluth stores, was carried on at the up-town stores, was that the West Duluth merchants were not advertising their business enough.

MRS. FLECKENSTEIN DIES.

She was formerly Miss Ida La France and had lived with her parents at Fond du Lac most of her life. A year ago she was married. The funeral will be held Monday morning at 9 o'clock from the St. Jean Baptiste Catholic church, Twenty-fifth avenue west and Third street, with burial at Calvary cemetery.

HER DANCING SHOCKED CLERKS

Mrs. Inez Colletz, an attractive appearing woman, who recently came here from Minneapolis, was examined as to her sanity in the probate court this afternoon. Her husband came here after she was arrested and he expressed the belief that she was insane.

Mrs. Colletz, it is said, had recently seen the Russian dancers who are in vaudeville here, and when she went into a local ten-cent store she gave the astonished clerks several varieties of dances that were not entirely Russian. She was taken into custody.

MINNESOTA POSTMASTERS NAMED BY THE PRESIDENT.

Washington, Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The president today nominated the following Minnesota postmasters: John L. Grady, Cass Lake; Mark Swedberg, Luverne; Alton Vrosby, Willmar; Edward A. Wasserzieher, Deerwood.

YOUNG PETERSON MAY BE LOCATED

Clarence Peterson, the missing Stillwater young man, about whom The Herald recently printed a dispatch from Stillwater, telling of the efforts his relatives are making to find him, and a dispatch from Cloquet telling of search being made in the lumber camps, may be living in the locality of Mora, Minn. A young man of that name was at Cusson, St. Louis county, during the hunting season and then went to Mora, requesting that his mail be forwarded to the latter place.

Postmaster Fred J. Page of Cusson writes The Herald as follows, under date of Feb. 16:

"We had two young men here during the hunting season who worked at one of the camps for a few days, and then took to hunting and trapping, but not having very good success they only stayed about three weeks. They requested me to forward their mail to Mora, Minn, R. F. D., No. 1. Their names were Frank Gordon and Clarence Peterson, both aged about 19."

CLASH IMMINENT AMONG OFFICIALS

Danville, Ill., Feb. 17.—A clash between the grand jury and the sheriff's office is among the probabilities of the next few hours in the election fraud investigation. Ever since the elimination of State's Attorney Lewman, it is claimed that Foreman Woodyard has been having trouble in securing witnesses, subpoenas issued being returned with the indorsement, "person not found."

Bench warrants issued on indictments returned a week ago have not been served and Foreman Woodyard believes that a condition antagonistic to the work of the grand jury exists in the sheriff's office.

INDIANS LIKELY TO GET EXPENSES

Washington, Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house today agreed to a conference report on the Indian appropriation bill, among the items being the Miller paragraph authorizing the payment of $2,500 for expenses to the delegation of White Earth Indians who spent some time in Washington this winter, in relation to an adjustment of matters growing out of enrollments on White Earth reservation.

OUTSIDER WINS FROM FAVORITE IN DOG DERBY.

Liverpool, Feb. 17.—The Waterloo cup, the annual dog derby, was won at Ilter today by Sir R. W. B. Jardine's puppy Jabberwock, a rank outsider, who defeated the favorite, Silk and Scarlet.

When the heats were started Wednesday, bets of 1,000 to 20 were laid against Jabberwock. In addition to the cup given by the earl of Sefton and valued at $500, the winner takes $250 cash.

Jardine's Long Span won the derby in 1907.

Wages Increased.

There is little change in the labor situation. Local employment officials state that wages have been increased within the past two weeks and that no response has been made on the part of the laborer to the material evidences of the greater demand upon the part of the employer for men.

In many cases $40 is being offered for common labor in the woods, with few responses.

The very essence of a free government consists in considering offices as public trusts, bestowed for the good of the country, and not for the benefit of an individual or a party.
—John C. Calhoun.

TIMBER AND RECIPROCITY.

If the senate needed anything to arouse it to a sense of the need of ratification of the Canadian reciprocity agreement—and the general opinion is that it is seriously in need of such an awakening—it ought to listen for a few minutes to the alarm notes in the report of Commissioner Smith on the timber situation in this country. With four-fifths of all the standing timber in the hands of a few private interests there is ample reason for the free admission of lumber from somewhere or other. The experience of the country with the lumber barons has not been such as to lead to a conclusion that these big holdings are being maintained with any idea of liberal distribution among the people in times of need. In fact, there is every reason to regard these holdings and continued consolidations as a plain attempt to corner the lumber market, and there is no question as to what that kind of an operation means.

Edison's "poured house" may be feasible, and cement may be adaptable as a substitute for wood for many purposes, but there is plenty of demand for the natural product yet, and there will be a big demand for it for years to come. If the government, in the meantime, is not acting for the exclusive benefit of individuals, it must make it possible to get that product at reasonable prices, and the agreement with Canada is one step toward the solution of the present difficulty.

Meanwhile the farmers, who need the benefits of reciprocity as much as anybody, are being urged by political prestidigitators to fight against their own well-being, and the protected interests that see in the Canadian agreement an entering wedge of policy that will strip them of their own special privileges, are trying to get up a scare that will induce the senate to add another betrayal of the public trust to the one perpetrated in the enactment of the Payne tariff law.

The people of the nation are thoroughly aroused on the question of reciprocity. The senate had better realize that fact, and get busy. If the members want a political reason for ratifying the agreement they can find it in the fact that this is the Republican party's last chance to make good. And if they are not playing politics pure and simple, they ought to be the more ready to ratify it because of the principle of the thing and because the people want them to.

THE PASSING OF A FAMILY.

Leaving out of consideration all financial and stock market influences and all thought of the development of commerce and transportation, there is something startling in the announcement of the fact that the Gould family is to be dropped from the list of active participants in the railroad affairs of the world. It makes one halt a moment to think the kind of things one can't exactly express, the kind of things that sink deep into the mind and that come up every once in awhile with a rush and then subside for another period. Somehow the passing of the Gould family from the railroad world is a good deal like the selling of an old homestead—the heirs do not need the income from the place; they do not hold to the idea of keeping up the activities of their forebears; they just get rid of it.

It is but little more than half a century since the name of Gould first became associated with transportation matters. That was when Jay Gould, the farmer's son, bought up some bonds of the Rutland & Washington road and put himself into office as president, superintendent and treasurer. Who was this young chap and what did he want, asked those who were following railroad matters at that time. Then came his consolidation of the Rutland lines with those of the Rensselaer & Saratoga. But he was not through yet. With his eye on yet bigger things, he sold out his interests in the consolidated lines, opened a broker's office in New York and began operations that forced down the price of Erie stock until he was able to buy it in. With James Fisk, Jr., he entered the directorate of the Erie and was elected president, Fisk taking the vice presidency and treasurership. Meantime he developed his scheme to corner the gold market of New York, and carried out transactions which brought about the panic marked by "Black Friday." He and Fisk together cleared about $11,000,000 out of that deal. Armed with this wealth, Gould seems to have paid little attention to the reorganization of the Erie in 1872, when he lost his connection with that road. He went West, and by securing control of lines already in existence and by constructing new ones, he established what afterward became known as "the Gould system," in which he retained an interest until his death in New York on Dec. 2, 1892, when those interests passed to his family.

The cause of the "passing of the Goulds" does not seem far to seek. Probably the whole secret lies in the statement of the Missouri Pacific official who said that George J. Gould's successor as president of that road "will eat, drink and sleep on the job." Evidently there has been no such application shown by the successors of the "first" Gould. Certainly none of them has shown any of the qualities that enabled the farmer boy to rise in twelve years to a point where he could even think of such a transaction as led to "Black Friday." The fame which some bearers of the name have achieved is not of the kind to arouse envy or admiration. If there is anything to the old theory, it is probable that the body of Jay Gould occupies a very different position in its casket from that in which it was originally placed.

What of the Goulds now? They are achieving fame in lines vastly different from those chosen by their famous ancestor, hardly a generation removed from the present time. They drive fast horses; they lead social functions; they do almost everything, in fact, that anybody else could do with the same amount of wealth they possess. But the only market in which the name figures prominently today is that in which foreign titles are bought and sold.

In the story of this name there lies a wonderful romance of modern times—a transition from insignificance to power and from power to common notoriety—and all within but little more than half a century. Unless the signs are wrong the beginning of this new chapter in American railroad history marks in very truth "the passing of the Goulds."

PITTSBURG ONCE MORE.

Almost before the Adams county, Ohio, ballot scandals have had time to grow cold, the country is given a new chapter of corruption from an old source—Pittsburg. It is not the first time the Smoky City has figured in such a mess, and perhaps the country will not be particularly surprised at the present development. Pennsylvania has been unfortunate, and Pittsburg particularly so, in coming before the rest of the nation with instances of bribery and corruption. About the only ray of hope that has been discernible in the various instances has been the fact that the men involved in the scandals were hunted out into the open.

But while the other cities of the United States are holding up their hands in horror at the things found in Pittsburg, it will be just as well for their people to study the methods by which the wrong-doing there is being unearthed. The Voters' Civic league has been the medium of much good to the city. It was through the work of that organization that the councilmanic graft cases were dug up and prosecuted, and the results showed that the men who made the charges knew what they were about. That fact makes the present charges of school board graft significant in spite of the lack of definiteness in the published statement. It is reasonable to infer that these men know what they are about now as well as they did in the councilmanic affair.

All of which goes to prove that no city need suffer from the evils of corruption in office if the people do not want to allow such evils to continue. Under the common system of municipal government there are many things that work in favor of the forces of corruption. A dishonest official has at hand many facilities for covering up his wrong-doing. There is a lack of definiteness in responsibility that helps in the accomplishment of graft. That means that special efforts must be made to find out the truth. And even when the truth is learned, there is need of long procedure of one kind or another, not only to punish the guilty but even to remove them from office. But the Voters' Civic league of Pittsburg has given the voters of other cities one splendid object lesson, and the developments from its present promise of another one will be watched with interest everywhere.

THE BEST TIME TO "POP."

When is the best time for a man to propose? It sounds like an inconsequential query for an idle hour, doesn't it? But the women of London have become so stirred up over the matter that there promises to be a period of inactivity on the part of the suffragettes, pending the settlement of this new problem. Lady Troubridge started it, and is one of the principal disputants.

And Lady Troubridge, it must be admitted, has a knowledge of men and women. She advances the theory that the best time for a man to propose is somewhere along about noon, after he has had a chance to forget a little of the glamour and fascination, the witching moonlight or the half-lighted sweetness of the night before. Also, she insists that he should propose on an empty stomach, which, by the way, puts a crimp in the time-worn theory that he ought to do it on his knees. She argues that plenty to eat and drink dulls a man's capability to think and judge carefully; that he is more likely to yield to the whim of the moment and to act recklessly than he is if his digestive organs are making an imperative demand for attention.

Maybe her ladyship isn't so far wrong, at that. If a man pops the question a little before noon the girl can be sure that he did it deliberately and with malice afore thought. That would bring the act within the legal provisions of the first degree, and at least would be a big help to the girl in case she later saw fit to sue for breach of promise. But assuming, as well-bred people have been brought up to assume, that the great aim of every girl is to have men propose to her, such a plan would put a bad proposition before the dear things, for they would be robbed of their chance to exert the fascinations of the evening on their male acquaintances. What chance has a girl of impressing a man's heart when her hair has not yet been taken out of curl papers, when she is rigged out in one of those things that look like a short-sawed kimono of nondescript pattern, and when his inmost thoughts are about what he is to have to eat at the earliest possible moment? And yet even that would depend on the girl, for if she could arrange to have her victim see her working over a kitchen range littered with cooking dishes from which issued alluring odors, the probability is that she would stand a better chance than she ever did in her best gown and makeup and in the enchantment of a conservatory or dimly lighted parlor.

It is easy to see that there are two sides to the question, and one rather wonders why it never has been brought forward before. But now that it is up for discussion, let's hope that it will be pushed through to a settlement. It seems plain that so important a matter should not be left to chance, and if this parliament can be induced to establish a legal popping hour, a sort of open season, as it were, King George can be sure that his reign will go down in history as one in which great strides were made in legislation that will influence the personal lives of his subjects.

But somehow nobody seems to have considered the possibility that Canada might be wanting to annex the United States.

"Self-exaggerated, self-opinionated, puffed-up near-hero" is good. So is "unblushing know-all tit-bits and pea-eyed, pin-headed, putrid-tongued infinitesimals." But we submit that neither of them will outlive "malefactors of great wealth" or "malicious falsifiers." There is only one real authority today on the elaboration of vitriolic speech.

An Unnerving Circumstance.

Bagley Herald: With Carrie Nation on the sick list, "Pussyfoot" sidetracked, Emma Goldman barred from preaching anarchy and Frank James and Cole Younger still keeping within the borders of Missouri, some of the parties who stir up strife for selfish ends have been reduced, and the country is safer without them.

But think how many state legislatures are in session.

Surely Is Amazing.

Preston Republican: When the postal savings bank at Pekin, Ill., opened, a newspaper man made a deposit of $5. Thus is confirmed for all time to come the argument that the postal savings bank would bring forth money from strange places.

Who said there was nothing new under the sun?

About Legislators' Mileage.

Pine River Sentinel: From the amounts drawn by various solons it would seem that the road to the legislature is far from being the straight and narrow path.

It isn't. It's the road to St. Paul.

Drifting Into Socialism.

Sauk Center Herald: The interests, the "practical politicians" and the bosses are driving many into the ranks of the Socialists. But isn't the remedy, in some instances at least, as bad as the disease?

Well, the tendency may have the good effect of straightening up the old parties and scaring the fat parties into less aggressive plundering tactics.

Utility the Watchword.

Princeton Union: Those who have made a study of roosterology say that the spurs of fowls continue to grow a long time after the birds are dead. If this is true the spurs of the roosters which were placed in Chicago cold storage warehouses five years ago and are now being marketed as spring chickens must be several feet in length.

Sure. The packers clip the spurs before the chickens are put on the famished market and use them as meat hooks in the other cold storage houses.

A Casual Objection.

Gilbert Herald: If men were as thoughtful for their wives as they were for their sweethearts, and women were as kind to their husbands as they were to their lovers, the dove of peace would not so often be displaced by the dark raven of discord.

But think of the monotony of it.

Very Poor Consolation.

Sandstone Courier: The cold storage men played hog in cornering butter and eggs and made a failure, but they give the farmers a long time in which to rake in the shekels.

Which is all very nice for the farmer, but not a bit consoling to the poor chap who must suffer the gastronomic consequences of the squeeze while wishing he had a million or a farm.

The Hue and the Cry.

Ortonville Herald-Star: A bunch of Alaska miners have quit digging gold and turned their attention to digging coal. The only difference is the color.

Let's see, the color of that coal must be of a Ballinger tinge, isn't it? As for the other, Mr. Morganheim has most of that, too.

Oh, Why Should the Spirit of Mortal Be Proud?

Spokane Spokesman Review: The following poem was a particular favorite with Abraham Lincoln. It was first shown to him when a young man by a friend, and afterward he cut it from a newspaper and learned it by heart. He said to a friend: "I would give a great deal to know who wrote it, but have never been able to ascertain." He did afterward learn the name of the author.

William Knox was a Scottish poet who was born in 1789 at Firth and died in 1825 at Edinburgh. His "Lonely Hearth and Other Poems" was published in 1818, and "The Songs of Israel," from which "Oh, Why Should the Spirit of Mortal Be Proud?" is taken in 1824. Sir Walter Scott was an admirer of Knox's poems, and befriended the author when his habits brought him into need.

Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud?
Like a swift-fleeting meteor, a fast-flying cloud,
A flash of the lightning, a break of the wave,
Man passeth from life to his rest in the grave.

The leaves of the oak and the willow shall fade,
Be scattered around, and together be laid;
As the young and the old, the low and the high,
Shall crumple to dust and together shall lie.

The head of the king that the scepter hath borne;
The brow of the priest, that the miter hath worn;
The eye of the sage and the heart of the brave—
Are hidden and lost in the depths of the grave.

So the multitude goes, like the flower or the weed
That withers away to let others succeed;
So the multitude comes, even those we behold,
To repeat every tale that has often been told.

Yea, hope and despondency, pleasure and pain,
Are mingled together in sunshine and rain,
And the smile and the tear, and the song and the dirge,
Still follow each other like surge upon surge.

'Tis the wink of an eye; 'tis the draft of a breath
From the blossom of health to the paleness of death,
From the gilded saloon to the bier and the shroud;
Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud?

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: It's awful unlucky to think you know how to speculate.

You can make more out of most anything than out of rich relatives.

If a girl smiles toward you, look over your shoulder for the other man.

Walking on icy pavements is absolute security to trying to escape family jars.

A man has an incurable idea that his wife ought to prefer to sit around and see him smoke an old pipe to his taking her to the opera.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: A well digger always gets in his work.

Keep an eye on the man who tries to flatter you.

More people have the gift of gab than the gift of silence.

Don't go too fast, young man, even if the road is smooth.

If a man has a bad reputation it's easy for him to live down to it.

The essentials to domestic strife are a fussy husband and a nagging wife.

It makes a mother mad if her son's wife is deeper in the social swim than herself.

Here's another explanation. Perhaps Mother Eve started to talk before she started to think.

While a steel band may be stronger than a brass band, the latter is more successful in holding a crowd.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

SNOW ON THE CROSSINGS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Still fussing, as you may surmise—but I've got a right to do it. It's my business, and that's why it's your business, Mr Open Court.

Why in the name of slush doesn't the city of Duluth strive to make Duluth more liveable than it is? It's a dandy fine place to be alive in, of course, but why not make it dandlier? In most cities that aspire to the greatness that Duluth has attained, there is a department of public works which sees to the disposal of such public encumbrances as daily retard the progress of Duluthians who want to cross the street. Snow is necessary. The farmer wants it. Congress has been legislating for the farmer since the first time it realized that its constituency was a farmer constituency. But we guys in the city haven't any particular need of snow. We don't want it, except for drop curtain scenery. When the curtain becomes a cloak, it ceases to be beautiful, although it's made of that kind of goods.

A lot more people would use the street cars if the crossings were cleared away so that they could get to the cars. That suggests the idea that the charter of the street car company doesn't require it to keep the street clear of snow. It would prosper to that extent, as would the city. Meanwhile, why not have the board of public works attend to this duty.

—A. FUSSER.

Duluth Feb. 16.

AN ODD REQUEST.

To the Editor of the Herald:

Are there any stores in Duluth which sell used stamps, United States or foreign? Please tell me the store and price, if you know of any.

H. H.

Duluth, Feb. 14.

The editor knows of no such store in Duluth.

THE SULLOWAY PENSION BILL.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I notice that the senate committee has reported the Sulloway pension bill, passed by the house some time ago, favorably. The bill if enacted into law will make the annual appropriation for pensions over $200,000,000, an amount large enough to frighten the people who do not stop to consider that the survivors of the Civil war are not the only ones benefited, as fully 90 per cent of the amount paid the veterans goes directly into circulation and stimulates trade. Abolish the pension payments and then withdraw the present $153,000,000 from circulation and a panic would follow.

Second. It is justice to the men who did the fighting, now discriminated against in favor of men who never fired a gun, by special acts of congress granting them larger pensions than the Sulloway bill provides for the veterans.

Third. The average age of the Civil war veterans makes it certain that few will be left in ten years. Probably half of them will pass away in five years. If congress and the president are in earnest in providing for the veterans liberally the time is short in which to do it.

THOMAS H. PARSONS.

Pillager, Minn., Feb. 14.

It Pays to Die En Masse.

The Survey: An ambulance backed up to No. 17 Bond street, Chicago. Abe Miller was in the ambulance. His wife had to face the world unaided, for Abe, who was a worker in a steel mill, while handling hot metal had been burned and died from the injuries. The company settled for $500 and promised steady employment for Abe's wife. A three line notice in one newspaper was all the world at large heard of the accident.

A torch and a bale of hay caused one of the most dramatic mine disasters in industrial history. Andrew Dovin and 257 of his fellow workmen lost their lives. For weeks the press of the country pulsed with stories of thrilling rescues by a heroic band of men who finally perished in an act of supreme sacrifice. Twenty-one men buried alive for eight days were saved. This publicity acted with compelling force upon the operating company so that Andrew Dovin's family received $1,800 from his employer and nearly as much again from public contributions. Fate decreed that Abe Miller should die alone from a violent accident and as a consequence his widow received less than one-seventh as much as Andrew Dovin's. But her need would have been unchanged by the fact that her husband was one of 258 to be killed. Luck was simply against her.

One-Syllabled Pragmatism.

The Independent: A subscriber asks us "to define pragmatism in words of one syllable so I can understand it." We gladly comply with his request for such a definition, but we cannot guarantee that he will understand it any better than when longer words are used. So here goes: The one way to find out if a thing is true is to try it and see how it works. If it works well for a long time and for all folks, it must have some truth in it. If it works wrong it is false, at least in part. If there is no way to test it, then it has no sense. It means naught to us if we cannot tell what odds it makes if we hold to it or not. A creed is just a guide to life. We must live to learn. If a man would know what is right he must try to do what is right. Then he can find out. Prove all things and hold fast to that which is good. The will to have faith in a thing oft makes the faith come true. So it can be said in a way that we make truth for our own use. What we think must be of use to us in some way, else why should we think it? The truth is what is good for us, what helps us, what gives us joy and peace, what shows us how to act, what ties up fact to fact, so the chain will hold, what makes us see all things clear and straight and what keeps us from stray paths that turn out wrong in the end.

Industrial Training in Hawaii.

New York Sun: Industrial training forms an important part of the work of the public schools of Hawaii just as it does in the Philippines. The course includes agriculture, woodwork, printing and domestic science. Pupils to the number of 9,300 in 125 schools have been engaged in systematic gardening. Two of the schools, including a reformatory school, have raised sugar cane on a commercial basis, the 1911 crop being expected to yield over $5,000.

Twenty schools are equipped for carpentry work, and 7,575 pupils engaged in that work during the year. Seven schools are equipped for printing and do regular printing on school work, publishing a paper and many other things. Domestic science includes cooking, sewing, lace making and weaving. Twelve schools have cooking departments. In sewing 8,500 pupils have been engaged; nearly all the schools teach plain sewing to both boys and girls of the primary grades, while the higher forms of work, such as cutting and fitting of garments, are taught only to the girls of the higher grades. Twenty-one schools give instruction in lace making. Five hundred pupils have done weaving with grass, bamboo and hala leaves.

No Hot Air Meter.

Washington Times: The Chicago actress who has gone into bankruptcy on account of a $4,000 taxicab bill can at least be thankful that her gas main was not on the same meter.

Easy Divorce In Missouri.

Luray Herald: "It is fairly easy to get a divorce," says Judge Ruppenthal, "but some people imagine it is easier than it is. A woman recently wrote: 'Send me divorce; I want to take up some land.'"

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Popular Magazine: Not long ago Representative "Billy" Hughes of New Jersey was in Washington showing a party of his constituents the sights of the capital. In the group was a provincial old lady who seemed obsessed with the idea that New York and New Jersey made up most of the United States and got out all the laws. In the corridors of the war department the party ran across a tall, tawny-haired man.

"Who is that?" queried the old lady.

"That's Bartlett of Nevada," explained Hughes. "Congressman Bartlett."

"Goodness gracious!" she said. "You have 'em from everywhere, don't you?"

Argonaut: A man sent to an asylum with a load of coal found on his arrival that the gates were open, but not knowing where to deposit the fuel he left his horse and cart outside while he went in to inquire. He walked about the grounds, but failed to see any one, so made his way back to the gates, but to his horror found they were closed. He tried in vain to open them and appealed to passersby to help him, as "the horse and cart belonged to him."

"Fancy," said one passerby to another, "that poor man thinks he is a carter."

Dorfbarbier: He—Yes, it's very true, a man doesn't learn what happiness is until he's married.

She—I'm glad you've discovered that at last!

He—Yes, and when he's married it's too late!

Baltimore American: "I suppose lawyers as a rule run to cats for pets."

"What makes you think that?"

"Because I should think they would naturally go to something in the feeline."

Savannah News: "Is he easy going?"

"I should say he is. You can borrow from him and he'll never ask you to return it."

Stray Stories: Fred—I proposed to Miss Dingley last night.

Joe—I don't believe I know her. Is she well off?

Fred—I guess so. She refused me.

Washington Herald: "Lend a hand, Hiram, and help ketch the selectman's pig."

"Let the selectman ketch his own pig. I'm out of politics for good."

Finesse: Mrs. Crawford—As you don't seem to know what you'd like, here's a printed list of presents for a good little boy.

Freddie (after reading it over)—Haven't you got a list for a bad little boy?

Argonaut: A fashionably dressed young woman entered the postoffice in a large Western city, hesitated a moment and stepped up to the stamp window. The stamp clerk looked up expectantly and she asked: "Do you sell stamps here?"

The clerk politely answered, "Yes."

"I would like to see some, please," was the unusual request.

The clerk dazedly handed out a large sheet of the 2-cent variety, which the young woman carefully examined. Pointing to one near the center, she said: "I will take this one, please."

Yonkers Statesman: Bill—What is Gill's favorite cereal?

Jill—Wild oats, I guess.

Puck: Conscience, however, makes no such cowards of us as it would if the still, small voice were in the way of being heard by the neighbors.

Washington Star: "Does Bliggins know much about gold mines?"

"Not a thing in the world."

"What makes you so sure of that?"

"He keeps investing in them."

Judge: Optimist—Yes, sir, if you'll drink buttermilk three times a day, you'll live ten years longer.

Pessimist—But what's the use of living ten years longer if you have to drink buttermilk three times a day?

Judge: First reporter (going out on his three hundred and forty-seventh assignment in three days)—They say Napoleon used to take two hours' sleep a night.

Second Reporter (coming in from his three hundred and seventy-eighth)—He probably needed that much with all the work he had.

Parcels Post and Business.

Consular Reports: The owner of the only English and American store in Moscow informed the writer that when parcel post was first introduced in Russia, it seriously threatened to impair his local trade, as his customers started to dealing direct with the larger houses in the Western European capitals, but later it turned out that they preferred to order through him when in need of articles not in stock, and instead of proving a menace to his business, it became of assistance to him.

No great profit results, as a rule, on goods ordered by mail, but customers are secured and held for other lines, and thus local merchants welcome the introduction of the system. The cost is almost five times as much as by freight, but in the long run there is a reasonable profit on account of the small amount of capital involved, and where a week is lost in securing the passage of goods through the customhouse, a day or two only is required to clear post parcels. The recent change in the regulations permitting articles thirty-nine and a half inches in length to be sent by mail has also assisted in the sale of light articles, such as canes, umbrellas, and tennis rackets.

We sit here thinking sadly of
Those hundreds of first-class cigars
We busted when we were in love.

Deadlocks Follow the Flag.

DEALCOHOLIZED BEER.

Consular Reporter: A Yorkshire publication announces a discovery by the chemist of a brewing firm, which, if all claims for it are true, may have an important effect on the brewing industry. It is claimed that an English chemist has succeeded in producing a dealcoholized beer free from all intoxicating properties, but in no way different in taste or flavor from ordinary beer.

The alleged new process is stated to be the result of many years' experimenting, and is described as follows:

"It was found that by slightly warming the beer and then driving through it a brisk current of carbonic acid gas the alcohol could be extracted in the form of minute bubbles. By continuing the process every trace of alcohol could be absolutely eliminated without destroying any of its former qualities as a beverage."

It is further claimed that every hogshead of beer treated by this process yields three gallons of spirit, driven out by the carbonic acid gas, which among other purposes, if produced in sufficient quantities, could be placed upon the market at a price which would enable it to compete favorably with petrol. The product is reported to be superior to petrol for driving motor cars, and emits no fumes or odors.

In relating the commercial possibilities of dealcoholized beer, the discoverer says:

"If dealcoholized beers become really popular, the industry of agriculture will benefit by reason of the extra quantity of barley required, while a stimulus will be given to the brewing industry, at present hedged about by legal restrictions and taxation. My product is genuine brewery malt and hops beer, not a manufactured chemical substitute, and the public may disabuse itself of the idea that it is only a watery, aerated concoction, such as now pass for teetotal drinks. I tested this matter by supplying blank samples of beer and dealcoholized beer to fifty-two brewers assembled at Sheffield, and of that number of connoisseurs twenty-six absolutely failed to detect which was which, while the others discovered some subtle difference unapparent to the ordinary mortal."

Ough!!!

H climbed to the bough
To escape from a cough
Which had suddenly started
A terrible rough.

When the cow, with a cough,
Sought the watering trough,
Her departure inspired him
His dicer to dough.

He looked pretty rough,
For he'd torn off a cough,
And his features, once white,
Were now sort of bough.

After all he'd been through,
It seemed perfectly trough
That to wash and to brush
Were the right things to dough.

The dirt stuck like dough,
Clear from topknot to tough—
But I think I have come
To the end of my rough.
Yours troughly,
Hough D. Dough.

MORE GRUEL AND LESS MEAT FOODS

Would Cut High Prices, Dr. Wiley Tells the Women.

Washington, Feb. 17.—"If the American housewives were more practical about household economies they would go a long way in the direction of reducing the high cost of living," said Dr. Harvey Wiley, the government chemist. "If they should discharge their cooks and perform the kitchen work themselves they would not only save the wages of the servant, but would reduce the waste about 25 per cent. If they are not able to do the cooking by personally supervising it they could save the waste in the preparation of food. They should study the economy of rations. This would lower the cost, and if they gave some attention to the question of nutrition they would again reduce the expense of living.

"Our people should consume less meat and more cereals. Housewives should purchase the raw broken cereal and have them cooked at home. Another economy would be the use of the fireless cooker.

"Fifty per cent of the cost of living could be saved if housewives gave as much attention to the business of housekeeping as the husband gives to the store, the factory and other lines of industry in which they are engaged. If they knew more about the composition of foods and something about debased, adulterated and misbranded products there would be a further reduction. If our women should buy by weight and measure and not in packages another slice would be taken off the cost.

"We need schools of domestic economy for girls who intend to be married if they have an opportunity, and if the opportunity does not come they should make it. They should be like Caesar, when he was told he could not cross the Alps to attack Gaul, as there was no road. He answered that if there were no road he would make one. So it should be with our girls."

LATEST INVENTION

In Typewriting Is a Machine for Printing Syllables.

London, Feb. 17.—The latest developments in connection with the typewriter is a machine to print syllables of two and three letters by a single pressure of the key—a time-saving device that will meet with great favor in all business houses.

This invention calls for no special skill on the part of the operator. There is the ordinary standard keyboard, but the keys can be extended to sixty or more.

When the operator has become used to the position of the syllables and has memorized them, it is clear that typing will be a more rapid process.

For instance for the word "accountant," it is only necessary to depress four keys instead of ten as on an ordinary machine, "disunion" is writen by means of three keys instead of eight; "misfortune" and "permission" also require only four keys each.

The machine possesses a unique pawl and escapement wheel, so arranged that when a syllable key is depressed the carriage "jumps" a space equal in length to the syllables. The type strikes the ribbon through a metal guide, thus insuring perfect alignment.

PRESIDENT'S SON

Asks for Information on Ohio Bar Examination Requirements.

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 17.—A letter has been received by Clerk Frank McKean, of the supreme court, from Robert Taft, son of President William H. Taft, who is attending Yale law school, asking for information as to the requirements of the Ohio bar examination. A list of rules governing the examination was mailed to him.

From this it is indicated that the president's son expects to practice law in Ohio. He is a graduate of the academic department of Yale university, and still has two years of study in the law school.

BOOZE IMMUNE LEAVES HIS BRAIN TO COLLEGE.

Philadelphia, Feb. 17.—Jules Rosendale of this city, a translator, and father of Margaret Dale, the actress, is dead, aged 76 years.

His will directed that his body be cremated and his brain and stomach given to the University of Pennsylvania to discover the reason for his immunity from the usual effects of intoxicating drink.

It is stated by physicians that Mr. Rosendale could consume almost unlimited quantities of liquor without any effect whatever upon his brain or nervous system.

GROWTH TO BE SLOWER

Not Expected New York Will Keep Up Past Development.

Thugs and "Strong Arm" Men Making Brightest Boulevards Unsafe.

New York, Feb. 17.—That the population and prosperity of this port will not grow in future years as fast as in the past is the conclusion reached by statistical scientists who have completed an exhaustive report on the economic investigations upon which they bore their prophesy. New York city will not reach the 10,000,000 mark by the end of the first half of this century, according to this searching analysis of her past periods of ebb and flow in the tide of population. Repetitions of the decade of 1810-20 and the long stretch from 1860 to 1890, when Gotham actually decreased in the proportion of its people to the inhabitants of the entire country, are confidently expected by the experts who have conducted this research. Decrease in foreign commerce, Canadian competition, the growing rivalry of other Eastern ports, the advantages to Southern seaports of the Panama canal, the falling off in immigration and the development of Pacific trade are some of the reasons assigned for restrictions in the recent rate of growth.

Thugs Thick.

Organized bands of garroters, thugs and "strong arm" men are today making even the brightest boulevards of this town unsafe for men who carry money or valuables after dark. Recorded in the police blotters for the last few weeks, scores of complaints testify to the ease with which highway robbers have made away with purses and jewelry under the lights of the crowded theater and hotel district. Ever since Judge Gray of the court of appeals was reported as assaulted on one of the most frequented stretches of Upper Fifth avenue, the thugs have been emboldened to ply their trade of murderous assault far out from the shadows in which they always lurk. Unless emergency measures are at once taken by the police to check these bold bands of personal plunderers, it seems certain that Gotham will soon share the reputation of the Windy City for unbridled holdups.

Flying to Fires.

Rushed by gasoline power equal to a hundred of the horses that now gallop to fires here, the first auto fire engine ever tried out in this city is being made ready for service. At the rate of forty miles an hour this seven-ton piece of pumping apparatus has already demonstrated that it can reach the flames three times as quickly as the fleetest trio of horses. With a mammoth machine, that can speed from end to end of Manhattan island in less than a quarter of an hour, turned loose in the streets, New Yorkers are preparing to run cover at the first blast of its huge horn. Before many such auto fliers are regularly licensed to sweep through the thoroughfares, emergency rules for protecting traffic in their course are expected to be put in force.

Women Wrestlers.

Funds of fashion notes and great stores of gossip are today being put in circulation about town by the army of professional and private skirmishers that have just made a vigorous inspection of every outwardly visible detail of the wedding of Vivien Gould. Scouts from every milliner and modiste in this section are going over their voluminous notes of the costumes in the crush, with the aim of aping them for the benefit of their customers. Hundreds of self-appointed women wedding inspectors, who never miss a peeping chance even in the face of police clubs, are gossiping endlessly over the petty incidents of this function of the swell set. No more nauseous spectacle ever offends the people of New York city than this curious feminine crowd that persists in prying into such marriage shows at the expense of dignity, decency and dress.

Kildare's Kin.

With the cremation of the remains of Owen Kildare the Bowery is today mourning the loss of its only native son in the ranks of the writers of this town. As newsboy, prize fighter, "bouncer" and barkeep, Kildare endeared himself to the people of this shady stretch long before he became popular on Park Row as a pen-pusher. No more varied or stormy life has been led here in recent years than that of this author of the slums, from whom it was hoped even more of his early promise might still be realized.

CONCEALED ASSETS.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Feb. 17.—Charles Rosen and Morris Levin, local jewelers, were convicted in the United States court here yesterday under the law which makes it a criminal offense to conceal assets of bankrupts from creditors.

They stocked a store with $20,000 worth of goods went into bankruptcy and produced only $2,500 worth of goods; then they disappeared. Rosen was arrested at Ocean Beach, Cal., and Levin at Pierre, S. D. They were each sentenced to eighteen months imprisonment.

HAVE CLOSE CALL.

Six Women Rescued From Cleveland Hotel in Unconscious Condition

Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 17.—Six women were rescued last night in an unconscious condition from the upper floors of the Hotel Euclid during a fire which threatened for a time to destroy the building and which called out the entire fire fighting force of the city. The hotel is one of the largest and best known in the downtown district and sheltered several scores of guests. All of the rescued women had been overcome by smoke, but none were seriously affected.

Several persons were slightly burned but no serious casualties were reported. The fire was got under control with an estimated loss of $10,000.

VERACITY IS QUESTIONED

Representatives Lloyd and Southwick Have a Sharp Tilt.

Argument Over Question of Exempting Road From Tax.

Washington, Feb. 17.—Representative Lloyd of Missouri and Representative Southwick of New York exchanged sharp words, and Delegate Wickersham from Alaska and John N. Steele, attorney for the Guggenheim-Morgan Alaska interests, questioned each other's veracity when the house committee on territories reopened the hearing on the bill to exempt the Copper River & Northwestern railway from payment of the Alaska railroad license tax.

The control of the railroad by the Guggenheim and Morgan interests had been admitted by Mr. Steele. He insisted, however, that the road was designed to be a common carrier and not simply an outlet for the Guggenheim-Morgan Bonanza mines.

"I think this committee ought to vote to postpone the bill," said Representative Lloyd. "It is difficult to show the house that the Morgan or Guggenheim interests need any relief."

"It is a disgrace for any member of congress to urge such an argument," interjected Representative Southwick.

"The gentleman from New York has never shown any interest in the sessions of the committee except on the statehood measure and on this bill," retorted Representative Lloyd.

Feeling Became Intense.

Mr. Southwick became incensed at what he termed the "personalities" of Mr. Lloyd, and for a time the feeling was tense.

The committee finally asked Delegate Wickersham if he wanted to cross-examine Mr. Steele and the other lawyers who have appeared in support of the railroads.

"I certainly do," said Mr. Wickersham, "I intend to present some proofs and say something to this committee and Mr. Steel had best be here when I do it."

"I don't need to be here," returned Mr. Steel, "you have said things to other committees about Alaskan affairs that were not true."

"That is not so," said Mr. Wickersham.

The committee decided to go to the bottom of the Alaskan matter. Instead of killing the bill in the committee it is arranged that Delegate Wickersham shall have the opportunity to cross-examine the attorneys for the Guggenheim-Morgan interests next Monday.

GIRL RECOVERED

Although Two-Thirds of Her Body Was Burned.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 17.—Little Esther Reed, 6 years old, has disproved the long accepted medical theory that burns depriving the body of two-thirds of its skin are fatal.

Two years ago Esther was frightfully burned. Her injuries covered two-thirds of the area of her body. There was no hope for her recovery, physicians said, but they did all they could for her. Her father, George Read, submitted to a skin grafting operation, by which most of the child's wounds were covered. She improved a little. Some of the new skin grew into place, some did not, so the father, his own wounds healed, again sacrificed his cuticle for his baby. Then, afterward, a third time.

Carefully she was nursed until a few days ago the doctor announced that there was not the least danger of her having a relapse.

The worth-advertising business opportunities are the only kind that get much beyond the stage of "plans."

FIFTY BECOME INSANE

Out of 1,000 Convicts in Penitentiary at Riverside, Pa.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 17.—Fifty of the 1,000 convicts in Riverside penitentiary have become insane in the last twenty months through lack of work and fear of tuberculosis.

Warden John Francies of the prison made this announcement when he had finished figures which he will present to committees from Harrisburg, sent here by the state legislature to look into the matter.

The appalling estimate is made by the warden that every prisoner who is confined more than two years at Riverside contracts tuberculosis to a certain degree.

The low ground on which the penitentiary is built is held responsible.

The only remedy which Francies can see is that the new state prison of Pennsylvania be built in the mountain region with at least 4,000 acres surrounding, where the convicts can farm.

Away With Pills and Purgatives!

The habit of taking salts or strong cathartic pills every time you want to loosen the bowels is a bad one, for in time you will destroy the activity of the digestive tract and you will have to rely entirely on medicines for action. This is not a pleasant thing to look forward to. From infancy to old age the use of strong purgatives should be avoided. This can be done by the use of a mild laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. While it is mild enough for a baby to use yet is is strong enough to give action in the most robust constitution. The letters of endorsement the doctor gets are from no one class—mothers who take it, mothers who gives it to babies and children, people in the prime of life, and old people. It is successful with them all. It is in truth the ideal remedy for constipation, indigestion, biliousness, heartburn, gas on the stomach, sour stomach and all other manifestations of stomach, liver or bowel trouble. A bottle can be obtained of any druggist at fifty cents or one dollar, but you can make a fee trial of it by writing Dr. Caldwell for a free sample bottle. He will be glad to send it to you. You cannot do better than read the letters printed here, and then act on their suggestions.

Look for This Picture on Pkg.

Dr. Caldwell does not feel that the purchase of his remedy ends his obligation. He has specialized in stomach, liver and bowel diseases for over forty years and will be pleased to give the reader any advice on the subject free of charge. All are welcome to write him. Whether for the medical advice or the free sample address him Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 541 Caldwell Building, Monticello, Ill.

The following are some extracts from letters Dr. Caldwell has received:

"I received the sample of Syrup Pepsin, liked it, and have bought a regular bottle of our druggist. It is an excellent medicine and very pleasant to take. I would not do without it again."—Robert J. Allison, Walnut Bottom, Pa.

"I haven't had a bad spell with my stomach since taking the first dose of Syrup Pepsin. I continued to take it for some time, as I had been afflicted for nearly twelve years and couldn't expect wonders overnight, but the fact is I can eat anything now and feel as if I had a new lease on life."—G. W. Selby, Brashear, Mo.

"Your Syrup Pepsin is unquestionably a fine remedy for stomach and bowel trouble, and should be in every home. While this is given voluntarily, and comes to you unsolicited, you may use it to promote the sale of your valuable remedy. May success attend you in the introduction of this fine and valuable medicine."—E. B. Gibson, Crystal Springs, Miss.

"I received your sample bottle of Syrup Pepsin and liked it so much that I bought a bottle from my druggist and have taken nearly all of that and will get another bottle soon. I like it better than anything of the kind I have ever tried."—Mrs. John L. Moore, Clinton, Ky.

"I received your sample bottle and have used two other bottles besides. I find it a very good medicine. I keep it in the house all the time. Would not do without it."—Mrs. Dollie Graves, Hamilton, Ohio.

"I have used your Syrup Pepsin for years and would not be without it."—W. L. Bryant, P. M., Sardis, Tenn.

WOMAN'S REALM.

"We have seen that borderland mental processes are likely to accompany both the suggestive states of mind and also the dissociation of perceptual processes. Evidence was also submitted which tended to show the existence of minds levels below that consciousness. I shall try at this time to show, (1) how these lower levels originate, (2) to give additional conditions under which they express themselves: (3) describe the methods of discovering them."

With these statements Dr. L. W. Kline opened his lectures on "Borderland Psychology" this morning at the club room of the library before one of the largest audiences which has attended any of the lectures given before the Twentieth Century club this year. Although a most scientific lecture, it was intensely interesting and the hearers gained many points of knowledge which will be food for thought for some time to come.

He said in part:

"The sources of borderland physosis are in the main these:

"1. The excluded sense impressions coming from the sense organs from the field of attention;

"2. The sense impressions coming from vital organs that normally are too feeble to enter consciousness;

"3. The results arising through the inhibitions of our expressional life.

"The modes of appearance of borderland psychosis are normal and abnormal. From the former are evolved the emotional, the spontaneous, the passionate man, the genius, the artist, and the poet. From the latter arise the abnormal bodily and mental symptoms of neuralgias, epilipsies, loss of appetite and hysterics in manifold forms.

"In the oldentime mental wounds were called witchcraft, and evil spirits and 'trial by ordeal,' imprisonment, physical and mental torture were used to determine the cause of the trouble. Hypnotism was also used to discover the cause of the trouble. But the modern method is psychoanalysis. What it is I will describe in Freud's own words: 'To discover the hidden, forgotten, repressed things in the soul life, I study the ideas called up by free associations, the patient's dreams, and his acts.' The problem was this: To find out something from the patient that the doctor did not know and the patient himself did not know.

"The technique is as follows. The patient lies on his back on a lounge, the physician sitting behind the patient's head at the head of the lounge. In this way the patient remains free from all external influences and impressions. The object is to avoid all muscular exertions and distractions, thus allowing thorough concentration of attention on the patient's own mental processes. The patient is then asked to give detailed account of his troubles, after having been told before to repeat everything that occurs to his mind, even such thoughts as may cause him embarrassment or mortification. On listening to such a history one invariably notices many memory gaps, both in reference to time and causal relations. These the patient is urged to fill in by concentration of attention on the subject in question, and by repeating all the unintentional thoughts originating in this connection. This is the so-called method of "free association" or of irruptive ideas. The patient is required to relate all his thoughts in the order of their sequence even if they seem irrelevant to him. He must do away with all critique and remain perfectly passive. It is in this way that we fathom the original meaning of the symptoms. But as the thoughts which originate in this manner are of a disagreeable and painful nature they are pushed back with the greatest resistance. It is on this idea of resistance that I based my theory of the psychic processes and it was found that in order to cure the patient that this force should be overcome."

He also gave an interesting talk on dreams and their causes.

GOLDEN WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. Chris. Kreager Celebrate Anniversary.

Today marks the fiftieth, or golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Kreager of 927 East Sixth street. Because of an indisposition of Mr. Kreager the celebration which had been planned has been postponed until Sunday evening.

Mr. Kreager is one of the pioneers of Duluth, coming here in 1869 when the Zenith City was in swaddling clothes, with little more than a trading post and a general store. Both have a host of acquaintances and are the recipients today of numerous congratulations.

THE EVENING STORY

Confidential Evidence

By Randall Mehwar.

"Game and rubber," said the West Indian at the conclusion of a grand slam in no trumps. "Your good luck has deserted you tonight, Miss Stretton," he added, with a leering smile that Lesbia hated so much. "Let me see how we stand. We are 20 points to the good, and that makes $80 you owe me. It is your deal. Shall we go on?"

Eighty dollars! Lesbia Stretton's heart seemed to stand still, then bound forward again with a sickening thump. A wave of scarlet dyed her fair, proud face, then faded, leaving her very pale. It was awful, inconceivable! Even $5 could ill be spared from her slender store, but this sum seemed monstrous.

What madness had induced her, the eldest daughter of a country squire, well born, but lamentably poor, to play bridge for 25-cent points with the Melsombys' wealthy, thoughtless friends? Her trifling gains of the previous night had encouraged her to continue, with disastrous results. And from where was the money to come? She dared not write home; the pressure brought to bear on her poor, harrassed father to equip her suitably for this visit, and the modest sum sufficient to pay traveling expenses and tips did not include bridge debts.

She must borrow, but from whom? Her partner paid over his losses with a cheerful air. He had more money than wits, and had played a reckless, foolhardy game with dire results so far as Lesbia was concerned. The girl rose slowly to her feet, and with an effort to appear untroubled, turned to Da Souza: "I am sorry I haven't the money with me, Mr. Da Souza, but if you can wait with a little——"

"There is no hurry, Miss Stretton," said Da Souza, with what he believed was a fascinating smile.

Lesbia's red lips curved mechanically as she moved to the open window. Only two people noticed the scared misery of her great violet eyes, Da Souza and a big fair man who had been quietly smoking at a distance and watching the game. He stood up to follow her, but the West Indian was before him, and his ingratiating voice sounded in Lesbia's ears as she stood on the terrace staring into the moonlit autumn night.

"You seem in trouble, Miss Stretton. Is it because of the money? Please put all thought of it from you."

"You are very good," said the girl coldly, moving slightly from his unwelcomed presence. "I expect the delay will be only temporary." Da Souza bent forward so that his lips almost touched her dainty neck.

"Why should you worry about it at all," he answered thickly, "when one kiss will cancel it?"

Lesbia drew back with a gesture.

"You are making a mistake," she said; "my kisses are not for sale. My debt will be paid in the ordinary way."

"Beggars cannot afford to be losers," he said, coarsely laughing; "what is there to prevent me having both?"

His heavy hand was about her shrinking figure, when a firm step behind them, and a quiet "I think you are wanted inside, Da Souza," made him move hastily aside as the big fair man approached.

"Oh, thanks, Anstruther, good of you to tell me." Then with a twirl of his waxed mustache he turned to Lesbia:

"Think over what I said, Miss Stretton."

Lesbia leaned against the balustrade, trembling violently, and in spite of her efforts to prevent them, two heavy tears welled up and rolled down her white cheeks.

"What is the matter, Miss Stretton?" he asked. "Can I help you in any way?"

"I'm—I'm very stupid," said Lesbia, falteringly. "but I lost tonight at bridge, and I don't know what to do."

"How much is it?"

"Eighty dollars," she confessed with hanging head, waiting with beating heart for his horrified exclamation.

His lips pursed in an inaudible whistle as he watched her stricken face, but after a pause he said cooly, "Is that all?"

"All!" exclaimed Lesbia, "it's more than I ever can pay."

"Won't they help you at home?"

"I dare not tell them; you see, there are so many of us, and there is so little."

"Miss Stretton, I shall be glad if you will accept a loan from me."

"Oh!" she exclaimed, "Mr. Anstruther, I—I can't."

"Why not? It just happened that I have such a sum lying idle. It would be a perfect charity to take it, otherwise I shall simply spend it."

Taking her limp hand, he laid four bills in it and closed her fingers firmly over them.

"Here's my address; but there is no hurry. But will you make me a promise?" he added more gravely.

"Anything, whatever you will," she murmured impulsively, raising her eyes to the kind, frank face above her.

"Don't play for money, little girl; it isn't worth it."

"I promise," said Lesbia. "I shall never forget your kindness."

"Then it is good-bye," he said. "I leave tonight, and I hear Melsomby calling me."

With a friendly shake Anstruther turned to go, while Lesbia went unobserved to her room. On her descent she found the bustle of departure for the station over, and people standing about in the hall in little aimless groups. Advancing to where Da Souza smoked alone, she laid the bundle of bills before him.

"These cancel my debt, I think, Mr. Da Souza."

"Quite correct," he answered with a stare. "The delay has, indeed, been short, Miss Stretton. I congratulate you. Found an accommodating friend, eh?"

Lesbia turned away. Thank goodness, she was out of his debt, her visit here would soon be over, and she would be free from his attentions. Listlessly she ruffled the pages of a magazine, and wondered whether she might slip away to bed.

Down the stairs came Mrs. Melsomby, her cold face flushed and perturbed.

"Sorry I can't oblige you, Fan," she said to one of a group of women in her unmodulated voice, "but the fact is, the money is gone."

"Oh! surely you've mislaid it, Agnes."

"No, it's gone. It was there until a few minutes ago, I know."

A sudden thought seemed to strike the West Indian, and he came forward. "Was it a large sum, Mrs. Melsomby?" he asked eagerly, with a side glance at Lesbia, who appeared perfectly unconcerned.

"Oh! nothing much," was the reply given with the arrogance of a haughty woman; "only $80."

Eighty dollars! Lesbia raised her head with an interested air. Curious that this amount should equal the sum she lost. Her eyes met Da Souza's watchful ones, and under his meaning glance her heart beat furiously. How dare he look at her like that? She turned a scornful shoulder and studied the magazine afresh.

"Of course you have the numbers of the missing notes, Mrs. Melsomby?" came the insinuating voice, a hint of triumph in its tones.

"Certainly. I always take the numbers."

Da Souza pulled out his pocketbook. "Do these, Mrs. Melsomby, correspond in any way with the lost notes?" unfolding those Lesbia had given him. Mrs. Melsomby consulted a little book on her chain.

"Oh!" she exclaimed in great surprise, "these are mine; see, the numbers are identically the same. Where did you get them, Mr. Da Souza?"

Da Souza glanced at Lesbia, on whose face a look of incredulous horror was slowly dawning, and smiled.

"Miss Stretton gave them to me," he said with cruel deliberation.

"From Miss Stretton!" said Mrs. Melsomby. "Lesbia, is this true?"

"Yes," she said quietly, "it is true."

"But what—" began the elder woman, when an eager voice broke in:

"Oh, never mind, Agnes; it doesn't matter, really. Another time—"

"Nonsense, Fan," was the imperious rejoinder. "I must get to the bottom of this affair." Perhaps she was not unwilling to humiliate her husband's cousin, to whom she had extended a grudging welcome.

"Kindly explain, Lesbia, how these notes came into your possession."

"I lost my money at bridge to Mr. Da Souza, and Mr. Anstruther kindly lent it to me to pay what I owed."

"Dick Anstruther!" Mrs. Melsomby's voice expressed utter unbelief. "A man who never has two dollars to rub together. You were not in a ball room, George——" and Mr. Anstruther went away?"

"No," said Lesbia; "I was in my room."

"In my room, you mean," exclaimed her hostess, with brutal certainty. "I see. You took advantage of their going away to slip upstairs, abstract the notes, and then, when you are found out, trump up a tale of Dick Anstruther's giving them to you."

"But it is true, it is true," reiterated Lesbia; "and he shall tell you so himself."

"Of course, Anstruther will back you up in any story you like to tell," replied Mrs. Melsomby. "I prefer to believe the evidence of my own eyes, and I need not add that after this you cannot remain here. Tomorrow——"

"How cruel you are. Cousin George will believe me. You will see tomorrow—"

Mrs. Melsomby's shoulders moved in an incredulous shrug as she turned away; and white as death, but with proudly held head, Lesbia moved past the curious-eyed guests to her room.

But, alas for Lesbia! The tomorrow brought no help, but a tragedy. For the motor bearing Anstruther to the station, and driven with customary recklessness, collided with a lightless car. The car was overturned, Anstruther being killed instantly, while George's injuries were so great that at first it was deemed impossible that he should live.

The house party was dismissed. Lesbia, with the dark cloud of disgrace hanging over her, another victim of circumstantial evidence. And so it might have been with her always, had not the announcement of her engagement caught Mrs. Melsomby's eye as she read the morning paper to her newly-convalescent husband six months later.

"The very idea!" she snorted in disgust.

"What is it?" inquired George lazily.

"It's Lesbia Stretton's engagement."

"Good for Lesbia," remarked George; "and I hope she's got a good man."

"Far too good," was the response. "He was here at the time, Russell Forrest, old Duncansby's heir. Well, he knows what he is doing, I suppose. He's not going into it in ignorance."

"In ignorance of what?"

"That she is a thief!"

"A thief? Lesbia a thief? Agnes, you are dreaming."

"I beg your pardon, George, I was never wider awake. Lesbia lost $80 to Da Souza at bridge, and paid him with notes taken from my dressing table."

"Stole them from you?"

"The numbers on the notes she gave to Da Souza and those I missed corresponded exactly. And then she had the impertinence to assert that poor Anstruther lent them to her."

"Good heavens! Agnes, of course he did," cried her husband, sitting up. "I meant to have told you that night, but in my hurry and bustle of his unexpected departure I forgot, and the accident put it out of my mind until now. I lost $100 to Dick that afternoon. I had only a five left, and went to your room to see if you could lend me some. You had gone down, but in your dressing case I found four notes for $20 each. These I took and gave to Anstruther, and he immediately handed them on to Lesbia. I was the thief, not she. Poor little soul, how she must have suffered. You must write to her, and to all who were here at the time, and explain, and we'll send her a thumping big wedding present to make up for it."

In her husband's arms, and with Agnes' penitent letter in her hands, Lesbia could smile now at the remembrance of that fiery furnace, the scars of which would stay with her forever.

ACTIVITY AT MINE CENTER

Liveliest and Most Prosperous Winter Since Gold Boom's Height.

Foley Mine Buildings Repaired and Active Summer Work Expected.

Mine Center, Ont., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Recent snow storms have greatly hampered logging and mining operations in this district. The snowfall has been something unprecedented for many years, if not within the memory of the white man. It is four feet deep on the level in many places, and more than that in localities where drifting was possible. It will be a fine thing for the soil in the spring and will give lakes and streams the much needed higher water level, but, just now, the cold winter and deep snows are a great handicap.

Mine Center has not seen such a lively, prosperous winter since the height of the gold boom in 1899 or the palmy days of construction on the Canadian Northern railroad. There are fifteen camps tributary to this place. Some are connected with logging operations and some with tie cutting.

There are several camps near Glenorchy, twelve miles east of here, belonging to the Mackenzie & Mann interests, logging the pine limits on the north side of Turtle river. The same interests are logging on Stoke's bay, down the Seine river from the Foley mine, and half a dozen big tote teams are kept busy hauling supplies. They use the government wagon road that has been put through and partially completed to the shores of Shoal lake at the Foley mine.

There is great activity in tie making in a neighborhood tributary to the Olive gold mine. "Australia" Stone and son have secured the use of some of the camp buildings at the Olive mine and are conducting a stopping place. Their accommodations are oxertaxed and, some nights this winter, it has been a problem where and how to house the transients.

Great Activity.

As a result of this unprecedented activity in logging and tie making, between 1,500 and 2,000 men have been employed in the Mine Center region all winter. It has given the town great activity and prosperity. The Mine Center hotel was acquired in the fall by Max Rochon, proprietor of the Leland at Winnipeg, and formerly of the Hotel St. Louis at Fort William. Mr. Rochon is widely known in curling circles.

When the fall rush started, the Mine Center hotel was swamped with trade. It became necessary to erect a large two-story building with a huge restaurant downstairs and bunk accommodations for a couple of hundred men upstairs. The building is a substantial improvement and enables the hotel company to comfortably feed and sleep a big crowd. This activity will continue for several years. Before the extreme cold weather settled down, between 300 and 400 men were in town on several occasions in one day. The bar at the Mine Center hotel has taken in as high as $400 a day from the lumberjack trade. It is a veritable gold mine. When the spring breakup comes, there will be some wild days and nights here, unless all signs fail.

Mining was looking up in the fall, but the deep snows have retarded operations around here. Before the holidays, C. McLean of Port Arthur, an associate of Col. S. W. Ray, did some preliminary work on some claims near the Foley mine, and he stated that work was contemplated that would employ about fifteen men. It is understood that work will be held in abeyance until the snows settle.

Maj. W. A. Preston, M. P. P., now owns the old Olive mine in company with William Blackwood, a wealthy capitalist of Winnipeg. They always have been heavily interested but recently have acquired the holdings of former associates. Some time ago, Mr. Preston advertised for bids for fifty feet of shaft work. No announcement has been made as yet as to the outcome.

Work at Foley Mine.

Work was resumed at the Foley mine last April and has continued steadily ever since. The fires last July interrupted operations temporarily and did minor damage, but nothing serious or vital. Capt. John Hosking has charge of operations. He is an old resident in the district and previously was a well known miner on the south shore. At one time he was engaged in Cook county, Minnesota, with Capt. Spaulding of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., on the so-called "Ancient Silver Diggings," near Lake Miranda.

All the many buildings at the Foley have been put in good repair. This includes new roofing on the big stanip mill and power house. The "Lucky Joe" and "sulphide" shafts have been retimbered and given new collars. The "sulphido" shaft was unwatered. The vein is very strong, showing as high as six feet in width and measuring 4 feet, 4 inches strong in the bottom. The quartz vein-filling is very heavily impregnated with sulphides and the ore will concentrate heavily.

Some work has been done on the "Lucky Joe" vein and quartz was blown out that showed free gold in great quantities. Actual mill runs on the "Lucky Joe" ores have averaged $20 a ton, free milling. The concentrates are very rich. One engineer who made a separate assay of the concentrates, secured a return of $773.12 a ton. Boom figures from Porcupine do not beat this.

As soon as weather conditions permit, the headframes at the north and south shafts will be repaired and the power plants put in condition for regular mining operations. The men now are getting out timbers for repairs on the headframes and for use underground. Owing to a lack of fuel, no heavy operations could be undertaken last season. About a month ago, a force of men was set to work cutting cordwood. There is a supply of fuel timber close at hand for requirements for some time to come. Running night and day, full capacity, the twenty-stamps, concentrators, and twelve-drill air compressor plant, with hoists, consume about 3,000 cords of fuel a year. The use of coal is being considered and probably will be much cheaper than wood when facilities for delivering it are provided.

Getting Ready for Summer.

Capt. Hosking has a force of men at work on an icehouse. A good supply of ice will be put up which is a sign that operations will be active during the summer.

Extensive operations with the stamp mill have shown that Foley ores averaged better than $11 a ton, free milling, and that the concentrates were worth from $35 to $75 a ton in gold. The north shaft is 420 feet deep and the workings there have a very valuable tonnage of ore blocked out.

The south shaft is 200 feet deep and a crosscut at the bottom cuts several veins from five to eight feet wide. Drifting can be started on these veins quickly and easily and, in a minimum of time and at minimum cost, a very heavy tonnage can be blocked out for stoping and milling.

Word has been received from Homer Bedford in Duluth. He formerly mined in this district, but in recent years has been around Cobalt and Porcupine. He made one very good sale at Porcupine last summer and has holdings there yet. He expects to go back to Porcupine, but says he thinks seriously of coming back to the Rainy Lake region. "I know of gold properties in the Rainy Lake region," he says, "that would sell for $100,000, without development or equipment, if I had them at Porcupine."

BIRDS SLAIN BY THE STORM

Millions May Perish and Audubon Rescue Work Has Begun.

New York, Feb. 17.—Murderous weather conditions are now driving to death huge flocks of the song and game birds of the country, according to reports that have been received today at the headquarters of the National Association of Audubon societies in this city. Following the sweep of the recent blizzard from coast to coast, great tracts of trees and land are known to be storm-locked against the feathered life that must seek shelter and food from the natural sources that are now held in the icy grip of winter. Unless emergency measures are speedily taken to succor these birds, that protect the crops from pest and furnish the game supply of the nation, ornithologists declare today that serious loss to the wild resources of America will result.

Careful count of the birds that perished in a similar storm six years ago over an area of Southern Minnesota and Northern Idaho has showed that in one night alone some 800,000 were frozen or starved to death. Many millions more are this year doomed to death in the freezing spell that has succeeded the snows of this month, the Audubon workers assert.

Calling upon the children of the land to save the storm-beleaguered birds, the Audubon organization has today set on foot a sweeping relief campaign in which the boys and girls of every community are being invited to join. Special pamphlets giving minute instructions for the feeding of birds under every condition of winter weather have been prepared and are being sent to volunteer bird-saving brigades of youngsters in every section of the country. Through its member organizations in a score of storm-bound states the National Association of Audubon societies is urging immediate local campaigns to preserve the dying bird life of each neighborhood.

Sportsmen who know the haunts and habits of the native birds are heading bands of boys who are already setting out through the woods and fields of their home regions, equipped with shovels, picks, cord, wire and big bags of grain, suet and fat meat. At natural feeding grounds the snow is cleared from the ground and grain or bird seed scattered in sufficient quantity to tide over the storm spell all the birds that are starving in the vicinity. For the insectiverous species, nourishing fat meat is carefully tied at conspicuous points in the trees along the route. Bird bread lines in each school yard and food scattered where the birds flock about every house are also recommended as a part of the Audubon emergency campaign.

"We shall exert ourselves, as we have during recent hard winters, to save the storm-stricken birds of this country with every means at our disposal," said T. Gilbert Pearson, secretary of the National Association of Audubon societies, at its headquarters, 141 Broadway, today. "If each American will help us in this emergency rescue campaign, I feel sure great good can be accomplished in prolonging the life of the birds that will in the new year form our only fighting force against crop plague and agricultural disaster. We are raising funds and furnishing instructions with which we hope soon to materially aid the perishing birds all over the continent."

NIECE OF STEEL KING CARNEGIE

Who Wedded Coachman Parted From Him a Year Ago.

New York, Feb. 17.—Friends of Mrs. Nancy Carnegie Hever and her husband, James Hever, learned this week that the romance which began in 1904 with the elopement of Andrew Carnegie's niece and her mother's coachman, was ended nearly a year ago. Mrs. Hever, with her three children, is now with her mother in Pittsburg, and Mr. Hever is confined to his bed in an apartment in upper Broadway. He is helpless from the effects of an operation performed three weeks ago.

Hever late in 1909 took up his residence alone at the Hotel Astor. It is understood that the couple parted just previous to this. Mrs. Hever going directly to Pittsburg, and Hever establishing his three children by a former marriage in the Broadway apartment. Three months later he joined the children and has lived there since.

There was no formal separation, and, so far as can be learned, no steps have been taken looking to one. Mrs. Hever is a daughter of Mrs. Lucy Coleman Carnegie.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carnegie here and in Pittsburg were greatly surprised when in April, 1905, Mr. Carnegie announced that his niece had been married a year before and the couple had just returned from a honeymoon in Europe.

Mr. Hever became acquainted with Miss Carnegie as a trainer of her horse, Dingley Bay, well known among the members of various hunt clubs. Later he went to Pittsburg as coachman and groom for Miss Carnegie's mother, the widow of Thomas Carnegie.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

SAYS PRICE WAS RAISED

North Dakota Farmer Alleges He Was Victim of Land Graft.

Belfield Business Man Accused of Trying to Swindle in a Deal.

Dickinson, N. D., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—D. P. Plesik, a business man of Belfield, has been arrested on charges preferred by M. Hopechuck, a farmer, who lives north of here, who alleges an attempt to graft extra money out of him in a land deal.

Hopechuck claims that he bargained with Plesik for the purchase of a half section of land at $22 per acre and that his homestead quarter was to be turned in on the purchase price at $20 per acre. He says that he gave the Belfield man title to the homestead and was to get the deed for the half section in a few days.

Land Price Boosted.

The next time he saw Mr. Plesik he was advised that the half section would be priced at $29. He went home rather sorrowful, but finally concluded to accept the terms and made another trip to Belfield to close up the deal. By this time the land had increased to $35 per acre and Hopechuck took his case to the state's attorney, which resulted in Plesik's arrest.

FOOTBALL INJURY RESULTS IN DEATH

Aitkin, Minn., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A telegram was received here Thursday morning announcing the death of Robert L. Dean, which occurred Wednesday night at the home of his father in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where he was visiting. Mr. Dean had been an invalid for about ten years, as the result of a football accident while attending college. He came to Aitkin several years ago and engaged in the real estate business, where he made a host of friends by his warm heart and genial manner. The remains will be taken to Tyler, Minn., for burial Saturday.

WHAT ST. LOUIS COUNTY NEEDS

A. B. Hostetter Tells How Agricultural School Would Benefit This Section.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 17.—"We can teach dairying in a log barn if the state will only establish a school in our section of the state," said A. B. Hostetter, agricultural commissioner of the Duluth Commercial club yesterday afternoon.

"We do not need a big appropriation for a marble palace, with granite bath tubs and all that. We can get along with buildings of the same class as those in which the boys we expect to teach are used to living and working.

"There are approximately 20,000 persons on the farms in St. Louis county. Our problems are different from those of any other section of the state. The settlers are mostly foreigners, many of whom do not understand the English language. They could not understand the instructions nor could they afford to go to St. Anthony park.

"The education required is different, for the problems in the cut-over timber sections are different from those in the rest of the state."

GAVE OFFICERS A LIVELY CHASE

John Carnie, Wanted in Fargo, Finally Handcuffed After Several Escapes.

Larimore, N. D., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—After a sensational series of arrests in which a desperado matched his daring against the officers, Chief of Police Fadden finally got the handcuffs onto John Carnie and yesterday took him to Fargo to be tried on the charge of stealing a wagon, a set of bob-sleighs and a set of harness from Charles Colter, a farmer living near Fargo.

When first arrested, Carnie escaped through the rear door of the Peter Young home in this city where he was discovered. Pursued by the chief in a cutter he was again captured and while driving back to the city he assaulted the officer and after a desperate struggle he fell over the dashboard and got away. Carnie spent the night in a box car and next morning borrowed a coat from a man named Dickson. The chief next day took him into custody at Niagara, but he escaped by desperate methods which no ordinary criminal would risk. He fled south but was captured a mile from town and securely shackled. He says that he has pawned the stolen goods.

TRANSFER PELTIER CASE.

Retrial of North Dakota Murderer Goes to Rolette County.

Bottineau, N. D., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The trial of the case of the stato vs. Joe Peltier, whose second trial was ordered by the supreme court just three hours before the time set for his hanging has been transferred to Rolette county in Judge Cowan's court on an affidavit of predjudice by the plaintiff against both the judge and the county here. SLAIN FOR MONEY.

Well-to-Do North Dakota Farmer Is Killed Near Kramer.

Kramer, Minn., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Another murder mystery confronts the authorities of North Dakota. F. W. Schroeder, a well-to-do resident of this section, was found murdered about a mile from his home by William Abbelson and H. Gerryits, who had gone to the stack where he had been hidden by his murderer, for a load of hay. The only motive that can be attributed for the crime is robbery, for the pockets of the dead man were turned inside out and there was evidence that his home had been rifled. He was about 43 years old and a bachelor and no trace of his assailant has been found.

THREE LARGE BOATS.

Will Be Run By Ingalls Boat Company at Deerwood, Minn.

Deerwood, Minn., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Ingalls Boat company promises to be a ferry line which will eclipse anything the range has ever seen. The largest steamer will be named, it is said, the Twin City, and the two smaller ones the Crosby and the Deerwood. In addition, this company will add fifty-five rowboats to its equipment, and if good weather holds out in the summer, more of the range people will be afloat than on shore.

The Crow Wing Construction company, incorporated at Huron, S. D., is looking for an opening here to locate a sash and door factory. They want a site of about two or three acres, and intend to erect a building 50 by 80 feet, two stories in height. The Commercial club has the matter under consideration.

The body was found by her son, Walter, 20, who heard his mother's body fall to the floor.

Mrs. Evert is survived by her husband, William Evert, carpenter, a son, a daughter and her mother.

Tommy Ryan and Kid McCoy Are Coming Back, Help!!! —Ban Johnson as a Handy Boy With the Boomerang —Cutler Willing to Wrestle Mahmout — Oldfield's Reply to Little Arthur.

(BY BRUCE.)

Please, someone, stop them; they mustn't fight! no, they musn't. Someone will be hurt. Oh, heavens!

Those aren't the words in the play that, going with the music, are uttered by the beuatiful heroine just before the hero and villain clash. It is just a warning that Kid McCoy and Tommy Tonsolitis Ryan have both declared their intention of re-entering the ring.

In the case of Ryan it is too many fights. He will never be able to fight any good man again—that is, make any kind of showing. As for the notorious Kid McCoy, the innocent youth of some 40 summers, the slim and foxy Hoosier, the greatest fighter for his weight these few years back—as for Mons. McCoy, why, the nights under the fascinating rays of the high lights have taken about all the fight out of the system of the man who once would have won from Tom Sharkey had it been on the cards for him to beat the marline. The police would not let him—but then that is ancient ring history.

Is it a fad that we are going through at the present time. It might literally be said that we are playing both ends against the middle. On one end of the pugilistic path might be observed the faint and beaming ray of light caused by the glimmer of the "White Hope." On the other end, far down the highway and casting no lights, is the "come-back kid," the boy who hangs onto hope like a drowning man clasps the whirling straw in the middle of a maelstrom, playing hide and seek with hope as long as his head keeps above the water.

Tom Jenkins, former heavyweight champion wrestler; James J. Jeffries and Jack Parres have been some of the prominent citizens who have quite unsuccessfully tried to come back. It seems that the list is to be added to by the lukewarm attempt of Messrs. Ryan and McCoy. The famous Hoosier Kid has Patti faded seven ways from the soiled deuce when it comes to practicing this fame glide. He came back in San Francisco several years ago and fought a draw with Jack (Twin) Sullivan. Then he came on not so very long ago and did that six rounds with Big Jim Stewart, down Gotham way. Now we are to have the other attempt. Business must be bad with the Kid.

Down New York way the other day Charles Webb Murphy caused mingled smiles and apprehension among his brother National league magnates by remarking that Ban B. Johnson was making a joke out of baseball.

If that is the case Bryon Bancroft is one of the highest paid humorists in the field. He must get almost as much as George Ade, and at last accounts the coupons of Georgie were showing not the least signs of shortfits.

But watch for the action that may smite the Murphy man hip and thigh. This Johnson boy is one of the kind of people who laugh right out in meeting when you say anything about them and at the same time make a mental note of the action. Later when the incident has apparently past the Czar of the American league will come out with the boomerang of vengeance.

To any one who has followed the National league closely it would seem that this Murphy chap has been looking for trouble so long and persistently that it ought to come to him one of these days. If the Johnson man ever girds up his loins for battle, it is a very good bet that he will make the cravat kid take to the tall and uncut.

Charles Kid Cutler, the big athlete from Bemidji, now making his home in Chicago, has come out with a sweeping challenge and offers to meet any wrestler in the world. With all the American and foreign wrestlers avoiding Yussif Mahmout the Bulgarian, Cutler has come out flatfooted and declared that he will wrestle a finish match with the man Hackenschmidt and Zybszko are at the present time avoiding.

Down Minneapolis way they are crowing over the fact that it required Hackenschmidt longer to pin the shapely shoulders of Ordemann to the canvas than the Russian consumed in winning his match with Cutler. Since Cutler took two straight falls from Ordemann and outclassed the big Norsk, according even to the Minneapolis papers, it would seem that the crowing of the Minneapolis admirers of Ordemann is of the nature of the whistling done by the small boy as he strolls nervously up a dark lane.

We think a lot of Ordemann up this way, and there is no denying the fact that Henry is one of the greatest wrestlers in the world. But Cutler beat him fair and square, proved that he was the better man, and why not give it to the Chicago wonder?

Duluth fans have seen Ordemann the present season and they will have an opportunity to judge of the abilities of the two American stars when Cutler wrestles in this city.

Challenging is a habit. Habit is exceedingly difficult to forego. When Jack Johnson was fighting his way to the top of the pugilistic heap he was one of the best little challengers that the ring was blessed with. In these days, because he is champion and is getting the money very, very easy, he has stopped the habit of challenging fighters.

The Retort That Stilgeth Muchly.

But the habit is very strong, nevertheless. Challenging public opinion, the police and professional racing drivers seems of late to be the particular weakness of Lil' Artha. Just the other day he issued a broad and sweeping challenge to race Barney Oldfield, though it might be known the driving devil defeated the cinder with ease the time they met in New York.

Here is the reply of Barney, that should cause a total eclipse in the famed golden smile:

"Before I raced Johnson that time in New York, I had been given to understand that he was one of the best drivers in the country. Since that race I know (emphasis) that he is easy to beat, and that most of his boasted speed must have been acquired in the mind of Johnson by some of his successful escapes from the hands of the police."

GOPHER TEAM GIVES PURDUE FIRST DEFEAT.

McFARLAND TO FIGHT MORAN

Crack Boxers Will Meet in March Before New York Club.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—Emil Thiry, manager and trainer of Packey McFarland, the stock yards lightweight, announced yesterday terms have been agreed upon for a match between McFarland and Owen Moran, the English battler, before Billy Gibson's Fairmount club of New York, March 14. Thiry received a telegram from Charlie Harvey, the Englishman's manager, stating the terms for the match were satisfactory, and that Gibson was willing to stage the bout.

Packey Opens Training Camp.

As soon as Packey heard the match had been clinched he started to train at O'Connell's gymnasium, and said during his workout that he would train harder for this fight than any of recent years. Packey has much respect for the Englishman's cleverness, and realizes he will have to be in the best of shape to get the decision over the man who bested Nelson after Ad Wolgast had taken all the fight out of the durable Dane.

Although Packey has taken a short layoff from training since his last battle, the stock yards fighter looked good as he went through the paces in the gymnasium yesterday. Aside from being about five pounds over weight, Packey looked fit to enter the ring at any time, but said he will do more road work in preparation for the fight than he has for any of his recent battles.

Wants to Get at Title.

McFarland is of the opinion he will get a match with Wolgast if he wins the decision over Moran. Thiry declared he will not sign up any matches for Packey before the Moran go, as he wants the Southsider to be in the best of shape.

SCOTCH TERRIER IS CHAMPION DOG

Tickle-Em Jock Selected By Judges to Surprise of Crowd.

New York, Feb. 17.—For the first time in years the leadership of dogdom belongs to a Scotch terrier. Tickle-em Jock was led from the bench show at Madison Square Garden last night as the official choice of the judges as the best of the 2,100 canine aristocrats which have been exhibited there this week under the auspices of the Westminster Kennel club.

All-around championship honors were generally given in the past to fox terriers, and the choice of the little Scotch terrier was a surprise. Andrew Albright, Jr., of Newark, N. J., owner of the dog, picked up the little champion for $500 in London only a year ago. Jock wrested first honors from a circle of twenty "best" dogs, valued in all at over $50,000. The show closed last night.

ALL-STARS WILL MEET ADAMS NEXT MONTH.

Plans are already being made for the game between the All-Stars, one of the greatest indoor baseball teams ever organized in this part of the country, and the crack Adams indoor aggregation, the team which twice defeated the strong Company A team, thereby winning the championship of the city teams.

It is expected that the contest will be played at the Armory about the first of March. Newt Randall is the manager of the All-Stars and has started making arrangements for the contest. In fact the first workout of the All-Stars was held last evening. In the first practice of the present season the old boys showed all the pep and speed that characterized their play when they defeated all the teams around here, and when the time comes for the game with the Adams, it is expected that the professionals will present as strong a lineup as they had in the field last season.

The Adams have a great ambition to defeat the All-Stars and the contest should be one of the best ever played in Duluth.

"BATTLING BOBBY" BERESFORD.

ANTHONY J. DREXEL.

New York, Feb. 17. — The much-talked of boxing bout between Anthony J. Drexel of Philadelphia, husband of Marjorie Gould, and Hon. Robert Beresford of England, a brother of Lord Decies, took place on Saturday night last in a private gymnasium at Georgian court, the Gould country home at Lakewood, N. J., according to accounts printed by several New York papers today.

Details of the bout vary, but all agree that "Battling Bobby" was victor after three rounds. One version says that Young Drexel was knocked out and all assert that at any rate his seconds threw up the sponge in the third round. The bout was scheduled to go six rounds.

Beresford weighed 166 pounds; Drexel, 161. They were clad in regulation fighting togs and Mrs. George Gould gave a silver cup to the winner.

The bout was witnessed by the family of George Gould and a score of guests, including Lord Decies' mother and sister. Lord Carmeys and Lord Alstair Graham acted as the young Englishman's seconds, while Jay Gould and Mr. Moffatt appeared in a similar capacity for Drexel.

CHAMPION WITHIN A YEAR

Kid Cutler Confident He Will Be Next World's Champion Wrestler.

In a letter to the sporting department of The Herald, Charles Kid Cutler, who on the first of the present month defeated Henry Ordemann for the American heavyweight wrestling championship, gives a brief review of his record, which is of interest to fans in this part of the state, since Cutler lived at Bemidji and Cass Lake for a number of years.

Here is what Cutler says:

"Sporting Editor Duluth Herald:

"You may not know that I started out as a boxer at Cass Lake and Bemidji, and that my first fight of importance was with Jack Parres, whom I beat in seven rounds. I knocked out Jim Barry in one round at Grand Forks and then lost to the Kerry Kid at Cass Lake. After this fight I went to Des Moines and joined John L. Sullivan and started wrestling with him. While in the company of Sullivan I threw over 1,600 men.

"I resumed boxing in New York and knocked out Jim Savage and Jim Jeffords and was in turn beaten by Jim Barry in nine rounds. I fought Jack Johnson at Reading, Pa., and the fight was stopped by the referee because I had a bad cut in my head. At this point I again took up the wrestling game and have been at it ever since.

"I won the American championship from Henry Ordemann, Feb. 1, 1911, and expect to be the champion heavyweight wrestler of the world by May, 1912. You see I have my wrestling destiny all figured out. It may sound egotistical, but it is my honest belief, and since my defeat of Ordemann I have gained a lot of confidence in myself.

"I went to school in the northern part of Minnesota and was a policeman at Cass Lake for a while. I started in the athletic game when I was 18 years of age and have been at it ever since. The one goal of my ambition is the world's championship wrestling title, and I am going to try as no man has tried before me, to capture that honor.

"CHARLES KID CUTLER."

WILL DISCUSS RACES.

Meeting Soon to Reconsider Re-Establishing Old Circuit.

Grand Forks, N. D., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The re-establishment of the old southern racing circuit for North Dakota, which includes Grand Forks, Fargo, Valley City, Mandan and Cooperstown is receiving considerable attention from the race enthusiasts of all the cities affected and a meeting will be held here in a few days to discuss the matter. Cooperstown is to hold its fair the last of June and unless this circuit is reorganized they will not be able to secure any horse races. Though racing enthusiasm is still at high pitch the old northern circuit seems to have died out and a new one must be organized very shortly.

DULUTH HOCKEY TEAM WILL MEET CANADIANS.

This evening and Saturday evening, at Fort William, the Duluth Curling club hockey team will play the Fort William seven, which is said to rank well up to the standard of the Portage Lake and Mohawk teams. Feetham, MacKenzie, Watterworth, S. MacCrea, Trathen, Bartlett, Cummings, George Wood, H. Grenner and Arnie Olson are the men from whom the team will be chosen.

A return game may be played with the Fort William team in this city.

SCHEDULE OUT FOR CITY INDOOR LEAGUE.

A schedule of games for the new indoor baseball league has been made, the first contest to be played tomorrow evening between the newly organized Y. M. C. A. team and the aggregation from the city hall. A great deal of interest is being attracted to this game, as there is a natural curiosity to see how some of the city hall players perform.

Starting next Thursday evening and continuing each Thursday evening until March 16, the following teams will be played by the Y. M. C. A. in the order in which they are given: Company C, Adams, Big Duluths and Naval Militia.

BLOOD DISEASES CONTAGIOUS TROUBLES

Contagious Blood Poison more thoroughly permeates the system than any other disease. Its infectious virus contaminates every corpuscle and tissue of the circulation, and for this reason its symptoms are of a varied nature. When it enters the blood it is but a short time until the mouth and throat begin to ulcerate, the skin becomes spotted, rashes and eruptions appear on the body, sores and ulcers break out, the hair falls, and frequently nails on hands and feet thicken and come off. Mineral medicines which simply shut the poison up in the system should be avoided, for when such treatment is left off the old disease will break out again, often worse than before. S. S. S. cures Contagious Blood Poison permanently, and it does so because it thoroughly purifies the blood. S. S. S. goes into the circulation, and drives out the last trace of the destructive germs, adds richness and vigor to the circulation and allows it to nourish the diseased portions of the body back to health. S. S. S. is purely vegetable, being made entirely of roots, herbs and barks, without a particle of mineral, and its vegetable ingredients always hasten the cure by toning up the stomach and digestive members. Home Treatment book and any medical advice free to all who write.

MAHMOUT AND CUTLER MAY MEET

Elimination Match May Be Held in This City.

Promoters of this city are out after one of the biggest matches that will be wrestled in the United States the present season. Duluth will enter the list of cities bidding for the finish match between Yussif Mahmout, the famous Turkish wrestler, who has been challenging George Hackenschmidt and Stanislaus Zbyszko, and Charles Cutler, the Northern Minnesota boy, who recently defeated Henry Ordemann for the American championship.

The sporting editor of The Herald is in receipt of two letters, one from Message and Krone, managers of the Turk, and the other from Charles Cutler, in which the Bemidji boy states that he will meet any man in the world, and that he does not except the Turk in this statement.

A tour is being booked for Mahmout at the present time and if his managers will consider a finish match with Cutler for this city, a match will be closed. This would give Duluth one of the biggest matches wrestled in the United States the present season.

Mahmout will not be considered here with any lesser light than Cutler, for after the great claims made on behalf of the Bulgarian by Frank A. Gotch, who has persistently claimed that he can defeat either Hackenschmidt or Zbyszko, it may be of interest to note what he can do against a man of the class of Cutler, the man who vanquished Ordemann in two straight falls.

FRANK BRYANT AGAIN DEFEATS HIBBING SKATER.

ASKS INVESTIGATION OF K. OF P. INSURANCE.

Washington, Feb. 17.—Application for an investigation of the insurance department of the Knights of Pythias was made yesterday before the supreme court of the District of Columbia by John H. Turpin of Greensburgh, Ind. Mr. Turpin is a certificate holder of what is known as the fourth class in the endowment rank of the Knights of Pythias and claims that the attempted action of the lodge to raise the amount of assessments on certificates of the fourth class confiscates his contract rights. He further alleges that several hundred thousand dollars have been wrongfully diverted from one class of endowment to another. Justice Gould issued a rule requiring the officers of the lodge to show cause why relief should not be granted certificate holders of the fourth class.

COLLECTIONS OF SUNDAY MAIL

Letters Will Be Taken From Street Boxes in Certain Districts.

With the carriers having Sunday off, collections of mail from street boxes on Sunday are confined to certain districts. The cards on the boxes show whether collections are made on Sunday and Postmaster Cook urges people to examine the card before dropping a letter into a box, if delay is to be avoided.

No collections will be made on Sunday in Lakeside, Hunter's Park or West Duluth. In the city proper, however, the business district from Seventh avenue west to Second avenue east on Superior street, and from Fifth avenue west to First avenue east on both Michigan and First streets, is to be collected from 7 to 8 a. m. in the morning and the following territory is to be collected from 2 to 4 p. m. in the afternoon: Superior street from Twenty-first avenue west to Fifteenth avenue east, Michigan and First streets from Fifth avenue west to First avenue west, Second street from Sixth avenue east to Fourteenth avenue east, Fourth street from Fourth avenue east to Fifth avenue east, also Lake avenue south to the canal, St. Croix avenue and South Fifth avenue west.

At the main office all mail deposited will be worked and dispatched as on week days, except that the evening mail will close at 9 o'clock, instead of 10:30. At the West Duluth station, all mail taken to the office will be handled as on week days.

SIX THOUSAND ENOUGH.

House Does Not Believe President's Secretary Should Have $10,000.

Washington, Feb. 17.—The qualifications that are necessary in one who is to fill the post of secretary to the president were discussed in the house of representatives yesterday in connection with the item in the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, fixing the salary of that official. The senate had thought $10,000 no more than adequate compensation, but in the house, by a vote of 130 to 52, the house declined to concur, holding that $6,000, the present salary, is ample.

Debate on the question was sharp and references were made from time to time to the duties of the secretary that brought forth spirited defense from advocates of an increase in his salary.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH.

A Pleasant, Simple, But Safe and Effectual Cure For It.

Catarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable. The usual symptoms are a full or bloating sensation after eating, accompanied sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on the heart and lungs and difficult breathing, headaches, fickle appetite, nervousness and a general played out, languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue and if the interior of the stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition.

The cure for this common and obstinate trouble is found in a treatment which causes the food to be readily, thoroughly digested before it has time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of the stomach. To secure a prompt and healthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhal condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Harlanson, the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet, composed of Diastase, Aseptic Pepsin, a little Nux, Golden Seal and fruit acids. These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and not being a patent medicine can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

The plan of dieting is simply another name for starvation, and the use of prepared foods and new fangled breakfast foods simply makes matters worse as any dyspeptic who has tried them knows.

As Dr. Bennett says, the only reason I can imagine why Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not universally used by everybody who is troubled in any way with poor digestion is because many people seem to think that because a medicine is advertised or is sold in drug stores or is protected by a trade mark it must be a humbug whereas as a matter of truth any druggist who is observant knows that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have cured more people of catarrh of the stomach, indigestion, heartburn, heart trouble, nervous prostration and run down condition generally than all the patent medicines and doctors' prescriptions for stomach trouble combined.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest preparation as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, catarrh of the stomach, billousness, sour stomach, heartburn and bloating after meals.

Send your name and address today for a free trial package and see for yourself. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

ONE DOSE MAKES INDIGESTION GO

Heartburn, Gas, Headaches and Other Stomach Misery Vanishes.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or you feel bloated after eating, and you believe it is the food which fills you; if what little you eat lies like a lump of lead on your stomach; if there is difficulty in breathing after eating, eructations of sour, undigested food and acid, heartburn, brash or a belching of gas, you can make up your mind that you need something to stop food fermentation and cure Indigestion.

To make every bite of food you eat aid in the nourishment and strength of your body, you must rid your Stomach of poisons, excessive acid and stomach gas, which sours your entire meal—interferes with digestion and causes so many sufferers of Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Billousness, Constipation, Griping etc. Your case is no different—you are a stomach sufferer, though you may call it by some other name; your real and only trouble is that which you eat does not digest, but quickly ferments and sours, producing almost any unhealthy condition.

A case of Pape's Diapepsin will cost fifty cents at any Pharmacy here, and will convince any stomach sufferer five minutes after taking a single dose that Fermentation and Sour Stomach is causing the misery of Indigestion.

No matter if you call your trouble Catarrh of the Stomach, Nervousness or Gastritis, or by any other name—always remember that a certain cure is waiting at any drug store the moment you decide to begin its use.

Pipe's Diapepsin will regulate any out-of-order Stomach within five minutes, and digest promptly, without any fuss or discomfort, all of any kind of food you eat.

Consumers, Attention

The problem of life in the physical world resolves itself down to just one basis—that of how to obtain the staff of life—FOOD, from Mother Earth with the least possible hardship to ourselves as individuals, and humanity in general. The Bread and Butter problem is THE Problem of the hour—upon this problem depends the very future of civilization itself. Philosophers have dreamed, preachers have sermonized, and scientists have analyzed—all of them have done good in their divers ways to call attention to the glaring inconsistencies extant in our so-called highly developed civilization. Nevertheless the problem of yesterday still is the problem of today. Production for USE and Distribution for Direct Consumption—both are the essential needs of the hour. Get the Producer into direct relations with the Consumer, and the Consumer into direct relations with the Producer, and you immediately have solved the problem. Ah, but the task is so awfully simple—that it appears too ridiculous to even dare suggest so simple a solution. None the less will we plod on, girdled in the cloak of Optimism, pointing out the Road to Progress. Nor will whines, and sneers, and petty persecutions that we know have been concocted to destroy our growing power, deter us from following the straight and uncompromising road. A word to the wise is sufficient.

When the "Rabble" become intelligent, our sermons no longer will be needed—until then we stand for "The Man with the Hoe."

Lady Baltimore Cake

The Most Popular Cake This Season

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

This is considered by many cooking authorities the finest cake that can be made, though in reality it is not at all difficult.

K C Lady Baltimore Cake

One cup butter; 2 cups granulated sugar; 1 cup milk; 1 teaspoonful rose water; 3½ cups flour; 3 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; whites of 6 eggs, beaten dry.

Cream the butter and beat in the sugar gradually. Sift together, three times, the flour and baking powder, and add to the butter and sugar, alternately with the milk and rose water. Lastly, add the egg whites. Bake in three-layer cake pans. Put the layers together with the following frosting.

NOTE—The cake is a large one and sells at Women's Exchanges for $1.50

Frosting for Lady Baltimore Cake

Three cups granulated sugar; 1 cup boiling water; whites of 3 eggs; 1 cup chopped raisins; 1 cup chopped nut-meats; 5 figs cut in thin slices.

Stir the sugar and water until the sugar is dissolved, then let boil without stirring until the syrup from a spoon will spin a long thread; pour upon the whites of the eggs, beaten dry, beating constantly meanwhile. Continue the beating until the frosting is cold; add the fruit and spread upon the cake.

The K C Cook's Book contains ninety just such delicious recipes,—bread, muffins, cakes and pastry. You can secure a copy free by sending the certificate packed in every 25-cent can of K C Baking Powder to the JAQUES Mfg. Co., Chicago. Small cans do not contain Cook's Book certificates.

HOW THE DULUTH ASSOCIATED CHARITIES PROPOSES TO HANDLE DRUNKARDS, VAGRANTS AND WIFE-DESERTERS

THE CAUSES OF POVERTY

Associated Charities Wants Board Appointed to Investigate Subject.

Would Eliminate as Far as Possible Causes of Dependency.

New laws which it is hoped will remedy social conditions in St. Louis county will soon be introduced before the state legislature.

The laws deal with drunkenness, desertion of families, beggars and tramps. There is another act which asks that a commission be appointed to study the causes of poverty and the best method by which to aid people in becoming self-sustaining.

The laws are the outcome of resolutions adopted some time ago by the Duluth Associated Charities. Courtenay Dinwiddie, secretary of the organization, has drawn the laws, and at a meeting recently held they were approved. Within a few days Mr. Dinwiddie will go to St. Paul, where he hopes to have all four of the laws passed.

The laws pertaining to these four social evils at present do not cover them fully enough, it is claimed.

Desertion is one of the greatest evils in St. Louis county with which the authorities have to deal. Under the law a warrant may be issued and the man brought back from the farthest end of the country, but even then he can only be given a short sentence in jail. While he is in jail the family suffers, and it is to change all this that the new law on desertion was drawn. Under the law recently drawn, the family would be cared for while he was being made to work, paid for his labor and the money turned over to the family.

The new law which provides for a state labor colony, where tramps and vagrants could be cared for, is also very important. At present a proven vagrant can only be sent to jail for ninety days.

The law asking for an investigation of the causes of poverty follows:

Section 1. The governor of the state of Minnesota is hereby authorized to appoint a commission on causes of poverty to investigate causes of, or factors in promoting, undesirable living conditions, all health or pauperism, such as poor and unsanitary housing, overcrowding in tenements, methods of dealing with minor offenders and juvenile delinquents, and such other kindred subjects as they may elect. Said commission shall consist of five citizens of the state of Minnesota, three of whom shall be experts in social, charitable or sanitary matters and two of whom shall be lawyers.

"Sec. 2. The members of said commission shall serve without compensation but shall be reimbursed for the necessary and actual traveling expenses incurred in the performance of their duties under this act, provided that the total of such expenses shall not exceed five hundred (500) dollars for all of the members.

"Sec. 3. Said commission shall have authority to employ a competent secretary whose salary shall be fixed by said commission.

"Sec. 4. The sum of six thousand ($6,000) dollars is hereby appropriated for the purposes of this act. Out of this sum shall be paid the salary of the secretary, the traveling expenses of the members of the commission as hereinbefore provided, and such other expenses as may be incurred in the furtherance of this act. Such payments shall be made upon the audit of the commission and the warrant of the state auditor.

"Sec. 5. The commission shall report to the legislature of the state of Minnesota on or before Jan. 15, 1913 the results of its investigations, and its suggestions for remedial legislation in the form of proposed bills.

"Sec. 6. This act shall take effect immediately."

COLONY FOR VAGRANTS

Planned to Instruct Human Derelicts and Force Them to Work.

May Be Paroled When They Prove Themselves Worthy.

The problem of handling tramps and vagrants it is proposed to solve by the following act:

"Section 1. Establishment and Purpose—A state labor colony is hereby established for the detention, humane discipline and instruction of tramps, vagrants and deserters of destitute wives and children.

"Sec. 2. Board of Control; Appointment; Powers and Duties—The said colony shall be under the supervision and management of the state board of control which shall appoint a superintendent and such other employes as the said board shall deem proper; establish and alter rules and regulations for the management of said colony, including the classification, parole, discharge and retaking of inmates, and a system of compensation and credits, by marks or otherwise.

"Sec. 3. Selection of Site and Construction—The said board of control shall proceed forthwith to select a site for the said colony, and, upon the approval of the governor, to purchase such site. In the selection of the said site, due consideration shall be given to healthfulness of location, fertility of soil, water supply, drainage and accessibility. It shall be the duty of the said board to prepare the site so purchased for the use by the said colony, to provide a water supply and a system of drainage therefor, to determine what buildings are necessary to be erected thereon for the proper housing and educational and industrial training of not less than three hundred (300) inmates and to act as a board of managers in the erection of said buildings and in the expenditure of the money herein or hereafter appropriated for the purchase and improvement of the said site.

"In all the work of construction and improvement, the labor of inmates of the said colony shall be employed wherever and so far as practicable.

"Sec. 4. Commitment; Term of Detention—When the said colony shall be ready to receive any inmates, the said board shall notify each and all of the several justices of the supreme court, and other judges, justices and magistrates in the state, of that fact. Thereafter any such court or magistrate may, in lieu of other lawful commitment, commit to the said colony to be there detained under the provisions of this act, any male over the years of 20 years who shall be adjudged by such court or magistrate to be a vagrant or tramp, or a deserter of a wife or child in destitute or necessitous circumstances. Any person who shall be committed to the said colony shall be detained therein according to this act and not otherwise, anything in the penal law to the contrary notwithstanding. Such commitment shall not be for a definite term but any such male, at any time after his commitment, may be paroled or discharged by the said board of control and shall not in any case be detained longer than one year.

"Any person who shall violate the terms or conditions of his parole as determined by the board of control, may be recommitted, by a judge of the district court wherever apprehended, for a period not exceeding six months. If through oversight or otherwise any male be committed to the said colony for a definite period of time, such commitment shall not for that reason be void, but the person so committed shall be entitled to the benefit and subject to the liabilities of this act, in the same manner and to the same extent as if the commitment had been made according to the terms prescribed by this act.

"Sec. 5. Appropriation—The sum of $100,000 dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is appropriated for the purpose of this act. Out of this sum shall be paid, by the state treasurer on the audit of the said board of control and warrant of the state auditor, the purchase price for the site of said colony and any other expenses incurred by said board of control in the preparation and impovement of the said site as hereinbefore directed, and in procuring the necessary plans and specifications for the buildings to be erected on the said site, and in the erection of the said buildings, so far as the said appropriation shall be sufficient for such purposes.

"Sec. 6. This act shall take effect immediately."

THE WIFE DESERTERS

Proposed Law Would Compel Fathers to Support Families.

Provision By Which They Could Earn Money in Jail.

It is proposed to solve the problem of wife desertion with the following law:

"Section 1. That section 4934 of the Revised Laws of Minnesota for the year 1905 is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 4934. An person who shall, without just cause, desert or wilfully neglect or refuse to provide for the support and maintenance of his wife in destitute or necessitous circumstances, or any person who shall, without lawful excuse, desert or wilfully neglect or refuse to provide for the support and maintenance of his or her legitimate or illegitimate minor child or children under the age of 16 years in destitute or necessitous circumstances, shall be guilty of felony and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding $500 or by imprisonment in the county jail, reformatory or work house or state labor colony with hard labor for not exceeding one year, or both; and should a fine be imposed it may be directed by the court to be paid in whole or in part to the wife or to the guardian, curator, custodian or trustee of the said minor child or children.

"Proceedings under this act may be instituted upon complaint made under oath or affirmation by the wife or child or children, or by any person, against any person accused of either of the above named offenses.

"At any time before the trial, upon petition of the complainant, and upon notice to the defendant, the court or a judge thereof in vacation, may enter such temporary order as may seem just, providing for support of the deserted wife or children or both, pendente lite, and may punish for violation of such order as for contempt.

The Court's Power.

"Before or at the trial, with the consent of the defendant, or after conviction, instead of imposing the penalty hereinbefore provided, or in addition thereto, the court in its discretion, having regard to the circumstances, and to the financial ability or earning capacity of the defendant, shall have the power to make an order, which shall be subject to change by the court from time to time, as circumstances may require, directing the defendant to pay a certain sum weekly for a term not exceeding two years, to the wife or to the guardian, curator, or custodian of the said minor child or children, or to an organization or individual approved by the court as trustee, and to release the defendant from custody on probation for the period so fixed, upon his or her entering into a recognizance, with or without surety, in such sum as the court or judge thereof in vacation, may order and approve. The condition of the recognizance shall be such that if the defendant shall make his or her personal appearance in court when-ever ordered to do so, and shall further comply with terms of such order of support, or of any subsequent modification thereof, then such recognizance shall be void, otherwise of full force and effect.

"If the court be satisfied by information and due proof under oath, that at any time during said period of two years the defendant has violated the terms of such order, it may forthwith proceed with the trial of the defendant under the original charge, or sentence him or her under the original conviction, or enforce the suspended sentence, as the case may be. In case of forfeiture of the recognizance, and enforcement thereof by execution, the sum recovered may, in the discretion of the court, be paid in whole or in part to the wife, or to the guardian, curator, custodian or trustee of the said minor child or children.

"No other greater evidence shall be required to prove the marriage of such husband and wife, or that the defendant is the father or mother of such child or children, than is or shall be required to prove such facts in a civil action. In no prosecution under this act shall any existing statute or rule of law prohibiting the disclosure of confidential communications between husband and wife apply, and both husband and wife shall be competent and compellable witnesses to testify against each other to any and all relevant matters, including the fact of such marriage and the parentage of such child or children. Proof of the desertion of such wife, child or children in destitute or necessitous circumstances, or of neglect or refusal to provide for the support and maintenance of such wife, child or children shall be prima facie evidence that such desertion, neglect or refusal is wilfull.

"It shall be the duty of the sheriff, warden or other official in charge of the county jail, or of the reformatory, workhouse or house of correction or state labor colony in which any person is confined on account of a sentence under this act, to pay over to the wife, or to the guardian, curator or custodian of his or her minor child or children, or to an organization or individual approved by the court as trustee, at the end of each month, for the support of such wife, child or children, a sum equal to 50 cents for each day's hard labor performed by said person so confined.

"Sec. 2. This act shall take effect immediately."

HANDLING DRUNKARDS

Act Provides for Establishment of Boards of Inebriety.

Persons Using Liquor May Be Paroled Under Officers' Supervision.

The manner in which drunkards will be handled, is explained in the following act:

"Be it enacted by the legislature of the state of Minnesota:

"Section 1. Any person who becomes intoxicated by voluntarily drinking intoxicating liquors, or who uses morphine, cocaine, opium, chloroform, or any combinations containing these drugs or prepared from them, or any other habit-forming drugs, without the written prescription of a physician or dentist duly licensed under the laws of this state, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished as hereinafter provided:

"For the purposes of this act a habit-forming drug is defined as any medicine or chemical preparation which when taken internally or hypodermically causes a desire for the continued use of said drug and the repeated or excessive use of which is dangerous.

"Sec. 2. In every city having a population of over 50,000 the common council or city council may by resolution determine that there shall be a local board of inebriety. When said council shall have so determined by resolution the mayor shall appoint a board of inebriety of five members, two of whom shall be physicians and one of whom, if practicable, shall have had experience in social or charitable subjects. At least ten days prior to appointing one or both of said physicians, the mayor shall notify in writing the largest medical society of the city or of the county in which the city is situated to present a list of not less than twice the number of physicians to be appointed and such list shall be submitted within one week after the receipt of such notice. Appointments may in the discretion of the mayor be made from such list.

"Sec. 6. When a board of inebriety shall have been appointed and when the said board is ready to perform its duties under this act it shall certify to that effect in writing to the mayor who shall in turn send a copy of the certification to all courts or magistrates having jurisdiction over persons arrested for intoxication or for the use of any of the aforesaid drugs. If the magistrate or court having jurisdiction shall find any such persons guilty of the offense charged, he shall proceed in accordance with the following provisions, notwithstanding any other provisions of the laws.

"1. Dismiss the complaint upon the receipts of a written request from the person arrested to be released, and upon the receipt of a report from a field officer of the board of inebriety.

"2. Release the person so convicted, under the supervision of a field officer appointed by the board of inebriety, for a period of not less than six months nor more than one year, upon such conditions as the court may impose. The field officer in case of the violation of any such condition or conditions, shall arrest the offender and bring him before the court. The court may thereupon impose upon such person one of the penalties provided in the subsequent provisions of this section and shall do so if the person has been released under supervision two or more times and has twice violated the conditions of his release.

"3. Release the person so convicted, under supervision, as provided in the next preceding sub-division of this section, and in addition impose a fine of not to exceed $25. Such fine may be paid in installments in such amounts and at such times as the court may determine and shall be paid to the board of inebriety at such place and in such manner as the board may direct. Failure to pay such fine in such amounts and at such times as the court may have determined shall be considered a violation of the terms on which such person was released under supervision, and the field officer shall thereupon arrest the offender and bring him before the court. The court may thereupon proceed as provided in one of the subsequent provisions of this section and shall do so if the person has been released two or more times with an added fine imposed and has twice failed to pay the fine. All fines and portions of fines so collected shall be reported by the field officers to the court imposing suoh fines and shall be turned over to the board of inebriety and transmitted by such board monthly to the comptroller.

"4. Commit the person so convicted to the city or county jail, workhouse, reformatory or house of correction at hard labor for a period of ninety days.

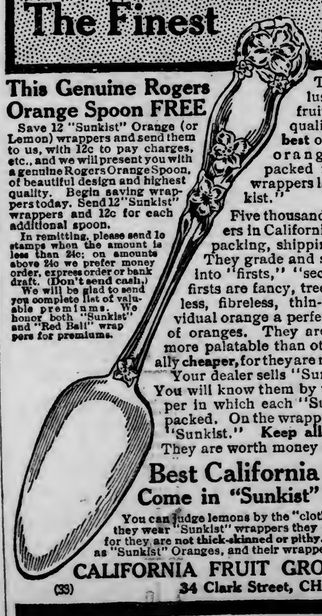

"5. Refer the person so convicted to the judge of the probate court to be dealt with according to the provisions of chapter 358 of the laws of 1907.

"Sec. 4. It shall be the duty of the sheriff, warden or other official in charge of the city or county jail, reformatory, workhouse or house of correction. In which any person is confined on account of a sentence under this act to pay over to the wife, or to the guardian, curator or custodian of his or her minor child or children, or to an organization or individual approved by the court as trustee, at the end of each week, for the support of such wife, child or children, a sum equal to 50 cents for each day's hard labor performed by said person so confined.

"Sec. 5. Article 5161, revised laws of 1905 as amended by laws of 1907 is hereby repealed.

"Sec 6. This act shall take effect immediately."

MANY FINNS GOING TO NIGHT SCHOOL

That Nationality Far Ahead of Others in Institution at Hibbing.

Hibbing, Minn., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Twenty nationalities are represented among the 270 pupils enrolled in the night schools. Owing to the slacking off of work in the mines during the winter months, and the extra large number of men in the woods the average attendance is lower at this season of the year, but among those who are regular attendants the interest is very keen in the work being done.

Sixteen teachers are employed and most of the foreigners are now able to read and write the English language, while less than a year ago it was quite the exception for this to be the case. The attendance last month increased towards the end of the month and will probably do so from now on until the mines shut down again in the fall. The average attendance was 155 the last of the month, the chief cause of absence being that of working night-shift, (114), this was followed closely by sickness causing sixty-two absences, "out of work" is given as the fate of fifty-eight, while forty-nine were only "out of town." Unknown causes figure at twenty-nine. Finns easily lead in the matter of numbers, 270 being on the rolls, Italians make a fair second with 132, and Swedes come next with fifty-three, and Austrians and Americans make a close run for fourth and fifth places with thirty-nine and thirty-eight respectively. The other nationalities are content with small contingents, ranging from sixteen for the Norwegians to single "ones" from five of the nations.

LIBRARY SITES ARE DISCUSSED

Members of Eveleth Library Board Are Trying to Decide Upon Location.

Eveleth, Minn., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Members of the library board are considering sites for the new library. The majority seem to favor a plot of ground on Pierce street, situated near the proposed city park, if it can be secured from the mining company. Architect Frank E. Young of Duluth recently met the board and exhibited plans and specifications for the proposed library.

Mayor Saari is absent on business at Baudette but on his return he will call a meeting of the board so that work on the library can be started this year.

COUNCIL MUST GIVE ITS O. K.

Otherwise Bills for Printing Hibbing Election Matter Will Not Be Paid.

Hibbing, Minn., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village council has decided that heretofore there has not been enough care exercised in the matter of presenting bills for printing cards and other election material that the council has been too ready to pay and that a new rule will be enforced.

It is stated that in past years large numbers of cards, tickets, handbills, dodgers and a variety of the evidences of the printer's art and ingenuity have been ordered by persons with absolutely no legal authority and that somehow or other these have been paid for in many cases, the council accepting the bills presented in good faith as binding on the village treasury.

In order to prevent a continuance of this practice and to safeguard the local printers against loss, the council has directed that Recorder Kleffman advise by letter those persons who are engaged in the printing business locally that the council will not be in any way responsible for any orders placed with them unless signed by the council or their deputy, thus making each candidate for election responsible personally for any printing ordered in his name.

HUSBAND FINDS HIS WIFE DEAD

Mrs. Hanson of Virginia, Suffering From Sickness, Takes Life.

Virginia, Minn., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—During a spell of temporary insanity Mrs. Anna Hanson, aged 26, wife of Erick Hanson, a well-known liquor dealer, committed suicide yesterday afternoon by cutting her throat with a potato knife. Mr. Hanson found her lying dead upon the kitchen floor when he went home for his dinner about 1 o'clock. Mrs. Hanson had been suffering from severe headaches for some time past and the couple had planned to go to Eveleth in the afternoon to consult a physician.

Met On Atlantic Liner.

Mrs. Hanson's maiden name was Annie Johnson and the couple were married in New York city last June. Some three years ago both were on their way to visit their native home in Sweden and met on the boat going over. After their return to this country they kept up a correspondence which finally terminated in their marriage. Previous to her marriage and for about six years Mrs. Hanson had been companion to the widow of the late James Bailey of Barnum & Bailey circus fame. She was a well educated and refined woman and during her residence here had made many warm friends. She is survived by several brothers and sisters, one of the former living at Tower and the others living in New York. The relatives have been notified of her death and the funeral arrangements have been deferred until word from those living in New York is received.

ALCOHOL FROM THE POTATOES

Experimental Denatured Alcohol Plant for Grand Rapids State Farm.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The meeting of the Itasca County Agricultural association Tuesday was one of the best attended held in years.

The election of officers, which brought up some lively difference of opinion between the friends of the various candidates resulted as follows: President, William Hoolihan, Grand Rapids; vice president, A. T. Reid, Deer River; secretary, A. M. Sisler, Laprairie; treasurer, C. A. Buell, Laprairie; directors, for live stock, James Bickley, Pokegama Lake; grains and vegetables, John G. Fraser, Grand Rapids; household department, Mrs. C. H. Sumner, Laprairie.

According to the financial statement the assication spent $2,300.31, and there is an indebtedness of about $160 as against an indebtedness of about $215 at the last annual meeting.

The suggestion was made that the association do not expend more than $1,000 for horse races at the next annual fair, and the matter was favorably acted upon. Nmerous other suggestions were made, but they were referred to the officers whom the members had elected for the purpose of looking after such matters.

Get Denatured Alcohol Plant.

At a recent meeting of the farmers Supt. McGuire announced that an experimental denatured alcohol plant, which had been purchased for the state experimental station at St. Anthony park had been offered to the local experiment station and was accepted.

The plant uses potatoes from which to manufacture denatured alcohol, and it is stated that all kinds of potatoes, including small potatoes, partially frozen potatoes, soft and immature potatoes, etc., can be used to advantage. This being the case, a market could be worked up for all such products which would otherwise be dead waste.

The matter of a site for the potato warehouse, creamery and alcohol plant was discussed. It was announced that a quarter of a block on the paper mill spur just west of the Scandia hotel had been selected as the most favorable site, and if arrangements can be made to secure the same, it will be made the site of the co-operating farmers' buildings.

Mr. McGuire stated that at the meeting of the Duluth branch of the association, it was arranged to borrow a sufficient sum to put the association on a cash basis if the farmers would pledge themselves to put in a certain acreage of potatoes. It was ascertained that there would be enough potatoes planted here next season to produce 100,000 bushels, most of which would be marketed at Grand Rapids. Plans for the potato warehouse were discussed, and a building of concrete and frame 50 by 100, and of sufficient size to hold between 10,000 and 20,000 bushels will be erected.

Inquiries for Real Estate Gives Promise for a Good Year.

Hibbing, Minn., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The real estate situation here has improved very considerably during the last few weeks, a considerable number of inquiries for land and buildings being received by local agents. Many things have tended towards this. The settlement of the Indian territory liquor question being considered one of the greatest factors along with the anticipated early opening of the mines.

Messner Brothers will move to the ground floor of the Close block about March 15. The Close building, a three story brick 50 by 125, is at the present time occupied in the ground floor by a pool hall and the Bijou moving picture theater. It is probable that the Bijou will occupy the old stand of Messners on Pine street, but the new location of the pool hall is not yet known.

Brady & Moynihan, real estate, have also recently removed from their old offices on Third to the old Swan River Logging company's old building. Many inquiries for warehouse premises are being heard and some difficulty is being found in getting accomodation. A good ore season is looked for locally on account of the number of mining concerns that will ship ore for the first time during the coming summer.

ALGER-SMITH MILL MAY BE OPERATED

Belief in Tower That Big Plant Will Be Run During Next Summer.

Tower, Minn., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is a strong probability of the big Alger-Smith company sawmill being operated the coming season, beginning in July. A company owning a large tract of pine some twenty or twenty-five miles east of here want the tract cleared soon and the timber sawed. The mills are all taxed to their limit and the company is compelled to find a way to get the timber worked up and have leased the mill here. The logging will probably soon begin and the logs will be transported to Tower by rail. If run to its full capacity, a crew of some 200 men will be required.

WHEAT LOSES LAST BULGE

New Low Prices for the Crop Established—Selling Heavy.

Rains Continue in Southwest —Crushers Buyers of Flaxseed.

Duluth Board of Trade, Feb. 17.—Wheat closed sharply lower today. May lost 1⅜c and July declined a similar distance. Cash wheat was ½c under May. Oats, rye and barley were unchanged, durum lost 1c.

Flaxseed was stronger. Trading in flax was light. The demand from crushers combined with the scarcity of cash stuff put the cash article 1c over the May price. May closed $2.69½ bid. La Plata seed at Antwerp closed $2.483.

Wheat prices were the lowest on the present crop. The Antwerp quotation established a new record since the Crimean war.

The market yesterday ignored the heavy precipitation in the Southwest but today the effect of possible obstacles in the path of reciprocity having been discounted, the continued rains in the winter wheat states had their natural effect. Selling started with the tap of the opening gong and the market descended until shortly before noon when shorts covered. On the bulge there was heavy hammering again and the market sagged lower.

The winter wheat is in good condition and if there is to be any large abandoned acreage the damage must ensue in the next four weeks as there has been very little thus far. The acreage is the largest in history and as the wheat is now in a normal condition prospects point to the biggest winter wheat crop in the history of the United States. In all of the winter wheat states, except Kansas, farmers are delivering old wheat freely, says the Modern Miller. Rains have been plentiful and the long dry spell has been broken in Kansas, southern Nebraska, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas. In northern Nebraska there was snow on the ground most of the winter.

Receipts at Minneapolis were more liberal than expected and this had a bearish effect despite the decrease in Minneapolis stocks. Stores here are expected to increase 220,000 bu this week to 5,127,000 bu.

The foreign situation was chiefly bearish, also. Cables came lower. World's shipments are estimated at 7,600,000 bu exclusive of North America. Australian shipments show a decrease to 1,424,000 bu from 2,600,000 bu for the week. Argentine shipments this week are 3,370,000 bu, compared with 2,205,600 bu last week. The Buenos Ayres market was higher yesterday, but the Liverpool market closed lower. Argentine stocks are increasing. Russian shipments are expected to be lighter. Australian shippers are asking higher prices. The favorable outlook for American winter wheat swayed foreign sentiment to the bear side and values closed lower.

Cash Sales Friday.

MARKET GOSSIP

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "The wheat market at the opening was influenced by the firmer American cables yesterday and lighter shipments from Australia and values were about unchanged, these offset the effect of the larger shipments from Argentina and the increase in the stocks there. Following the opening, March and May advanced ¼d on predictions of lighter Russian shipments this week and much world's shipments and Australian shippers are holding at 3d advance. Private reports continue favorable regarding the American winter wheat outlook and spot demand was poor and generally ½d lower. At midday the market was easier and about ¼d to ½d lower than yesterday. Corn was quiet and unchanged at the opening and later advanced ⅛d on the firmer American offers and an improved demand for spots. Indian shipments of wheat this week were 456,000; last week, 888,000; last year 320,000 bu. Argentine shipments of wheat this week were 3,370,000; last week, 2,208,000; last year, 2,432,000 bu; corn this week, 196,000; last week, 17,000; last year, 252,000 bu. Visible supplies in chief ports: Wheat, 3,680,000; week ago, 3,360,000; year ago, 569,000. The wheat market is steady with the demand moderate. The corn market is quiet and sales only being done with difficulty. Weather conditions are favorable for the growing corn crop.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Heavy Rains in Kansas and Disappointing Cables Weaken Wheat.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—Heavy rains weakened the market today. In particular there was a thorough drenching of the whole of Kansas, where the drouth was regarded as effectively broken. Cables, too, were disappointing to the bulls. At Liverpool little or no response was made to the strength yesterday on this side, the chief influence in the English market being the enlarged amount of shipments from the Argentine. Opening prices here were ⅛@¼c to ⅝@¾c lower. May started at 91½c to 91¾c, a decline of ¼@⅝c to ⅝@¾c, and fell to 91⅜c.

Baltimore exports and adverse prospects of the anti-option bill, caused a rally, but big short sales of July by a prominent speculator led to a greater decline than before. The close was nervous with May 1⅛c net lower at 90¾@90⅞c.

Corn eased off a little with wheat, at the outset, but afterward developed strength on account of the unsettled weather interfering with deliveries and sales by farmers. May opened a shade off at 48⅞c and rallied to 49¼c.

The market swayed by wheat, advanced somewhat, and then fell back. The close was easy with May ⅛@¼c net lower at 48⅜c.

Although trade in oats was small, the market became firm on buying for a local speculator. May started a sixteenth to ⅛c up at 31⅜@⅜c to 31¾c, but reacted to 31⅝c.

Provisions gave evidence of being affected by a rising tendency in the hog market. First sales were 5c higher to 12½c down with May options at $11.52½ for pork, $9.40 for lard and $9.40 also for ribs.

STRENGTH IN STOCKS

Bear Pressure Is Met With Support of Good Character.

Highest Prices Recorded in Final Hour and Close Active.

New York, Feb. 17.—There was a resumption of yesterday's selling movement at the opening of the market today. United States Steel and Union Pacific had wide openings, the latter declining a maximum of ⅝ on sales of several thousand shares and steel falling ¼. Missouri Pacific lost a point, but quickly recovered to ⅛ over last night's close. Chesapeake & Ohio dropped 1⅜.

Speculation was nervous and with a yielding tendency. Following the opening there was a general improvement in which Chesapeake & Ohio made up its initial loss, but the higher prices brought out more abundant offerings and the market sagged sharply. Reading, United States Steel and Union Pacific were sold extensively, but these issues and the market in general returned to last night's level or above before the expiration of the hour. Missouri Pacific rebounded from 56¼ to 58. Wisconsin Central broke 2¼.

The feature of the market during the morning session was its resistence to continued selling in contrast with the marked weakness displayed yesterday under similar conditions. Bear pressure was met with support of a significant character and the shorts hastily covered, carrying prices substantially above yesterday's closing. Some selling was induced by the announcement of the illness of a leading capitalist, but when an authoritative statement was issued declaring that it was not of a serious nature the upward movement assumed greater headway. Stocks in which the family interest is reported to be very large were the strongest in the list. Amalgamated Copper, New York Central and St. Paul gained about a point and United States Rubber more than 2. Bonds steady.

The market closed active and strong. Highest prices of the day were recorded in the final hour, when Reading, Lehigh Valley, Union Pacific and United States Steel advanced briskly and sold at a point above yesterday's closing on long buying and short covering. The underlying strength of the list bespoke earnest support.

TO EXTEND THE TERMS

North Dakota Bill to Give State Officials Four-Year Terms.

Conference Committee Named to Consider Anti-Pass Measures.

Bismarck, N. D., Feb. 17.—(Special to The Herald.) — Representative S. J. Doyle of Foster county has introduced a constitutional amendment providing four-year terms for the state officials. This bill also fixes the terms of the members of the house at four years, leaving the senate term as at present. The author would also limit the office holders to one term. One problem that gave Mr. Doyle a great deal of trouble is the judiciary. Under the proposed amendment to the Constitution, now before the assembly, justices of the supreme court will have 10-year terms, and the problem of arranging these terms so as to fit in the four-year election plan was a difficult one, but this was accomplished by making a certain number of officers elected every two years, thus retaining biennial elections.

Representative Hedalan of Walsh county, in bills that he has introduced, would increase the salaries of the members of the legislature. He believes that $10 a day is the right salary, and that sessions should only be held every four years.

O. P. JORDAL,
Member of North Dakota House From Sheridan, Who Is Chairman of Judge Cowan Impeachment Committee.

Since the present session opened there has been a great deal of discussion of the judicial districting of the state, and now Representative De Nault of Stutsman county has hit upon the plan of creating the supreme court as a districting commission to report to the Thirteenth legislative assembly.

Public Examiner Stays.

An agreement has been reached by which the senate banking committee will report the McDowell bill for passage. Amendments have been made to prevent the creation of a new department of banking, leaving the work under the direction of the state public examiner. By so doing, the qualification feature that proved objectionable to the present examiner was eliminated. Changes in the bill reduce the cost of operation about $99,000 annually, while fees for examinations of banks are reduced from $20 to $12. Semi-annual examinations hold.

Senator Garden's bill, under the provisions of which druggists' permits would have been abolished, was indefinitely postponed by the senate after a heated debate. As a result, drug permits will remain under the jurisdiction of the supreme court.

The senate passed the Hookway mechanics' lien law by a vote of 25 to 23. It does away with mechanics' lien so far as it relates to materials furnished. This is a subject over which there has been a heated fight for some time, with the line lumber companies making strenuous opposition.

The senate killed the Dean grain-buying discrimination bill, which was passed by the house.

Board of Control.

In the house yesterday afternoon a favorable report came from the ways and means committee on the bill creating a board of control for all state institutions. A favorable report was also returned on the Fraine bill calling for a constitutional convention and an adverse report on the Sterns bill, regulating the sale of nostrums and medicines by unlicensed persons.

The Moritz state text book commission bill came out with majority and minority reports, but was turned back again, while Dean's bill calling for the sale of eggs by weight was killed. Senator Plain's bill for a constitutional amendment allowing the state to construct terminal elevators in Minnesota was reported for passage.

The anti-pass bills reached the conference committee with a concurrent resolution being introduced in the house to report by Saturday. Sorlie, Homness and Nestos were named as house conferees. The senate concurred and Gilbert, Bessessen and Putnam were named.

Public Building Bill.

As passed, the building bill, regulating the manner in which public buildings shall be constructed, cuts out the 5 per cent protection that was originally intended for the North Dakota contractors. This feature of the measure was stricken from the bill through an amendment on the floor.

Among the important bills passed by the senate are those regulating the salaries of registers of deeds, preventing public administrators from acting as attorneys in cases before them, allowing for the disposition of the products of the state twine plant and one having reference to the parole of convicts. In the house the Nestos uniform accounting measure, the Price building bill, the Fritz railroad service for county seats measure and the committee anti-pass bill have been passed.

Majority and minority reports came back from the public health committee of the senate today on the medical board of control bill. The measure had been reported out favorably by the committee once, but the situation was complicated with the introduction of a naturapathic board bill which is being used as a club against the medical bill.

Music will be furnished by the U. O. F. orchestra.

BUILDINGS TO BE VALUED

City Assessor's Revaluation Forces to Begin Active Work.

Preleminary Office Steps Have Nearly all Been Completed.

Next week, City Assessor J. Allyn Scott will start three deputies to make complete valuations of all buildings of every description in the city, as part of his campaign for a complete revaluation of all real estate of Duluth.

The work will be done by Deputies W. K. Fowler, Ben Smith and John Miller, all of whom have had considerable experience in building lines. Mr. Scott is confident that all owners and occupants will give them every assistance, as it is necessary that the interiors as well as the exteriors be examined.

The preliminary work of the revaluation is proceeding at a rapid rate and in the most satisfactory manner. The foundation is being laid in pursuance of the most business-like plan which has ever been mapped out in that office. Card systems are being installed and put into use; the plats of the different sections of the city are being put out in excellent shape by Elvin Berg, the department draughtsman, and the blue prints are being produced and are already becoming valuable.

Assessor Scott states that every lot and building in the city will have a new valuation when the real estate assessment is made in 1912, a year hence. When he is through, the records in the office will show just which parts of the city have been carrying the burden of taxation and which have escaped lightly. The true values of the lots of each division, the present assessed value, and the percentage of the assessment to the correct value, will be shown. For example, suppose a division is valued at $100,000, and assessed at $40,000, the assessment will be 40 per cent of the correct value. In another part of the city the value of a division might be $50,000, and the assessed value $10,000, or 20 per cent of the value. With every division entered in this manner a glance will show where corrective measures are needed.

The card system is proving very useful, saving time and trouble and being much more satisfactory than the old system, which was followed. Each lot is shown separately, and where topography causes a lessening of value, this is stated specifically. The system is the same as has been used for personal property the last few years.

BATH TUB MEN CLAIM IMMUNITY

Say They Were Thoroughly Cleansed in Former Suit.

Attorneys File Plea to Have Criminal Case Dismissed.

Argue That Statutes Provide Immunity in Such Suits.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 18.—Alleging the individual defendants in the government's criminal case against the so-called bath tub trust have been granted immunity by the course of the government in the civil suit begun in Maryland, Attorneys Stevenson, Carpenter and Butzel today filed a plea in the local federal court to have the criminal case dismissed.

In the plea it is declared that the subpoenas, served on all civil suit defendants, required answer under oath and that the defendants filed such answers and that in these answers they disclosed certain facts pertaining to the things charged against them in the indictments found by the grand jury at Detroit.

The immunity statutes, it is declared in the plea, provide immunity for persons who may give testimony or produce evidence, documentary or otherwise, concerning the things included in the counts of the indictment. Counsels for the defendants, in their plea, recite that they called the attention of the attorney general by telegraph to the fact that the civil suit subpoenas required answer under oath and asked for an extension of time that might possibly be necessary. The reply, they allege, was favorable, giving them permission to have the answers sworn to after their filing.

It is alleged in behalf of the defendants that these documentary answers, sworn to and properly filed in Maryland at the request of the government, give immunity to the defendants regardless of whether they were actually called to the stand to give testimony in the suit.

STORMBOUND AT A WATER TANK

Redding, Cal., Feb. 18.—Drenched by the icy rain falling in the mountains and devoid of food supplies, 160 members of the Industrial Workers of the World, who left Ashland yesterday morning to tramp to Fresno to reinforce their brethren there in a "free speech campaign," are stormbound at Steinman, Or. Southern Pacific trainmen say they are huddled in the shelter of a water tank waiting for a chance to board a freight train. The railroad has given orders that no trains shall stop at Steinman.

The authorities at Dunsmuir, the first station where the men can hope to obtain food, fear trouble when the half-starved "army" reaches there, and are asking the governor to call out troops to aid them in handling the situation. It is said a large number of the men are armed.

Mountaineers who know the pass say there is grave danger that the wayfarers may perish in the storm and snow, of which there is six feet at Siskiyou.

WORK FOR SUFFRAGE

Women's Clubs to Make Demonstration in New York Capital.

Many Schemes to Bring the Matter Before Public to Be Employed.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 18.—Suffrage week, through which the members of various women suffrage clubs of the state hope they may demonstrate to the legislature the necessity of passing the bills granting women the right to vote, will be inaugurated here tomorrow with special services in some of the churches. The joint assembly and senate judiciary committees will give a hearing on the matter Wednesday afternoon.

All through the week every conceivable scheme calculated to bring the question before the public will be employed. To cap the climax of the week's activities, Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, England's famous militant suffragist, will address a gathering at the Ten Eyck hotel on "Prison Experiences of a Young Suffragette."

Monday a drawing room talk will be given by Mrs. Charles Park of Boston. Other women will make speeches before various labor union meetings that night. The labor union talks will be kept up during the week.

Tuesday night there will be a reception at the Ten Eyck, to which Governor and Mrs. Dix, the legislators and their wives, state officials and others have been invited, including not only suffragists, but those opposed to the movement.

Wednesday, the day of the hearing, a special train bearing about 100 anti-suffragists, among them Mrs. Gilbert Jones, representing the National League for the Civic Education of Women, and Miss Alice Hill Chittenden, will come up from New York. Suffragists from all over the state are expected to crowd the big assembly chamber to the doors.

BILL PREPARED FOR LEASING STATE DOCK AT ONEOTA TO DULUTH

Approved By the Attorney General and the State Auditor.

Senator Froshaug Wins Election Contest on Very Close Vote.

Knapp to Head Committee to Investigate State Drainage Work.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—As the result of a conference held by City Attorney Bert Fesler yesterday afternoon with Attorney General Simpson and State Auditor Iverson, a bill will be handed to the St. Louis county delegation in a day or two for early introduction arranging for turning over to the city of Duluth, to be improved for city dock purposes, the state dock site at Oneota.

The bill, which will have the approval and support of the attorney general and the state auditor, will be substantially as already published in The Herald. It will provide for a long term lease, probably for ninety-nine years, at a nominal rental yet to be fixed, with a forfeiture clause providing that unless the city improves the property for use as a public dock with-

GREAT ICE FLOES BEGIN TO MOVE

Vessels Which Have Been Held Are Now Making Some Progress.

Sydney, C. B., Feb. 18.—The ice floes along the shores of Cape Breton have been partially lifted. The steamer Bruce, which maintains communication between Port aux Basque, Nfld., and North Sydney, reached Louisburg last night after a week's imprisonment in the ice off Low Point. The Bruce, during part of her bondage, was in great danger, as the grinding floes threatened to crush in her sides, and the ice piled up above her rail. So serious was her predicament that her sixty passengers left her and made their way on foot over the ice to the mainland.

The government icebreaking steamer Stanley, which also had been caught in the grip of the ice, freed herself yesterday and sailed with the mails for the Magdalen islands.

HURLS BRICK INTO HOUSE

Tramp Makes a Target of Visitor in Helen Gould's Home.

Had Been Refused Alms When He Applied at the Door.

New York, Feb. 18.—Angered when refused alms at the door, a disheveled tramp retired to the street and hurled a brick through one of the library windows of Miss Helen Gould's Fifth avenue residence last night. Miss Gould was in an adjoining room and was unhurt, but Mrs. Edward Scholes, standing near the window, was struck squarely on the head and escaped serious injury only because of an abundance of hair. As it was, she was knocked prostrate and a large bump raised at the base of her skull. Police began a search for the beggar but had not found him late last night.

Miss Gould, who was in an adjoining room with two children, rushed into the library when she heard the crash and the butler summoned the police. Mrs. Scholes refused medical attention and with the shock of the blow over, explained that she was not badly hurt.

The butler told the police that an unkempt man, wearing a black slouch hat and apparently under the influence of liquor, had lurched up to the house shortly before 7 o'clock. He rang the bell until the butler answered, then

ROB SAFE ON FAST MAIL

Bandits Hold Up Train on Southern Railway in Georgia.

Blow Open Safe in Express Car and Get Away With Booty.

Gainesville, Ga., Feb. 18.—The express safe on Southern railway train No. 36, northbound, was blown open by four men at 3:15 o'clock this morning at White Sulphur Springs, Ga., four miles from here, and about $700 stolen. The men, covering the crew with revolvers, ordered the train to start. The bandits disappeared in the darkness. No one was hurt. Officers are in pursuit.

No. 36 of the Southern road is known as the United States fast mail and runs from New Orleans to New York. The robbers broke down the doors of the railroad station at White Sulphur, bound the night agent and set the signal for the train to stop. As the locomotive slowed up one of the men entered the cab and ordered the engineer to proceed to Lulu, a small station several miles away. After a stop was made members of the gang entered the express car and while one held the conductor and express messenger at the point of a revolver, the others blew open the door of the safe and took the money. Agent Terrill, of the Southern Express company, Deputy United States Marshal Landers and a posse with bloodhounds are on the trail of the men. The train was delayed only half an hour.

Washington, Feb. 18.—A dispatch received at the Southern railway headquarters here told of the holdup by masked men of Train No. 36, northbound, near White Sulphur Springs, Ga., at an early hour today. The safe was blown open, but the officials profess not to know the amount of money obtained. No one was hurt, according to the dispatch.

RECEIVES MANTLE OF PAUL SINGER

Herman Molkenbuhr Elected Leader of German Social Democrats.

Berlin, Wednesday, Feb. 8.—Herman Molkenbuhr, member from Saxony, has been elected president of the Social Democratic faction in the reichstag, thus receiving the mantle of the late Paul Singer, who up to his death shared the presidency of the faction with the aged leader, August Bebel.

Bebel has been compelled to retire almost completely from active politics on account of his age and health leaving the responsibility for the parliamentary tactics on the shoulders of Molkenbuhr. The latter is a writer, originally a cigarmaker by trade, who, on account of his political activity, was expelled from Germany in 1881 and spent three years in the United States. He is a hard political fighter, as pugnacious as Bebel, and aroused the reichstag this winter with a flat declaration that his party was working for a republic in Germany. He entered the reichstag in 1890 as a representative from Berlin and was first defeated in 1906, after which a seat was found for him in Saxony.

The present trend in the party appears to be against the iron discipline and autocratic authority enjoyed by Bebel and Singer, and the new leader's rule probably will not be so unquestioned.

FEAR SCHOOL SYSTEM WILL BE CRIPPLED

Members of Board of Education See Danger in Congdon Bills.

Say Efficiency Could Not Be Maintained on 12-Mill Tax Levy.

Outstanding Bond Issue Is Not Up to Proposed Limit.

A bill introduced in the legislature by Representative C. A. Congdon of Duluth this week provides that the tax levy for all purposes of an independent school district shall not exceed 12 mills in any one year, and if the bill should become a law, members of the Duluth board of education say that the Duluth school system would be hopelessly handicapped and would be unable to maintain its efficiency and keep up with the growth of the city.

C. A. Bronson, clerk of the board, has written to Representative Congdon, asking that copies of the bills be sent so that the members of the board may have an opportunity to study them, but has not yet received them.

The present limit of the levy for the general fund is 8 mills. The building fund is limited to 8 mills and there is no limit to the amount of the sinking fund. The Duluth board at its last meeting discussed the submission to the legislature of a bill extending the limit of taxation for the general fund. No specific amount of extension was mentioned, but that was to be settled later by the board.

General Fund Levy Cut.

This year the levy of the board for the general fund amounted to $352,400. On a valuation of $41,385,294, that would exceed the 8 mill limit and, having no other option the county auditor was forced to reduce the levy and spread only $331,081.79 on the tax rolls, so that the board will be forced to work this year with less than the members determined, after consideration, would be needed to properly maintain the schools.

The total levy this year is 14.1 mills, 3.6 mills being levied for the

SIXTEEN TO SHARE McGUIRE'S GRAVE

Friendless Foreigners to Be Buried With Their Late Foreman.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Feb. 18.—Sixteen friendless foreigners will share the grave of Hugh McGuire in Calvary cemetery in this city as the result of a woman's desire to give dignified burial to her son. Hugh McGuire was foreman of a crew of Italians and Greeks which suffered extermination in the powder explosion at Devine's Slide last summer. The bodies of the dead were so commingled that identification was impossible. The fragments were interred together at Morgan, Utah.

The mother of Foreman McGuire, after making every effort to identify the remains of her son, applied to the Morgan county authorities for permission to bury all that was found of the seventeen explosion victims. Her request was granted and the reburial will take place today with appropriate rites. A costly monument will mark the resting place of the victims.

COMPLETE SURRENDER

Believed China Will Accede to Any Thing the Russians Want.

Kingdom Not Strong Enough to Compete in Any Way.

Pekin, Feb. 18.—The Chinese foreign board declined to make a statement concerning Russia's representations with regard to the Ili province in Chinese Turkestan, declaring that a reply to M. Korotovitz, the Russian minister to China has not yet been determined on. It is said here however, that China's surrender will be complete. A national spirit has developed in China in recent years, due to resentment against all treaties giving privileges to foreigners and not excepting the Russo-Chinese treaty of 1881. According to reports the Chinese are rankling under what are considered unfair clauses in this treaty and oftentimes have not abided by its conditions, declaring that their interpretation of the treaty differed from that taken by the Russians.

The Chinese foreign office recently informed the Russian minister that it considered the treaty of 1881 one-sided and intended to renounce it after Feb. 25, that being the termination of a decade, the treaty providing that it

Reciprocity Bill Will Be Reported to the Senate By Committee.

May Be Sent to the Floor Without Recommendation.

Washington, Feb. 18.—The finance committee of the senate was called together today in consideration of the McCall bill, to supply the legislative machinery required to put into effect the reciprocity agreement with Canada. Three or four days probably will be consumed by the committee in reaching a decision as to the manner of reporting the bill, but even its most obdurate opponents are unwilling to bear the responsibility of any longer delay than that.

It was decided to limit hearings to Monday and Tuesday. Practically all of the requests for hearings came from agricultural interests. The committee was in session an hour and a half and adjourned until Monday.

Whether there are votes in the committee to report the bill favorably could not be learned at the outset of the meeting and probably will not be known until Monday when Senator Hale will be able to be present. As a matter of fact the members of the committee feel that it is immaterial how the bill is reported, whether favorably, adversely or without recommendation. The indications are that the latter method will be employed in the interest of the early transfer of the fight to the floor of the senate, in accordance with promises that have been made to President Taft.

No Attempt to Smother.

It is known that a majority of the finance committee would oppose any

MISCREANTS WRECK PASSENGER TRAIN

Place Obstruction in Switch, Derail Engine and Kill Engineer.

Tamaqua, Pa., Feb. 18.—A train wreck, in which one man was killed occurred early today near Lofty Station on the Philadelphia & Reading railway. According to railroad officials an investigation showed that some one had placed an obstruction in a switch, causing the locomotive of a local passenger train to jump the track on a steep embankment.

The engine ran along the ties for a short distance and then toppled over and plunged down the incline. Samuel Giltner, engineer, 50 years old, was caught under the locomotive and crushed to death. His fireman was not injured, nor were any of the passengers, who were principally men on their way to work.

When the engine left the rails it tore loose from the tender. The latter remained on the road bed and only one car was derailed.

Maliciously Wrecked.

Philadelphia, Feb. 18.—Officials of the Philadelphia & Reading railway in this city said today that the train derailed near Tamaqua was no doubt maliciously wrecked and that everything possible will be done to find the perpetrator.

The company officials state that the switch was in good condition twenty minutes before the derailment, when a train passed over it safely. A piece of iron was found wedged in the switch after the accident, according to the company's information.

RHEUMATISM NO MORE--THE GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY CONQUERS URIC ACID.

I have long felt it my duty to let you know what Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root did for me. Some years ago I was afflicted with rheumatism. For some time I was helpless not being able to move my feet or feed myself. I suffered terribly and employed as good a physician as could be found. Although I obtained some benefit from his treatment, I was unable to do any work and was terribly discouraged. My feet and hands would swell badly. I finally commenced taking Swamp-Root, and before the first bottle was finished, I commenced work, only losing five days out of the first month. I continued taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root until I had taken five bottles, and have never been laid up a day since with rheumatism. I have recommended it to others and the results have been fine.

TAFT REPEALS THE INDIAN TREATIES ON WHICH HE CAN ACT

a special message urging similar action by that body in certain treaties, the provisions of which he is not empowered to repeal or modify.

"In the years which have elapsed since making these treaties," he says in the message, "conditions have largely changed, the Indian population having reduced, large white settlements have been made and great cities like Duluth, St. Paul and Minneapolis, have come to occupy a portion of what, at the date of the treaties, was denominated Indian territory. Notwithstanding these facts, this territory still remains subject to the regulation restricting the traffic of liquor originally imposed for the protection of the Indians.

"Such an anomalous condition of affairs," he continues, "should no longer continue, and the regulation of traffic in liquors in those areas, now almost exclusively occupied by white people, should be left to them. In the instances, where the treaty authorized the president to repeal or modify the provisions, I have exercized that right. Some of the treaties, however, provide that the provisions referred to shall continue and be in force until otherwise provided by congress."

The District Affected.

The Herald has prepared a map showing just what territory is affected by the different treaties and what territory remains dry or wet. The southern half of the state, including all the territory south of a line drawn just below Brainerd, is covered by a treaty of 1851. This is abrogated by the President, with the exception of a small district on the extreme western border, which is excepted, and this will remain "dry." No attempt had been made to enforce this treaty.

The principal treaty affecting the northern half of the state was the treaty of 1855. This is a treaty over which the president has no power. The district is shown in the accompanying map. This district remains "dry," although the treaty may be overcome through the courts. Litigation is now pending. This proceeding claims that the treaty was abrogated when the state was taken into the Union, and it is also claimed that when the Indians abandon their tribal relations the laws governing the sale of liquor cease to apply. The former point, it is believed, will not hold, but on the latter the liquor interests hope to win their case. In fact, the government's answer, filed yesterday at St. Paul, sets up the fact that the Indians have not abandoned their tribal relations in this territory, and the liquor interests will be forced to prove their facts before the legal point can be argued.

Three Exceptions.

Within this territory affected by the treaty of 1855 there are three small districts exempted by later treaties and acts. One of these districts lies just west of Brainerd, including West Brainerd, but not Brainerd. A second includes a small district about the town of Crosby, and the third includes a district lying just south of Grand Rapids, but not including Grand Rapids. These districts are "wet."

President Taft has asked congress to abrogate this treaty of 1855, with the exception of the Leech Lake Indian reservation, including Cass Lake and Bemidji, the county of Mahnomen in the White Earth reservation, and a small district on Lake Winnibigoshish. If congress takes this step all of the district affected by the treaty of 1855 will be "wet," with the exception of these three Indian reservations. The only towns in St. Louis county in the 1855 territory are Hibbing and Chisholm.

The treaty of 1854 is abrogated by the president, with two districts excepted. One district is in the extreme corner of Cook county, including Grand Marais. This remains "dry." The other district lies around Carlton, including Carlton, and this also remains "dry." The remainder of the territory, including Duluth and all the range towns, but Hibbing and Chisholm goes "wet," by the president's orders. The treaty has never been enforced in this district, but the president's order ends all talk of Duluth "going dry."

In the extreme north central part of the state, the map shows a district covered by the treaty of 1866. This has been "wet" and remains so.

In the northeast corner of the state are shown two districts covered by the treaties of May and October, 1863. The district covered by the October treaty was "wet" and remains so. Of the other district, which is in the extreme corner of the state, one-half is opened to the sale of liquor. This latter includes Crookston and Warren and East Grand Forks. It was formerly "dry," and only half of it remains so.

To summarize, it might be stated that the districts that remain "dry" are as follows: A small district in the extreme northeastern corner of the state including Grand Marais; the district about Carlton; all of the territory affected by the treaty of 1855, as shown on the map, with the exception of the three districts near Brainerd, Crosby and Grand Rapids; and the eastern half of the district covered by the treaty of May, 1863, as shown on the map.

can be renounced at the end of any ten years.

Thereupon M. Korotovitz presented to China a list of claims, including demands for a delimitation of the frontier in two places where the boundary was disputed. The foreign office, when pressed by the Russian minister, replied that it would discuss these points at a conference over a new treaty which China would propose. M. Korotovitz then pointed out that the claims he had presented referred to breaches in the present treaty which had not yet expired.

The foreign office, however, has no further communication with M. Korotovitz, who has repeatedly warned it that the St. Petersburg government's patience will not last indefinitely. The Chinese not being sufficiently strong to cope either with arms or diplomatically with Russia, have indulged in their customary procrastinations, no member of the government desiring to incur responsibility for a contest from which there could be but one issue. Therefore, as the regent is in sole authority, the reply to Russia will be framed under the advice of the councillors.

Russia possess an extensive trade in all the border provinces which she does not desire to submit to discussion and the denunciation of the treaty will open the whole question to indefinite argument. China, however, enjoys the legal right to renounce the treaty.

The Russian and Japanese legations here are regularly in consultation on the Russo-Chinese situation.

building fund, 2.4 mills for the sinking fund and 1 mill for the Teachers' Retirement Fund association fund. The board has never levied to the limit for the building fund, the highest levy for that purpose ever made being last year when 6.37 mills were collected, the board being forced to great expense in the erection of the new Washington grade and manual training school and the new Fairmont school. The highest amount ever levied for the building fund previously was 3.04 mills in 1908.

The board members say they face this proposition: The general fund levy limit is now too low at 8 mills; the district will need one new building each year for a number of years to keep up with the growth of the city, entailing an expenditure of about $65,000, or 1.5 mills on a valuation of over $40,000,000; additions will be needed as the addition to the Lowell school this year; current interest on bonds comes to about $65,000 annually, or 1.5 mills on the present valuation; a levy of 1 mill annually is necessary for the sinking fund, in order to meet the retirement of bonds amounting to $800,000, which mature between the years 1921 and 1924, so that a levy of 12 mills would, in their opinion, be an unreasonable restriction.

Not Concerned About Other Bills.

Representative Congdon has introduced two bills applying to independent school districts, other provisions being that a bond issue by the school district will require a favorable vote of two-thirds of the city council before being submitted to the people and that the bonded indebtedness of the district shall not exceed 3½ per cent of the assessed valuation of the district.

The members of the Duluth board are not concerned about those provisions. Although they cannot see why a representative taxing body like the school board should be required to submit bond issues to the city council, they say there could be no valid objection to the proceeding, as they feel sure that the board will make no issue that cannot be supported by arguments strong enough to insure approval by the city council.

The present bonded indebtedness of the district is $1,175,000, which is 2.8 per cent of the assessed valuation of the district. A limit of 3½ per cent would give the district a bonding limit of $1,458,000 on the present valuation, and the board members do not see any reason now for believing that a desire to exceed that limit will arise.

As to the taxation limit, however, they are not so complacent. "If the board is limited to a levy of 12 mills, the board would have to regulate its expenditures to meet that limit, but the school system would suffer," said one of the members today.

"If the limit of 12 mills should be imposed, the district would be seriously handicapped and the school system could not keep up with the growth of the city," said President Magner. "I feel that way about it and I believe that not only the other members of the board but the citizens in general who are interested in maintaining the efficiency of our schools feel the same."

attempt to smother the McCall bill. Therefore if there are hearings, they will be limited.

The most ardent supporters of Canadian reciprocity on the finance committee are Senators Cullom of Illinois, a Republican, and Senators Money of Mississippi and Stone of Missouri, Democrats. Had it not been for the injury to the fishing industry of Gloucester, Mass., Senator Lodge of that state naturally would have been the leader in the forthcoming struggle in the senate. It may be that he will assume this position if the president asks him to do, notwithstanding that it menaces one of the great Massachusetts industries.

Stone Will Be Prominent.

Mr. Stone is a new member of the committee, having been appointed to succeed the late Senator Daniel of Virginia. He is leader of a considerable faction in the senate minority, and is counted upon as certain to take a prominent part in the debates. Senators Bailey, Taliaferro and Simmons, the other minority members, probably will oppose the agreement.

If Senator Burrows, acting chairman in the absence of Senator Aldrich, is guided by the action of the Michigan legislature, he will support the McCall bill, and Senators Smoot and Flint, though opposed to the agreement on the ground that it endangers the principle of protection usually, are found among those supporting administration measures.

Hale and McCumber Opposed.

It is certain that these senators will not consent to any dilatory tactics in committee. Hale and McCumber are bitterly opposed to the agreement, while the position of Senator Penrose has not been declared.

Many senators today examined with more than usual interest a roll call in the senate yesterday by which an executive session was ordered over the protests of senators who desired to continue consideration of the resolution on direct votes for senators. It was said this roll call disclosed what members of the minority may be expected to oppose the reciprocity agreement.

The Democrats in question are known to favor popular election of senators and, therefore, there opposition to continuing with that subject is taken as an indication that they desire this resolution kept "on tap" to be used against reciprocity and the bill to create a permanent tariff board.

The senators voting against the executive session and those not voting at all, who are said to be subject to this classification are Senators Bacon of Georgia; Bailey of Texas; Johnston of Alabama; Simmons and Overman of North Carolina; Foster and Thornton of Louisiana and Paynter of Kentucky.

COPPERS HIGHER; TRADING LIGHT

Market Is Featureless With Shorts Covering---Trades Evened Up.

The copper market was featureless today and there was little interest in it aside from a few specialties. The news was colorless. Continued rains in the winter wheat country helped the rails and the firmness of the railroad market was contributed to the coppers and industrials.

The local market was fairly active but trading was confined to a few active stocks. Keating was stronger and sold at $2.75 to $2.87½ to $2.81¼. Amazon walked forward from the opening, selling at $1.50. Calumet & Corbin sold at 32c and 31c. Carman was strong, selling at 94c, 93c and then at 97c.

Amalgamated sold at $64.50 to $64.75, Calumet & Arizona at $51.75, Giroux at $6.62½ and $6.68¾, North Butte at $29.37½ to $29.12½, Superior & Pittsburg at $14.75 to $14.50, Greene at $6.25.

Dwight E. Woodbridge will leave today for Sonora, Mex., to start operations at the Carman. The crosscut in the Carman is forty feet from the point where it is expected the Chispas vein will be encountered. The vein is one of the richest silver veins in Mexico. Mr. Woodbridge expects to overcome certain obstacles that have hampered operations since the mine was opened up. He will install a competent engineer and a working force.

Calumet & Sonora has financed its development work by the disposal of a part of its bonds. The balance is said to be payable on demand. The company has ordered a 40-ton separator and will proceed with the development of the property.

Directors of the Calumet & Corbin will meet Monday to let a contract for a shaft on the Mammoth claim, adjoining the famous Black Friday in the Radersburg district of Montana. The first shaft is down nearly 150 feet and has disclosed rich mineral ground. The company expects to be self-sustaining within six months.

Senators Cummins, Cullom, Tillman, Clapp, Beveridge, Lafollette, Gore, Chamberlain and Young spoke of the life and character of Mr. Dolliver. Mr. Clay was eulogized by Senators Bacon, Scott, Taliaferro, Lodge, Overman, Carter and Bailey. Senator Terrell of Georgia also was to have been among the speakers, but illness prevented his appearance to laud the senator whom he succeeded.

JUMPS FROM THE ELEVENTH FLOOR

W. T. J. Plummer Instantly Killed in Chamber of Commerce Building, Chicago.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—W. T. J. Plummer, a real estate dealer, jumped from the eleventh floor of the Chamber of Commerce today, and was instantly killed. It was shortly before the noon hour when Plummer, climbing over the railing of the eleventh floor, jumped to the floor of the rotunda.

Plummer's body hit two salesmen who were conversing. Both were knocked to the ground. A. O. Mortimer, one of the salesmen, was slightly stunned, but his companion left before the police arrived.

The police could find no one who saw Plummer dive to his death.

D. F. Brewster, who has an office on the eleventh floor, told the police Plummer had been talking business with him a moment before the fatal leap, and had not appeared despondent. Three others have met their death in the past few years in the same manner in this building. No cause for the suicide could be learned.

THIS WOMAN, 71 YEARS OF AGE, WAS BAKED IN LOUGHNEY & LOUGHNEY'S BAKE OVENS

Mrs. P. Lamoine, living at 104 North Twenty-eight avenue west, for years a chronic sufferer from rheumatism and at times forced to undergo torturing pains that would almost drive the ordinary person to distraction. Mrs. Lamoine underwent the famous Bake Oven treatment, and is sounding its praises to all she finds afflicted as she was.

"I thank Loughney & Loughney and their wonderful Bake Oven for the miraculous change," she said. "I was so bad that I had to be helped to the Bake Oven offices. The first treatment showed me conclusively that the merits of the Bake Oven had not been exaggerated. I was able to go away from there without help. I felt like a new person. I could then control my muscles and walk without pain. I continued the treatments according to the advice of Drs. Loughney & Loughney. I am now feeling fine and still I intend to take more bakes, and I want every sufferer to know what the Bake Oven has done for me. I wish I could find greater or more effective words to sound its praises."

Drs. Loughney & Loughney have all the offices on the third floor of the Christie building, on Fourth avenue west, between First and Second streets. They make no charge for consultation or examination. They have the best of graduate nurses to care for lady patients.

WHO PLAYED THAT LOW DOWN TRICK ON ASSEMBLY DANCERS?

Was it a practical joke by some busy member of the assembly, or did the orchestra do it?

Any way, it worked.

Gladys and Gwendolin and Madge turned nervously when the second note of the music indicated that irresistible time which introduces a Spanish dance.

There seemed to be no mistake and after—well, it was a Spanish dance—there was no getting around that, and no, it wasn't on the program.

The color grew a bit brighter on Madge's face, but it paled when Gwendolin reassured her that it surely was a mistake.

When the music kept right on and there was no apparent attempt to correct the mistake of the orchestra and young men began to scurry across the floor, the spots began to glow again, and the young women did as well as they could to compose themselves.

"Yes, it is a nice party, Mr. Blank, the decorations are so pretty and the music—well—

"Won't you sit down for a minute, I just hate to be the first on the floor, and that last dance was such a rollicking number that I feel, that is—of course and there's some one I haven't seen in so long. You remember—and, let me see, I haven't seen you since—Oh, really, surely you remember her, it was on that snowshoe party. Oh yes, ha ha, you are right. Some way I seem to be terribly confused as to things that happened only a short time ago and—"

And say, the men, well, men are so dense, anyway, they didn't seem to get wise to the "stalling" of the girls at all.

The silence—for there was a silence—and no one seemed able to help it, was awful. And the orchestra kept playing all the time. No one asked why some one didn't start. The girls knew but the men didn't and the music would have made any one want to dance.

Maybe the men knew this morning that the girls were "stalling" but they didn't get wise for a long time, not even when some of them were asked if they didn't want to go up into the library and yes, surely they could have that smoke that they had wanted all evening. Happy thought it was.

So some of the really diplomatic girls hustled the young fellows out of the room and others did their best to make the time pass quickly by getting them interested.

It would never have done to have owned up that they couldn't dance, for Laura Jean Libby says——

Then four couples started to dance. Two soon stopped. The girls had forgotten how. Yes, they owned right up. The other two couples—well, one couple really finished and the young woman was the only one who didn't wear a hobbler.

The joke was on the girls and the time was last night and the place was at the party of the Temple assembly.

READ THIS BOOKLET "The Hair and Its Care," Sent Free Upon Request.

The Herpicide Company wants every one to have a copy of their booklet telling how to take care of and possess nice hair. The booklet contains much valuable information on the subject of saving and cultivating the hair.

If the present-day men and women would begin to live up to the teachings of this little booklet it is doubtful if the next generation would find a baldheaded man or lady wearing false hair.

It is just as easy to have robust and beautiful hair as to have thin, scraggy hair or no hair at all. If the scalp is kept clean and free from dandruff the hair grows naturally and luxuriantly.

The booklet tells how this may be most effectively accomplished by the use of Newbro's Herpicide. Herpicide destroys the germ which causes dandruff, frees the head from dirt and scarf flakes. The hair becomes light, fluffy and beautiful.

Newbro's Herpicide is the original remedy that kills the dandruff germ for which there are many imitations and substitutes said to be just as good. Buy nothing but the original.

All reliable druggists sell and guarantee genuine Herpicide in one dollar size bottles.

Send 10c in postage to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich., and a nice sample will be sent with the booklet.

GREATER ACTIVITY IN BUSINESS

New York, Feb. 18.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

Every important development of the week has served to confirm and strengthen the recent growth in business confidence. With depleted stocks, merchants, while still conservative in their operations, are displaying greater activity.

Some definite idea of the improvement that has occurred in iron and steel is furnished by current estimates k jglob8uq--ef, per cent in the blast furnace operations of the leading producer from the indicating an expansion of nearly 15 cent statement of the same interest, showing an increase of 436,000 tons in unfilled orders on hand during the month of January.

Aside from a further broadening of activity in finished lines, it is significant that greater animation has developed in pig iron at certain leading centers and the belief is growing that the declining tendency of prices has been permanently checked. In some instances, advances of from 25 to 50 cents are being asked and furnaces are reluctant to quote for distant delivery on account of conviction that a substantial recovery is due. Machinery interests have been active buyers at the West, the demand for rails having been light this month, which is not surprising in view of the large contracts recently placed. Some plate mills are reported as operating at 75 per cent of capacity, while the volume of new structural orders is well maintained.

Purchases of both primary and secondary dry goods markets are now more frequent and comprehensive. Stocks in all quarters are believed to be low, but mills find it so difficult to secure producing costs that they are limiting their output to orders and increasing curtailment, especially in cotton goods lines. Some silk mills are exceedingly busy. Jobbers report a good trade in wash fabrics, ginghams, prints and domestic lines.

The footwear market continues generally quiet and as yet the expected revival of business following the departure of buyers from the Boston market has failed to develop to an great extent the demand being irregular. Producers of specialties, particularly cloth fabric goods continue in TEST MILL IN OPERATION.

Experimental Plant for Pulp Wood Starts at Wausau, Wis.

Washington, Feb. 18.—With a view to gathering information as to the relative value of plants and woods for paper manufacture, the experimental ground wood pulp mill, which the department of agriculture located at Wausau, Wis., has commenced operation. The mill was made available by an appropriation at the last session of congress which authorized the secretary of agriculture to conduct tests along this line.

The department for some time has been testing various woods in the laboratory. Some have been found to be suitable for pulp manufacture and the forest service has actually made paper from several of them by chemical means. To ascertain their commercial value, it was necessary to subject them to methods of manufacture comparable to those which are employed in actual business operations. With this end in view, the mill was established.

The Wausau mill is practically a paper making establishment in the miniature, being equipped with apparatus of the most up-to-date type. It will be in operation as long as the experiments may require.

NO CAUSE FOR PROBE.

J. L. Cromwell Says Pythian Insurance Rates Are Well Founded.

J. L. Cromwell, a member of the supreme lodge of the Knights of Pythias, said today that the rates on the fourth-class insurance have been advanced because policy holders have never paid enough and because some state laws demand that a higher rate be paid. He said the application by a policy holder for an investigation of the insurance department of the Knights of Pythias was not well founded. The claim that the advance in rates confiscates the rights of the policy holder is groundless, said Mr. Cromwell.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 18.—Fire insurance on Twin City and Duluth risks was not very profitable during 1910, according to the reports made to Insurance Commissioner J. A. Preus, by the companies doing business in the state. A summary of the reports shows the companies suffered unusually heavy losses in Minneapolis, while in St. Paul and Duluth the margin was too small to be profitable.

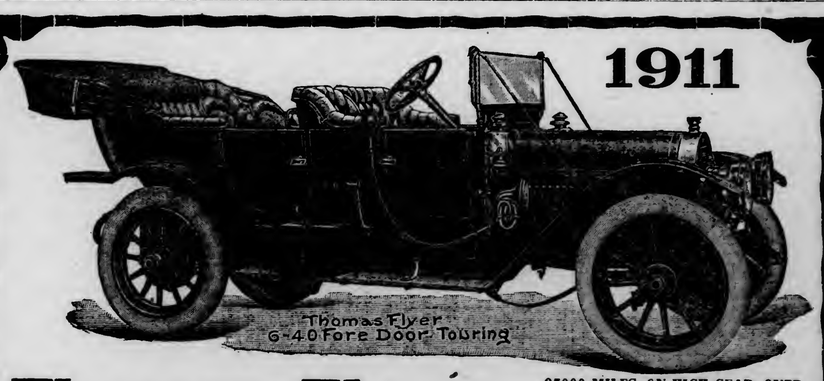

In Duluth the premiums were $584,273 and the losses $528,608. In St. Paul the premiums paid were $1,038,491 and the losses $709,136.

RABBI BITTERLY ASSAILS MEN WHO SEEK TO MAKE CHRISTIANS OF JEWS

First Convert Christians to Christianity, He Says in Sermon.

Says Missionary Has Been Engaged in Proselytizing Among Jews.

Claims Creedal Christianity Is Fast Nearing Its Dissolution.

RABBI LEFKOVITS.

Rabbi Maurice Lefkovits at Temple Emanuel last evening, in a lecture on the futility of attempting to convert the Jews to Christianity, made some startling and sensational remarks, including these:

"I would rather go to hell with honest doubters than go to heaven with deceitful hypocrites."

"A majority of Christian laymen and clergymen, while admitting the Jew's standing and worth as a citizen, looks upon him as an inferior religionist."

"Here in Duluth the services of a man have been engaged whose special work it is to bring the Jews into the protection of 'the one and only Christian church.'"

"To permit, year after year, this invasion of our rights by missionaries who intrude in our homes is to write ourselves down as arrant cowards or downright fools."

"The Jews do not accept the teachings of Christian missionaries, because they deny the dogmas of Christianity and reject the professions of hypocritical Christians."

"If we are to accept Christianity, what style shall we accept? Christianity is hopelessly split into many factions, all damning each other."

"When the Christian sects cannot agree on the way to salvation, why not let us alone to take our chances as we will?"

"We have been persecuted and oppressed since the year 316, all because we refused to believe that one Jew was a God and all other Jews were devils."

"In what Christians can show no superiority of conduct, in what manner are they justified in attempting to convert the Jews and Jewesses of Duluth to a faith foreign to their history and traditions?"

"The need today is to convert the Christians to Christianity, not to convert the Jews to that creed."

"The presumptuous self-assurance of the Christian is not justified by the facts."

"They (Jewish converts to Christianity) are living in luxury in the gullibility of those who took a poor Jew and made of him a worse Christian."

"The great question that men are asking themselves today is 'What can I do to serve humanity?' and it is the question which the Jewish religion has been keeping before its people for 3,000 years."

"Creedal Christianity is fast nearing its dissolution."

Rabbi Lefkovits told of a Christian preacher who asked permission of Mayor Gaynor to preach on the streets in portions of the metropolis largely peopled by the Jews, and of Mr. Gaynor's reply. The Gotham mayor declined to grant the permission, saying that such work among the Jews was being carried too far, in view of the fact that the Christians received from Jewish sources all the essentials of their religion. The gentile executive's attitude was warmly approved by the speaker, who then told of an Episcopal convention at which a clergyman, Rev. Grosvenor of New York, pleaded that the church show the true spirit of Christianity and give the Jews justice.

No Right to Interfere.

"The positions taken by these to men are such as all should take," said the rabbi. "No one has a right to interfere with the religious convictions of any one. Perhaps there are Jews that need reformation in their religious life, but it is not exclusively a Jewish characteristic to fail to live up to the ideals of one's faith. It is none the less true that a majority of Christian laymen and clergymen, while admitting the Jew's standing and worth as a citizen, looks upon him as an inferior religionist. So long as the preacher of the Christian church continues to preach all around the world that the Jew is damned and doomed, so long will he be so looked upon by the mass of men.

"The methods used for the spreading of the Christian gospel are not beyond reproach. Women who are well paid and well fed are working here in Duluth to wean away the Jews from the faith of their fathers. Flowers for the sick with quotations attached which will tend to inculcate the theories of the missionaries, and candy, with more texts, are among the devices used in this work. Then there are settlements, clubs and night schools, all conducted solely for the salvation of the Jew.

"The people back of all this effort have brought here a man whose special work it is to bring the Jews into the protection of 'the one and only Christian church.' This man comes to your house and shows you a book of pictures, scenes from the kingdom of the Japanese mikado, and for this courtesy bounteously extended you are of course grateful. Then he turns from his talk of the Japanese to discuss the kingdom of God and the good rabbi of Nazareth whom he calls the Christ. He does not expect you to accept his teachings on the spur of the moment, but comes again and again.

"Our religion separates us from the bulk of humanity, but our moral stamina is not lower than that of other men. We have the mentality and the religious spirit, as is attested by the building of synagogues all over the world. There are among us no greater proportion of criminals than among others. In fact, some have said the ratio is less. Perhaps many Jews are out of jail who ought to be in, but the same can be said about others.

"The Jews do not accept the teachings of Christian missionaries, because they deny the dogmas of Christianity and reject the professions of hypocritical Christians. The Jews reject the theories of the Christian religion as impossible of attainment, distinctly unreasonable and not in the slightest degree possessing qualities that could make any appeal to them.

Are Not Hypocrites.

"We refuse to profess with the lips what the heart cannot cherish. We will not and cannot play the hypocrite. Others, with another history than ours and coming from other environments, can honestly and sincerely accept the Christian system as the true religion. We cannot all see through the same glasses. But we have never at any time tried to wean any man from his religion to ours, and we demand the same treatment at the hands of the Christians. The Christians must respect our faith as we respect theirs. We resent the intrusion of zealous but indiscreet missionaries into our homes. If it is our desire to feed our souls on an inferior spiritual fuel, that is our privilege and not the business of someone else. We reject no man who honestly seeks the truth through Zion, and if any Jew, freely and voluntarily, chooses to espouse the Christian faith, well and good. But we will not tolerate the invasion of our homes.

"Granting, just for the sake of argument, that these Christian missionaries have the right of invasion, if we are to accept Christianity, what style shall we accept? Christianity is helplessly split into many factions, all damning each other, and if we got into one we would know that all the others had damned and doomed us for being there. When the Christian sects cannot agree on the way to salvation, why not let us alone to take our chances as we can?

Working Among Children.

"Not only does this missionary call at our homes, but he carries the glad tidings to our children, stopping them on the street as they come from school and showing them pictures. Especially the children of the poor. Candy, presents and texts attract the attention of the child and the man extends an invitation to the sewing class conducted by his organization. There every stitch that is sewed has with it some aid to conversion from Judaism, and the child is taught that his parents are eternally damned and doomed. Think of it! The child, without the knowledge of his parents, is taken to the place and told these things, which naturally wound his tender heart and fill him with horror at the thought of the parents who love him so well. Incidentally, most of these children of the Jewish poor enjoy better parental conditions than do most of the non-Jewish poor of the same class.

"Many good honest Christians are interested in such work as this. Efforts along this direction cannot but result in destroying to some extent the peace of mind and soul of Jews in later years and cannot be beneficial in any way.

"Where can we find Christianity at all?" he asked with a sudden rising power of voice, and then proceeded to show how the Christians have not lived up to the precepts of the Savior, clinching his argument with the assertion that Christianity certainly has not been exhibited in the Christians' treatment of the Jews.

"We have been persecuted and oppressed since the year 316, all because we refused to believe one Jew was a God and all other Jews were devils. The same terrible oppression of which we as a race have been victims for these many years is still going on. In every Christian nation, since established religions have been in existence, we have met with these inhumanities, and in Christian Russia, my friends, the same oppression is going on today. Four years ago a united word of protest from the Christian nations of the world to the Christian czar of Russia would have brought an end to these impressions. The Christian nations did not speak that word.

"The Christians are many in number, but they are most of them Christians in name only.

"I challenge these missionaries to show in what respect the Christians are morally, intellectually and spiritually superior to the Jews. The Jews are not perfect. We are all of the same sort of mortality. If the Christian can show us no superiority of conduct in what manner are they justified in attempting to convert the Jews and Jewesses of Duluth to a faith foreign to their history and traditions.

Convert Christians.

"The need today is to convert the Christians to Christianity, not to convert the Jews to that creed. When the Christians have been converted to Christianity, then will be the time to offer the Jews that faith, or creed. And to begin, why not convert the missionaries?

"This movement for the conversion of the Jews breeds nothing but hypocrisy. The presumptuous self assurance of the Christian is not justified. If it is, how about the political knavery in high places all over the nation? How about the predatory exploitation of the people by the very rich? How about the scandals in society, the multitude of divorces that the courts are grinding out without pause? How about the class feeling, steadily growing in bitterness and intensity?

"Do you blame the Jews for all these things? Are the Jews responsible or the Christians, so-called? If the Christians are to be held to account, does that argue in favor of the extension of their creed to include the Jews? The Jews form less than 2 per cent of our population.

"The money used in this movement might well be better used in helping those who need help. I happen to know that the particular missionary I have talked about is personally honest and sincere, but his financial backers fall far short of the Christ ideal. If these men go to heaven, I want to go elsewhere. I would rather go to hell with honest doubters than go to heaven with deceitful hypocrites.

"Let the Christians remake their golden rule to read as it was originally and as we have always had it: 'Do not do unto others what you would not have them do unto you.'"

The rabbi told of the rapid advance of liberal thought in the Christian churches, mentioning that theologians now habitually speculated upon the non-Godhood of Jesus, or discuss their religion with Christ left out.

"Creedal Christianity is fast nearing dissolution," he said. "Christ never taught that he was of virgin birth or that his blood would atone for the sins of humanity. He was the good Rabbi of Nazareth. When the Christian church teaches broadness and tolerance, then it will be time to talk of converting the Jew."

HIS INJURIES PROVE FATAL

Workman Hurt in Willow River Sawmill Dies in Hospital.

BUICK STRIKES OIL

Buick Midway Well Comes In, Flowing 1,500 to 3,000 Barrels—Means That the Buick Properties Are Worth From 2 to 3 Million Dollars More.

THIS TELEGRAM TELLS THE STORY:

Moron, California, Feb. 17th, 1911.

BUICK OIL CO., Room 420, Marquette Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Buick Midway number one well came in today at one-thirty P. M. under absolute control, flowing from fifteen hundred to three thousand barrels per day. Had sump holes ready. Capacity estimated fifteen thousand barrels. Are erecting 2 two thousand-barrel tanks. Are negotiating with the Associated Co. for use of their fifty-five-thousand-barrel storage-tank. Oil flowing through two five-sixteenth-inch holes. Heavy gas pressure.

D. D. BUICK.

At last we are enabled to give the public definite and specific news. We have struck our first gusher and it it one of the best in the field.

Do you know what this means? Do you know that it answers every one of the critics and those who have scoffed and lied about Buick Oil? It tells our stockholders that their judgment has been right. More than this, it tells in direct language the value of Buick Midway holdings.

Think of an oil well that is today producing from 1,500 to 3,000 barrels. At the present selling price of oil this means a daily value of from $750 to $1,600 to the well. This is not the important question, however. The real proof of this well lies in the fact that our Midway forty is a proven territory. We can sink ten wells, yes, fifteen wells, to the acre. We have forty of such acres and this is just a small proportion of our holdings in this field. We do not intend to stop now that our well has come in, but the crew that has been working upon the No. 1 well will now shift their operations to Buick Midway No. 2, and another crew will be installed as soon as possible upon Buick No. 3 and No. 4 and No. 5.

The pipe lines, as you know, are close to our property. We will have no difficulty from this course. Our oil, as it flows from our well, will flow from our settling tanks and into the great pipe lines close by and from there on north to Frisco or west to the Pacific Coast, where it will be loaded into vessels or trains of cars and sent to market.

We have repeatedly told the public that we would bring in this well and that it would be a big one. We have made good our predictions. The telegram we received and quoted above bears the announcement only that the well has come in. Later we shall receive full and complete information from Mr. D. D. Buick, who is upon the field, and this information we shall send forth to our stockholders in a special report, published in the "Buick Oil News." We shall be glad to give this report also to every one who writes to us for it. One week from today we shall also publish the very latest developments with respect to our No. 1 well, and our other holdings, throughout the press of this country. Thousands upon thousands of people have written us that they contemplated purchasing Buick Oil stock when we actually had struck oil. When this announcement appears it will demonstrate the value of Buick Oil shares and the record this company has made in the sale of its stock heretofore will be as nothing when compared to the amount of stock that will be sold within the next six or seven days.

We have repeatedly told the publlly to buy Buick Oil. We told you to do this when the shares were 50 cents and thousands of stockholders did so. We now tell you to do the same when the stock is 75 cents, for it is certainly going higher.

The income which we receive from the sale of oil from our first well will not only enable this company to sink its future wells in a more rapid manner, but this single well has had the influence of stamping the Buick property as proven and valuable property. The Buick oil stock has now been taken out of the non-producing class and is a producing company. We do not intend to rest upon our oars, but we do say that the No. 1 well proves absolutely the value of the Buick oil holdings of 640 acres. Work is soon to be started upon our 560-acre holdings in the Sunset Security field, and a little later we shall begin operations on our forty-acre tract located in the Maricopa Sunset field. We have told you about the Buick Midway, we now tell you about our 560-acre tract and our 40-acre tract. The oil men of the Midway field are wildly enthusiastic over the bringing in of the Buick Midway No. 1 well. This well has been the center of attraction for the past ten days, and our reports from the oil fields have proven to us that the utmost excitement has prevailed among owners of oil lands adjacent to the Buick property. Upon one side of us the Southern Pacific is reported to have paid three million dollars for a tract of land; upon the other is the California Midway, which has already brought in one gusher and is now down within a few hundred feet of oil sands. Those bringing in of the Buick Midway well has proven this entire region No wonder there is excitement. For those who are lucky enough to own land in this vicinity one can feel almost certain that every acre will net them thousands upon thousands of dollars per day in income.

The people of the United States have had faith in D. D. Buick, the founder and inventor of the Buick automobile. They have been instrumental in the bringing in of the Buick Midway well, for they have purchased Buick Oil shares because of the record of D. Buick. Now that Mr. Buick's predictions have come true in one instance, this company will not only enjoy the most unheard-of patronage so far as future sale of this stock is concerned, but it is enabled by this glad news to forever silence the malicious critics who have been attacking Buick oil and who have been endeavoring to dissatisfy its stockholders.

What do you think the earnings of the Buick Oil Company will be when we have 10 wells upon the Buick Widway forty, all of them bringing in 1,500 to 3,000 barrels of oil, or more, per day? Selling our oil at 50c per barrel means that we will enjoy an income of $750.00 to $1,500 per day for each and every well put down if these wells run 1,500 to 3,000 barrels per day. This means that our income would be on one acre alone $7,500 to $15,000 per day, or $2,742,500 to $4,485,000 per year. If such an income is possible upon one acre, what will the income be upon forty acres, and every acre in the Midway tract is, in our opinion, equal to the land upon which our Buick Midway No. 1 well is located. No man alive can figure out the profits to be derived from Buick oil. They are merely speculative.

We feel that Buick oil stock will go to several times its present price and we fully anticipate being able to return to our stockholders, in the nature of large dividends, ample profit upon their investment, simply from several of these wells. When our 560-acre holdings are being operated, together with the 40-acre Maricopa Sunset, and after we have several other wells gushing upon our Midway tact, the earning power of Buick Oil stock will be colossal. Now is the time to buy Buick shares at 75 cents. Do not wait a single day. Do not delay, but purchase as many of these shares as your present income and mode of life will enable you to do. It is our opinion that this company will not have to sell very much more of its stock, and we believe from the thousands upon thousands of letters which we have received in the past, and are receiving today from all sections of this country, that we will exhaust every share we have for sale within a very short time.

Our No. 2 well, which will be started immediately, should reach the oil body in 120 days, and No. 3 well should come in within a short time thereafter. It is our hope and ambition to have three producing wells on Buick Midway 40 by the middle of summer, and we believe that when these wells are producing that this company's stock cannot be purchased for two or three times the price it is selling at today, for then it should be earning very large dividends.

All questions of experiment are now in the past. The future of this company resolves itself down to a purely arithmetical question.

This company publishes a little paper called the "Buick Oil News," which appears twice each month. The next ecition of this publication will be out in about one week, and in this issue we intend to tell the story of the bringing in of this well in full detail. We hope to be able to have photographs of the well as it came in, and we will be glad to see that each and every stockholder or person interested in this company who will send in the coupon below, receives a copy of this publication.

We know exactly, foot by foot, the character of the ground we will have to pass through in our next wells at Midway. We have all this information at hand and this experience will enable us to perform the drilling of the new wells in about one-half the length of time and with fifty per cent of the expense.

My advice to every man and woman who reads this advertisement is to inform yourself more of Buick Oil if you are not satisfied that now is the time to buy this Company's shares.

We have published a great book entitled "The Land Where Oil is King," and in this book you will find the most interesting literature with respect to the California oil fields you have ever read. It gives you facts and figures which are almost beyond belief, but which are absolute proofs, and even the children in California are well versed in this knowledge. Those things which look to these Eastern men as almost unbelievable are matters of everyday interest to people who live in and around the great oil fields.

Men who but a few months or years ago were working for wages are today rich because of the investments and money they have made out of the California oil companies. Just a few hundred dollars invested in some of these companies have netted the stockholders thousands of dollars in profits per year, and what I expect to do before very long is to prove to the world the holdings of the Buick Oil Company are among the richest in the State.

The great book, which we will send free, tells you of all these questions, and we will also send a copy of a little magazine published every two weeks, which we call the Buick Oil News, and this publication is filled with the news items, not only of the Buick Oil Company, but of all news matter which is of importance to the oil industry.

Do not hesitate to buy some of this Company's stock now, today, this very minute. Send in the coupon below for as many shares as you desire.

The following table will show you how to make your payments if you purchase on the installment plan.

If you want to know more, however, about this Company before you invest, send in the information coupon below and we will send this literature at once.

SUES DOCTOR FOR DAMAGES

Abraham Freidman Wants $15,000 for Alleged Unskillful Treatment.

Claims Operation Was Done By Dr. Stewart Without His Knowledge.

Claiming that he was treated in a negligent and unskillful manner and that a portion of his jaw was removed when it was not at all necessary, Abraham Freidman has brought suit against Dr. Charles A. Stewart for $15,000 damages. The papers in the action were filed with the clerk of the district court this morning.

Freidman claims that he called Dr. Stewart in to attend him during the month of July, 1909. He states that an ulcerated tooth caused an abscess to form on his jaw.

Telling Freidman that he was going to examine the sore and probably scrape the bone a trifle, Dr. Stewart removed a part of the jaw, while Freidman was under the influence of chloroform, the plaintiff claims.

He states that the operation was performed without his knowledge or permission. He claims that the operation was also unnecessary and that it was done in a negligent and unskillful manner. He states in his complaint that proper precautions were not taken by the doctor to set the remaining portion of the jaw so that it would remain in place and heal properly.

He states that his face is disfigured and that he has suffered much pain as a result of the operation in addition to being disfigured, and asks $15,000 damages.

Although many were named as possible candidates, Mr. Dickson seemed to lead from the start. TWO HARBORS DOES NOT LIKE CHANGE

New Iron Range Time Card Effective Sunday, Shortens Time in Duluth.

Two Harbors, Minn., Feb. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—A new time card for the Duluth & Iron Range railroad has been issued and will go into effect next Sunday at 12:01 a. m. There are several changes affecting the Two Harbors people. The morning passenger for Duluth will leave here at 10:50, ten minutes earlier than at present, getting to Duluth at 12 m. The evening train to Duluth will leave here at 4:55, instead of at 5:25 as at present. The afternoon train from Duluth will leave that city at 2:45, instead of at 3:15 as at present. The morning train will leave Duluth at 7:30 and reach here at 8:45. The change affecting Two Harbors people most is the leaving of the afternoon train from Duluth a half hour earlier.

The new card will cause a great inconvenience to the people of this city, as the time for transacting business in Duluth will be cut down half an hour. Many people do not find it very convenient or pleasant to wait for the "Owl train" at midnight, which they doubtless will be forced to do now under the new time card

CARNEGIE MAY AID VIRGINIA

Effort to Receive Additional Donation for Library May Succeed.

Virginia, Minn., Feb. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Upon request of Andrew Carnegie, who has been asked to donate an additional $50,000 to erect a new public library to take the place of the present library which has outgrown its usefulness, City Clerk A. E. Bickford has prepared a statement, which has been forwarded to Mr. Carnegie, giving an accounting of all moneys expended since the establishment of the library board in 1905, when Mr. Carnegie donated $10,000 for the present library. After giving a detailed statement of the receipts and disbursements of the library board since 1905, and the number of books purchased and added to the library since its establishment, Mr. Bickford gives a historical review of the city and its future prospects in a most interesting and instructive manner.

That Mr. Carnegie is seriously considering the advisability of making the donation asked for is evidenced from the fact that he has written the library board for a statement of the condition of affairs now existing in library matters, and the board is quite sanguine for a most liberal donation from the steel magnate.

FEELEY BRICK PLANT IS BUSY

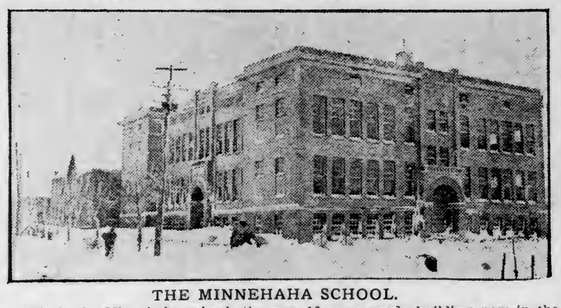

New Industry Near Grand Rapids Is Making Many Bricks These Days.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Feb. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new brick company which has been putting in a plant at Feeley is burning its first kiln of brick, there being about 1,500,000 bricks in the first batch. The yard is running full blast, and while these bricks are being baked, the company has a force of men turning out 30,000 a day from the machines, preparatory to burning another kiln when the present one is finished. This company has been in Feeley considerably over a year, building and getting ready for business. They have one of the most up-to-date brick plants in the state, including steam drying shed, in which brick can be prepared for the burning kiln in any kind of weather, wet, cold, dry or warm. It is anticipated that when they get to going nicely they will run the year around. They have their supply of wood for the coming year, and have contracts and arrangements made for the cutting of thousands of cords for the coming season. Manager Carlson states that the company has sufficient clay, which, by the way, is of the finest quality, to last them over fifty years.

The Warba Woodenware company, which is a reorganization of the concern which formerly had the sawmill at Feeley is, it is said, about to start on the erection of its woodenware factory. The excavation was done for this last fall in order that they could be ready to commence early this spring with the building. Mr. D. B. Russell, formerly of Bovey, is the resident manager of the company at Feeley.

The inconvenience of having the postoffice at Feeley named Feeley, and the station named Verna is to be remedied if the efforts of prominent people toward a betterment of this condition are successful. The Great Northern Railway company objects to changing the name to Feeley, as there is an express office in the southern part of the state by that name, and it is planned to have the name of both the station and the postoffice changed to Warba in honor of the new woodenware company.

EXPECT MINES TO RESUME WORK SOON

Reported in Hibbing That Early Spring Will See Big Properties Working.

Hibbing, Minn., Feb. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is evidence of an early opening up of the mines in this district. Already orders have been received to overhaul steam shovels, dinkies, dump cars and other material preparatory to starting the season's work. KELLEY LAKE BUSY.

Large Amount of Logs Is Being Handled This Winter.

Kelley Lake, Feb. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Business here is better and has been so during the winter than for several years, the amount of logging and lumber going through being practically three or four times the usual amount. About fifty cars of logs are going through here a day for the Swan Lake River Logging company, and large quantities of logs, logging, piling and mining timber are going through all the time. In addition to this there is a good deal of cord wood and some sawn lumber helps to swell the daily haul. Owing to the usually heavy snow in the woods this winter the outfits are not feeling the present thaw as much as might be expected, for while it certainly does make the going heavy, yet there is enough snow on the roads to haul the logs.

A pretty wedding will take place here on Feb. 26, when Silas Thornton and Miss Marie Perkins will wed.

The regular dance of the railroad employes of the Great Northern railroad takes place on the evening of Feb. 20.

Tower, Minn., Feb. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is talk of the Duluth & Iron Range extending the Spring mine branch to Ely, a distance of only eight or ten miles more. In that event the line from Ely to Duluth would be some twenty miles shorter than the present route via Tower Junction. OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER

COLDER

"Pretty soft today," is thrown into the discard and "Great weather, eh?" has come back into vogue among the irresponsible people, who think comment on the weather is absolutely essential to the proper inauguration of all conversation. Last night was some night, Mercedes, and today is likewise some day. The thermometer showed 9 deg. at one time this morning, the sun is shining with spring brilliancy from a clear sky and the air is air of a real winter day in Duluth. Continued fair and cold weather is on the bills for tonight.

The cold wave still held forth a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 7:08 and it will set at 5:37 this evening, giving ten hours and twenty-nine minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"Much colder weather prevails this morning throughout the Northwest, Upper Mississippi valleys and lake region in connection with a marked increase in barometric pressure attending the "high" area central north of Wyoming. The low pressure conditions over Mexico and off the North Atlantic coast caused rain or snow over Eastern Canada, North Atlantic states, the greater part of the lake region, the Ohio and Middle Mississippi valleys, Southwestern states and North Pacific districts. Continued cold weather may be expected at the Head of the Lakes during the ensuing thirty-six hours.

General Forecasts.

MAYOR GIVES PLAIN TALK ON LAW ENFORCEMENT

People Themselves Are to Blame for Conditions in Cities.

Stool Pigeons the Only Recourse When Vice Is Scattered.

Talks of Municipal Problems From the Executive's Standpoint.

MAYOR M. B. CULLUM.

Declaring that it is the common practice to shift the burden of responsibility to the shoulders of one man, and that the people themselves are to blame for the present conditions in cities, Mayor Cullum last night delivered a strong address to the Young Men's Club of the First Baptist church on "Law Enforcement."

Handling the subject without gloves, he talked straight facts, telling his audience of conditions of which many of them had never heard. He presented the situation to them in a new light and from the executive's viewpoint, calling attention to the practice of looking at municipal problems from only one side. Mayor Cullum said that it was "up to them" as much as to the mayor to keep the city clean.

He made the broad statement that the laws have never been enforced in this city; that he is not enforcing them; that they never will be enforced under similar conditions, and that the public doesn't want them enforced. He asserted that out of probably 1,000 people who came to his office in the last year, all but five or six wanted to have him violate the law in some way or other in the interests of the public. "The public wants the law enforced against the other man," he said. "This is true, and you know it."

The Liquor Question.

At this point he went into the liquor question at much length and followed it up by as exhaustive a discussion of the social evil as time would permit. He explained, in answer to a question, that he has had under consideration the appointment of an unbiased commission to investigate these conditions, but had been deterred from carrying out this plan for the reason that numerous critics would accuse him of trying to shift responsibility from his own shoulders. He also queried as to whether or not the public would abide by the findings of such a commission after its report had been made public.

The mayor directly charged the responsibility of the social evil to society itself. The first class to blame, he stated, was the wealthy order, which flaunts its luxuries in the faces of the people. Led by a love of display and fine clothes, he said that many girls who could not afford good clothes were prompted to get money to satisfy this vanity by any means possible.

Referring to immoral women, Mayor Cullum stated that they cannot be driven out of town. "Some men, whose Christianity reaches as far as the city limits," he continued, "shout in the public prints, or from some prominent position, 'Drive them out of town.' There is no law, human or divine, that will do this except it be to commit an individual to some sort of a public institution. Neither has the proposition any moral in it. It is so immoral that I am surprised to find a Christian gentleman propose such a measure. This same man, and men like him, are in the habit of having spasms of indignation which they quiet by throwing some missile at the executive. That is the limit of their efforts.

"Again, under the 'scattered conditions' these people may hide in various remote places; in fact, in all kinds of places. The difficulty of apprehending them is great, when you realize that fornication is not a crime under many circumstances in this state; that it requires such evidence to convict as is not readily obtainable.

Stool Pigeons.

"Even a strenuous Roosevelt, while commissioner of New York, declined to use spies for the purpose of cohabiting with these people so that their case might be perfected. This method of collecting evidence is damnable, but there is so little opportunity to ferret them out unless the janitors and the people adjoining make complaint or give evidence. There is where the little insinuating hand of graft comes in. They are usually found retained in some way, either by personal service or by some consideration.

"These splendid investigating committees have been all over this ground so thoroughly and have made their recommendations; and while not deliberately advocating the establishment of immoral houses, yet there has not been a single case or a single report to my knowledge that has recommended that they first be broken up. On the contrary, men who have worked with these organizations have adopted methods of restriction that seems to meet with the approval of these various committees. For instance, the city of Cleveland, which had a chief of police whom Mr. Roosevelt said was 'the best chief of police in America,' have no street walkers, no immoral dance halls, no white slavery. The city of Washington is the same. With the possible exception of Toledo, Ohio, these are the only cities in the United States which have made much real headway in reducing the social evil to the minimum.

The Causes.

"While the shylocks of finance and speculation play with loaded dice;

"While greed with its labor conditions, its sweatshops, child labor, long hours and unsanitary conditions robs honest toil of its fair reward, and takes no account of life or virtue;

"While man escapes and woman suffers;

"While social conditions robs thousands of virtuous girls of any hope of honest motherhood;

"When the sinful extravagance of the rich wastes the surplus toil of the poor;

"While the helpless and despairing women are the victims of man's infernal lust;

"While the men who sit in high places are the pliant tools of selfish interests;

"While the gamplers play, with the bread of a nation at stake;

"While selfish laws and false standards of morality prevail;

"While man is governed by his appetite and passions and his greed;

"While cant and hypocrisy triumph over wisdom and truth;

"While we continue to close our eyes to frightful facts and our ears to humanity's call;

"Society so governed will continue to cast at the feet of the executive its frightful human wreckage;

"Complacent hypocrisy will continue to demand of the executive that these frightful evidences of their sin will be removed from their sight."

In concluding that part of his address Mayor Cullum said that it was his belief that if the social evil problem is to be solved it will be done by women themselves.

Liquor Law Enforced.

Dealing with the liquor situation he declared that the laws are being enforced as far as possible. He claimed that the records at the police court will show that more arrests by half have been made this year than the year previous. And he emphasized that the records will also show a big difference in the character of the places that have been hauled into court to answer for violations of the liquor laws.

He gave two reasons for his desire to compel obedience of these statutes. The first was that he had agreed during the campaign to do so, promising the saloonkeepers themselves that there would be no favoritism. The second reason was that, if he could not be credited with other motives, it was good politics to make the saloons live up to the requirements. He assured those present that he would resign if any official at the city hall or the police court would testify under oath that he had asked the slightest favor for any man who had come into conflict with the laws.

He explained that there is much difficulty encountered in enforcing the laws, particularly in the hotels and other large buildings which have several entrances and exits. He didn't believe in the spotter system as it is a most prolific source of graft and has not proven effective. He also mentioned the fact that he has the munificent sum of $150 as a contingent fund, with which to ferret out crime, while other large cities have $5,000 set aside for this purpose.

The mayor said that if not obeying the law makes a man a criminal, there are 2,000 of them running around in Duluth at the present time, as fully that number have failed to come to the city hall to pay the wheelage tax.

Mayor Cullum spoke of the appointment of a chief of police. He said that under his former administration of four years he had come to know the present incumbent, C. H. Troyer, and had found that he was reliable. He said he had kept him in the place because of his competency, in spite of heavy political pressure brought to bear upon him to put some other man in that place. He said that some wanted another certain man put in, but that all asked that somebody besides Troyer be made chief of police.

STATE Y. M. C. A. HAS BIG GROWTH

Thirty-Seventh Annual Meeting at Albert Lea Notable Gathering.

Albert Lea, Minn., Feb. 18.—The thirty-seventh annual convention of the Minnesota Y. M. C. A., which began at the Presbyterian church here Thursday, has brought together a record attendance and is developing into a notable gathering. The part taken by the high school boys of the state is one of the features of the convention.

Duluth and Two Hbarors are figuring prominently in the proceedings, both being represented on the committee of permanent organization as follows: Chairman George H. Elwell, Minneapolis; vice chairman, G. M. Palmer, Mankato; Dr. D. J. Cauling, Northfield; S. E. Mather, Duluth; J. W. Wheeler, Crookston; J. M. Anderson, Minneapolis; Thomas Owens, Two Harbors; Thomas Dixon, St. Paul; secretary, Phil Bevis, Duluth; assistants, E. P. Nelson, Carleton college; and Fred Brucholz, Minneapolis.

Ten Years' Growth.

The annual report of the state executive committee to the convention was made by Walter N. Carroll of Minneapolis, chairman. He presented the following table as showing the gain made by the association in the last ten years:

	1900.	1910.
Members	4,102	11,983
Annual current expenses	$34,513	$248,679
Students in night schools	261	1,309
Courses taught	.....	44
Enrolled in Bible class	649	2,163
Boys in Bible classes	None	387
Shop meetings	None	19
Boys' separate buildings	None	2
Professed conversions	188	622
Property holdings	$243,200	$1,028,000
Boys' departments	None	8
Employed secretarial force	22	61
Pledged to foreign work	None	6,395

The matter of a state endowment fund, which was recommended at the last state convention, he said, had been carefully considered by the state executive committee, but it has not seemed wise, however, as yet to take any active steps toward the raising of this fund.

The report of the commission on the high school boy of Minnesota, was a powerful setting forth of the situation now existing. It was read by E. W. Peck, state secretary, and stated that there are 12,000 boys in the high schools of the state, with the number rapidly increasing. Several ideas were suggested, one of the most acceptable being the discussion club, which has accomplished so much in other places.

"The Man in the Rural Districts" was presented by A. E. Roberts, secretary of the international committee on county work of New York.

Two notable addresses were delivered last night, "The Battle For Brotherhood," by Franklin Dyer of New York, secretary of the Congregational brotherhood and "Business In Religion," by L. F. Bower of Milwaukee, vice president of the Allis-Chalmers company.

Saturday's Program.

Morning prayer this morning was conducted by A. L. Elliott of Chicago, after which came the following: "Men and the Bible," I. E. Brown, Chicago; "Men and Religion," Frank Dyer, New York; "Men and Minnesota," K. A. Shumaker, Chicago; miscellaneous business.

Backache is kidney ache.

This Duluth citizen will show you how to go to the rescue.

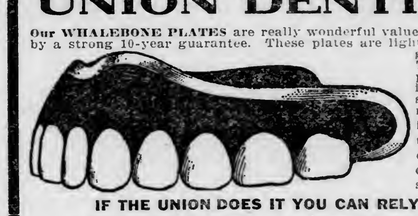

Nels Bakken, 1 East Sixth street, Duluth, Minn., says: "Off and on for twelve years I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills and have found them to be an excellent kidney medicine. I had sharp twinges in the small of my back and I was lame across my hips and loins. If I took cold, I had to be careful that my kidneys did not give out entirely. After taking Doan's Kidney Pills about two days, I noticed that the secretions from my kidneys were clearer and more natural. The soreness and lameness soon left and I continued taking Doan's Kidney Pills, until I was well. Since then I have used them occasionally and they have always benefited me."

BLOOD ON SLEIGH DISCLOSES GUILT

Finder of Body of Murdered North Dakotan Admits Doing Deed.

Upham, N. D., Feb. 18.—William Abbelson, finder of the body of F. W. Schroeder, who was murdered Saturday, near Kramer, has confessed to the murder. He had been brought here as a witness and kept entirely ignorant of the evidence which was being gathered to establish his guilt.

He was suspected from the moment the murder became known. His sleigh was covered with blood and when the sheriff compared the trail to the dead body and the tracks made by Abbelson's sleigh in which he rode, they tallied exactly.

Cut and Shot Victim.

Abbelson says: "As he (Schroeder) stooped for the halter rope in the barn, I knocked him down with a club. Then I saw an ax, and I hit him two or three times, then I got my rifle and shot him in the brain and in the heart."

Abbelson said he had a hard time disposing of the body, so he placed it on the sleigh and started to drive and when it fell off he let it lay. He is known as "Crazy Bill Abbelson," and has followed the occupation of country butcher. He laughed and joked after being placed in the cell and said no doubt he would be out again in a few days as he expected the farmers to get him bail.

Abbelson carried Schroeder's watch and keys when searched. He said he got no money and his reason for the crime was that he was afraid Schroeder would make him some trouble. Insanity no doubt will be his plea.

DEATH ENDS MEETING.

Tragic Result of Reunion of Two Long Separated Brothers.

Eau Claire, Wis., Feb. 18.—Abial Hathaway of Peru, Clinton county, N. Y., and Alexander Hathaway of this city, brothers, who had been separated for years and only met recently are separated by death, as the New York brother died here yesterday, while on a visit. The surviving brother is also sick and his wife is also receiving medical treatment.

Alexander came West sixty years ago and served through the Civil war in a Wisconsin regiment, while his brother served in a New York regiment, but they never met. They returned to their respective homes and only recently were reunited, Abial coming here to visit.

About two weeks ago both were taken ill, Abial, who was 77, being taken to the hospital, where he died. Alexander Hathaway is 72 years of age.

EXPECT ROAD TO CARRY THE MAIL

Minnesota, Dakota & Western Will Probably Bid on the Mail Contract.

International Falls, Minn., Feb. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bids are being called for the carrying of the mail between here and Loman, and it is reported that the Minnesota, Dakota & Western Railway company will be a bidder, thus indicating that the railroad will soon become a common carrier and establish regular train service. This is earnestly hoped for by the people living in the country tributary to the line. The railroad now accommodates the settlers in many ways, but they are naturally anxious that regular service should be established.

in five years the property is to revert to the state.

The land involved, which was bought by the state as a site for a state elevator before it was discovered that the Constitution forbids the state to go into such lines of business, is admirably situated for dock purposes. It is 2,830 feet long by 230 feet wide, and extends from the Duluth Transfer right-of-way to the dock line near Thirty-seventh avenue west.

City Attorney Fesler returned to Duluth last evening.

Froshaug Retains Seat.

The last of the three senate contests turned out to be the most exciting of the three, and for that matter the most interesting fight of the session to date, as predicted by The Herald, the contest instituted by ex-Senator Ray Farrington against Senator S. J. Froshaug resulted in a victory for the sitting member, but the result was surprisingly close.

With one member absent and Senator Froshaug not voting, the minority report favoring ex-Senator Farrington failed of adoption by a vote of 30 to 31. Thereupon the majority report confirming Senator Froshaug's tenure of office was adopted by the same vote, reversed.

The issue was in doubt until the end of the roll call, which came at 7:20 last evening, after a debate lasting all through the afternoon. During the debate Froshaug's friends were seriously alarmed, and at one time were practically convinced that they had lost.

The debate unquestionably changed a number of votes. Senator James P. Boyle of Eveleth, a member of the committee which declared for Froshaug, was one of the speakers, and he summed up the case for Froshaug so clearly, succitently, forcefully and earnestly that it was admitted after the end of the fight that he had saved the day for Froshaug. Senator Marden, in explaining his vote for Froshaug, said that he had not determined how to vote when the discussion began and that his decision to vote for Froshaug was based on Senator Boyle's clear statement of the case.

Senators Cheadle and Pugh of Duluth, voted for Farrington.

Froshaug, at the general election, was victor by twenty-one votes in a three-cornered contest, with ex-Senator Farrington second. Farrington instituted a contest, and the recount showed him winner by twenty-two votes. Froshaugh then claimed that the ballot boxes had been tampered with in five precincts, and that ballots had been altered to bring about the result disclosed by the recount.

Being in doubt, the senate elections committee, at Senator Boyle's suggestion, called for the ballot boxes from the disputed precincts, and examined the ballots. It was on this examination of the ballots that the outcome of the elections committee's investigation hinged. They found, for instance, that in one precinct where on the night of election day there was one ballot that was set aside because it was marked for two candidates for senator, when the recount was made there were eight such ballots. The extra marking, it is said, was done with a different pencil from that used by the voter, and in several cases it was clear that the marking that made the ballots null was done by the same hand. Curiously enough, too, all these markings resulted in losses for Froshaugh and gains for Farrington.

The committee, after weeks of study, reported for Froshaugh, with one member, Senator C. F. Cook, presenting a minority report in favor of Farrington. The reports were made a special order for yesterday afternoon. Before the arguments began Senator Schaller asked Lieutenant Governor Gordon for a ruling on the question whether the issue was to be decided by a majority of the senate, or by a majority of those present and voting. At first the lieutenant governor was of the opinion that it would require a majority of the whole senate to decide such an issue, but on careful examination of the statutes he decided that a majority of those present and voting was clearly sufficient, and he so held.

The attorneys for both sides presented their cases and then the senate debated the questions. Senators Putnam, Haycraft, Gunderson, Boyle and Sageng spoke for Froshaug and the majority report, and Senators Works, Cook, Moonan, Duxbury and J. D. Sullivan talked more or less positively in favor of Farrington and the minority report.

While it was one of the shortest speeches, Senator Boyle's talk was unquestionably the most effective. He said that at first he was inclined to the Farrington side of the case, but that after he had examined the ballots he had no doubt left that the ballot boxes had been tampered with and the ballots changed. He wished the senators all had a chance to examine the ballots, and he was sure that if they did they would come to the same conclusion that the majority of the committee did

At one time it looked as though the vote might be a tie, two of the senators falling to vote on the first call. In that event Lieutenant-Governor Gordon would have been called upon to cast the deciding vote, something that has not happened in years, and his vote would have been cast for Froshaug.

Incidentally, in one way it is very fortunate that the outcome is what it is. Senator Farrington would have been against reapportionment, and Senator Froshaug is firmly pledged to vote for reapportionment. The seating of Senator Farrington might have meant the defeat of reapportionment, for that, too, will be a close fight.

The vote on the contest was as follows:

For Froshaug — Bedford, Benson, Boyle, Cashman, Clague, Dale, Duea, Duxbury, Dwinnell Elwell, Fosseen, Gunderson, Hanson, V. L. Johnson, Klein, Lende, Marden, Nelson, Odell, Peterson, Putnam, Rockne, Rustad, Sageng Saugstad Sundberg, Swanson, Thoe, Wallace, Wilson—31.

For Farrington — Ahmann, Anderson, Carpenter, Cheadle, Coller, C. F. Cook, L. O. Cooke, Denegre, Donaldson, Dunn, Glotzbach, Gunn, Handland, C. E. Johnson, Johnston, L'Herault, McGrath, Moonan, Murray, Olson, Pauly, Poehler, Pugh, Schaller, Stebbins, G. H. Sullivan J. D. Sullivan Van Hoven, Weis, Works—30.

Absent and not voting—Hackney, Froshaug.

Republican Senators to Caucus.

Monday evening there will be a caucus of the Republican members of the senate to talk over the forming of an organization to see that the party comes out of the session with such credit as may be gained by constructive legislation.

The cause of this move, beyond any question, is that thus far the Democratic minority has pulled out all the plums likely to be of service in future campaigns. Most of the progressive and constructive legislation pending has Democratic names tacked on to it. The state-wide primary is a special order in the senate for next Tuesday afternoon, and the bill to be considered then is by Senator Moonan, a Democrat. In the house a bill for the Oregon plan of popular election of United States senators has been reported out of committee, and that is by Representative Keefe, a Democrat. The distance tariff bill is by Senator Cashman, a Democrat.

The purpose of Monday's caucus is not, it is stated, to play politics in a small way, but to organize the Republican forces for constructive work that shall bear the stamp of Republicanism.

The call for the caucus is being circulated by Senator Clague, and the first signers were Senators Wilson, Gunderson and Boyle.

Knapp to Head Committee.

Representative Cleon T. Knapp of Chisholm will be the chairman of the house special committee to investigate the state drainage work, and his selection is a high compliment to a young and new member of the house. Speaker Dunn has taken much time in picking this committee, because it is his wish that it shall not be a prosecuting committee nor a whitewashing committee, but an investigating committee in the real sense, that will look for the facts without fear or favor and make its findings accordingly.

The committee is not yet complete, but other members that have been picked and notified of the fact are Representatives Robertson, Moriarity and Crane. The fifth member is yet to be picked.

Fight Over Local Option Bill.

A bill by Representative J. N. Johnson, extending the local option law to cities of the fourth class—10,000 inhabitants and under—was rescued from defeat at the hands of the temperance committee yesterday afternoon by a vote of 80 to 34 and ordered placed on general orders to be considered in its regular order.

The temperance committee recommended the bill for indefinite postponement, but several members of the committee signed a minority report recommending the bill to pass and urging that it be printed and placed on general orders. Representative Webb of Sandstone moved that the minority report be substituted for the majority report and asked a call of the house. The matter having come up after the noon recess, not many of the members were present and the friends of the bill were there in larger numbers than its opponents. When this was made clear the friends of the bill moved that proceedings under the call be dispensed with so that action could be taken, and their motion prevailed.

Representative MacKenzie promptly moved another call for the house, but Speaker Dunn sustained a point of order that that couldn't be done until the house transacted some business.

In the beginning it looked like more of a fight than it turned out to be. J. N. Johnson, the author of the bill, appealed to the Republicans and called their attention to the plank in their state platform promising full and fair consideration for all temperance measures. In passing he said that he didn't expect much from the Democrats. He said, in passing, that the temperance plank in the Republican platform was approved by the attorney for the brewers on the morning of convention day in a parlor at the Ryan hotel.

"At least," said Mr. Johnson, "that was where I was told I would find the custodian of the party principles."

Representative R. C. Dunn, who favored the Johnson bill, said he was glad to hear Mr. Johnson approving the Republican platform, and he hoped he would continue to do so. This reference to the Republican pledge for reapportionment and to Representative Johnson, one of the bitterest opponents of reapportionment, was greeted by laughter and applause.

Representative G. A. MacKenzie, in opposing the minority report, said that the bill would affect seventy cities of the fourth class in this state, and that thirty-three of these cities have adopted home rule charters by virtue of which they can at any time pass on the question of licensing saloons. The rest of them may adopt home rule charters at any time they please; and the proposal to legislate for them is an invasion of home rule rights. The bill provides that 10 per cent of the voters may call an election on the license question, and under the home rule charters the cities can fix this percentage as they please.

Mr. Johnson said that when the bill came up he would offer an amendment exempting home rule charter cities from its provisions. He was also willing, he said, to make the required percentage of the voters initiating a license election 20 or 25 per cent instead of 10 per cent. If the house objected to the bill because he was its author, he would even withdraw his name and let somebody else father it.

The minority report was amended so as to cut out the recommendation that the bill pass, and was then adopted.

Publication Bill.

Representative Rice of Park Rapids yesterday afternoon attempted to have the house suspend the rules and pass the bill naying for the publication of the constitutional amendments in the country papers last fall, but so many amendments to the bill were showered in that the motion was voted down and the bill, with the report of the committee on public accounts and expenditures, was referred to the appropriations committee.

Those who wished to make an example of somebody because of the loose methods that custom has permitted to grow up around the publication of constitutional amendments appear to be satisfied with the adoption of the report of the committee on public accounts and expenditures, and provision will undoubtedly be made to pay in full all legitimate claims under the pending bill.

Representatives Nolan, Davis and Mattson yesterday afternoon introduced a bill reorganizing the house force of employes, reducing the number from seventy-three to fifty-five, doing away with all women employes, cutting out all cloakroom keepers and substituting a locker system; providing that the speaker's clerk shall examine all bills before they are introduced to see that they are in proper form; reducing the pay of minor employes; making the chief clerk and sergeant-at-arms responsible for all property bought for the house and requiring them to keep an inventory and file it in the state auditor's office at the close of the session, and putting the purchase and disposition of house supplies on a business basis.

Penalties are provided for violation.

Representative T. M. Ferguson of Carlton county yesterday afternoon introduced a bill authorizing counties having unorganized territory to impose on the property in such territory a tax not to exceed 5 mills, the proceeds to be used in building roads in the sections covered by the tax.

If a bill introduced in the house yesterday afternoon by Representative Lindberg of Ottertail county becames a law, it will be unlawful in this state to sell any whisky or brandy that is not distilled from the proper materials. Liquor is permitted to contain 45 per cent of ethyl alcohol, and not more than three-tenths of 1 per cent of fusel oil.

This would cut out all blended and rectified liquors, and would leave on sale only a very small percentage of the liquors now offered to the consumers of such commodities.

ADAMS' LEAD INCREASED

West End Team Defeats Park Points By Score of 5 to 1.

League Leaders Have Good Chance of Winning City League Flag.

Team Standing.

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Adams	6	1	.857
Kodahpas	5	2	.714
Big Duluths	4	3	.667
Fairmonts	1	5	.167
Park Points	0	6	.000

Last evening the crack Adams hockey team took the much abused Park Point team into camp, winning the game by the score of 5 to 1, thereby pulling away from the Kodahpas and Big Duluths in the city league race and making it look exceedingly likely that the West End boys would win the rag, although they still have a game with the Big Duluths to win.

The Park Point boys have not won a single game the present season from any of the city league teams, and considering the fact that at the present time the Adams are playing the fastest hockey in the league, the defeat of last evening came as a matter of course.

Slow ice made the fastest kind of hockey playing impossible. The Adams team was without the services of H. Grenner, one of the star players of the team, and his absence undoubtedly caused the winning team to run up a smaller score than would have been the case had he been in the game. The team work of the Aerial bridge bunch was very, very poor and but for Fisher at goal the winner's score would have been larger.

Two points came in the first half and the remaining three in the second period. The Park Point team was outplayed at every point of the game.

Last night's victory makes it look as if the Adams will win the city league pennant. The postponed game with the Big Duluths will be about the last chance of the latter team, for the victory of last evening places the Adams two games in the lead. They are going strong and it doesn't seem likely that they will be overtaken.

The lineup:

COMMENTS AND OPINIONS ON THE SPORTING PARADE

The Physical Culture Movement and What It Stands for—Young Miller and Sailor Jack—Gotch and Hackenschmidt.

(BY BRUCE.)

Approaching this physical culture movement with the spirit of calm investigation it might be said that it is greatly a matter of opinion. The object is to permit nature to do her best with the best encouragement. We have been going along in this old world for a great many thousands of years and yet we have struck upon few approaches to the one great system that nature has instituted.

How to develop the body and health and mind and incidentally the happiness, are questions that have taxed the brains, the invention and imagination of the doctors, students of physical culture and the layman in search of the radiant happiness that comes not from wealth and comfort, but rather from perfect and glowing health.

In a talk yesterday with Charles Herold, one of the greatest specimens of bodily development and muscular control, the writer gathered some ideas from him.

"Eat and drink what you want, what you really and honestly want," is the principle of this marvellously developed athlete. "If you merely take what you want, you will not leave the table with an overloaded stomach and you will never hang around a bar until you are drunk. It is a disease that makes a man want more than his appetite craves. The drunkard is a diseased pervert and the man who gourmandizes, telling his friends of his immense appetite, is not normal and has an appetite that is born of diseased conditions.

"Physical culture has three prime objects: The development of health, first, and then the development of the mind and body. When you see a strong man who has immense muscles and at the same time unhealthy, you have observed a man who somewhere along the path to health and physical perfection, has failed. He has missed the greatest object he set out to accomplish.

"Through the exercise of muscle we give perfect health to the body. Through the exercise of the muscles we also give concentration to the mind. Through exercise you acquire control and tolerance. You learn the laws of nature and in accomplishing that you have learned much. There you have the principles of physical culture and the greatest objects of its accomplishment. It is close to nature and simple as all things are that are founded on the teachings of nature."

Frank McInerny, sporting editor of the St. Paul Dispatch, has descended into the personal in the controversy that has been waged between Sailor Jack and Young Miller.

Is He Trying to Evade?

It might seem that the St. Paul man was trying to draw attention from Miller and direct the argument to other lines. There are several questions in regard to Young Miller that Mons McInerny might devote his time to before descending to the resort of personal abuse.

* * *

One Missouri paper, which is in the original show-me state, says that just as Gotch is getting in good condition Hackenschmidt is preparing to leave the country. That is a statement over which you can get an argument any time you want it. There are those who believe Gotch will meet one of the big headliners before the end of the present season, and these people also believe that the world's champion is really desirous of meeting the best that can be found.

All Choose Your Sides, Brothers.

There are others who believe that Hackenschmidt is serious in his desire to wrestle a finish match with Gotch. These same adherents of the cause of the great Russian also state that the only reason he doesn't wrestle the Yussif Mahmout person, is because of the personal reasons of Jack Curley, manager of the Lion, who detests the people associated with Mahmout.

Gotch and his great Russian rival are without doubt the two greatest wrestlers in the world, one because he combines strength with speed and the greatest wrestling brain that man has ever been endowed with; the other, the Russian, because he possesses the most colossal strength of living man—at least the greatest strength that has ever been brought on the wrestling mat.

A meeting between these two, these lone dwellers on the wrestling peak, would be fraught with international interest.

Those who call Hackenschmidt an overrated wrestler and all that are very wrong. His record is the greatest in the world. His shoulders have never been pinned to the mat. True it is that Gotch has beaten the men Hack has beaten with greater speed than the Russian; yet at the same time it had best be remembered that the European is not a fast worker, but works with a strength that cannot be denied and has the endurance of a horse.

He is one of the greatest athletes that the world has ever given to her children for admiration and wonder, for in 10,000,000 men where could you find a man with the colossal strength of this modern giant?

WOLGAST PEEVED WITH O'BRIEN

Champion Says He Was Given Worst of Brown Battle.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 18.—Ad Wolgast, world's champion lightweight, is still sore over the manner in which he was treated by Referee-Manager-Former-Pugilist Jack O'Brien, when he fought Knockout Brown before O'Brien's Philadelphia fight club.

"O'Brien gave Brown the best of everything," said Wolgast today. "He would shove me away roughly and allow Brown to hit me before I regained my balance. I had the better of Brown on the infighting and O'Brien knew that. He was sore at me anyway because he had to pay me such a big purse to stage the fight. I am through with O'Brien for good.

"In Philadelphia there are different rules than anywhere else. They won't allow you to hit in the clinches, and you can see what that means. Brown had the best of it in every deal over there. He is an Eastern man and, therefore, gets the better of every deal. They want to see a native son win.

"I will probably box Packey McFarland in Milwaukee Feb. 22, but if that bout is not staged, I will remain at home until Feb. 25, and then go to Chicago to meet Tom Jones."

Wolgast is matched to meet Knockout Brown again in New York on March 3. He declares he is anxious to show better form than in his previous fight and is, therefore, already in training.

Ross Had the Shade.

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 18.—"Twin" Sullivan of Boston and Tony Ross of Pittsburg fought ten fast rounds here last night. No decision was rendered, although Ross appeared to have a shade the better.

Bert Keyes "Outpointed."

New York, Feb. 18.—Pal Moore of Philadelphia outpointed Bert Keyes of New York in a one-sided 10-round bout at the National Sporting Club of America here last night.

ENGLISH PUGS VERY TRICKY

Show Foul Tactics That Are Unknown Over Here.

England, which is supposed to be the home of fair play in sporting matters, seems to have something on your Uncle Sam in the matter of mean little tricks resorted to by its fighters.

In New York, recently, one "Digger" Stanley, champion of English bantams and candidate for the world's title, last week fought a rising young American fighter, Frankie Burns. The latter lacks ring experience and some of the flighting generalship of his foe; but his insistent attack began to do up the Brtion, who lost his temper. Thereupon, say dispatches, the spectators were treated to one of the foulest exhibitions that ever a referee permitted to continue. Stanley "butted," "heeled," "elbowed" and hit while holding to such an extent that the evening's mystery was the referee's failure to disqualify him.

Over "on the other side" some time ago Freddie Welsh fought a fellow countryman for the British championship. Descriptions of the fight indicate that Welsh fouled so repeatedly that he at last tormented the mild-mannered Jim Driscoll into retaliating and the fight was lost then and there for "inside" work.

In this country few scrappers resort to underhanded tactics. Battling Nelson is a great "butter." He has wire hair and beard and he was wont to scratch his opponent's face until it was raw. But he never hit while holding, he never brought back his elbow to his opponent's jaw after missing a swing, and he played fair in all serious matters. Referees have taught fighters in America that they cannot get away with that sort of thing and few of the scraps that are down in the record books as "lost on foul" are for continued nagging. They are, in a majority cases, for a blow struck below the legal line delivered accidentally in the heat of contest.

Probably the lowest of all the tricks which Stanley is said to have turned on his recent opponent was to hit him a succession of blows when his guard was down following the sounding of the gong. The referee passed this, as having been done in the excitement of fighting and as having, fortunately, caused little damage to Burns.

FIGHTING IS NOW QUITE THE STYLE

Another Millionaire's Son Wants to Arrange a Society Boxing Match.

New York, Feb. 18.—Warren Barbour, son of a millionaire and the amateur heavyweight boxing champion of the United States, would like to meet the Hon. Bobby Beresford, who defeated Anthony J. Drexel in the bout at George Gould's country place at Lakewood, N. J. Barbour issued a challenge through a New York newspaper, agreeing to fight Beresford four rounds under amateur rules at any place the Englishman may name.

As Barbour weighs more than 200 pounds and Beresford about 166, there seems to be little likelihood of the match being held.

A Clever Boxing Match.

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 18.—Yankee Schwartz of Philadelphia got the decision over George Mandot of New Orleans last night after eight rounds of clever fighting. Kid Baldwin of San Francisco and Battling Milnor of Philadelphia fought a draw.

Both men are good wrestlers and a good bout is sure to be pulled off.

DESIRE TO WIN STRONG

Billy Evans Says Professionals Play Ball With Right Spirit.

Popular Impression That There Is No Enthusiasm Is Erroneous.

(By Billy Evans.)

That the professional ball player lacks the proper spirit is the belief of many fans.

Quite a few baseball enthusiasts have an idea that the man playing in the major and minor leagues care but little who wins.

A majority of the rooters are of the opinions that all the ball player thinks about is to play the game in order to earn his salary. They place him in the same class as the carpenter, mechanic or any other skilled workman, who simply puts in his eight or ten hours to complete his days work. They labor under the delusion that after the game is over the player forgets all about the outcome, being equally satisfied with victory or defeat, as the same compensation goes with either.

One afternoon last year a well-known college star dropped into my dressing room to see me. He was a fellow possessing far more than the average intelligence, yet he had the same opinion of the professional players as many other fans who never had the liberal advantages of a college education, whatever they are.

"Baseball is the greatest sport of them all, and that was surely a corking game today, but it seems to me that the professionals lack the proper spirit," he remarked. "Wouldn't it be fine if the professionals went into the game with the same spirit and determination as the collegians?"

Fans Hard to Convince.

The opinion of my college friend, relative to the professional spirit, is in common with that held by a good many fans. While it may be a trifle hard to convince them otherwise, such a belief is entirely erroneous. Having studied baseball, and a few other things not so important at college myself, I'm rather familiar with the much-heralded college spirit. I must confess there is a big difference between the college and professional spirit, but it's my firm opinion that the desire to win at any cost, is as strong, if not stronger, in the professional than the collegian.

True, the professional does not make the show the collegian does. He performs with a less display of enthusiasm, perhaps, yet the desire to triumph is as uppermost in the mind of the corner lot graduate as in the college high brow. With one baseball is a business; with the other it is simply pleasure. The average college team plays as a rule about twenty games; the average professional club takes part in 140 or more contests. If the college team played that many games it is very possible that educated ball tossers would reserve some of the enthusiasm they cut loose in their short schedule.

Take any dyed-in-the-wool baseball fan who resides in any of the major league cities, and I'll wager that he will be as loyal to his favorite club as any college man to his alma mater. He doesn't cheer in unison at a signal from the cheer leader, but, nevertheless, he voices his sentiments in behalf of his favorite club, even though he is in the very hotbed of the rival rooters. It takes some courage and loyalty to express yourself when such expression may cause you to draw a good trouncing. That's spirit.

Any baseball fan who believes that the professional player is not chock full of real spirit has another guess coming. To such men I would recommend that they secure a position as umpire, where they can hear what is happening on the diamond. Even better would be, to get permission to visit the dressing room of some club after they have lost an extra-inning game that should have been won by them in the regulation period. Such a visit would dispel any such belief about the non-existence of spirit. It might possibly be a rather dangerous place for a stranger to enter under such conditions, however.

Tough on Player.

Any time a ball game is lost through poor work on the part of some player, that unfortunate gentleman comes in for a series of lectures on his arrival at the clubhouse. The manager usually starts the lecture, and the bat boy quite often ends it.

"That was a grand exhibition of thinking when you tried to pull off that play," is hurled at some infielder who has slipped up on a point that lost the game. "I'll bet if some one made an examination of your head they would find nothing but solid ivory."

"You might have been counting your money, or looking over the menu for dinner, when you fell for that ancient trick," chirps another athlete, as he jumps under the shower.

"Why, I was fined $100 for doing less than that last year; you will be lucky if they don't take your glove away from you," adds a third party. So it goes down the line, every athlete takes a crack at the poor unfortunate who has tossed off the game. Invariably the much-abused player tries to come back. If he has any ground to stand on. If he has really been guilty of what is known in baseball as a "bone-head play," he usually makes his exit as quickly as possible. He knows everybody is sore, that his very presence excites comment, so he makes a hurried getaway, for he knows it will be all over by the next day. The players are simply dwelling on the play in dispute, so he will never try to make it again, and invariably they succeed in sending home their lesson.

SCULLERS ARE WANTED

Ten Eyck Will Develop Single Shell Men in Duluth Club.

Does Not Want Crew Candidates to Train Heavily During Winter.

Some opinions received by Capt. Mahoney from Edward Ten Eyck, the former Wisconsin coach, who will be here in May to assume charge of the coaching of the Duluth Boat club crew candidates, are that the former star sculler does not want the men to put in much time on the machines.

In his letter Ten Eyck stated that he wanted to find the men in fairly heavy weight and not trained down. He suggested that long walks during the winter would be about the best mode of light training that the crew candidates could do.

He also stated that he wanted several scullers. It is the intention of the new coach to develop some single shell men if possible, and when he arrives one of the first things he will do will probably be to look for some likely looking candidates for the sculling events. The Duluth club has not had a sculler for years.

If the club decides to enter some men in the sculling races, some new boats will have to be purchased, as at the present time there is only one shell at the club, and that has been in use for a number of years.

LITTLE WOULD MEET PAL BROWN

Chicago Fighter Is Seeking Match With the Hibbing Star.

Walter Little, the clever Chicago 130-pound fighter, is the latest to express an inclination to meet Pal Brown, the crack Hibbing fighter who is fighting his way to the front with amazing rapidity.

The Chicago boy has met some of the very best in the business. He is one of the best 130-pounders in the game, and this is not in the least forgetting the number of crack fighters of this weight who are fighting around Philadelphia and New York.

Little has written several letters here and is very anxious to clash with the conquerer of "Chuck" Larson. A fight between Brown and Little should be a great one. The Hibbing boy has shown that he is one of the classiest boys in the country at his weight, and a meeting with a real topnotcher, such as Little is, would show just how the Flapper protege stands in the knuckle world.

MILL CITY MAN IN SECOND PLACE

No High Marks Set at the International Bowling Tournament.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 18.—There were no new high marks set in the international bowling tournament yesterday, but Hughes of Minneapolis went into second place in the singles with a score of 657, and Macin of Dubuque, Iowa, moved into fourth place with a score of 671.

A score of 2,786 by the Milwaukees of Milwaukee put them in third place in the five-men class, and the Arcades of Minneapolis are now fourth as a result of a 2,768 score.

Enderlin and Paisley and Spangenberg and Miller, all of St. Paul, did the best rolling in the doubles, with scores of 1,165 and 1,154 respectively.

DULUTH TEAM IS DEFEATED

Fort William Seven Wins First Game By 8 to 2 Score.

Slow Ice Interferes With Playing---MacKenzie and Feetham Star.

Fort William, Ont., Feb. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The hockey team of the Duluth Curling club was defeated here last evening by the score of 8 to 2. Slow ice made fast play impossible and interfered seriously with the work of the players. Bartlett scored the two points for Duluth and the work of MacKenzie and Feetham was one of the features of the playing of the visitors.

After the contest the visitors were entertained at a banquet given by the Fort William Odd Fellows.

The lineup:

Duluth.	Position.	Ft. William.
Feetham	g.	Bliss
MacKenzie	p.	Cameron

CAN'T AGREE ON WEIGHT

Question of Poundage May Prevent Wolgast-McFarland Battle.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—Packey McFarland and Owen Moran, who have been matched to fight at the Fairmont club in New York, are unable to agree on weight.

Moran in New York sticks steadfastly to his demand that McFarland make 135 pounds at 7 o'clock the night of the fight, which will take place on March 14 if an agreement is reached today. This weight McFarland refuses to do at 7 o'clock and demands they weigh in at 135 pounds at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

There the matter stands, and unless one or the other gives in the match will continue to be unmade.

Y. M. C. A. WILL MEET CITY HALL TEAM.

This evening the first game in the recently organized indoor baseball league will be played between the Y. M. C. A. team and the aggregation representing the city hall. The contest will be played at the big association gymnaslum and there is a great deal of interest being shown in the contest.

Danielson and Simpson will do the battery work for the association, Bailey will be seen at first, Hanson at second, Jenson at third, Clark and Williamson at the short field positions, and Wisted and Dorworth in the outfield.

Memphis Reporter Claims Police Officials Discriminate Against Him.

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 18.—Mayor Edward H. Crump, Chief of Police W. C. Davis and Commissioner of Police P. A. Reichman have been cited for contempt of court on complaint of Albert G. Field, a reporter for the Memphis Press. Several weeks ago Field obtained an injunction against the city commission and police department, requiring them to give him access to police dockets and records. He says this injunction is now being violated.

AUTOMOBILES

MILL CITY SHOW OPENS

Management Is This Year Making a Feature of the Decorations.

Nearly Every Known Make of Automobile Will Be on Exhibition.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 17.—Many startling innovations will be witnessed by visitors at the coming Minneapolis auto show which opened in the armory today. The management has contrived with the assistance of Decorator Buelow of Detroit, a most fascinating scheme of decorations for the huge armory building and it is thought the show going public will put its hearty stamp of approval on their efforts.

A crew of expert decorators have been at work, early and late, on the armory. Two heroic figures, labor and science, occupy prominent places near the main entrance. These are flanked by immense pillars, and huge lions will be used effectively at different places in the building, adding much to the dignity and grace of the decorative scheme.

A carload of Southern smilax has been received and will be used with considerable effect in working out the general plans for beautifying the building. Another novelty is the sky ceiling which has never been used before in decorating the armory.

Every indication points to immense crowds and Manager Wilmot, forseeing this condition, took pains to make several improvements when mapping out the floor space for the exhibits. Wider aisles have been provided in places where congestion has resulted in other years; extra facilities are being used at the main entrance to effect the easy passage of the throngs and an enlarged force of officers and ushers are on duty each afternoon and evening of show week. With the increased interest in the exhibits themselves and the strong entertainment which will be staged afternoons and evenings from the balcony, the preparations for immense crowds are deemed most necessary.

Musical programs will be furnished afternoons and evenings during the show by the First Regiment band, Minnesota National Guard, which has pleased show vilstors in other years. Director Park has been preparing his programs and promises some very attractive selections. Manager Wilmot has also contracted with several prominent local singers including Mrs. Francis Vincent Corey, Miss Mayme Forsythe, Miss Messerschmitt, Miss Tena Murphy, Miss E. Minert and Karl Kaynor of Chicago who made such a hit at last year's show.

WONDERFUL SPEED ON A MOTORCYCLE

Jake De Rosier's Time at Los Angeles Is Still Being Discussed.

Just now the principal topic in the world of speed is the wonderful 92-mile record of Jake De Rosier at the Los Angeles (Cal.) Motordrome, where world's records fell as fast as the miles were checked off by the timers.

Eight-four miles in sixty minutes! That's what De Rosier did-eight-four miles and 135 yards, to be exact. For the hour he maintained a speed of 42 4-5 seconds to the mile—a performance without parallel on a motorcycle.

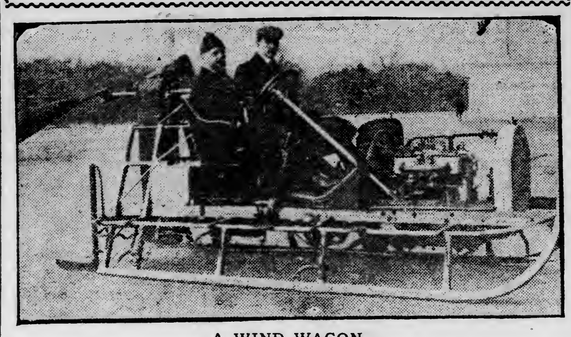

De Rosier started to do a 100-mile trip around the saucer, but in the ninety-third mile his supply of gasoline was exhausted and he was compelled to stop. His time for the ninety-two miles was 1:06:35.

The previous distance record for one hour was 79 miles and 1,540 yards. To off-set this De Rosier has set up the new mark of 84 miles and 135 yards. He went about five miles farther in the same time.

With such records as these in the very beginning of the year, it is more than probable that before the dawn of 1912 better ones yet will have been made. A few years ago De Rosier's present performance would have been held impossible. But as one record after another goes down nothing seems impossible. The full speed of a motorcycle seems yet to be demonstrated notwithstanding the almost unbelieveable records of the present.

It is noteworthy that at the end of his terrific ride, De Rosier was not exhausted. He was in good shape physically, as was his machine. Both were in perfect condition to have completed the 100-mile trial which they had started. When it is remembered that both man and machine had been spinning around the saucer for more than an hour at the rate of 42 and 4-5 seconds to the mile, the condition of each at its finish is all the more remarkable.

THE WIND WAGON OFFERS THE LATEST FORM OF AMUSEMENT

A WIND WAGON.

"Wind wagon" sport is said to be great for those who can afford it.

Think of speeding over the ice at the rate of fifty to sixty miles an hour, the speed which is developed by a motor attached to a fan at the rear.

The steering is done from a wheel the same as in an automobile. The wheel controls two rudders of steel which extend on the ice in the rear of each runner.

A number of automobile concerns make wind wagons. They have become very popular in the East, but few have been seen in the West as yet.

The wind wagon shown in the cut is capable of making from forty to fifty miles an hour and is capable of overcoming a grade as high as 7 per cent.

The wind wagon has not been developed yet as fully as it will be during the next few years. It is a costly sport and requires a motor as good as is found in the best class of automobiles. On the lakes in the East many races are held and fast time is made.

Recently the emperor of Germany had a wind wagon constructed especially for him and the machine is capable of making ninety miles an hour, it is said.

Only the very wealthy have as yet gone in for the sport, as the machines are good for but little else than ice.

THE AUTOMOBILE IS VERY POPULAR

Almost as Many Cars as Buggies Are Now Being Sold.

Two years ago it was predicted, and several times since, that the pleasure car would cease its popularity, and be sold like buggies. Whatever the future has for the industry, no man can tell, but with the present there is some chance.

To say that the motor vehicle fills a long-felt want is commonplace. It does more. The pleasure car and the commercial machine, each in its sphere, has done more to save time and promote progress than any one agent, possibly with the exception of the railroad. When exhibited for the first time eleven years ago, the automobile was considered little more than an interesting curiosity.

Today there are about 500,000 motor cars, pleasure and commercial, in almost daily use in this country. What these figures represent in gasoline, lubricating oil, tires and accessories gives some idea of what the motor vehicle must be doing towards the country's progress.

During 1910 the number of concerns engaged in the manufacture of automobiles increased about 20 per cent. The number forced out for one cause or another, was the smallest last year of any equal period in the history of the industry. These conditions indicate that the industry is rapidly developing a firm foundation.

There are a number of manufacturers, big powers in the automobile world, that have made enviable reputations, have combined under one management with the result that the cost of manufacture has been materially reduced and the price of cars cut in proportion.

Motorcycle Notes.

Harry Long, who rode more than 25,000 miles on a bicycle during 1910, has been won to the motorcycle and has started out to record 30,000 miles during 1911 on a power-propelled machine.

The 1911 meet of the Federation of American Motorcyclists is continues to occupy the attention of motorcyclists in various cities and movements have already been launched by several who hope to land the event.

The prediction of J. P. Thornley that this year would find an increase in the ranks of professional motorcycle riders is being borne out by facts. Mr. Thornley, who is chairman of the competition committee of the Federation of American Motorcyclists has just announced that M. J. Graves and Albert Ward of Los Angeles have at their own request, been transferred from the rank of amateur to that of professional.

The West continues to be more and more interested in motorcycle racing and its thrills. With several fine tracks now in operation along the coast, another city, Spokane, Wash., wants a saucer.

ENTRIES ARE COMING IN Much Interest Being Displayed in International Race for Decoration Day.

American and Foreign Cars to Compete in Contest for Big Stakes.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 18.—When Starter Fred J. Wagner lines up the contestants in the 500-mile International Sweepstakes race at the Indianapolis Motor speedway on Decoration day, the first big event in the grand circuit of automobile racing will be under way. This is the plan of the officials of the American Automobile association who are taking concerted action to put the motor racing sport on a more definite basis than ever before. A. R. Pardington, who has been referee at many of the great race meets of the country and managed the running of the last Vanderbilt Cup race on Long Island, will be the man upon whom the consummation of the plan depends. Pardington will take a long trip throughout the United States in an effort to organize the manufacturers so that the circuit plan may be carried out successfully.

Nearly all of the greatest drivers and cars now in the motor racing game will be contestants in the Indianapolis race and the A. A. A. officials believe that it will be the most advantageous place to start the circuit ball rolling. Nine entries have been made thus far with the race still three months and a half away. The nominations made are Lewis Strang (captain), Louis Larsonneur and Joe Jagersburger in Case cars, Happy Johnny Aitken in a National "40," C. B. Baldwin in an Interstate "50," Frank Fox and Louis Disbrow in Roper-Hartfords, Harry Knight in a Westcott and a Simplex without a driver named. Ralph De Palma, the mile track champion of 1910, may pilot the last named car.

In the entries to come in there are included a half dozen of the fastest European cars. France, Germany and Belgium will be represented according to the advance announcements of the manufacturers and the Fiat company of Italy will be listed along with the others. The drivers for these foreign speed creations have not been named but it is probable that Hemery, Nazarro, Wagner and others will be at the wheels. Herbert Lytle, formerly driver of the American racing cars, now in Europe hopes to head a team of three Napier cars and is in conference with the officials of that company at present.

In addition to the foreign experts the American lineup will be the strongest ever brought together. The inducement of about $40,000 in cash to be given out to the winners of one race is too strong for the motor drivers to stay away.

Those who have assured the Speedway management that they will be in later are Harry Grant, twice winner of the Vanderbilt cup; Eddie Hearne of Chicago, in a Benz; Spencer Wishart in a Daimler Mercedes; Frank Dearborn of Los Angeles, in a Flat; "Wild Bob" Burman in a Buick "100"; Arthur and Louis Chevrolet and others.

Many of the cars which are to be driven through the long grind are being specially built for the race and the title of "International Champion" will be hard fought for throughout the 7-hour cylinder conflict. The range of piston displacement is remarkable as some of the cars off cady entered have less than 300 cubic inches while others have nearly the limit of 600 cubic inches. The entry fee for the race increases from $500 per car to $750 per car after March 1, and the entries are to close May 1. The Speedway management has decided to start the race at 10 o'clock in the morning so that it will end about 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

WANT EXCHANGE AT SINGAPORE

The high charges of the London rubber market are gradually developing a desire on the part of the rubber planters of Malaysia, as well as its rubber buyers, to establish a rubber exchange at Singapore, so that an opportunity may be given to purchase direct at the place of production, which would operate against the London brokers and result in widening the market.

At present the planters are helpless as to the sales of their rubber, and they desire to have the business transacted nearer the source of supply.

Singapore, it is claimed, has everything to recommend this proposition, as it is practically in the center of the rubber-producing belt. A member of one firm, which disburses annually $6,000,000 for raw rubber, says that if an exchange were established in Singapore a large portion of their purchases would be made at this point. All the rubber produced in Java, Sumatra, Borneo, Malaysia, and the different islands now engaged in Para rubber culture could be marketed here if facilities were established to take care of the product. Sales in Singapore would be quick and the planter would get the best prevailing prices. The local middle man, with less expenses and better facilities for distribution, would be in a position to render better service and offer better prices than London brokers, operating so many thousand miles away from the base of supply.

The rubber exchange would have to guarantee that the prices were fair and made by the free competition of the members to buy or sell what is entrusted to them. It would have a meeting place, a storage plant, and an experienced staff to handle the general business. With such an arrangement the feeling here that it is not wise or safe to let London control the great rubber culture industry of the Far East as it pleases would be satisfied, and Singapore would become the rubber center of the Malaysian archipelago.

WOMEN NOW SET STYLES

A new York factory agent says that the women of Fifth avenue set the styles for motor cars just as the men of Paris set the styles for women, and the big makers of motor cars know it. They seek suggestions from the women, for that is where they get the most artistic ideas, and anyway women dictate the selection of cars in something like 60 per cent of the sales.

As an example Horace De Lisser, vice president of the United States Motor company, cited the case this morning of "noisette," the color — a cross between chocolate and cream—now used on Columbia cars. The color was suggested by a Fifth avenue woman because it matched best with her hair and that color became popular on Fifth avenue from then on.

"Women appear to like the straight lines in cars," Mr. De Lisser said. "That probably accounts for the popularity of the torpedo shaped cars of last year. And we don't get our ideas from Europe any more. At first, the Europeans had a little the better of us in car building, but they haven't now. American cars are the ones that are sold in this country and the changes in styles originate in America.

"The tendency is toward simpler cars—cars with fewer pieces and bearings—'fool proof cars,' you might call them. The trouble is that the average man who buys a car wants to take it to pieces the first week he has it. That won't do. It would be a mighty good idea to put a padlock on every carburetor, so they couldn't be tampered with."

The experiences of the various motor car manufacturers in the last fifteen years has resulted in a standardization of motors. There are hundreds of different makes of cars today, but they really all are the same except as to quality. Cars of similar weight, for instance, have the same size wheels, no matter what brand they bear, for experience has shown just what size they need.

Motor car men do not expect many changes in building in the immediate future. The business has been reduced to a science, like the business of locomotive building, for instance. Fuel economy is the main thing being considered now and the advent of the farmer, with his practical ideas of economy and general knowledge of mechanics, into the motor trade field is largely the cause of that trend, dealers say.

DRESS VERY IMPORTANT

Men Must Be Correctly Attired When Riding in an Automobile.

This year so varied are the garments offered for motoring that a man must be a past master of selection to choose what is most becoming and best suited to his needs.

Outer coats are, of course, the principal consideration, and there are numberless models to suit all tastes.

The chevlot double-breasted coat with military collar, plaid lined, with satin lining across the shoulders, is a popular garment for all fair-weather trips. The Shetland beaver ulster, also plaid lined, of a very full model, with a handy pocket on the left sleeve, is a newcomer on the market and is fine for long, cold trips.

A chromeproof tan leather shell, as it is called, with a plaid wool lining, is guiltless of collar or cuffs, is single-breasted and has straps to draw it close at the wrists, is intended to wear under any of the lighter overcoats or ulsters for warmth and is said to be warmer than the fur coats and devoid of their bulk.

The raccoon fur coat appears to be the general favorite in fur, and one having a blended seal collar and front facing six inches wide, with deep cuffs, heavy satin lining and wind shields at the wrists is a decidedly smart affair. Cinnamon dog fur is also much used, but is less pliable and is not so pretty a coat.

The chamois coats, satin lined, vie in popularity with the angora coats and vests as extra warm long trip comforts. The flat or close caps are the favorites for practical wear, and come in oil silk, leather and fur, as well as in wool fabrics.

Wet weather does not trouble the automobilist to any great extent, the cravenetted coats in the Gaberdines or Roseberry cloth being found sufficient protection. The mackintoshes, double breasted with vertical pockets and one breast pocket with a flap, are made very full in the skirt, which makes them particularly satisfactory for automobile use.

In gloves the dogskin or buckskin gauntlet are much used, and if more warmth be required, fur or black sheepskin with wool lining and strap to draw them close at the wrist, are substituted. Elaborate toilet cases, satin lined and full fitted dress suit cases, folding brushes, slippers and coat frames in cases for the special comfort of mere man are legion. The thermos bottle family show bottles of all sizes with the drinking cups attached to fit all capacities, and luncheon baskets and boxes in variety that thoroughly attest the thought that has been exerted in behalf of man's creature comfort.

Next to the owner, his car and its appointments comes the correct garbling of his chauffeur, which must be in keeping with the requirements of the car. It does not so much matter if the big fur coat is put on for a run downtown to bring the owner from his office at dusk, but it is quite another matter when madame takes her daily spin upon the avenue. The chauffeur must then be perfectly liveried from top to toe. It goes without saying that the color of the livery matches the lining of the car.

By way of illustration, suppose that it is plum color. The trousers meet the black leather leggings at the knee, the short military coat is finished with one-inch wide Heroules braid, the close-fitting collar shows just a quarter of an inch of white linen one worn below. The cap of cloth to match is flat and wide, with leather visor, strap and buttons.

The great coat of the same color is of double-breasted model, military cut, the close collar has an inset of velvet the same shade, the buttons are of black horn, and there is an inverted plait running from the hip to the bottom of the skirt on each side, with a strap and button half way down that may be unbuttoned when in the machine to allow unrestricted movement about the steering wheel. The gloves are black sheepskin, wool lined, in gauntlet shape. There is the complete chauffeur's costume.

There is a new special glove for practical use with a double purpose. It is of black sheepskin and straps close at the wrist. The inner glove is a separate lining, so that if the machine requires any attention the outer glove may be removed and the inner one left on to protect the hand. It is new and quite effective.

The sheepskin mitten, also wool lined, is used a good deal and does not seem to restrict the usefulness of the hand at the wheel. Another novelty designed for the comfort of the chauffeur is the rubber robe, wool lined, that has foot muffs with soft soles and elastic bands to keep them in place.

Goggles and dust devices to protect the eyes are varied in design, but are not used to any extent only on long trips out of town.

With all the provisions made for the automobilist's comfort in every conceivable way, it is small wonder that the sport has become almost a fanatical pastime. To travel regardless of timetables, station waits and cold lunches, to give milestones only a disdainful glance when they seem to huddle together close enough to resemble a set of the old-fashioned "store teeth," has made the layman cease to question "why people love the sport."

To spin along with perfectly tried faith in the "cold" thermos bottle and the "hot bird" possibilities, with the aid of the alcohol outfit in the luncheon hamper at the end of the run, gives one a feeling that he owns quite a portion of the earth, with a gate in his section of the fence opening into the charmed inner circle of the "near" immortals.

AT THE LYCEUM

The story of "Madam X," the great melodrama by Alexandre Bisson, which Henry W. Savage will offer at the lyceum next Friday and Saturday with a matinee Saturday, with a splendid company of sixty persons, is exceedingly simple.

A young woman of weak, rather than evil character, is led from her husband by an unscrupulous man. She deserts her boy of 2 years also. Later she awakens to the enormity of her act, and in true contrition, begs forgiveness. But her husband, misunderstanding her motives, drives her from the door. A little afterward he is made to understand that he was in the first instance greatly at fault, and he determines to pardon his wife and bring her back.

This is shown in the prologue, and then the action shifts to the drama proper—twenty years later. The woman in black despair, has drifted through the very gutters of the world. Her husband has never succeeded in finding her and she, of course, knows nothing of his change of heart toward her. In the endeavor to forget her distress and disgrace, she has taken to not merely drink, but to ether-taking as well. Her vices have wrecked her body almost to the last extremity, while they have also benumbed her moral sense. There remains only the one redeeming element in her soul—her love for the boy, whom she has not seen for a score of years.

In this condition Madame X (as she becomes known) returns to France. She hopes that she may get one glimpse of the son before the death comes that she knows is so near. But three rascals with whom she comes in contact, discover something of her history and seek to make blackmailing capital out of it. When she finds this out she is horror-stricken at the thought that her boy's happiness may be killed forever by a knowledge of the infamy to which his mother has come. She cannot prevent the betrayal of the truth to her son in any other way, so she kills the man chiefly responsible.

She is arrested and brought to trial. In order to make sure that her boy shall never know of her evil life, she maintains a most rigid silence. She will not tell her name, nor anything about herself; she will not make the slightest effort to defend herself from the dread penalty of her act.

Meanwhile, as the spectator is shown, the son, Raymond, has grown to man's estate and is about to begin his career as an attorney at the bar. His father, now gray with years and sorrow, is a man of consequence, and secures for Raymond—as the boy's first case —the assignment as counsel for the defense in a murder trial that is about to be held. The accused person is unable to care for herself, and in accordance with legal custom, is provided by the court with an attorney.

Then comes the great climax of the drama—the trial. As may be guessed, the son has, all unwittingly, been appointed to defend his own mother.

Madame X does not recognize the boy, nor has he the least suspicion as to her identity. He has always supposed that his mother is dead. But the boy feels a strange, inexplicable sympathy for the poor, pathetic creature in the prisoner's dock, and he makes a masterly appeal for her. So powerfully does he picture the despair and distress of his client; so skillfully does he draw from little incidents that have been brought out, the real reason why the killing was done that the sympathetic jury acquits. In the meantime the mother has learned by merest accident who it is that stands there so valiantly fighting her battle with all the ardor of his young heart. One long terrible cry of anguish escapes her as she learns the truth—then she relapses into the deathly lethargy that has all along marked her course. She knows that she is fast approaching the great gulf and her one hope is that she may reach it before her son discovers who she is.

In the last few minutes of the play there comes the discovery by Raymond of all that has happened, his brief reunion with his mother—a moment in which all the sorrows of twenty years roll away from the poor creature—and then the finale. This is the most pathetic scene of all—and yet one of the most beautiful the stage has ever known.

A striking bill, original in conception and presenting ample opportunity for an exhibition of the versatility of the members of the strong Mack-Leone company, has been chosen by Willard Mack for tomorrow's performance at the Lyceum theater. The program for afternoon and evening will embrace four one-act plays, all from the pen of Willard Mack, and each treating a widely different subject.

It might be stated that three of the pieces were constructed from the personal experiences of the author. Willard Mack knows the West and from the material of that section of our country he gathered the material for "The Open Range," a playlet that deals with a dramatic incident of the great country that has furnished so much romance, tragedy and dramatic incident.

Naturally it can't be said that the personal experiences of the author-actor have furnished any material for a sketch written around the Civil war. The war of the rebellion has furnished William Gillette with the great subject of "Secret Service" and gave to the gifted pen of Bronson Howard the inspiration of "Shenandoah," one of the greatest war plays ever written. There have been military plays innumerable, but few writers have been able to grasp with certain hand the really dramatic in the wonderful material that the war between two peoples furnished.

"When Lee Surrendered," is the name of the play, or sketch, that Willard Mack has written around the most dramatic incident of the Civil war. It is the subject that Mr. Mack has chosen for his sketch.

There are really several kinds of war. Gen. Sherman included it all under the general caption of a word spelled with four letters. There is also the war of the prize ring, and in this field of action Mr. Mack has gathered material for his sketch of "Kid Corrigan's Romance," a story that deals with the romance of the professional pugilist. Kid Corrigan is human, intensely human, in fact, and perhaps that is the reason why his romance is the more interesting. When a man fights successfully he fights hard. Kid Corrigan is one of the kind who fought hard enough to win, and he loved with the same tempestuous effect. He is interesting and his romance is one that contains the element of human interest.

"The Strikebreaker," a story of the problem of capital and labor will be the last of the four sketches.

In his sketch Mr. Mack has selected a dramatic incident that touches the heart of the problem of the laboring man

Here are four widely different plays that will be presented in the course of an afternoon or evening by the members of the stock company. These plays not only show the versatility of the author, but also will show to a very great extent the versatility of the members of the company.

The characters are different, the types are wholly different and the actors and actresses will be called upon to show originality and ingenuity in conception of the characters. It is a test for the ability of a company and it bespeaks the confidence that Willard Mack has in the members of his organization when he puts them to this test the first week after they have opened in this city.

"Miss Nobody From Starland" will be the attraction at the Lyceum tonight.

Miss Olive Vail, who is the star of the company and who has the title role, is a handsome woman, and possesses a cultivated, pure and pleasing high soprano voice which is heard to advantage in several charming songs during the course of the comedy.

Lyman H. Howe's Travel Festival will return to the Lyceum Saturday and Sunday, March 4 and 5.

"Polly of the Circus' will be a Lyceum attraction at an early date.

Mary Mannering in "A Man's World" is coming to the Lyceum in March.

AT THE ORPHEUM

When a theatrical producer of the reputation of William A. Brady enters the vaudeville field, something out of the ordinary may be expected.

Mr. Brady has the reputation in New York of always "picking winners" and few of his recent theatrical ventures have proved failures.

His venture into vaudeville, therefore, should attract more than ordinary attention. Next week he will present as the feature of the Orpheum bill the dramatic playlet, "The Suspect," which has only recently been brought to this country, although it has a record of 3,000 consecutive performances in England.

There are five characters in the playlet and it is dramatic in the extreme. The central figures are Tim Casey, a reformed burglar, and Inspector Reynolds, a typical criminal hunter. There has been a bank robbery and although the bank watchman, who has been felled by the robber, cannot recognize Casey as his assailant, the inspector is convinced that Casey is the man. Casey is arrested, confronted with his picture and record from the rogues' gallery and put through the terrifying "third degree" in an effort to make him confess. He refuses to implicate himself, however, and insists that he is innocent. Just when it seems that he is to be railroaded to jail despite the lack of evidence, Mrs. Van Hudson, a woman of wealth, appears and solicits the police to assist her to find a man who, during the destruction of her home by fire, saved the life of her child at the risk of his own, and later disappeared. She recognizes Casey's picture as that of the hero and tells the inspectors that there is a reward of $10,000 waiting for him. As the fire occurred at the time of the robbery, the inspector is convinced of Casey's innocence and releases him.

The little drama has its moments of comedy coming in effective relief to the thrilling moments of the story. Walter Greene plays the role of Tim Casey, J. K. Hutchinson is the Inspector, W. B. Clark and John Goodall play the police sergeants and Laura Lemmers is the Mrs. Van Hudson.

Spirit paintings are an attraction of the Orpheum bill next week that should attract those who love the mysterious and things brought about without apparent reason interest and fascinates the whole human race, apparently. The spirit paintings are presented by P. T. Selbit on behalf of Dr. Wilmar, the discoverer of the process. Mr. Selbit places two canvasses upon easels, after they have been carefully examined by the audience. Then a committee selects two pictures from a collection of forty-eight of the famous artists, whereupon the selected ones appear upon the canvases, first very faintly, gradually growing more distinct until at last they are as distinct and perfect in coloring and detail as the originals. This surprising development is carried on in full view of the audience and the canvases are not touched during the transformation. When the pictures are finished they are passed among the audience for inspection.

Frank Kaufman himself heads the Kaufman troupe of six which will appear on the bill. The Kaufmans are the best-known of the famous bicycle families and early last year the Barnum & Bailey circus had as a feature the "Original Kaufmans." These are the ones who will be in Duluth next week and after their engagement with the Orpheum circuit they will go to Berlin, Germany, to join the Circus Schumann. Their bicycle tricks are clever in the extreme.

Irene Romaine does a "pianologue" that is attractive and pleasing. Miss Romaine has been on the stage for three years and is ambitious to accomplish many things in the world of music. Her act is said to be a most pleasing one and her career a most promising one. Every number of her repertory has won warm praise.

Artistic nonsense is the way one writer labeled the act of the McInotte Twins and Clay Smith. It consists of singing and dancing but its principal charm lies in the personality and daintiness of the twin sisters, Coral and Pearl. Mr. Smith, who acts as an effective background for the two girls, can sing and dance a bit on his own account.

A monologist has a hard row to hoe at the Duluth Orpheum, following such comedians as Al Jolson, Frank Tinney and Julius Tannen, but Lew Wells will be here next week in a monologue. He appears in an eccentric makeup and his monologue has proved a big hit in other Orpheum cities.

Christy and Willis will present the other act on the bill, a turn which they advertise as a vaudeville novelty.

The Orpheum motion pictures and the overture by the concert orchestra will complete the bill, which will open with the Sunday matinee and continue all week with a daily matinee.

AT THE EMPRESS

Vaudeville, at its best, will be seen at the Empress commencing Sunday afternoon.

The show, which is one of the best now touring the Sullivan & Considine circuit, is headed by the ventriloquist, "Trovello," who is bringing to Duluth a spectacular scenic ventriloquial novelty entitled, "The Little Chauffeur at The Boston Road Inn," which will eclipse any production of its kind ever presented in this city, it is claimed. Mr. Trovello's spectacle is based on an actual occurrence which took place while he was motoring through New England. He was entering the Boston city limits when his machine broke down and as night was fast approaching, he and his party were forced to remain at the inn until morning. The amusing situations that developed and the humorous incidents that come to pass as the car and its occupants laid helpless by the roadside, inspired Mr. Trovello to produce his latest offering. He employs several mechanical figures and special scenic effects to give the proper environment and his marvelous ventriloquial powers furnish the plot. Trovello's style is far different from other ventriloquists. The control that he has of his lips, mouth, throat and other organs used in ventriloquism has made him the wonder of scientists. Under the closest scrutiny not a movement of his lips can be detected while he talks for his various figures. He drinks and smokes while his dummies are in the most heated arguments and he comes close to the audience with a strong light upon him when he makes his little figures sing. His act is a novelty of the highest order and should prove highly entertaining to the grown folks and cause great rejoicing to the children.

Vaudeville, it is claimed, has no more attractive and elaborate character singing and dancing spectacle than that presented by Norton and Russell. It is said to be gorgeous in scenic and costume embellishment and to contain snappy and brilliant humor and numerous surprises. Mr. Norton who was with Frank Daniels in "Sergeant Blue," is a clever comedian and his funny antics add an attractive element of variety to the offering. Miss Russell is a magnetic comedienne and a charming character caricaturist. This act has been one of the bright features over the Sullivan & Considine circuit for several weeks and the press in each city has given them excellent notices for their efforts and pronounce their act to be one of the best in vaudeville.

Carl McCullough, recently leading juvenile for McIntyre & Heath with their "Hayti" company, has returned to vaudeville as the result of the flattering inducements he received following his success in musical comedy. Mr. McCullough is known as "the Beau-Brummell" of vaudeville for his excellent dressing, but that is not all he is noted for. For his debut at the Empress he will present his own creation entitled "Footlight Impressions," in which he offers types of distinguished players familiar to local theatergoers. He also gives delightful impersonations of other celebrities in various walks of life that are equally as entertaining. The press in various cities proclaim him a find and the following is a notice from the Chicago Examiner: "There is Carl McCullough, who says of an adipose lady: 'No! It isn't the way you stand; you're fat all the way 'round.' Mr. McCullough is an amiable find. I'll wager that even Trixie Friganza, the arch enemy of imitations, the avenging Nemesis of the body snatchers of the living, will find something to admire as well as satirize in Mr. McCullough's new and forgivable way of picking the brains of actors not so widely unknown as himself. By way of song and a Sophie Tucker song at that—'Some of These Days'—Mr. McCullough gives us lambent cartoons of Foy, Cohan and Warfield in the act of singing it, and it is the best work of its kind since those many years gone when Henry E. Dixie, singing 'It's English Y' Know,' gave us a Henry Irving before we had seen Irving himself. Young Mr. McCullough is an observer rather than an imitationist; a genial analyst rather than a thief of thunder. Translated into paper and printer's ink, he would be an ideal critic." This flattering notice is from the pen of Ashton Stevens, one of the foremost critics in the country.

The high water mark in effective jugglery will be represented by Walker and Sturm, two Australian lads, who are making their first American tour. They not only accomplish seemingly impossible feats with tennis racquets but are also adepts in the fun-making line. They are eccentric funsters and their humorosities are original and immensely amusing it is claimed. This act is one of the attractions booked by Mr. Obermayer, European agent for the Sullivan & Considine circuit, who has booked for this season a number of Europe's best vaudeville and hippodrome attractions for this circuit.

The added attraction for the week will be a laugh-getting comedy sketch entitled "The Troubles of Bill Blithers, Bachelor," which is being presented by Robert Henry Hodge and a talented company. The scene displays the bedroom of Bill Blithers, an aged and decrepit bachelor who is a manifest woman-hater. Female boarders in the same apartment house make a conquest of the bachelor, and the resulting situations and surprises make the fun fast and furious. The denouement is also a surprise and the comedy closes with a scream of laughter. Mr. Hodge will be remembered for his clever work as the star of Margaret Mayo's farce, "Baby Mine." He is supported by a selected cast of players in the presentation of his brilliant comedy.

The moving pictures will be especially selected and will be the best obtainable and will close a show which will rank with the best on the circuit. A matinee is given daily at 2:45 and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. Seats reserved one week in advance by either telephone. A special school children's matinee is given every Saturday at 2:30, when all scholars under 14 years of age are admitted for 5 cents. Special attention is paid to the comfort and amusement of ladies and children at all times.

THRILLING FILM AT THE LYRIC

Lassooing Wild Animals in Africa Will Be Shown.

The feature of the Lyric theater's moving picture program next week will be "Lassooing Wild Animals in Africa." The film shows the thrilling exploits of the famous "Buffalo Jones" and his cowboys on the veldt and in the jungles. Many thrilling incidents are shown in the photoplay.

Jones caught alive every animal in this country. Then he went to Africa—he and his cowboys and a good motion-picture camera. Col. Jones got back with 9,000 feet of negative, which finally was trimmed down to 2,000 feet of sensational scenes. The film shows the start of the caravan from Nairobi and its procedure across "Darkest Africa."

The colonel and his cowboys catch an ugly wart hog and then they nab a hartebeast. They secure an eland, but a cow-pony gets into the game with a bucking stunt after becoming frightened. The capture of the giraffe was a sensational exploit. One of the most stirring scenes shows the lassooing of a rhinocerous. After several charges he is finally captured. Other scenes show the lassooing of a zebra, a cerval cat, a cheetah and a full-grown lioness.

The lassooing of the lioness was attended by great danger. Much of the preliminary work was lost by the camera, as the operator took to the tall timber.

The pictures have been highly praised by Col. Roosevelt, who calls them "a really phenomenal record of a really phenomenal feat."

"Carmencite, the Faithful," is a dramatic film. I. S. Mistachkin will sing "I'll Come Back."

At the Odeum the photoplay will show "What to Do With Our Old," a dramatic film of considerable interest in these days of Osler theories and other plans for shelving the superannuated. "Too Much Mother-in-Law," is a comic series of pictures. "Curse of the Red Moon" is an interesting film that has many dramatic qualities. Miss Maddox will sing "Night Brings the Stars and You."

Syria, and the play will first be tried by a stock company in Los Angeles.

A play of the time of Queen Anne, introducing the pretender, is to be produced in London. One of the characters is Sarah, the great duchess of Marlborough. Gerald Du Maurier will play the romantic role of the pretender.

Ernest von Possart gave his 350th performance in this country at the Garden theater, New York, last Wednesday night, appearing for the last time during his engagement in "Friend Fritz." The performance was a testimonial to the star.

Sir Charles Wyndham has bought the English rights of "The Havoc," which Henry Miller is now playing in the Bijou theater, New York. Sir Charles will produce the play in the Criterion theater, London, next May, acting the leading part of Richard Craig.

Morris Gest announces he has obtained the rights for production in this country of a Parisian pantomime, "The Darling of Paris," with Mina Minar, a French actress, in the title role. The piece will be given its first presentation tomorrow night at Easton, Pa.

"Trelawney of the Wells" has scored such a marked success that Ethel Barrymore will probably continue in the role in New York until the spring. The play's success proves that good romantic comedy is not as dead as the managers have been declaring it.

David Graham Phillips, just previous to being killed had been negotiating with Daniel Frohman for a dramatization of his book "White Magic." Mr. Frohman will probably continue the negotiations with the executors of the novelist and produce the play.

Joseph M. Gaites has completed arrangements whereby he will have exclusive rights to utilize Massenet's original score of the opera, "Thais," in his forthcoming production of Paul Wilstach's dramatization of "Thais," which is also founded on Anatole France's novel of the same name.

Hovering over New York are a number of sure-fire successes which are merely waiting an opportunity to land. The Shuberts report a remarkable musical comedy in "The Balkan Princess," in which they are starring Louise Gunning. Out in Chicago "The Warning," a melodrama by Arthur J. Eddy, under the same management, is fast ripening for New York, and Liebler & Co. have a clever play in "Disraeli," in which George Arliss is being starred.

Some months ago Augustus Thomas announced that he had written the great American play and that it was called "The Jew." Then the months rolled by and nothing more was heard of it. Now it returns again. John Mason is to star in it under the Shubert direction. Its name has been changed to "As Man Thinketh," but this also is to be made subject to alterations.

Henry W. Savage is making arrangements to leave for a tour of the musical centers of Europe on March 4, immediately after the production of "Every Woman" at Daly's theater, and it is not expected that he will return to this country until next summer.

The principal object of the manager's trip to Europe, is to engage singers for his production in English of Puccini's grand opera, "The Girl of the Golden West," which will be one of the first works he presents next season. The cast will be made up as far as possible of American singers, and Mr. Savage hopes by visiting the big European conservatories and musical centers where young American singers are studying to find some new talent for the production.

At least four prima donnas will be required for the role of the Girl and two tenors for the part of the Bandit lover. While abroad Mr. Savage will also see a number of new musical productions which have been favorably reported to him by his agents.

London has it that Miss Stella Patrick Campbell, the daughter of the famous "Mrs. Pat," will not leave the stage for good when she marries Mervyn Beech next June. Mr. Beech is a district commissioner in British East Africa, and on her marriage Miss Campbell will go with him to Nairobi. At the end of two or three years, however, Mr. Beech will probably return to England, and Miss Campbell hopes to then resume her stage career. "Mrs. Pat" is now in America.

Anticipation and a hope of the future are expressed in typical American fashion by the announcement which recently appeared in New York that seats for the matinee and night performance of "The Deep Purple" for the Fourth of July were on sale at the theater. That is looking far into the future and banking heavily on the success of a play.

"Nobody's Daughter," a play by George Paston, to be produced shortly by the New theater, New York, is described as a "comedy with a purpose," but it is, first of all, a comedy and life study. The purpose is by no means preachment, and forms an integral part of the play.

The story has to do with a man and woman, who, when hardly more than boy and girl, are prevented by their parents from marrying. They are passionately fond of each other, and a child is born to them—a girl. Later on they discover that the passion that they considered immortal was merely puppy love, and each marries happily. Meantime the girl is placed in the custody of an old nurse, with whom she lives for nineteen years, visited at long intervals by her "guardians," her "uncle and aunt."

Everything is proceeding smoothly when the girl announces her intention to marry a young mechanic. This horrifies her parents, and they determine to prevent the marriage, but the girl is fixed in her resolve, as she wants a real home. To provide her with this, and with a hope of convincing her that she, of gentle birth, will realize that to be the wife of a workingman will nauseate her, her mother takes the great risk of bringing her to her own home as her "ward," after she and the father have concocted a story to make the matter plausible to her husband and his wife. All goes well for a while, but the husband ultimately learns the truth, and in a powerful third act he turns on the woman he has adored. In the end he forgives, but the girl goes off to Australia with her mechanic husband.

Henry W. Savage's production of Rupert Hughes' farce, "Excuse Me," will make its Broadway bow at the Gayety theater tomorrow. "Get Rich Quick Wallingford," which has been selected as the inaugural attraction of the new George M. Cohan theater.

Marie Tempest sailed for England last week. Miss Tempest, who is to begin her career as her own manager immediately on her return to London, is anxious to present "The Deep Purple" in England. Miss Tempest claims that the drama will be perfectly intelligible to British audiences and says that she has proved conclusively by going to see the production with parties of Englishmen. Her plan is to produce the play in London as the first offering of her own season there and to play the role of the female thief, in which Ada Dwyer is now scoring such a sensational hit. Miss Tempest will hereafter be her own manager in this country as well as in Europe. She will return to this country next autumn and will inaugurate her first American season under her own direction at Maxine Elliott's theater with the initial production of "The Billtoppers." Paul Kester's dramatization of Andre Castiagne's famous novel of vaudeville life.

George Ade has gone to the West Indies in search of material for a new play for one of the Frohman stars. It is a hurry-up order, to comply with which Ade was compelled to postpone the writing of the new play for the Purdue University Harlequin club until next year. He had started work on a big musical production called the "Purdue Review."

Frank Keenan will make a production of his new one-act play, "Man to Man," by Oliver White tomorrow. He will take the leading role in the new sketch, which will be produced under his own direction. Keenan's playlet, "The Oath," by Seumas MacManus, will continue with a new company and a well known player from the legitimate in the role which Keenan heretofore has played.

Della Fox came back to the stage on Feb. 2, at the Valentine theater, Toledo, where, under the management of Wallace and Perkins, she appeared in a new three-act comedy, adapted from the French, entitled, "Delightful Dolly." The comedy was written by Henri Morvant, a young magazine writer.

* * *

Mrs. Sam Sothern has been engaged by Charles Frohman to play the opposite role to Miss Ethel Barrymore in "The Twelve-Pound Look," and has begun rehearsals of the new Barrie piece.

Frederic Thompson will produce his own play, "A Child of the Desert," in the spring. The cast will include Vivian Martin, Robert Drouet, Robert Haines, Frank McGinn, Doris Mitchell and T. Daniel Frawley.

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

Religious Census of the Students Has Proven Successful.

Harold Cant Chosen President of Athletic Board of Control.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 18—(Special to The Herald)—The religious census of the students proved successful. About 1,500 students filled out cards stating to what denomination they belong and what Twin City church they attend. It is the intention of Rev. Richardson and others in charge to follow up this census with a canvass. If it is then brought out that some of the students have no church connection or attend no church whatever, an effort will be made to bring men of national reputation to speak to the students on Sunday afternoons. This plan has been used at other large universities and has worked successfully.

Baron de Estomnellis de Constant, the leading authority of the world on arbitration, will speak in chapel some time in April. His lectures here will be one of a series of addresses which he will deliver in the United States, during his visit to this country, occasioned by the Lake Mohonk Conference on International Arbitration. The baron is now organizing the representatives of every nation into an international peace federation.

The board of athletic control was elected by the students, and for the first time in the history of the elections, the girls used their privilege to vote. The other officers elected are: Vice president, Cy Sawyer; academic representative, Alan McBean; law representative, Fred Tydeman; medic representative, W. E. Mentzer; agriculture and forestry representative, Frank Peak.

ELKS' MINSTREL SHOW PROMISES TO BE ONE LONG, LOUD SCREAM

Funny? Say, every joke at the Elks' minstrels at the Lyceum Monday and Tuesday is guaranteed to be new or so old that the present generation never heard it.

The music will be one of the features of the show. Besides the funmaking by the ends there will be musical renditions by the various soloists, assisted by a large and well-trained chorus of fifty voices. Care has been taken in the selection of the ballads to give only such as are suitable for a typical minstrel program with no attempts at grand opera or classical compositions.

There will be luscious love songs with rhythm and lilt that will swing the audience along and send them home whistling the choruses. The chorus is well balanced and possesses the rare advantage of having twelve boy sopranos in addition to tenors and bassos, thus insuring the distinct prominence of the melody in the choruses.

The soloists include some of the best singers in the city. Among them are Don Cole, Rudolph Bjorkquist, Joseph Kremer, Charles Applehagen and the sweet-voiced boy soprano, Donald Alexander. A musical number will also be given in the ollo by the Scottish Rite male quartet, which has met with much success since it was organized last spring.

The orchestrations have been carefully made with a view of having the orchestra accompany instead of drowning the voices as is usual in such amateur performances. The show should be well worth while not only for those who desire to be amused but also for those who appreciate solo and ensemble music well sung.

Allen Allensworth, the interlocutor, will positively wear at both performances a dress vest imported from jolly old Lunnon especially for the occasion despite the tariff wall. It can be heard a mile. The end men will be the best in town. "Art White" and Joe McLaughlin will appear in a black-face act that is said to be a scream. "Dub" Tresise will yodel "Send For Me." "Dude" Abraham will put over the footlights "I Love It." Stanley Lamb will give a take-off on "Kelly." George Mason and F. Wegman will put on a warm cry-baby stunt and E. N. Hagenson will appear in Swedish dialect.

TWO LITTLE ONES FATALLY BURNED

Expire From Burns Received When Anamoose, N. D., Home Burned.

Anamoose, N. D., Feb. 18.—Otto Rieger, aged 2, and Viola Rieger, aged 1, children of Mr. and Mrs. John Rieger of this place, died in a local hospital as the result of burns received when the Rieger home burned.

The fire was caused by a defective gasoline stove. The mother in her excitement over the blaze, forgot the little ones, who were playing in the same room, where the fire occurred. She rushed out of the building to give the alarm of fire. Christof Rieger, the grandfather of the children, who lives just north of the Rieger home, hearing the cries of the mother, rushed over and into the house. In the smoke and the fire, he stumbled against the bodies of the boy and girl and carried them out, but they were too badly burned to survive.

GET BACK FEATHERS.

Chippewa Falls People Recover Property Taken By Swindlers.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Feb. 18.—Eight hundred pounds of fine goose feathers, mulcted from the gullible women of this city by smooth "feather renovators," were shipped here by express Thursday and Sheriff McCann is dealing them out to the victims. Three rooms of the jail have been converted into feather emporiums, and the interior of the building is a mass of gently floating down. The feathers filled nearly half the express car.

The swindlers, on the pretense of cleaning pillows and ticks, took out the good feathers, shipped them to Chicago, and replaced them with excelsior and hair. They offered to restore the feathers to lighten their punishment.

ARREST MOTORMAN ON A MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE.

Sheboygan, Wis., Feb. 18.—George Thieme, motorman of the street car that plunged through the open draw into the Sheboygan river, carrying three women to their death, was arrested yesterday on a charge of manslaughter, preferred by District Attorney W. B. Collins. He was released under $1,000 bonds furnished by the street railway company to appear for preliminary examination Feb. 25.

MARE FALLS TO DEATH.

Trying to Defend Colt From Pack of Wolves.

Schafer, N. D., Feb. 18.—Louis Bergem found one of his valuable mares dead at the foot of a high cut bank in the bad lands, on the Little Missouri river Monday. The packed condition of the snow on the flat surface on top of the bank made by the mare and two large gray wolves and the tracks of the mare's yearling and colt, clearly indicated that the mare had met her death in a desperate battle to save her colt from being killed and eaten.

With the sagacity of a general, the mare made the stand upon the very brink of the precipice in order to avoid an attack from the rear.

She lost the battle by a mere accident. She evidently had been crowded too near the edge of the cliff, and making a misstep fell over the bank, breaking her neck when landing at the bottom.

Upon the disappearance of their brave parent, the yearling and colt took to their heels and escaped.

CONDITIONS IN THE BUTTE MINES ARE MUCH IMPROVED

Supt. Gillie Tells What Amalgamated Company Has Done.

Measures Taken to Remedy Complaints of the Miners.

Butte, Mont., Feb. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—In dealing with the conditions in the Butte mines before the legislative investigating committee, General Supt. John Gillie of the Amalgamated company made some highly interesting statements regarding the temperature in the mines and means being adopted to remedy some of the complaints which have been made by miners. He said at the outset that the question of temperature was a very difficult one to overcome, on account of the vast amount of lumber used and the kind of ore existing in the mines. He explained this statement by saying that the mines of the company used every year 75,000,000 of board measure, about 250,000 round timbers and 275,000,000 of sawed timber. Mr. Gillie said that just as soon as this timber goes into a mine there is an oxidation taking place and it is just the same as burning it, so much heat does it throw out. It may be distributed over twenty years or it might be forty years, but the same amount of heat units that there is in a stick of timber, if it is entirely rotted or decayed or consumed, is given off as though it were burned in a stove.

In speaking of the character of the ore, Mr. Gillie said it is sulphide or sulphur and other compounds called sulphides, and an oxidation is going on in the rock itself which produces heat. Then again Mr. Gillie pointed out the well known fact that the deeper you go into the earth the warmer it is. For some years the company, he said, was devising plans to overcome as far as possible the complaint about the heat and during the past four years the Anaconda company had equipped many of the mines with a system of forced ventilation, and at the present time through this means alone 753,000 cubic feet of air is being put into the mines every minute. In addition a number of natural or induced air openings or ventilating shafts have been put in. At some of these the air is being forced in, while at others the warm air is being taken out, which has to be replaced by cooler air from other places. He said the system had been found to be very effective.

At the Gagnon.

Mr. Gillie spoke of the underground workings of the Gagnon, the deepest mine in the district and said that on the 2,300-foot level efficient work could not be got out of the men and they came to the surface at the end of the shift more tired and run down than they would with probably twice the labor on the surface. An exhaust fan was installed on the air course as soon as it was possible to secure the electric power, with the result that the 2,200 and 2,300-foot levels, the deepest in the Gagnon mine, were made comparatively good places to work. The difference could be noticed in a very short time. Mr. Gillie said that in addition to this the company was now engaged in sinking an air shaft in the Gagnon mine down to the lowest level, a piece of work which alone would cost $230,000. He concluded his statement regarding the temperature question with these words: "Now, we are not doing this as philanthropists; we expect to get the value back on the number of tons of ore a day per man; it is economic mining. It tends, of course, to the better health and the better condition of the miner, and the better he is, the better it is for us."

There had been some statements made that the mines were unhealthy and in reply to these Mr. Gillie referred to the fact that several years ago there was considerable pneumonia among the men, and the company concluded that this was largely due to the men coming up out of the mine and going downtown in their wet clothes. Buildings were erected, heated by steam and equipped with baths and lockers, so that the men could wash, change their clothes and go down to their homes in comfort. This, no doubt, had a good effect as the health of the men was much better than formerly.

Raven.

The management of the Raven Copper Mining company is very well satisfied with the development work going on in the Snoozer through the Old Glory shaft in accordance with an agreement reached with the Anaconda company. From the 200-foot level of the Old Glory shaft a crosscut is being run west to intersect the vein. This crosscut is now in nearly 300 feet with about fifty feet more to go. The shaft is down 500 feet where another crosscut is being run to the Snoozer vein. On the 200-foot level four veins were cut in the crosscut and after upraises were made to get an idea of the dip no further work was attempted, it being decided to wait until the Snoozer vein has been encountered before doing any development work. The Raven shaft is down 1,350 feet. A crosscut is being run south on the 100-foot level to prove up a vein which was recently encountered. At 140 feet in the shaft in doing some retimbering a vein was encountered which ran twenty-two ounces of silver and $4.50 in gold to the ton.

Davis-Daly.

An impression has got abroad that the Colorado mine of the Davis-Daly company is completely shut down, but such is not the case. There are about twenty-five men at work, doing developing on the 1,400-foot level on which a large body of ore has been uncovered. However, as it only runs about 3 per cent copper it would not pay to ship it at the present market price. Those in charge are looking for better results in the near future and if there is an improvement in conditions as is expected, there is a prospect that the Colorado will resume shipping in the spring or early part of the summer. Last year the company constructed a tramway from the mine to the line of railway so as to be able to ship the ore to the Basin concentrator without the expense of a wagon haul. This line is already for use and the only thing which remains is the erection of ore bins. The Silver King, belonging to the company, is in the possession of leasers and some fine ore has been opened in the new shaft which has been opened just off North Idaho street.

Stewart Mine.

Reports of a highly favorable character continue to be received from Heinze's Stewart mine. In a short time the output is to be increased to 450 tons a day and in addition to this first-class ore shipments are soon to be made to the East Helena smelter. With shipments now running 350 tons a day, it is stated that the mine is earning a little better than $20,000 a month net. There is a debt of $125,000 on the property and it is stated that this will be paid off inside of six months from earnings which are estimated to reach at least $30,000 a month by April 1.

Mountain View.

It had been expected that the Mountain View mine would be hoisting ore under the compressed air plant system by March 1, but it has been decided to build a new bed for the engine and make other necessary repairs, so it is not believed that the new system will be ready for operation much before April 1. Mining men are watching the installation of this new system with a keen eye as it unquestionably means a great saving in the coal bill if the electrical equipment proves a success and there is every reason to believe that it will.

Ohio-Keating.

A special meeting of the Ohio-Keating Gold Mining company has been called for March 21, to agree to a plan of leasing the property to a number of miners until Dec. 31, under a 25 per cent royalty basis. The board of directors have approved of the plan and the stockholders are to be asked to sanction the same. The mine, which is located in the Radersburg district, has been closed down for a time and electric power is being substituted for steam. Under the terms of the proposed lease the company is to be allowed to use the shaft jointly with the leasers as it is proposed to carry on extensive development work during the summer. A short time ago a bond issue of $50,000 was authorized at a special meeting of the stockholders and at the same time the capital stock was increased from 500,000 shares to 800,000 shares. The Ohio was one of the first patented claims in the state. The ore exposed in the shaft is almost identical with that now being mined in the property of the Keating Gold Mining company, which has been shipping about 2,100 tons a month, giving an average return of $24.10 to the ton. The different companies operating in the Radersburg district have reason to believe that the district will have railway connection during the present year, which will mean considerable to the mine owners as the wagon haul is proving quite a drawback.

Road to Silver Lake District.

The proposed electric line in the Silver Lake district to connect with the Butte, Anaconda & Pacific railway for the purpose of getting the ore from the mines to the Washoe smelter is fast assuming shape and it looks as if it will surely be constructed. Mayor Charles Nevin of this city, who is one of the leading spirits in the movement, has received assurances from Eastern capitalists as well as mine owners of the district of strong financial assistance. Among the various mines in the district there are said to be 700,000 tons of ore blocked out, quite a large portion of which is in the Southern Cross, which is now working seventy-five men. The Bonanza, a very promising property was recently secured by Mayor Nevin, Patrick Wall and some Chicago and New York men. At the present time the ore has to be hauled from twelve to fourteen miles by wagon road and this long haul means the eating up of a large share of the profits.

TWELVE MILLIONS PAID IN DIVIDENDS

Record of the Bunker Hill and Sullivan Up to Date.

Spokane, Wash., Feb. 18.—Bunker Hill and Sullivan Mining and Concentrating company, operating at Kellogg, Idaho, brought its total disbursements to date to $12,456.00 by the payment of Dividend No. 161, amounting to $81,750, a few days ago. One hundred and sixty-three thousand five hundred dollars has been paid so far this year. The Bunker Hill property is declared by experts to be one of the greatest dividend-paying silver-lead properties in the United States, if not in the world. Its ore reserves are extensive and the grade of its ore much superior in its deepest levels to what it was nearer the surface. It is predicted that it can continue to pay dividends at the rate of $81,750 a month for at least twenty years. The property is owned chiefly by Spokane and Wallace people.

Reports from Burke, Idaho, confirm the rumors of an important strike in the Hecla mine there. The find was made on the 1,200-foot level, where a fourteen-foot ore body, 50 per cent of which is of shipping grade, was developed recently. The showing is much the best seen in the mine to date. Its great significance lies in the fact that the Hecla ore bodies have steadily increased in size and quality as depth was gained. The management says that the recent discovery sets at rest any fears that the ore bodies were deteriorating.

John Nordquist of Wallace, Idaho, manager of the Idora mine, who also is interested in other properties in the Coeur d'Alene district, says in a report to stockholders in Spokane, that work on the intermediate drift on the level from the upraise has progressed ninety feet, running all the way through nine inches of clean galena. He declares the Idora mine will enter the shipping class within ninety days. Two shifts are at work on the tunnel, he adds. The chief object is to open the ore body. Mr. Nordquist has gone to Los Angeles to pass the winter with relatives.

PROSPECTS LESS BRIGHT

Calumet & Hecla's Consolidation With Subsidiary Companies May Fail.

Progress Made in Forming Series of Large Copper Mergers.

Houghton, Mich., Feb. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Interest centers in the proposed merger of the Calumet & Hecla with its various subsidiary and collateral corporations. The proposition of the Calumet & Hecla was set before the shareholders of the different companies more than a month ago, and discussion and argument have waxed strong, pro and con. Apparently the Calumet & Hecla management had considerable the better of the argument and the chances of success, until a week ago, when a bombshell was thrown into their camp by Thomas L. Chadbourne, for many years the general counsel of the Calumet & Hecla, and an attorney of wide reputation. Mr. Chadbourne protested against the merger as the owner of 3,100 shares of Ahmeek, worth at present market prices upwards of $500,000. Unlike the pronunciamentos of some of the other interests opposed to the merger, Mr. Chadbourne, after stating the grounds of his complaint, also stated the specific remedy, which in this case is the introduction into the Michigan legislature of a bill similar to the laws now existing in ten other states, providing that in case of a corporation merger, dissatisfied minority shareholders may obtain a court appraisal of their holdings, and be paid for same in cash. There seems little doubt that Mr. Chadbourne will be able to secure the passage of this bill promptly, and an equally prompt signature from Governor Osborn, and it is likely that such a bill will become a law in Michigan before the date set for the proposed merger. It is a question whether the Calumet & Hecla management would care to finance, at present, the purchase for cash of many millions of dollars worth of stock of dissatisfied minority shareholders, hence the prospects of the merger are by no means so bright as a week ago.

No General Merger at Present.

While there is much talk in the press of a general copper merger, to include all of the leading American interests and possibly some of the foreign interests also, this is not taken seriously by those who are most conversant with the finances of the copper trade, and the trend of its developments. Instead of a general copper merger, which is not contemplated in the near future, though possibly it may come eventually, it is more reasonable to look for a series of mergers along the present lines of spheres of influence and geographical relations. In this connection, it may be of interest to give consideration to the very pronounced progress that has been made in the direction of a series of large mergers since the panic of 1907.

In the case of the Amalgamated Copper company, the first great copper merger of the United States, now twelve years of age, the situation has been greatly simplified within the past year by the absorption of a number of other copper companies by the Anaconda Copper Mining company. Most of these companies merged in the Anaconda were controlled formerly by the Amalgamated, this list including the Boston & Montana, Butte & Boston, Parrot and others in Butte, but the Anaconda, incidentally, has taken over the entire holdings of Senator William A. Clark in the Butte camp, except his Elm Orlu zinc property, and also has absorbed the property of the Butte Coalition, including the Alice mine. This merger has made for greater simplicity in both operation and finances, though the financial involutions necessitated by the consolidation have been somewhat perplexing to the uninitiated, for the reason that the Amalgamated Copper company has been placed in the positions of both purchaser and seller, and of parent and child, giving the appearance of turning inside out.

Cole-Ryan Interests.

Closely affiliated with the Amalgamated Copper company are the so-called Cole-Ryan interests, dominated by John D. Ryan and Thomas F. Cole. Mr. Ryan being the president of the Amalgamated. These interests include North Butte, now the principal independent property in the Butte camp, the Greene-Cananea in the northern part of Sonora, the Giroux, now developing at Ely, Nev.; the International Smelting & Refining company, which has recently blown in a smelter near Salt Lake City, and various minor properties. Affiliated with the Cole-Ryan group, through the extensive interests therein of Mr. Cole, are the Calumet & Arizona and the Superior & Pittsburg companies, which are now in the throes of a merger of their own.

The Guggenheim interests, which have made giant strides in copper production during the past few years, have been pretty thoroughly controlled from the start, but have been further coalesced through the purchase of a large interest in Nevada Consolidated by the Utah Copper company.

The Phelps-Dodge interests are controlled, as they have been for many years past, by this old established firm, which, within the past two years has become the corporation of Phelps, Dodge & Co., incorporated. The Phelps-Dodge holdings include the Copper Queen at Bisbee, Ariz.; the Detroit at Clifton, Ariz., and Moctezuma, in Northern Sonora, all of which are owned practically outright by Phelps, Dodge & Co., and also include the control of the Old Dominion mine at Globe, Ariz., in which there is a very considerable outstanding share interest in the hands of the public.

Another copper group of increasing importance is that of the Lewisohn interests, including the Miami mine at Globe, which promises to make a highly successful producer of the porphyry class. It is rumored that negotiations are now under way for a merger of the Miami and Inspiration mines, together with several smallr properties in the neighborhood, all of which have developed more or less ore in an extensive schist belt west of Globe. Such a merger would give a property capable of very extensive production within the next few years.

The Guggenheims.

Affiliated with the Guggenheim interests are the holdings of the Tutt-McNeill - Penrose - Jackling interests. This group really includes the Utah Copper company and Nevada Consolidated Copper company, which as yet remain the pioneers of the so-called porphyry mines, and in addition includes the Ray Consolidated of Pinal county, Ariz., and the Chino of Grant county, N. Mex., two prospective important porphyry mines of the first order.

In the Lake Superior district, the Calumet & Hecla is endeavoring to absorb the Ahmeek, Osceola, Tamarack, Allouez, Centennial, Superior and Isle Royale mines all present producers, and a number of other properties in the development stage. These properties have a combined productive capacity of about 150,000,000 pounds of fine copper yearly.

Inspection of a list including all North American copper mines having a present productive capacity of 10,000,000 pounds or more yearly shows that a very great majority of the big producers are included in the foregoing groups. The largest interests, outside of those before referred to, are the United States Smelting & Mining company, controlling important properties in Salt Lake and Juab counties, Utah, and in Shasta county, Cal., with a prsent productive capacity of about 50,000,000 pounds of fine copper yearly; the Copper Range Consolidated of Michigan, with present productive capacity of nearly 40,000,000 pounds fine copper yearly; the Arizona Copper company, Ltd., a Scotch corporation, operating in Graham county, Ariz., with a present productive capacity of about 35,000,000 pounds yearly; Senator Clark's United Verde of Yavapai county, Ariz., also with a productive capacity of about 35,000,000 pounds yearly; the Boleo, of Lower California, controlled jointly by the French house of Rothschild and the Banque Mirabaud, with a productive capacity of about 30,000,000 pounds fine copper yearly; the Granby of British Columbia, with a capacity of upwards of 25,000,000 pounds yearly; the Quincy of Michigan, with a capacity of about 20,000,000 pounds yearly; the Shannon and the Tennessee Copper company, with 15,000,000 to 18,000,000 pounds yearly capacity each; the Ballaklava of California which by the way is partialy dominated by the Guggenheim interests, through a large stock holding; the Bully Hill of the General Electric company, in Shasta county, Cal., and the Mohawk and Wolverine mines of the Stanton-Gay interests of about 10,000,000 pounds yearly capacity each.

HORACE J. STEVENS.

DIAMOND DRILLS AT PORCUPINE

To Sink on Armstrong-McGibbon Ground to Thousand Feet.

Porcupine, Ont., Feb. 18.—With the Scottish-Ontario vein followed up and opened to view over a wide stretch of territory, which shows its width in many places to be more than 100 feet, great interest is attached to the diamond drilling now going on at the Armstrong-McGibbon property, Engineer Frank C. Watson being in charge of the mine work.

Speculation has ceased as to the quality of the showings so far as the surface permits a view, but with cores taken from a depth of 1,000 feet on this vein, substantial judgment can be passed.

The Dome company for the present have suspended all their mining operations and have turned the entire force of sixty men into the work of unloading the machinery and supplies. Every effort of the management at the present seems to be concentrated upon the task of bringing in all the machinery and supplies before the break-up and preparing the ground for the mill and other buildings. A large force of men will be put to work immediately clearing away the snow for the foundation of the Merrill forty-stamp cyanide mill.

"Positive injury is being done to the gold camp, and unless those who are the holders of claims, which are yet merely prospects, will agree to give the buyer a chance, without having to take a straight gamble, I fear that the development of the district will be retarded," is what A. C. Conway of Colorado says about the high prices prevailing for ground here. Prices for property, even on options, are bringing big figures.

EXPLORATORY WORK STARTED

On the Brady Property in the Iron River District.

Marquette, Mich., Feb. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Organized as the Escanaba Development company, a number of Escanaba, Mich., men have started exploratory work in the Iron River region, Menominee range. The Brady property in section 1, 42-35, lying west and southwest of the Caspian and Dober mines, has been optioned and will be diamond drilled. The tract is in the Stambaugh district. It is well located on the iron-bearing formation. It formerly was in the hands of the United States Steel corporation, but without being thoroughly tested, was permitted to revert to the fee owners. C. W. Kates of Escanaba is president of the newly-formed company, and Duncan A. McRae, formerly of Iron River, is the general manager.

The operations of the various mining properties of the Breitung estate of Marquette hereafter will be in charge of Capt. Joseph Hodgson of Ishpeming, Mich., who has been appointed general superintendent. His assistant will be W. B. Bauder, M. E. Both men are former employes of the Steel corporation, but have been with the Breitung interests a number of years. Capt. J. F. Foley, general manager of the mines, continues in the service of the estate in an advisory capacity. He is a veteran miner of many years' experience and one whose practical retirement from active duty has been well earned. The Breitung mines include the Mary Charlotte, Breitung Hematite and Milwaukee-Davis at Negaunee and the Baron and Franklin at Humboldt, Marquette range, in addition to much undeveloped ore lands both in the Marquette district and on the Menominee range.

Capt. Elijah Toms, one of the best known mining men on the Marquette range, who had charge of the Hartford property at Negaunee for the Steel corporation for a number of years prior to June 1, when the lease was surrendered, has taken charge of the underground operations at the American mine, west of Ishpeming. The American has developed into a large property since M. A. Hanna & Co. of Cleveland, Ohio, took hold of it, and over 300 men are employed. During the past two years, the mine has been equipped with new machinery, a modern dryhouse has been erected, a crusher plant installed and other important improvements completed. Capt. Toms has had many years' experience as a hard ore miner. The Hartford is now in the hands of the Republic Iron & Steel company and is operated in conjunction with that corporation's Cambria and Lily mines at Negaunee.

C. & A. SMELTER TO BE ENLARGED

Plans and Estimates of the Changes Now Being Prepared.

Douglas, Ariz., Feb. 18.—C. H. Repath, who has rented offices in the Brophy block and who will carry on the work of preparing preliminary plans and estimates for a proposed extension and enlargement of the present smelting facilities for the Calumet & Arizona Mining company, was called on by a representative of the Dispatch.

Mr. Repath stated that the policy of the company was to withhold plans in preparation from the public until they reached maturity. However, he said that the present work he was engaged upon was of a preliminary nature and that he would probably require two months in which to get it in shape. He also said that Dr. Ricketts, the expert of the amalgamated companies, was in Europe and that the was expected to return in about two months and would probably pass on the matter in hand.

The matter of this extension, or complete overhauling and remodeling of this company's plant is not a matter of conjecture, nor is it in the least a matter of surprise. The proposed plan to remodel the plant has been known for some time and is of great importance to Douglas and Southern Arizona. The expenditure of more than $500,000, much more probably, in this community is of pleasing interest.

PAST YEAR IN BLACK HILLS

Nearly Five and a Half Millions in Gold Dug Out.

Deadwood, S. D., Feb. 18.—The total output of the mines of the Black Hills in gold production for 1910, as shown by the individual statement, is as follows:

	Value.	Tons.
Homestake	$4,650,000	1,438,408
Lundberg-Dorr & Wilson	57,603	150.000
Minnesota Mines company	13,280	.....
Columbia (Southern Hills	13.000	.....
Wasp No. 2	3,000	.....
Golden Reward	300,000	60,000
Mogul	280,000	85,415
Portland	75,000	.....
Placer mines	10.000	.....
	$5,401,883

The falling off is due to the labor troubles which caused so many of the properties to be idle a portion of the year.

Details of the recent rich strike reported on the old Golden Slipper property, owned by the Empire State Mining company near Hill City, bear out first indications. The find is likely to change the time honored policy in the southern hills of exploiting only the low grade ore bodies. The policy was the result of the success in the nortern hills of the Homestake and a number of the Bald Mountain companies. In the southern hills, although numerous rich veins have been located, few have been developed, the chief exception being the old Holy Terror at Keystone, where a shaft of 1,200 feet was sunk and a small vein yielded over $1,000,000 per year until litigation set in. The Empire State company is now planning the development of the high grade shoots after sufficient capital has been secured.

At the Forest City Mining company's property near Hill City, formerly the Clara Belle, the mill was only operated ten days in January, owing to lack of water, but a new body of fine free milling ore was encountered and is being worked.

To contradict stories that the company was not milling its usual amount of ore and that the quality of the ore was below the ordinary, figures were given out from the office of the Homestake Mining company at Lead showing that the December clean-ups approximated 30,00 ounces troy and netted nearly $470,000, while those for January were about the same value.

A definite statement as to the plans of the Chicago men who are financing the new smelter for Galena, was made this week. H. C. Osterman and associates are the controlling interests. The work of excavation will begin as soon as the Burlington railroad decides where the track extension will commence. The smelter, which will cost $60,000, will have a process for low grade ores with a daily initatory capacity of 300 tons. It will be electrically run and will be supplied with ore from the adjoining properties, principally from the Gilt Edge mine. It will be situated just below the Richmond and Sitting Bull mines. It is hoped to have it in operation early in June. In addition to the smelter the plant of the Gilt Edge Maid Consolidated Mines company will be operated for concentrating with a daily capacity of 400 tons. The coke for the smelter is to me supplied partly by the local gas works and the rest from the East. About thirty properties will be put into operation to furnish the smelter, including the Richmond, Sitting Bull and Hester A. Teh Galena mines carry values in lead, silver and gold running from $3.50 to $7 a ton, while there are numerous dumps that average $4.50 a ton.

PERSONAL FRIENDSHIPS OF NOTED POLITICAL OPPONENTS

Judge George Gray, Often Spoken of as a Democratic Candidate for President, Has Many Intimate Friends Among Prominent Republicans — "Pitchfork Ben" Tillman and the Scholarly and Dignified George F. (Copyright, 1911, by E. J. Edwards.)

You have doubtless heard it said that politics makes strange bed fellows. It is, in fact, quite an ordinary occurence for men who are personally unfriendly to become political allies. But the reverse of this is not so common. Yet in not a few notable instances men who have been opposed to each other in matters of party and principle, have become most sympathetic and close personal friends when thrown together through the chances of politics. Some of the intimacies that have been established between men of opposite political faiths, like the friendship between President Arthur and Senator George G. Vest, have become historic, but there have been others not so well known that were perhaps as remarkable.

Judge George Gray's Intimate Republican Friends.

During his services in the United States senate from 1885 until 1899, George Gray of Delaware, now United States circuit judge of the Third judicial district, established closer personal intimacies with some Republican senators than he did with any of his Democratic colleagues. It would not be possible to say that he had any one particular friendship that crossed party lines in the senate, for his personal relations were equally cordial and close with a number of his associates who in politics were opposed to him, and with the Republican members of the senate, George Gray was by far the most popular of the senators on the Democratic side of the chamber.

Senator Gray established a firm friendship with Henry Cabot Lodge soon after the Massachusetts man entered the senate in 1893. He always made it a point to be in his seat when Lodge spoke and he went out of his way to show courtesies to Mr. Lodge. In the spring of 1894, for example, Senator Gray received from a Delaware friend and admirer a present of several baskets of remarkably fine strawberries. The fruit was so large, perfect and luscious that the most fitting way to enjoy it was to eat each berry from the stem. And the first thing that Senator Gray did on receiving this present was to send two baskets of his berries to Senator Lodge.

The late Senator Cushman K. Davis of Minnesota, who served with Senator Gray on the commission appointed by President McKinley to draft the treaty of peace with Spain, once said:

"For personal reasons, the Republicans in the senate would rather see George Gray president than any other Democrat. For political reasons they would rather see any other Democrat in the White House. For if Gray should be elected president, in their opinion he would gain such a hold on the people that his re-election would be almost certainty."

Judge Gray was the only Democrat on the commission that drafted the peace treaty with Spain. The other members, besides Senator Davis, were Senators William P. Frye of Maine, Secretary of State William R. Day, now of the United States supreme court, and Whitelaw Reid. With all of these Republicans Senator Gray established most intimate friendly relations and especially with Secretary of State Day, who was president of the commission. In Paris, where the commission did its work, Senator Gray and the secretary of state took many long walks together, and during the hours that could be spared for recreation were frequently in each other's company.

One of the best illustrations of the close friendly relations that were established by Senator Gray with his fellow members of the commission was afforded by an incident that occured after the commission had finished its work. It was well known that President McKinley was to appoint Mr. Gray judge of the circuit court in the Third district and Mr. Day to a similar position in the Sixth district. Senators Frye and Davis, the President had decided to remunerate for their work on the commission by the payment of $10,000 to each from a special fund controlled by the president. Thus, two members of the commission were to receive recognition of their services in the form of appointment and two in the form of money payment. This arrangement did not take in Mr. Reid. There were not many appointments that Mr. Reid would have cared to accept and to a man of his means recognition would have been as nothing.

With great delicacy, yet with firmness, Senator Gray then suggested that Mr. Reid should be recommended to the president for appointment to the ambassadorship to the Court of St. James. This high dipomatic post was to become vacant through the recall of John Hay from England to succeed Judge Day as head of the state department. Of course the suggestion could not be made to the president by a Democratic senator, but the senators on the commission fell in warmly with Senator Gray's idea, and they informally intimated to Mr. McKinley that in their view it would be a fitting and proper recognition of Mr. Reid's services to appoint him to the ambassadorship.

President McKinley, however, had already decided to appoint Joseph H. Choate. But he did designate Mr. Reid as special ambassador to represent the president at the coronation of King Edward VII.

"Ben" Tillman and George F. Hoar as Cronies.

It would hardly be supposed that a strong personal liking, forming the basis of a real friendship, could spring up between two such utterly different types of men as that cool, scholarly and self-contained New Englander, the late Senator George F. Hoar of Massachusetts, and that hot-blooded Southerner and violent partisan, "Pitchfork Ben" Tillman of South Carolina. But, while it was known to only a few of the associates of the two men, such a friendship did exist, and it was perhaps one of the most remarkable of the intimacies that have developed between men of opposing political parties in the United States senate.

Senator Hoar was a man in whom the intellectual life was dominant. He was a man who could never be carried off his feet by the strongest sweep of feeling, whose every step would be taken according to reason, and who, by instinct and training, desired measure and restraint in matters of conduct. A man of fine culture, he found his chief pleasures in books, and he lived as far as possible the life of a scholar.

Senator Tillman, on the other hand, had the reputation of being largely swayed by his emotions, in spite of his strong mentality. His methods were truculent, and his favorite modes of expression had tang and a flavor of the soil in them. His sobriquet, which expressed in a word the common notion of his character, was earned by the bitterness of his attacks on President Cleveland.

Senator Hoar at first entertained this common notion of the senator from South Carolina, and, consequently, his attitude was quite the reverse of sympathetic. But as time went on he was struck now and again by remarks made by Tillman that seemed to indicate beneath the truculent exterior of the man a different and perhaps more genuine personality, and one which to Mr. Hoar was not without attractiveness. The Massachusetts man became interested, and as opportunity afforded, cultivated a better acquaintance with his Democratic colleague. And he found that Senator Tillman, notwithstanding his swash-buckling ways in matters pertaining to politics, was really a man of extensive culture, interested in ideas outride the domain of politics, with original views to express on literature, history and philosophy, and an incisive yet polished manner of expressing them. Thus it came about that there was established between them a companionship of a purely intellectual but most congenial sort; and often they sought each other out for a quiet chat on books, men or ideas far removed from the turmoil of politics or the controversies arising from public affairs.

A Noteworthy Supreme Court Friendship.

Since the promotion of Edward Douglas White from the position of associate justice to that of chief justice of the supreme court of the United States, his personal characteristics have attracted a good deal of attention. Among the things that are mentioned in discussions of the personal side of the new chief justice is his rather quaint but genuine and sympathetic friendship for a fellow-member of the supreme court, Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, son of the famous author of the same name. It has long been recognized in Washington that perhaps the closest of Chief Justice White's friendships is that which has grown up between him and Justice Holmes.

Chief Justice White is a Democrat, although the early associations of his family were with the Whig party, which, prior to 1850, was strong in Louisiana. Justice Holmes cast his first vote for Abraham Lincoln, and he has always been a Republican. Chief Justice White is of a most companionable nature. Justice Holmes is regarded as somewhat reserved, though those who know him best say that he is of most kindly heart. It has never been really understood what it is that makes these two men, so different as they are in temperament and political faith, so congenial to each other, but their friendship is so strong that it is said that there is in their relation more of real affection than in the relation of any two other members of the supreme court.

When Chief Justice White was representing his state in the senate he maintained a very warm personal friendship with the late Senator Orville H. Platt of Connecticut, who was one of the great intellects of the senate for nearly twenty-five years. Senator Platt used often to stroll over to Senator White's desk and sit, sometimes for an hour or more, in conversation with the Louisiana senator. That was conspicuous, because Senator Platt did not thus distinguish his relations with any other member upon the Democratic side except David B. Hill, at least at the time Senator White was a member.

How Texas and New York Got Together

On the Democratic side of the house the present speaker has no more intimate personal acquaintance than that which he maintains with the man who is to be the next speaker, in all likelihood. Mr. Cannon and Mr. Clark are so chummy, in fact, that the Illinois man calls the Missouri man "Champ," and the Missouri man calls the Illinois man "Joe," all the time.

The presiding officer of the senate, Vice President Sherman, has several strong personal friends among the membership of the Democratic party; perhaps the most noteworthy one is that with the veteran editor, E. Prentiss Bailey of Utica, N. Y., for many years past a Democratic power in Central New York state.

Another noteworthy instance of personal friendship between men of opposite political faiths is the cordial relation that exists between Senator Chauncey M. Depew of New York and Senator Joseph W. Bailey of Texas. This friendship had its origin in Senator Depew's admiration of Senator Bailey's powers as a debater. Speaking of this matter to a friend recently, Mr. Depew said:

"The possession of the peculiar combination of abilities that goes to make a great debater is much rarer than the possession of those qualities that make a fine set speaker or even an extemporaneous orator. A man may be an excellent set speaker or a great orator and yet almost powerless in the rapid give and take of debate. Success in debate demands a power of rapid thinking, an intuitive grasp of a position, and a degree of foresight that are most exceptional. The great debater must also have in addition to the ordinary gifts of a good speaker. Senator Bailey possesses them in a most highly developed form, and the readiness and skill with which he meets all attacks, and assails the position of an opponent entitle him to be called a really great debater."

Mr. Depew's admiration of such skill in so difficult a field of intellectual endeavor led him to cultivate the acquaintance of the senator from Texas, and in spite of their utter disagreement in politics, the two quickly became warm personal friends, a condition that holds good today.

A truly remarkable friendship between men who in public life were political opponents was that of Senator George F. Edmunds of Vermont and Senator Allen G. Thurman of Ohio. On partisan questions they stood far apart, the Republicanism of the one being as deep rooted as the Democratic faith of the other. But as lawyers they had common ground and in several intellectual lines their tastes were similar. During their service together in the senate they became almost as devoted as brothers.

It was their daily custom, after the morning hour in the senate, to leave the chamber by different doors, and to meet in the rooms of the judiciary committee, of which committee Senator Edmunds was chairman. There, it was understood a loyal and tried servitor prepared for them a mild toddy, over which they would spend an hour or more discussing books, law, men and even politics. No man left the senate during Senator Edmunds' twenty-five years of service whose departure he regretted more than he did that of Senator Thurman, and Senator Edmunds' friends say that now in his advanced years he recalls with the keenest pleasure his association with that senator, now passed to his reward, who was called "the noblest Roman of them all."

Two Ohioans of today who are of opposite political faith, but who are nevertheless warm personal friends, are Former United States Senator Joseph B. Foraker, a red-hot Republican of the old school, and Judson Harmon, an ex-attorney general of the United States, who is now enjoying the distinction of being the only Deocratic governor ever re-elected by the voters of the Buckeye state.

The Strange Political Intimacy Of a President.

The very first time that President Arthur and Senator George G. Vest of Missouri met they became warm friends. Yet, at first thought, it would be said by any one acquainted with the characteristics of each man that there was no possibility of congenial companionship and intimate friendship between them. Arthur was a man of ultra refined tastes, exquisite in dress—he was the best dressed of our presidents—and almost slavishly observant of all the conventionalities of social life. Vest was quite the opposite of all that. In manner he was unconventional, in dress rather careless, and to high social life he was utterly indifferent. Their divergencies in matters of political opinion were quite an extreme. President Arthur was a Republican, who had been identified with the Salwart faction of the party. His Republicanism was therefore of the deep-dyed and most pronounced sort. Vest was a strong Democrat, and an ardent advocate of state rights. He had served in the Confederate congress as senator from Missouri.

But the president and senator had several characteristics in common. Vest was the most charming story teller in Washington in his day, and Arthur had no mean talent in the same direction. Each was fond of the classics. Arthur was a good German scholar and spoke German well. Vest was equally proficient in French. Each was an expert fisherman and ardent lover of nature.

Many times President Arthur would send a message to the senator from Missouri in substantially these words: "I am feeling lonely and shall be at leisure this evening after 9 o'clock. Can't you run in and see me?"

To which Senator Vest, unless he had some important engagement, would always reply: "I certainly will come."

They would sit up frequently until past midnight, discussing books and men, or telling stories relating to the piscatorial art, their favorite sport. It was their remarkable congeniality that led President Arthur to invite Senator Vest to be his guest on his trip to the Yellowstone Park in the summer of 1883. This friendship was undoubtedly one of the strangest of the political intimacies of presidents.

Conkling's Two Democratic Favorites.

It used to be said of Roscoe Conkling that he had no strong personal friendships. Yet he did have two really close political intimacies. Both of these were due to the sense of admiration felt by two Democratic senators for the brilliant senator from New York.

One of the plainest and bluntest of the men from the East who occupied seats in the senate during Conkling's time was William W. Eaton of Connecticut. He was a Democrat, and so vigorous an advocate of state rights that he was charged in war days—though unjustly—with being lukewarm toward the Union. He was a short, thick set man, smooth shaven and clear eyed, a plain but forcible speaker. Conkling noticed after a while that whenever he got up to speak the eyes of the Democratic senator from Connecticut, whose seat was directly across the aisle, were fastened upon him. This silent and repeated tribute of admiration did not displease Senator Conkling, and presently he got into the habit of saying, when passing Eaton's desk on his way to his own place, at the beginning of the day's business:

"Good morning, Mr. Senator. I hope you are quite well today."

This was an act of extreme condescension on the part of the great senator from New York, but it was the beginning of a real and lasting regard. And it was soon recognized on both sides of the chamber that the particular friend of the senator from New York, whose magnificent presence and abilities dazzled every one, was the plain, blunt man from Connecticut.

As a sort of second choice, Conkling favored with his regard Senator Jones of Florida. Jones was a man of strapping figure, as broad as Conkling, and fully as tall. He was of Welsh birth, and had settled in Florida before the war. He rose to eminence in the law, and took a prominent part in the politics of his state.

Senator Jones' seat was well in the rear of the senate chamber. One day he arose and made a set speech in which he spoke of Conkling in the most complimentary terms, saying that in spite of differences of political belief, he had the greatest admiration for the character and abilities of the senator from New York. Whenever after that Jones arose to speak, Senator Conkling always wheeled around in his chair and followed the remarks of the senator from Florida with every indication of interest and attention. This mark of respect was, of course, noticed by other senators.

"Why is it you pay such close attention whenever Jones speaks?" some of them asked Conkling.

"I like the senator from Florida," Conkling replied. "He stands firm in his fetlocks."

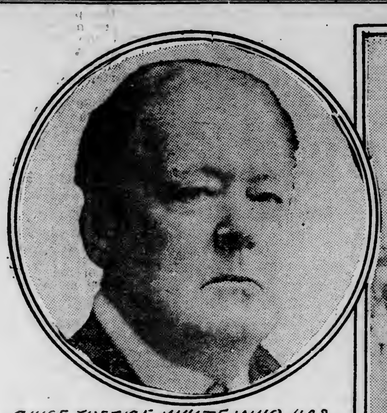

This remark was repeated to Senator Jones, and soon thereafter a real and lasting friendship was established between them.

Senator Eaton's term expired in 1881. Conkling resigned a few weeks later and Senator Jones was almost heartbroken.

A Multi-Millionaire's Political Companion

Not many persons will recall the fact that William Waldorf Astor, who is now a British subject, and has become in all his interests and ambitions a thorough-going Englishman, was once a member of the New York state legislature. Mr. Astor served a term as senator from New York city in 1880-81. He was understood at that time to have political ambitions, and to regard his service in the state senate as a possible stepping stone to gubernatorial honors. He did not realize then, of course, as he must have realized later, that the possession of a private fortune of $100,000,000 is practically an insuperable barrier to the realization of such hopes.

Mr. Astor's most congenial friend while he was in Albany was a fellow-member of the senate, a man of opposite political faith, the Democratic representative of the Kingston district, Charles A. Fowler. Senator Fowler was a large man of heavy build. Astor was tall and slender, so that the contrast between them, as far as personal appearance was concerned, was striking. Although it was of short duration, the association of the two senators was of such an agreeable character on both sides that it deserves to be recorded among the noteworthy friendships of men of opposite political parties.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Activities of Musical Society—Anonia Notes—Plans of the Forum—New Instructor in Chemistry—John Wagner Not Forgotten—Friday's Schedule Changed on Account of Teachers' Convention.

The musical society has been unusually busy the past week.

On Tuesday afternoon a large and enthusiastic meeting was held in the assembly hall. Mr. Hiestand was the soloist for the meeting, singing Boullon's favorite song, "The Sword of Ferrara," which was so well received that an encore was given. Miss Flaaten accompanied Mr. Hiestand.

After the musical program the business of the meeting was taken up. The most important business was the matter of a new platform for the assembly hall. The school board has authorized the building of such a platform but for some unknown reason the work has been delayed.

Mr. Custance suggested that the musical society plan to furnish half of the program which the high school alumni are planning to give for the Charles Alden Smith Memorial fund. If the alumni are in favor of this plan, it is hoped that a platform may be erected by the Alumni association in exchange for the program furnished by the musical society.

The program of the general session of the Northeastern Minnesota Educational association was opened yesterday afternoon by music under the direction of Mr. Custance. Miss Myrtle Hobbs was the principal soloist. A topical song was very well received. Several other members of the musical society and the high school choir assisted in the program.

The only business of the Anonia society during the week was the selection of a picture committee. The purpose of this committee is to find out if it would be worth while to have a picture of the Anonia taken and put in the 1911 Zenith. A special program will be given next Monday afternoon.

Eight debating teams of three members each have been organized in the Forum. These teams have formed a league and will arrange a schedule of debates in a short time. The winning team will win the championship of the Forum and prize medals will be given to the champions.

The teams at present are constituted as follows:

1, Lawrence Wyly, captain; Philip Altman, Nathan Cook. 2. Deane Davis, Captain; Otto Olsen, Nathan Cohen. 3. Alvern Stoltz, captain; Glen Ltshaw, Gilbert Denfeld. 4. Norman Cook, captain; John Balmer, Carl Honigman. 5. Fred Wienberg, captain; Walter Wilander, Howard Sukeforth. 6. Roger Lerch, captain; Seward Kempton, Abe Miller. 7. Lawrence Dow, captain; Jesse Cohen, Clifford Marvin. 8. Rolf Hovde, captain; Virgil Vincent, Oscar Solheim.

Mr. Ehlmann, formerly a member of the Superior Normal faculty, who has taken Mr. Wheeler's position as instructor in chemistry, held his first classes Monday.

John Wagner, who was hurt in the annual Freshman-Sophomore football game and who has been a patient at St. Mary's hospital since last November, has not been forgotten by the students of the high school, at least not by the members of the athletic association.

The athletic board of control has given Wagner the privilege of wearing the coveted football "D" and a sweater similar to the other "D" sweaters will be presented to him next week. The board of control has also decided to raise $100 to help defray his hospital expenses.

The proceeds of the second game between the Y. M. C. A. and the high school basket ball teams will be contributed toward this fund and the hockey team will try to arrange a game with the Curling team, the proceeds of this game to also go toward this fund.

In case both these games are played every loyal student of the high school will attend both games and it is not thought that there will be much difficulty in raising the fund.

John Wagner is now recovering rapidly and all are hoping for his speedy return to high school.

The schedule of classes was shortened yesterday on account of the general session of the Northeastern Minnesota Educational association, which was held in the assembly hall yesterday afternoon.

The girls' gymnasium classes did not meet yesterday because of the shortened schedule.

THE STATE'S RIGHTS UPHELD.

President Taft acted wisely in repealing the sale of liquor provisions in the treaties concerning Indian lands, in such instances as he had the right to do so. He also did right in urging congress to take similar action in those cases where the power lies with congress instead of with the executive. The decision of the president is in line with the decision of Judge Amidon upholding the contention that the Indian treaties became of no effect when the state of Minnesota was created.

Of course there will be opposition to the action of the president. The anti-liquor forces will not be pleased, and from their point of view they have reason to feel keen disappointment. They saw in the enforcement of the old treaty provisions the means of accomplishing the ends for which they are fighting. Here were restrictions ready to hand, and apparently the enforcement of the restrictions was to be rigid. There was no need of legislation, of educating the public, or creating a sentiment in favor of the abolition of the liquor business. It was a condition that seemed to the anti-liquor advocates almost too good to be true.

To others, however, the matter looked otherwise, and President Taft seems to have taken that position. The practice in this country always has been to repeal a law when conditions became such that its enforcement operated in ways other than were intended by its makers. That principle, applied to these treaty provisions, gives just the basis for such action as the president has taken. The prohibition of liquor was meant to affect only the Indians, who as wards of the government had no part in legislation. It never was intended to affect the rights of citizens. If they want anti-liquor legislation they have the right and the power to agitate for such legislation. If they want prohibition and can show a majority of the citizens in favor of prohibition, why should they be obliged, under a law never intended to affect them, to live in a "wet" community? And the rule works both ways: Why should a majority who want non-prohibition be compelled to live in a "dry" community when there never has been a law passed intended so to affect them?

It is a question purely of the interpretation of the spirit of American government, a question of the right of the governed to determine the laws under which they shall live. President Taft evidently saw it in that light, and his decision will come as a welcome relief to many communities.

The president's decision simply recognizes the constitutional right of the state to control the liquor traffic within its own borders, while the Federal government holds the right to forbid and punish the introduction of liquor on reservation land and the furnishing of intoxicants to the wards of the government. The necessity of keeping the liquor from the Indians remains, and it will be necessary for the local and state officials to see that that is done. It is a matter not only of official duty, but it involves the keeping of good faith between the Federal government and the local authorities.

GOING THE LIMIT.

There could be nothing more plainly illustrative of the straits to which the opponents of the Canadian reciprocity agreement are reduced than the action of Representative Bennet of New York in introducing in the house at this time a bill looking to the annexation of Canada by the United States. It was peanut politics of the lowest variety. Almost peanut shuck politics, in fact. Its author knew when it was introduced that it could have no chance of passage. His object was to prejudice the chances of ratification of the agreement by the Canadian parliament, or possibly to startle England into stepping in with an attempt to forbid the Dominion from taking any such action.

The Bennet bill "lasted quick" when it got before the house committee, and for this the country should be duly thankful. It is a relief to learn that all the anti-reciprocity men in congress are not moved by such contemptible impulses as prompted the proposal of such a measure.

There have been times in the history of this continent when the idea of Canadian annexation has taken strong hold on the American people, but this is not one of them. When the Colonies won their independence the question of Canadian annexation was broached, but it was rejected by the leaders of that day, and subsequent events have proved the wisdom of their course. Had Canada been joined with the Colonies then, France could readily have demanded the cession of that territory to her, and in the light of the extensive settlement of that region by French people, she would have been very likely to make just that demand. That would have opened the way to a fresh conflict between France and England, in which the Colonies, drained though they had been by their own war, could hardly have helped taking part. The result might easily have been the loss of that independence they had won so sturdily, and their resumption of the position of a British dependency, or, in the event of a victory for France, they might have become tributary to that nation.

But the men in control of Colonial affairs evidently saw all these possibilities, and refused to entertain the idea of union at that time. There have been occasional periods since then when the subject has been broached, but the loyalty of Canada to Great Britain, and the friendly relations that have existed most of the time between this country and England and the United States and Canada, have operated to prevent any such consummation.

The international peace of the Anglo-Saxon world is more firmly fixed today than it ever was before, and there exists, therefore, less reasonable basis for annexation talk than at any other time. What the United States wants, and what Canada likewise wants, is an extension of markets, a simplification of commercial relations, that shall operate to strengthen the present friendly relations as well as improve the business life of each of the parties to the agreement. The Bennet bill was nothing but an indirect expression of petty partisanship, a bit of political horse-play that showed nothing else as plainly as that the forces of special privilege are prepared to go the limit in trying to prevent the establishment of the principle of reciprocity that the people of the country are demanding.

FINE!

During this last week two men who were seen to spit on the floor of a street car were arrested and fined.

That statement is worth repeating, both because it is a fact that is worthy of being impressed on the minds of several persons in this city and because it relates an event that is so rare as to be pretty nearly unique. Those who agree with these sentiments will please look back and read it over again. Especially if they are among those whose minds ought to be impressed.

There are few practices more disgusting, and also few more unsanitary than that of spitting on the floors of street cars. Or on the sides either, for the matter of that. There is a city ordinance against it. There are signs in the cars calling attention to the ordinance. And also there are some people so regardless of decency and the public health that they ignore both the ordinance and the sign. And the disgraceful part of it is that they get away with the act, unreproved and unpunished.

In the case of these two men who were arrested and fined there were mitigating circumstances. That is, circumstances that would serve to mitigate the arrest, not the offense. They were in a crowd that got obstreperous on the platform of the car. They made general nuisances of themselves in other ways than by expectoration. Finally the conductor couldn't stand it any longer, and he stopped the car and called a policeman, who arrested the men on a charge of violating the anti-spitting ordinance. But he could not manage all the five, so three of them got away.

Now there is nothing in the ordinance, so far as has been discovered, that allows a man, who otherwise is orderly, any more right to defile the car floors than the man who kicks up a rumpus. Also there is nothing in the medical journals that says a person engaged in a "rough house" produces saliva more objectionable than that of a man who sits quietly in his seat and reads the paper or stares out the window. But in actual practice there seems to be a distinction made between the two classes, and the moral appears to be that if you must spit, keep quiet otherwise.

But now that an example, or a pair of them, rather, have been made under the ordinance, why cannot the police or the street car men or whoever is in charge of the enforcement of the ordinance, stick to the principle and put a stop to the filthy practice? There ought to be no need of elaborating on the reasons for it. The man who violates the ordinance does a contemptible act. He makes mops of women's skirts and coats and of men's overcoats, besides spreading unhealthy refuse from his own throat and lungs in a public place. It is hard to imagine a more delightful situation for a germ or a microbe than a public street car, with its closeness, its ill-ventilation and its multiplicity of patrons. And every man and woman who violates the anti-spitting ordinance helps the germs along. We have the ordinance, and we have the courts and we have the officials. Also we have the violators of the ordinance, and what we want now is its enforcement to the very limit. The good work has been started. Push it along, and push it hard.

AGAINST THE INSANITY PLEA.

The Herald is glad to note and support the introduction by Representative Conley in the state legislature of a bill to head off the plea of insanity in the criminal courts of Minnesota. The state already has on its books a statute bearing on this subject, but the bill prepared by Mr. Conley goes somewhat further than the present law. It is copied, in fact, almost entirely from the recommendation made by the New York State Bar association committee for a law to be passed in that state.

Under the present Minnesota law provision is made for the return of a verdict "not guilty because insane," and on such a verdict being rendered, the court must commit the prisoner to some state institution for the insane. The time of the prisoner's detention there is left almost wholly with the court. Under the bill proposed by Mr. Conley, the verdict would read "guilty, but insane," and under such a verdict the court must sentence the prisoner to an institution for the detention of the criminal insane for a period equal to that which must have been spent in prison had the verdict read simply "guilty." It also provides that at the expiration of that period, unless there is reason to believe that the liberation of the person committed would not result in danger to others, the detention shall continue until release may safely be granted. In case of a crime which would carry a sentence of death if the defendant had not been found insane, the power to release the prisoner from incarceration in the asylum lies with the governor alone, instead of with the court.

Such a law is all right. It would work no hardship on persons actually insane who might be brought before the courts of the state on criminal charges, and at the same time would be sufficiently drastic to discourage any sane person from setting up the plea of insanity as a defense. It is almost impossible to conceive that anybody could choose being kept in an insane asylum in preference to prison. There should be no objection to the transference of the power to release such prisoners from the courts to the governor, for the latter official would be less subject to local influence than the former, and in such cases it would be local influence that would be most likely to be exerted to secure release. The measure has the indorsement of the New York bar, and should receive support in this state also.

WHY IS A CHURCH BELL?

Why is a church bell? Not why was it, but why is it? Everybody knows why it was. There was a time when clocks were not common property; when the clanging of the bell was the only way people could be informed as to the time of service. There are many beautiful associations with some bells, and there are many touching stories connected with the practice of ringing them. In one church at Kingston, N. Y., there is a bell in use today that was cast from articles of copper and silver and bronze contributed by members of the church in Revolutionary times. The metal was boxed up and shipped to Holland and cast into bell shape and sent back, and the bell is valued not only for its character as a bell, but for its historical and other associations.

Almost everybody is familiar with the lines from Whittier's poem "Snowbound"—"No church bell lent its Christian tone to the savage air." A pretty idea and beautifully expressed. Now here is another side of the question. Dr. Albert W. Ferris, president of the New York state lunacy commision, has just made a statement in which he says that bells are a contributing cause in many cases of insanity and that church bells are particular offenders. He urges a campaign to abolish bells from all the churches in New York. He declares that "no one has a personal right to create or maintain noise that is not necessary, and necessary noises should be minimized."

For years it was the custom in American cities to clang a huge alarm bell whenever there was a fire of any dimensions whatever. It was a relic of the days when every citizen was a fireman and the tocsin was used to summon the men to fight the flames. Today, with paid departments and electric fire alarm systems, the alarm bell as formerly used has been abolished in all cities of progressive character.

But the churches have kept to the old practice of disturbing the peace with the clangor of bells. It has been reduced in recent years, to some extent, but the practice continues to be in force in spite of the passing of the need for it. By a queer perversity of incident the day set apart for rest is the one on which the practice is most indulged. The result is that the noise emanating from the churches is the cause of additional profanity on the day when it would be natural to expect less of that kind of language than ordinarily. Also, the day on which persons with "nerves" have a right to expect relieving quiet and rest is the one on which they are made to suffer the most excruciating agony, intensified by the knowledge that the noise is unnecessary. If we are to do away with all relics of barbarism, it will be well to begin with the relics that have no reason for continuing to exist, and in these days of cheap clocks and public timepieces the church bell stands at the head of that list.

THE SHORT BALLOT FIGHT.

If anybody doubted that the advocates of the short ballot are in earnest, that they mean business, he must abandon those doubts now with the appearance of the first issue of the "Short Ballot Bulletin," published in New York City by the Short Ballot organization. The first issue is only a pamphlet of a dozen pages, but it contains matter of the most convincing sort. Besides statements from prominent men who give their reasons for supporting the cause of ballot reform, it gives a digest of the progress of the cause in the different states. Also, and this feature is particularly interesting in some respects, it gives letters from men opposed to the reform scheme.

In the list of officers of the organization are included the names of Woodrow Wilson, president; Winston Churchill, Ben B. Lindsey and William Allen White among the vice presidents, and on the advisory board, besides President Wilson, are Lawrence F. Abbott, Richard S. Childs, Henry Jones Ford and Norman Hapgood.

It would seem that the advocates of the short ballot have chosen an excellent method of presenting their cause. Not only that the publication form in itself is valuable, but the character of the matter it contains and the way in which the question is handled are such as to attract the attention of any person into whose hands the "Bulletin" may fall, and every effort is being made to get it into as many hands as possible.

As to the cause itself, it is a worthy one. Our system of elections has been developed in some ways, but with the multiplication of governmental agencies the old style of balloting has been outgrown, or at the best it has been rendered ineffective by the impossibility of the voters' getting personal knowledge of each of the great number of candidates, and by the growth of party organization and the concentration of power among political leaders and bosses. Governor Johnson of California has come out strongly in favor of the short ballot in that state, and the movement is gaining strength daily in all parts of the country.

TALKS WITH THE STATE PRESS

Were You Ever Surveyed.

Stillwater Gazette: Coming in pairs. One of the publishers of the Brisbee, N. D., Gazette was recently elected coroner, while the other captured the surveyorship. This gives the office the opportunity of surveying the live as well as the dead ones.

We knew there are big men in North Dakota, but didn't know they grew to such proportions that, in a pinch, tailors could not get their tape-lines around.

Where the Real Tragedy Lies.

Princeton Union: The so-called "publicity bureau" of St. Paul appears to have gone out of existence. This is much to be regretted as the letters received from this source two or three times a week enabled the country newspaper boys to keep tab on the movements of Governor Eberhart. And this, of course, is of great importance!

The grief of the newspaper men cannot be equal to that of the originator of the Eberhart propaganda.

The Case of Mr. Root.

Cass Lake Times: It's Root Lorimer or die with the senator from New York.

It would be a great deal more consistent for Mr. Root to root for a good, workable plan for the popular election of senators than to turn from an attack on Lorimer to a defense of the election system by which the scandal was made possible.

Might Agree With Both.

Two Harbors Journal-News: Congressman Miller has written the Commercial Club of Tower that he is with them in opposing a parcels post. It will be remembered that the Two Harbors Commercial club passed a resolution favoring the measure. Wonder who is right?

Has the Two Harbors club also received a letter from the congressman, perchance?

Undesirability of "Snus."

Ortonville Herald-Star: Skal du ha snus? Not if 150 voters who live near Canby have their way. They have petitioned the legislature to suppress the rapidly growing snuff using habit. They claim it contains poison. The petition has been referred to the pure food committee.

The bold 150 seem to be right up to snuff, even if the snuff isn't.

Consolation for New Orleans.

Albert Lea Standard: The big continental railroads had the pull and won out, and San Francisco, too far away for few except the plethoric to ever see, gets the Panama exposition. All the same New Orleans is the right place for it.

From the Head of the Lakes to the gulf seems to be just about as hard a walk as from here to Frisco, but we might get a canoe. No use now, though.

Almost in the Soup.

Red Wing Republican: Col. Rutabaga has entered Warriz with 800 troops. He will probably be reinforced by Maj. Carrot and Capt. Cabbage.

W'ar' riz?

What Lorimer Bought.

Walker Pilot: Seems to us that if a person is entitled to what he pays for, then Senator Lorimer ought to have that seat in the United States senate.

Also there was sold to Lorimer the honesty and integrity of men. Has he got 'em? Not much.

Decline of the "Equine."

Pine Tree Blaze: The farmers of Pendleton, Or., now use an automobile to lead their horses to and from the pasture. "How time do fly."

This seems to be a case in support of the adage that "Money makes the mare go." She's gone.

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Louisville Courier-Journal: "Money isn't everything," sighed the young man.

"Of course not," said the girl. "I know of a young couple that started housekeeping nicely on tobacco coupons alone."

Baltimore American: "What are you really going to swear off this year?"

"My taxes."

Judge: Ted—Hello, old man! Trying to shave yourself?

Ned—No. These are hatpin marks from riding in the subway.

Cleveland Leader: Warden—No'm; the guy that killed his family ain't here no more. The gov'nor pardoned him.

The Visitor—What a shame. I've brought him a lot of roses! What other murderers have you?

Boston Traveler: "I told you in so many words not to dare to take a drink today!" said Mrs. Jawback.

"Tha'sh what y' did, m' dear," agreed Mr. Jawback. "You tol' me in so many words that I couldn't remember 'em."

Washington Star: "A number of performances are being described as improprieties," said one theatrical producer.

"Yes," replied the other, "it's getting harder every year to tell what improprieties the public regards as proper."

Chicago News: The Tailor—Married or single?

The Customer—Married. Why?

The Tailor—Then let me recommend my patent safety-deposit pocket. It contains a most ingenious little contrivance that feels exactly like a live mouse.

Catholic Standard and Times: Dreamer—Did you ever think what you'd do if you had Rockefeller's income?

Mugley—Yes, and I've often wondered what he'd do if he had mine.

Life: Cobble—I should like to lend you that $10, old man, but I know how it would be if I did—it would end our friendship.

Stone—Well, old chap, there has been a great deal of friendship between us, I think if you could make it five, we might worry along on half as much.

Kansas City Journal: "If we didn't have to give back any change, think of the money we merchants would make."

"We all have our troubles," said the magazine publisher. "Sometimes it frets me to have to print any reading matter, but I s'pose it must be done."

Boston Globe: Miss Kay—I am told your husband, under the influence of the wine at dinner the other evening, declared he had "married beauty and brains."

Mrs. Bee—Well, well, how nice!

Miss Kay—Nice? Aren't you going to investigate? Evidently he's a bigamist.

Boston Herald: She—Yes, I like Ted; he is so extravagant.

He—That is hardly the best quality for a husband, it is?

She—Of course, not; I am not going to marry him.

Smart Set: Singleton—Do you believe in the old adage about marrying in haste and repenting at leisure?

Wedderly—No; I don't. After a man marries he has no leisure.

VIRGINIA CITY BAND AND THE COMMERCIAL CLUB.

To the Editor of The Herald:

On Feb. 14, I received a letter from William J. Archer of this city stating that the Commercial club had thought it best to reorganize the City band, and had decided to recall all of the band uniforms. I would like to have Mr. Archer explain what more right the Commercial club has to reorganize the City band than the City band has to reorganize the city. When the members of the band went to the Commercial club looking for their pay for playing last Fourth of July, they did not go looking for a master or a guardian. If the club is going to reorganize the band every time the boys ask for their pay, the city will never have a very good band. Virginia now has the best band it has had for many years.

If Mr. Archer or any member of the Commercial club will meet the members of the City band before a mass meeting of the citizens and explain why they should take the uniforms, we will pay the expenses of the meeting. Why does not the Fourth of July committee give an itemized report of the celebration to show why it has no money to pay the band? If the Commercial club wants my uniform it can pay me for playing on the Fourth of July, but I will go to jail before giving it up otherwise, and it is the same with the rest of the boys.

CHILDREN CATCHING ON SLEIGHS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

So much has been written in The Herald about the overloading and cruel treatment of our horses on the hills of Duluth, I beg to call the attention of parents to the incessant catching on teams of their children, and to urge them to help protect our horses from more unnecessary loads by explaining to the children how the horses are, at the best, having a very hard time at this season of the year particularly, and many, many of them are constantly overloaded, so with the additional load of children it seems very heartless that the children should be anxious to add this burden, when they have been asked to assist in protecting animals.

Yesterday afternoon I saw a poor old grey horse (to be sure, with an almost empty sleigh) evidently just free, judging from the exhausted condition he was in; yet five boys jumped on the sleigh going up hill, and began whipping the horse to have a faster ride.

AN EAST ENDER.
Duluth, Feb. 18.

The Chambered Nautilus.

This is the ship of pearl, which, poets feign,
Sails the unshadowed main—
The venturous bark that flings
On the sweet summer wind its purpled wings
In gulfs enchanted, where the siren sings,
And coral reefs lie bare,
Where the cold sea maids rise to sun their streaming hair.

Its webs of living gauze no more unfurl;
Wrecked is the ship of pearl!
And every chambered cell,
Where its dim dreaming life was wont to dwell,
As the frail tenant shaped his growing shell;
Before thee lies revealed—
Its irised ceiling rent, its sunless crypt unsealed!

Year after year behold the silent toil
That spread his lustrous coil;
Still, as the spiral grew,
He left the past year's dwelling for the new,
Stole with soft step its shining archway through,
Built up its idle door,
Stretched in his last-found home, and knew the old no more.

Thanks for the Heavenly message brought by thee,
Child of the wandering sea,
Cast from her lap, forlorn!
From thy dead lips a clearer note is born
Than ever Triton blew from wreathed horn!
While on mine ear it rings,
Through the deep caves of thought I hear a voice that sings.

Build thee more stately mansions, O! my soul,
As the swift seasons roll!
Leave thy low-vaulted past!
Let each new temple, nobler than the last,
Shut thee from Heaven with a dome more vast,
Till thou at length art free,
Leaving thine outgrown shell by life's unresting sea!

—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

The Refuse of Cities.

Communication in New York Sun: For two years I have carried on experiments in utilizing street sweepings, garbage and sewage for fertilizing purposes, and I have succeeded in making a fertilizer at a cost of about $5 a ton that in every way equals the commercial fertilizer sold in the market at from $24 to $32 a ton.

Let us take a look at the city waste and see what it mainly consists of. To be sure, the dust comes from the pavement, but you find plenty of powdered rock in commercial fertilizer; but mixed with this rock dust there are the droppings of horses and the powder of millions of pairs of shoe soles. Horse manure is valuable, leather dust, pure animal matter, is not less so. Wood ashes, what little there is of it, is very valuable; coal ashes not quite as valuable, nevertheless they help the land in the same manner as lime. Add to these the garbage, consisting of grease, meat and vegetable matter, and you can see at a glance that in a large city millions of dollars' worth of good fertilizing stuff is absolutely lost.

What is true of the dry waste of a city is even more so of the wet waste in form of sewage, in fact, this material is so valuable that the city of Berlin takes out of its sewers a yearly revenue running 'way up into the millions. What Berlin and other European cities have done can be accomplished here, and I predict that when our cities once turn into gold what now seems mere filth and dirt we shall have cleaner streets. Large plants to convert city refuse into fertilizer could be established at comparatively small expense.

The Demand For Government By Commission.

Experts in the science of municipal government are strongly in favor of the commission form of administration, believing it to be progressive and expeditious.

Students of politics do not see in this system any danger from the centralization of power or anything which trespasses upon the rights of the people. To the contrary, they declare that the commission form, with its fewer responsible officers, provides a guard against corruption and insures responsiveness to popular opinion.

Galveston was the first city to adopt government by commission, but in the ten years since Galveston first tried it seventy odd cities, mostly in the West, have adopted it.

And it works well. It has led to efficient administration and to the practice of greater economy. It has done away with many of the evils attendant upon municipal government and generally has given satisfaction.

Not Public-Spirited.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

Great Men and the Rest of Us.

Midway between the celebration of Lincoln's birthday and that of Washington, we pause to ask not simply what kind of men were they, what did they do, but what relation have they to the rest of us, to whom the adjectivce "great" could never even by the wildest stretch of the imagination be applied. Are we limited simply to the admiration of them from a distance, to the annual chanting of their praises in concert with others, or can we do something better than that—good as it is—and through study of their efforts and characteristics learn some of the useful lessons for our own lives? It is always profitable even to admire great men, but if we can imitate them or find cheering suggestions in their experiences, they help to lift the level of human life generally. Indeed, Harnack, the great German theologian, has said that the value of a great man consists in the fact that he, by his very greatness, lifts all men.

Our two most famous presidents were men of very different antecedents and personal traits. The one was of patrician extraction and was accustomed from childhood to comfortable surroundings; the other shared from birth the dubious fortunes of frontier life, a small and poorly furnished "shack," a rude and frugal diet, little in the way of inherited refinement, such was Lincoln's fate. But both types of men are needed in a republic. It would be unforunate if ideals of public service burned in the breasts only of men who wear plain clothes and have little money in the bank. Such men, indeed, can serve the state, and are serving it, but on the other hand the republic needs and welcomes the help with such men as Roosevelt can bring it out of an environment of comparative ease and culture.

Neither of these two presidents rode in a Pullman car to greatness. Each had his peculiar tests and difficulties. When a company of little school children was asked the other day what were some of George Washington's trials, a little boy on the front seat raised his hand and responded, "Please, sir, he couldn't tell a lie." But if this is true, this deprivation was only one of his lesser annoyances, indeed, the path of both Washington and Lincoln was strewn with entangling obstacles. Nor were they themselves great from birth, they had to achieve it each in his own way; nor were they uniformly great, they had their off days when they exhibited characteristics far from praise-worthy when they gave way to discouragement or irritability. Never forget that your hero, whoever he is, was a man of like passions with you, he had to make his fight for character, he had to win his way against odds, he was not so perfect as to discourage any imitation on the part of others.

But the distinctive element in the greatness of both Lincoln and Washington was their reliance on someone greater than they. Much has been written on their religious life and authorities do not entirely agree on certain points, but there is ample evidence that both men trusted and sought to serve a higher power. Washington was probably the more conventionally religious, though never intolerant. He once remarked to a Presbyterian minister at whose hand he wished to take the communion, "Though a member of the Church of England I have no exclusive partialities." When in camp before Boston in 1775, he had prayer morning and evening, and was regular in church attendance. During his first term as president, he said to a physician attending him in sickness, "I am not afraid to die, whether tonight or twenty years hence makes no difference. I know that I am in the hands of a good Providence."

And as to Lincoln, while he was not a church member and while unfortunately the churches fifty years ago maintained, many of them, so rigid a standard that a man of Lincoln's free spirit would be ruled out, he was religious in the truest sense of the term, and grew more so as the weight of responsibilities pressed hard upon him. Otherwise he could not have borne up under the strain. Says President J. G. Schurman of Cornell university, "I wish to say, deliberately, after reading many lives of Lincoln and trying to understand the history of the Civil war, that in my opinion the Union could not have been restored without the unseen, but none the less real, power that came to the nation through Lincoln's belief in God and confidence in his moral government of the world."

In this sense not only Lincoln and Washington, but the greatest men throughout all the centuries have been religious. One ought not to become religious simply because he is likely thereby to attain greatness, but if he considers himself irreligious, he ought to ask how it comes about that a quality which shines out so distinctly in the great and noble of the earth which helped to make them what they were, should be conspicuously lacking in himself.

Meerschaum Getting Scarce.

Consular Reports: The valuable material from which meerschaum pipes are made is continually getting scarcer, and the large industry which has flourished in Vienna, Budapest, Nuremberg, Paris and in the Thuringian town of Ruhla seems endangered.

The manufacture of meerschaum pipes is much more important than is generally supposed. The town of Ruhla alone has been exporting in round figures pipes to the value of about $1,500,000 annually. The finest grade of meerschaum is found near Eski-Schehr, in Anatolia, Asia Minor, in a hollow which in early days was a lake, in which the meerschaum was precipitated. Meerschaum is also found in other places, including Thebes, Egypt, the Bosnian mountains in the neighborhood of Grubschitz, and Nuendorff in Moravia, and in some sections of Spain and Portugal.

A GREAT TARIFF SPEECH

By SAVOYARD.

A plain, positive, irrepressible, inexorable issue is presented to the Democratic party, and it may be called Ben Tillmanism and expressed thus: "As long as any stealing is going on I want to get South Carolina's share."

Opposed to that is Champ Clarkism and it may be stated this way: "If there is any stealing going on, I want no share of it for Missouri." That is the kittle of fish set before the Democratic party. Carried to its inevitable conclusion, the idea of Tillman would banish every honest man from congress. Followed to its unavoidable sequence the idea of Clark would cleanse congress of its every grafter. There is no half way ground. The party must be one or the other—for honest tariff or for knavish tariff.

What would you think of a church that would grant each member indulgence to harbor a pet sin? Heaven would register anathema against it, and hell would chuckle over it. One "worshiper" would claim the exercise of the sin of covetousness; another would practice the sin of blasphemy; another would abolish the Sabbath day; another would harbor malice; another would steal; another would bear false witness, and so on and so on. All of them would be regular saints except in one pet particular. And so also with some of our Democratic friends—all sound on the tariff, except that each one has a pet industry to take care of. It is such a harmless, innocent, poor little thing, generally in the raw-material line.

The foregoing reflections are drawn from the speech of William R. Smith of Texas, delivered in the national house of representatives early in the present session, and so able, so thorough, so conclusive of the question it is that I set about inquiring as to the antecedents of this admirable man and am sorry that the entire country cannot meet him and profit by the contact. His speech is devoted to the subject of raw materials, and he treats it from the standpoint of the true Democrat, which is, that it is impossible to exorcise the demon of protection if the American manufacturers are not to be put on equal footing with the foreign manufacturers of England and Germany, who have free raw materials.

Scratch a standpat Republican and he is for a tariff on raw materials, for he will know that it is the very foundation stone of his edifice of tariff graft. Put raw materials on the free list and protection will die. Keep raw materials on the duty list and protection will survive. I will return to this later.

William R. Smith is a native of the magnificent and imperial state of Texas, born in 1863, of Georgia parents who went down to the Lone Star state in 1858. His father, Samuel A. Smith, and five of his father's brother's were soldiers of the Confederate army, and remarkable to relate, the representative had five maternal uncles also in that army. Thus he is of a soldier race, and that square forehead, that iron jaw, those firm lips, those splendid eyes, show him to be the very highest product of that highest of the races, Anglo-Saxon.

The elder Smith was a farmer and the son is a child of the soil, toiling in the field from sun to sun the crop season, and attending the country school after harvest. So diligent was the youth that at the early age of 18 he was himself a teacher, and at 19 he entered the Sam Houston Normal institute at Huntsville, where he was graduated the following year. Then he began to study law in the office of a leading firm of which the late Governor Hogg was a member at Tyler. When just old enough to vote, the young student was admitted to the bar, and practiced his profession two years at Tyler, when he moved to Colorado City, where he ahs resided ever since.

In 1897, the governor of Texas appointed Mr. Smith district judge, and twice he was elected to that office by the people, having no opposition for either term. In 1902, he was returned to the Fifty-eighth congress, and resigned from the bench. Judge Smith has been repeatedly re-elected to congress and is now serving his fourth term, and will have a seat in the Sixty-second congress also. His public career has never been spectacular. Gifted with ample physical strength, a hardy physical constitution, robust physical health, a love of mental and physical labor, a passion for research and accuracy, with a calm, sedate, judicial mind, and equable temper, Judge Smith is an ornament to the American congress. His reputation for integrity is of the highest and his counsel is always received with respect.

He it was who secured the legislation authorizing and setting on foot a gigantic irrigation project on the Rio Grande that will subject to the husbandman 200,000 acres of the richest land in the hemisphere. This work is now in process of construction and when completed will be of incalculable benefit to the future mighty empire of Texas.

I would love to quote copiously from the admirable speech of Judge Smith in advocacy of free raw material; but the entire speech is quotable, and I hope that it will have a wide circulation not only in Texas, but throughout the country. Here is the true doctrine laid down by Judge Smith, and it is Democracy undefiled:

"Mr. Chairman, there is an imperative reason why raw material should be admitted into the country free of duty if only a revenue duty is to be levied upon manufactured products, and that is because practically all other manufacturing countries admit raw material free. If we levy a tariff on raw material, we would, to the extent of the tariff, increase the cost of the manufacturers' products into which such raw material is made, and we would thereby handicap the home manufacturer in his contest with the foreign manufacturer in foreign markets. Indeed, the tendency and effect of a tax upon raw material would be to greatly impair and in a great measure destroy the export trade of our home manufacturers.

"Moreover, it would give the foreign manufacturer an advantage over the home manufacturer in our own home markets unless a compensatory duty should be levied in favor of the home manufacturer and if such compensatory duty were levied the cost to the consumer would be increased to that extent.

"Other very disastrous consequences would follow the curtailment of our export trade. The demand for our raw material would thereby be correspondingly curtailed and the demand for labor greatly diminished. Every duty levied upon the raw material of manufacture operates as so much protection in favor of foreign manufacturers against our manufacturers at home and abroad.

"On the other hand, the advantages to be derived from free raw material are many. If our manufacturers were not burdened by a tax upon their raw material, they would need no protection, and the duty upon their products could be reduced to a revenue basis. They could go into foreign markets and meet the competition of the world. They could expand their export trade and thereby enlarge the demand for raw material at home, thus giving the producer of raw material a steady market for his product. They would be enabled to sell to the consumers of this country more cheaply, and under the reduced tariff would be compelled to do so."

Then he quotes Texas' grand old man, Richard Coke, in favor of untaxed raw materials and untaxed machinery.

Taxed raw material is Republican doctrine. I heard Pig Iron Kelly make an elaborate speech in that behalf and his proposal was that any product that had resulted from a single stroke of labor was entitled to what he called the benefits of the "beneficient policy of protection." He knew that if the manufacturer was taxed for his material he would be protected in his finished product. Senator Aldrich is for taxed raw materials, and well he knows that the infamous temple of protection will topple and fall when the manufacturer can no longer put in the plea that in as much as he is taxed for what he must buy he must be protected in what he has to sell. Speaker Cannon is for taxed raw material and he knows that it is the strongest staff protection has to lean on. Payne, Dalzell, Smoot, Burrows, Penrose, and all the other standpatters to a man are against free raw materials.

"Oh, but," says some Democrat, "free raw material would be an additional protection to the manufacturer." That is precisely what the standpat Republicans want every Democrat to think and what he wants every Democrat to say. As long as the Democrats hold to that idea, protection is safe from Democratic assault. If free wool is what the manufacturers want, why was that troop of wool manufacturers, representing $500,000,000, here the other day protesting against free wool? They know that the day wool goes on the free list the tariff on their goods will be reduced more than one-half, and the clothing and blankets of the American family will cost less than one-half what they cost now. Hence Senator Warren, the wool raiser, is for 100 per cent tax on blankets, and the man who makes the blankets is for high tariff on Senator Warren's wool. It amounts to a combination in restraint of trade against the baby in the cradle and the corpse in the coffin to make Warren a multi-millionaire along with the men who spin and weave his wool.

Nobody will dispute that the four greatest Democrats who ever held the office of secretary of the treasury were Albert Gallatin, Robert J. Walker, James Guthrie, and John G. Carlisle—all favorable to free raw material. It is true that Walker did not put it in the tariff of 1846, but he, the greatest doctor of political economy the Democratic party ever produced, lived to say that his bill would have been better had raw material been untaxed.

Morrison and Mills, William L. Wilson and James B. Beck, Grover Cleveland and William J. Bryan, Champ Clark and Judson Harmon—these all favored free raw material, as did the great Democratic secretaries of the treasury I mention. On the other hand, Pig Iron Kelly and Nelson Dingley, Nelson W. Aldrich and Joseph G. Cannon, John Dalzell and Sereno E. Payne, the steel trust, the wool trust, the lumber trust, the coal trust and other monopolies oppose free raw material. The beef trust, the egg trust, the butter trust, the sugar trust are all for taxed foods.

Men of the South, choose your company. When the demon of protection hoists the signal of distress, will you launch the lifeboat, tariff-on-raw-materials, and go to the rescue?

We shall see. That is what you did when the Payne-Aldrich monster was hatching.

NEW EPOCH FOR THE RED CROSS

Relief Administered at Thirty-Three Disasters in Six Years—Role Red Cross Plays in Times of Peace—How $5,000,000 Has Been Expended.

By ERNEST P. BICKNELL,
National Director, American Red Cross.

(Exclusive Service The Survey Press Bureau.)

A charter granted by congress and approved by the president, Jan. 5, 1905, began a new epoch for the American Red Cross. This assigned broad powers to the Red Cross and gave it an official status. William H. Taft, then secretary of war, accepted its presidency, a position which he still holds. The responsibilities of the organization according to its charter are as follows:

"To furnish volunteer aid to the sick and wounded of armies in time of war."

• • • "And to carry on a system of national and international relief in time of peace and apply the same in mitigating the sufferings caused by pestilence, famine, fire, floods, and other great national calamities, and to devise and carry on measures for preventing the same."

The Red Cross is governed by a central committee of eighteen, of whom six are appointed by the president of the United States and twelve elected. This committee appoints a national director. Under the central committee are state boards, which are financial representatives in the collection and disbursement of relief funds in their respective states, and chapters which are local groups of members.

Field work is divided into three classes and, is assigned to three boards, the war relief board, the national relief board and the international relief board.

The war relief board at present conducts a department of first aid and a department of nursing. Miners, railroad men, sailors, workmen in great industrial establishments, police and firemen are taught the practical application of first aid to the injured. A car especially equipped carries lecturers to all parts of the country. Local physicians continue the instruction after the car passes on. Several thousand men are now receiving instruction in first aid in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Illinois, Oklahoma, Iowa, Tennessee and other states. The Red Cross also supervises the first aid instruction given by those in charge of the seven mine rescue cars of the United States bureau of mines. In time of war the knowledge of first aid widely inculcated would bring into the volunteer armies many men well prepared for service in hospitals and in the care of wounded on the battle fields.

Under the department of nursing, graduate nurses are also enrolled for service in time of war or disaster.

All Red Cross work is under the control of the national relief board. The national director represents this board and the central committee, at the scene of disaster and organizes and directs the rescue work. Relief funds are in the custody of the board of the city in which the disaster has occurred and are paid out on requisition of the national director, or the proper officers of the local committee as approved by the national director.

The Red Cross has enlisted the cooperation of certain of the strongest charity organization societies. These pledge themselves on request to send members of their regular trained forces to the scene of a disaster to serve as a fixed nucleus for the staff of volunteers from the community. These experienced agents, are also enabled to assist in the difficult work of rehabilitation, after the volunteers have returned to their homes and usual employments. At present the charity organization societies of Atlanta, Brooklyn, Buffalo, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Hartford, Minneapolis New Haven, New York city, Pittsburg, St. Louis, St. Paul, San Francisco and Washington co-operate in this way. In the last two years these societies have participated effectively in Red Cross relief work following disasters in Key West, Fla.; Cherry, Ill.; Birmingham, Ala.; Drakesboro, Ky., and the forest fire region of Minnesota.

Contributions made to sufferers in foreign countries are under the direction of the international relief board. Usually the American Red Cross is represented by the diplomatic or consular agents of the United States nearest the point of relief operations.

Since 1905, the variety and extent of relief work may be partly shown by the following table:

Some funds are now in process of disbursement.

In the holiday season of 1907, the Red Cross desiring to forward anti-tuberculosis work, issued a Christmas stamp in the state of Delaware and the city of Philadelphia. The experiment was a success. In 1908, the movement was made national. The purpose is to contribute to the support of organized tuberculosis work already in operation. The net proceeds of sales are expended in the states and communities in which the sales are conducted. In 1908 the total sales of stamps amounted to about $150,000 and in 1909 about $240,000. Returns for 1910 are not yet in hand.

While the Red Cross has an official federal status, it receive no financial support from congress. It has had meager provision for its necessary operating expenses. It needs an emergency fund upon which to draw instantly at times without waiting for the returns from a public appeal and occasionally without making an appeal at all, or to supplement an appeal when the returns are inadequate. Recently an effort has been begun to create for the Red Cross an endowment fund from the permanent income of which these deficiencies may be met. This effort promises to be successful. Already about $650,000 has been subscribed, and it is hoped the amount may reach $2,000,000.

When its new charter was granted in 1905, the Red Cross lacked organization. Its resources were comparatively small and its operations restricted. Its new strength is reflected in the expenditure of almost $5,000,000 in relief following thirty-three disasters and in a broadened public appreciation.

GREAT INTEREST IN RECIPROCITY

Schwab Says Question Is Being Closely Watched Abroad.

New York, Feb. 18.—"The subject of greatest interest now before the world at large," said Charles M. Schwab yesterday, as he stepped from the gangplank of the Mauretania, "is the pending reciprocity agreement between the United States and Canada. It is being watched more closely abroad than the coming decisions of the supreme court in the Standard Oil and the tobacco cases.

"Personally, I believe in reciprocity," he continued. "There is no real boundary between the two countries—nothing but an imaginary line. And there is no reason why two nations so situated should not have closer trade relations.

"Annexation?" Every sensible man knows that isn't seriously considered by Americans, nor, in my experience, is it so considered in England."

A. White Maconchis, Unionist member of parliament, for East Aberdeenshire in 1905, who was another arrival on the Mauretania, did not believe that discussion of the reciprocity question in England would result in any pressure upon Canada one way or another.

"England is not likely to attempt to dictate to Canada on the matter of reciprocity with the United States," said Mr. Maconchis. "We had a lesson when we tried to dictate to you," he added.

"Dutchman" Brings Fine.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 18.—John Flood called Policeman Schneider "a big Dutchman." Schneider arrested Flood who was fined $15.

ONE WAY OUT. By William Carleton. Boston: Small, Maynard & Co. $1.20.

A book that should be read by every salaried man and his wife, not because it may show them a "way out," but because it is almost sure to set them to thinking. William Carleton was a salaried man—a clerk in a big manufacturing concern. He and his wife lived comfortably on his salary of $30 a week. When their boy came they found themselves somewhat pinched, but they managed to get on until one day the husband was told that he must stand a $200 cut in his pay or quit. He could see no way to live on the lower wage, and gave up his position, expecting to get another without difficulty. But he was too old—nearly 40—to be acceptable, and his designation as a "clerk" was too indefinite to suit possible employers. For a time he was idle, and then conceived the idea of "emigrating to America." He cut loose entirely from the old life, sold his furniture and paid his debts and started all over again just as the aliens who come to this country start. He got a job as a day laborer and worked with pick and shovel for $1.50 a day, taking his wife and boy into a tenement district to make their living expenses conform to their new income. The rest of the story is even more interesting than what went before. In his new position he has a chance to realize the advantages of free or cheap instruction in trades and the benefits provided for the poor by public and semi-public enterprises. He begins to study how to better himself and his condition. But most of all, he and his wife begin to save money, having learned by their former experience. Gradually Carleton, inspired by the examples set him by fellow-workmen among the immigrants, rises to a point where he himself becomes an employer, and has accomplished his journey "out."

Although the story is written with an attention to detail and in a style that reminds one forcibly of the "Swiss Family Robinson," and although there is a lack of convincing power, so that one is constantly besieged by a sense of skepticism as one reads, the book is interesting, and best of all it is a thought-breeder. It makes a man on salary wonder just what he would do under circumstances like those in which Carleton was placed. It makes a man wonder about his own ability to begin saving something. And it makes a woman wonder what she can do to help the family's provision for what may happen. While not strong, it is a book worth reading.

WHEN GOD LAUGHS. By Jack London. New York: The MacMillan company. $1.50.

Although the title of the book is taken from the first of the dozen short stories which go to make up the volume, a cynical reader will see a connection between the title and every one of the stories told. They are mental studies rather than relations of incidents, tales of how different men act under different conditions. There is little of the really beautiful about any of them, but one might ask what of beauty can there be in the plain revealment of the workings of the mind under circumstances that demand the highest realization of personal interests. The stories are well written, and their psychological character gives them a fascination that is unusual in a collection of short stories. Some of those included in this volume are: "When God Laughs," "A Wicked Woman," "The Chinago," "Just Meat," "An Apostate," the story of a boy factory-worker, and "A Piece of Steak," the story of a prize fight.

NEIGHBORS UNKNOWN. By Charles G. D. Roberts. New York: The MacMillan company. $1.50.

Mr. Roberts is acknowledged to be one of the most interesting writers of animal stories, and so far as the general reader can judge he is not liable to the charge of being a "nature-faker." He tells of the exploits of the wild creatures, sometimes in their relation to man and sometimes in their relations with other wild creatures, but his writings are singularly free from attempts to interpret the mental processes of his subjects. In this volume have been collected a number of his stories that have appeared from time to time in magazines, and among them are the best he has written and published in recent years. They include "The Black Swamp," "The Cat That Played Robinson Crusoe," "Gray Lynx's Last Hunting," "A Torpedo in Feathers," "The Theft" and "The Tiger of the Sea."

THE STORY OF CANNING AND RECIPES. By Marion Harland. Bel Air, Md.: Bureau of Publicity, National Canners' association. 2 cents.

A collection of recipes for the preparation of fruit, vegetables, fish, meats and other foods, prefaced by a brief account of the sterilization and preservation of foods by intense heat. The recipes include those for many soups, salads and desserts, with some special instruction in the use of canned foods. Included in this is the special injunction, "Never turn the contents of a newly opened can directly into the vessel in which they are to be cooked."

Of Books and Writers.

The list of authors whose writings Charles Scribner's Sons publish this season is unusual. In fiction it includes John Galsworthy, Frank H. Spearman, Maurice Heylett, Sir A. T. Quiller-Couch, E. W. Hornung; in more serious literature, Robert Louis Stevenson, Price Collier, H. E. Krehbiel, Edward Dickinson.

John Galsworthy's novel, "The Patricians," presents a brilliant picture of aristocratic English life; Frank H. Spearman in his dramatic novel, "Robert Kimberly," gives another fascinating character, one to be described accurately as a Napoleon of business; Maurice Hewlett in "Brazenhead the Great" has created a most bizarre, amusing and adventurous personage, whose career he traces: "Q" in "Brother Copas" tells the delightfully amusing and whimsical adventures of some "old brothers" and a little girl; E. W. Hornung gives an original and thrilling story of crime and science in "The Camera Fiend;" L. Allan Harker in "Master and Maid" relates the love story of a true Irish girl, a person of great charm; and Frances Powell, with the Riviera for setting, contributes a baffling story of mystery—"The Old Maid's Vengeance."

Among the more serious writings stand a new four-volume definitive edition of Stevenson's Letters, which contains 100 letters never before published; Price Collier's new study on lines similar to "England and the English from an American Point of View;" "The West in the East from an American Point of View;" H. E. Krehbiel's excellent work, "The Pianoforte and Its Music;" Edward Dickinson's "The Education of a Music Lover," wherewith to study the art of listening; George B. Cutten's "Three Thousand Years of Mental Healing;" the story of one of the earliest and greatest of American hunters, "The Adventures of James Capen Adams," by Theodore H. Hittell; and George Bird Grinnell's stories of adventure and discovery which deal with the achievements of the most important of America's early pioneers.

The death of few recent writers has made so profound an effect as that of the late Owen Kildare. Many columns have been written about him in the metropolitan papers, and his career was, indeed, singular; a newsboy at the age of 7, and, in successive stages, gang member, prize fighter, "bouncer," bartender, a man who, at the age of 30, did not know the letters of the alphabet, he became in a surprisingly short period the author of those remarkable books "My Mamie Rose," "The Good of the Wicked," etc., which made him the "Bowery Kipling." His publishers, the Baker & Taylor Co., say that "My Mamie Rose," has sold in various editions many thousand copies, and continues to be one of the most popular books on their list.

Mrs. Margaret Hill McCarter's "The Price of the Prairie," recently published by A. C. A dramatic coincidence was the arrival in Hays on the afternoon of the performance of the Seventh cavalry, Custer's old regiment, with whose history Mrs. McCarter's book is so largely concerned. The regiment was on its way from Fort Riley to the Philippines.

Gustav Frenssen's Klaus Hinrich Baas, which is to be published in a few weeks by the Macmillan company belongs to that great class of fiction which has to do with the rise of what is commonly styled "a self-made man." It is a story of deep interest, marvelous in its portrayal of real life. While the scene is Germany, it might, with a few trifling alterations be America, for in these two countries is found the same tireless rush of things in the commercial world, and the story of Klaus Baas' gradual but sure and steady accumulation of power over his life, resembles to a considerable degree the story of the lives of several of our great kings of finance.

Among the Magazines.

Why every effort to regulate home-work in manufacturing processes must fail is convincingly told by Elizabeth C. Watson in the Survey for February. She tells of the inevitable consequences of child labor in the home in a new way and enlivens her text with a number of adaptations of the Mother Goose rhymes. Frederick Law Olmstead in a discussion of "The Pittsburg City Plan" and contributes an article which as Charles Mulford Robinson shows, is of general application to the problems of street traffic in every city, while Allen T. Burns of the Pittsburg civic commission shows how the metropolis of steel, famed for its individualism, is coalescing its city forces in a way that sets an example for all other places. In "Witzwil, A Successful Penal Farm," Prof. Fetter of Cornell tells how the canton of Berne, Switzerland, charges this state penal institution rent for its land and buildings exceeding its annual appropriations, so that it is self-supporting although on a smaller scale than such an institution would be in most of our states.

The March St. Nicholas, issued Feb. 15, shows its timeliness and its patriotism by a narrative of "Washington's Ten Narrow Escapes"—from the treachery of a guide, from drowning, from different perils of frontier life and war. There are many spirited illustrations, and the frontispiece is a full-page reproduction of H. A. Ogden's painting of "Close to the Enemy, at Princeton." There is, besides the full store of short stories and sketches, and new chapters of the serials—Frederick Orin Bartlett's "The Forest Castaways," Ralph Henry Barbour's "Team-mates," and John Martin's "Letters to Very Little Folk," Hildegarde Hawthorne's "Books and Reading"—the beginning of a novel kind of adventure story, "Young Crusoes of the Sky," by F. Lovell Coombs. The St. Nicholas league contributions this month are of a high degree of excellence in every department, prose, verse, drawing, photography. Letters to the editor of the department show that in more than one school these contests are made part of the pupils' regular work. In a private school in Columbus, Ohio, and in a Philadelphia orphan asylum, the children "write for St. Nicholas" every month, their contests are sifted and criticized by the teachers, and the work is sent on, to be formally entered in the current St. Nicholas League contest.

There is at least one story in the current Popular Magazine which will arouse the enthusiasm of every disciple of old Isaak Walton. The fisherman knows that every fishing water has its own particular monsters. Arthur E. McFarlane tells of the "Cooshwas," the particular monsters of Mashamagog. They were shy fellows, but the young Pawnees gathered them in, and it was up to the Reel and Creelers to get busy. How they went to work, and the success they achieved, is told in Mr. McFarlane's delightful story of the out-of-doors.

The March number of Popular Mechanics contains 295 articles and 309 illustrations, all so live and interesting that it is almost impossible to choose "features" for mention. In marine affairs, there are accounts of the raising of the Maine, now under way, by Col. William M. Black, who is in charge of the salvage operations; the outwitting of an Arctic winter by a mariner who was beached on the Alaskan coast, but improvised a steam shovel and dug his way out; the launching of the new U. S. battleship Arkansas; the raising of a sunken submarine by the German rescue ship Vulcan; and a description of two remarkable new motor boats. Contrary to the tendency of many publications, H. H. Windsor comes out in strong editorial denouncing muckraking. Acknowledging the element of good, he points out, with startling emphasis, the evils of catering to a perverted public taste for sensationalism, and the consequences now being reaped by publishers who have thus indulged.

The Keramic Studio for February is a naturalistic number by Mrs. Kathryn E. Cherry, who gave a conventional number several months ago, which was well received. The current number is replete with many new flower subjects which are suitable for conventionallization. The colored study of California poppies is very pleasing. The decorations for cream and sugar and toilet set are well worthy of mention and will appeal very forcibly to the china decorator. There are a number of new things in store for the Keramic readers in future publications, which will be of special value to the china decorations.

The issue of Harper's Weekly for Feb. 11 contains an article by Helen Woods entitled "Timby the Forgotten," in which the astonishing revelation is made that the body of the real inventor of the Monitor's revolving tower, who died recently, came near to being thrust into a pauper's grave. Henry White writes upon the "Perils of the Home Factory." In "The Science of City Building" Henry A. Horwood tells of the advantages of the "development secretary" to the city that wants to grow. Elizabeth Higgins writes of the profits of pecan-raising. A. H. Woodson tells of the real remedy for the liquor problem as many states have conceived it. This number contains William Winter's weekly theatrical review, the customary fiction, humor, and editorial features, and numerous other articles of interest.

James Barnes' novel "Unexplained" is the feature of the Smart Set for March. This novel presents a picture of New York society. The hero is a young man who acts the part of good friend to all his acquaintances—the sort of person to whom everyone turns in time of trouble and who finds himself left in the lurch while his friends go carelessly on to enjoy the freedom from worry secured through his efforts. There are many such "friends in need." "An Amateur Hobo," by Elliott Flower, is a tale of an unusual wager, in which a man of wealth and social position assumes a peculiar role. "The Little Voices," by Jay Hardy, tells of a physic experiment worked by a couple of Americans in Paris—with an interesting conclusion. "The Flavor of Life," by Ellen Heney, is a story of a woman who gives up her illusions and decides that a husband makes a good substitute. "Frozen Fire," by Frank K. M. Rehn, Jr., shows the fatal result of repressing all one's healthy emotions. "The Trinity Miraud," by Mabel Wood Martin, is a moving story of an artist's ideals. "Paula's Red Hair," by Aura Woodin Erentzeil, is a tale of chorus girl life and an ascent into higher realms.

With its February issue Human Life enters the fiction field, with one short story by George Ade, and "The Chief," a serial by Alfred Henry Lewis. Mr. Lewis' "The Boss" was the novel of its year, but "The Chief," with its amazing revelations concerning the New York city police, bids fair to eclipse anything he has ever written. But the introduction of fiction will in no wise change the policy of Human Life as pre-eminently "The Magazine About People." It will merely add the spice of greater variety. In the way of distinctive Human Life articles there are intimate stories of the following: Louis D. Brandeis and the brilliant legal battles he has waged for the people and against the "Interests;" Katherine H. M. Blackford, who has reduced character analysis to an exact solence; a comprehensive survey of the parcels post movement; Champ Clark, the next speaker, a character of national interest; the silly love affairs of the German poet, Hartlehen; the marital infelicities of certain well-known stage folk; Robert P. Bass, who is called "The People's Governor" up New Hampshire way; "Chicago Title Seekers," being another unsavory international romance; "Government by Student at Wellesley;" "The Girl on the Firing Line;" "T. W. Lamont," and a number of shorter sketches.

The members of the Temple assembly were hosts at a delightful dancing party last evening at the ballroom of the Masonic temple at which about 150 people danced. La Brosse's orchestra played a good program of dance music.

An amusing event of the evening proved that either the hobble skirt or the Spanish dance will have to go, for when the orchestra started the strains of the Southern music one couple started, then stopped to wait for others, and started again only to find that the others refused to dance.

The question is which will they give up.

CLUBS AND MUSICAL

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN THE CLUBS AND MUSICAL CIRCLES

Duluth Girl in Paris Contributes to Musical Journal—Minneapolis Artists Will Appear Here—Twentieth Century Club Notes—Miss Evert's Appearance.

THE many Duluth friends of Miss Isabel Pearson of this city, who is spending the winter in study abroad, will be interested in the short review of Alexander Guilmant, that Miss Pearson has written for the current issue of the Western Musical Herald, for which she has been correspondent during her study abroad. Since going to Paris in September, Miss Pearson has been a pupil under the great Guilmant, studying the organ under this venerable master of whom she has written to friends in this city in the most glowing terms.

Of the great master, Miss Pearson writes in the Musical Herald, as follows:

"In the most charming villa imaginable, in the quaint little town of Meudon, about twelve minutes' ride from Paris, where Wagner finished his score of 'The Flying Dutchman,' lives that great master of the organ, M. Alexander Guilmant, now in his 74th year. From all parts of the world, to this delightful villa, there come organ students in great numbers, for M. Guilmant has in his home a large three manual pipe organ built by the celebrated Paris builders, Cavaille-Coll, in whom M. Guilmant has a whole-hearted belief, and he may be found any day of the week, with one of these students listening keenly for the smooth legato of a Bach fugue, for such is the daily bread of the organist.

"After thirty years of service as organist at La Trinte de Paris, M. Guilmant now plays only in concert, occasionally at the Trocadero, or with the Lamoureux orchestra. Besides teaching the large number of students who go each week to his home, M. Guilmant is professor d'orgue at the Schola Cantorum, which he founded seventeen years ago with MM. Vincent d'Indy and Charles Bordes, and is also professor of the organ at the Conservatoire de Paris, for the degree of doctor of music.

"It was during the exhibition of 1878 that M. Guilmant began the famous series of organ recitals in the great hall of the Trocadero, Paris. Among the famous organs which have been inaugurated by him are notably those of Arras, Saint-Sulpice, Notre-Dame, and the famous organ at Riga, in Russia of 120 stops without couplers. At Rome, he presided at the inauguration of the organ of St. Louis of France, and stayed a month in the Eternal City, playing in public every day. Pope Leo XIII received him in special audience and made him commander of the order of St. Gregory the Great. Besides being a member of the Societe des Compositeurs de Musique, M. Guilmant is chevalier of the Legion of Honor, Knights of the Order of Sylvester and officer of the academy.

"M. Guilmant has played in Germany, Italy, Austria, Spain, Russia; for many years has made two trips to England for recitals yearly, and also has been to America three times, where he has played throughout the country from the East to the West.

"When M. Guilmant was 20, on a visit to Paris, he first heard Lemmens, the celebrated Belgian organist, and thither he went to become Lemmens' favorite pupil—working nine and ten hours daily.

"Sitting beside M. Guilmant on the organ bench, one is impressed first of all by his quiet deliberation. There is nothing hasty, irregular or blurred. He never jerks a stop out or in, either by hand or composition pedal, and everything is done with the utmost calmness and surety.

"At the head of M. Guilmant's note paper stands a treble staff, one bar, with the notes F. A. G, representing his full name, Felix Alexandre Guilmant; the F and A as quarter notes, and the G is a half note. The same original idea was taken by M. Guilmant for a fugue subject; for these same initials F, A, G, form a theme upon which a most interesting little composition was written only a few years ago, showing this master to also possess a sense of humor. M. Guilmant has published his works slowly and has retained all copyrights, plates, etc., in his own hands.

"Not a stone's throw from M. Guilmants' villa lives Rodin, the greatest living sculptor, perhaps, in the world, and to this pretty little village on the Seine, only five miles from Paris, come many tourists, simply to see the homes of these two great men.

"A little French journal, in an article upon M. Guilmant, expresses exactly the love and esteem that all students and friends who come under the spell of his charming personality, hold for this master of masters:

"'Ses amis et ses cleves, l'aiment pour sa bienveillance, les musiciens tiennent en grande estime son talent et son honnetete musicale.'

"ISABEL PEARSON."

In letters to friends Miss Pearson has written: "Never in my life have I come in contact with such a wonderful character."

Miss Pearson is now in London, where she will study until June. Miss Pearson is a member of the local Matinee Musical and before her departure last August was organist and choir director at the First Presbyterian church.

A TRAGEDY.

'Twas on the twenty-second day
Of February*, so they say,
That Georgie Washington cut down
The only cherry tree in town.

There was a boy in our town
His name, you see, was Johnny Brown.
He thought it really would be fun
To do as little George had done.

He took his little hatchet, and
Upon a tree stump took his stand.
And, when his father came, you see,
He told him he had cut the tree.

His father took him on his knee
And spanked him till he couldn't see;
"Next year I hope you'll spend the day,"
Said he, "in quite a different way."

Now, Georgie couldn't tell a lie—
No more than either you or I—
But little Johnny always could
And when he did, he told it good.

*Poetic license—date unknown.

NOT IN G. W'S. CLASS.

"Yesterday that boy of mine chopped down a cherry tree."
"Ah, an embryo president."
"No, he lied about it."

Just How It Was.

THE story's old,
And dead and cold,
Of George and cherry tree;
'Twas truth defied—
The author lied,
And in a jug should be.

No tree was there
Of fruit to bear,
No hatchet in his hand;
And his old dad
Did not get mad,
Nor anything demand.

'Twas all a josh,
And nonsense bosh,
To take us children in;
And we were sold,
By liar bold,
Who wrote it with a grin.

It was this way,
As I do say,
George stood beside a log;
And with one blow
The tail did go
From off his daddy's dog.

And daddy's grin,
Thro' all the din,
Was gentle and benign;
Upon his word,
He much preferred
A bob-tailed old canine.

JOE KERR.

BIG TASK.

Interviewer—If you were alive today would you have time to cut down a cherry tree.

George Washington—Hardly! I'd be too busy cutting down my living expenses.

THEN AND NOW.

Bess—George Washington certainly was a man of note in his day.
Bob—Yes; and he's also a man of note today.
Bess—How's that?
Bob—I saw his picture on a banknote this morning.

No Embarrassment.

I don't wish to embarrass you sir," said the tall, thin man as he leaned across the aisle of the street car to address the short, fat man, "but let me ask you if Washington is not called the Father of his Country?"

"Certainly," was the reply.

"Again, without wishing to embarrass you in the slightest, let me ask if you have read American history?"

"What do you take me for!" exclaimed the fat man! "Perhaps you doubt that I can read? Of course, I have read the history of my country."

"Then you must have read all about Washington as a commander. Don't be embarrassed over the question. If you have been too busy just say so and it will be all right."

"But I tell you I have read ten times as much about Washington as you have. Who are you to question me in this way?"

"Now, now, no hard feelings. I was simply getting ready to ask a question. Good lands, but I am not the man to embarrass another man. You say you have read of Washington in the field?"

"Of course I say so!"

"Then, sir, without any design to embarrass you in the slightest degree, and begging your pardon for the liberty I take, let me ask you to name two battles in which Washington commanded?"

"Why—why—"

"Don't hurry, sir. Lots of time."

But the eyes of all the passengers were on the fat man, and after half a minute he rose up with very red face and passed out to the platform and dropped off.

"Too bad—too bad!" sighed the lean man. "I didn't want to embarrass him in the slightest, and then I went and embarrassed him a great deal! I must stop asking questions about Washington!"

—JOE KERR.

ON THE HOTEL.

His Papa—Have some more butter, Tommy?

Tommy (aged seven)—But you always tell me butter isn't healthy.

His Papa—That's at home; you're at the hotel now, so go as far as you like.

LITTLE GEORGE WASHINGTON TOOK NO CHANCES!

Just Enough.

A DELEGATION of three entered the office of the young and rising lawyer, and the spokesman laid a box of cigars on the table and stepped back and said:

"The Quill Club, of which you are a member, desires to present its compliments."

"But—I—I"—, stammered the lawyer.

"You made a speech at the club last night?"

"But, you see"—

"It was a speech on Washington."

"But—but"—

"You arose and said that George Washington was a great man."

"And then I broke down and could say no more."

"That's why the club presents you these cigars—because you knew enough to break down when you had said enough."

JOE KERR.

UP TO HIM.

Tom—I'm dead sore. I lost $5 today. I feel like somebody ought to kick me.

Tess (absently)—Why don't you ask father for my hand tonight—he's right in the library.

WORRISOME.

Ned—Look anxious! What's the matter?

Ted—Back in my dues to "The Don't Worry Club" and its got me worrying.

THIS day you have a perfect setting,
Sweet, simple maiden that you are,
It serves to keep me from forgetting
That you're too good for us by far.

I WAS in a time of white-wigged gallants,
You would have shone forth like a star;
But now your dear old-fashioned talents
This fool world doesn't rate at par.

Wayside Wisdom.

A BIG DIFFERENCE.

The Layman—So you have discovered the germ of tuberculosis, eh?

The Scientist—Not exactly discovered it, but we've named it though.

PUZZLE PICTURE.

Willie's mother forbade him going skating. Can you find what happened to Willie?

She Blessed Him.

HAVE you any fine 'taties?" asked the old woman with the market basket of the grocer at his door.

"Potatoes, madam—bushels of the very finest. Come right in."

"'Taties are very high," she sighed.

"Yes, rather high. How many did you want?"

"Ten cents' worth."

"Well, on account of the day you shall have a bargain. I'll give you fifteen cents' worth for a dime."

"How noble! But what about the day?"

"Why it's Washington's birthday. Didn't you know that?"

"Indade I didn't. And for that reason you are going to throw in the extra 'taties?"

"That's the reason."

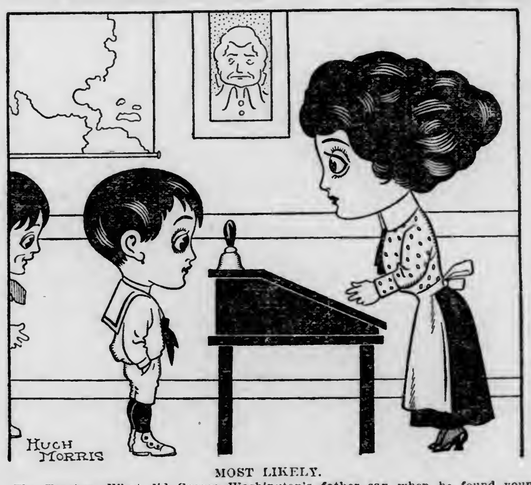

"Well, I don't know whether Washington is an alderman or a member of the Legislature, but I'm blessing the good man clear down to his toes, and you will please tell him so next time you see him."

—JOE KERR.

BAD AIR.

The Song Writer—What do you think of my new song?

The Publisher—The words are all right but the air needs ventilation.

MOST LIKELY.

The Teacher—What did George Washington's father say when he found young George had cut down the cherry tree?

Earlie—He gave him a lecture on forest conservation.

He Dallied.

GEORGE," said the tramp as the cook came to the door in answer to his ring.

"There's no George here," she replied.

"George Wash."

"He may live next door."

"George Washington."

"I tell you there's no such person here. The family name is Brown."

"George Washington, the Father."

"If it's crazy you are I'll call a policeman! Didn't I say the name was Brown?"

"George Washington, the Father of his Country."

"And what of him?"

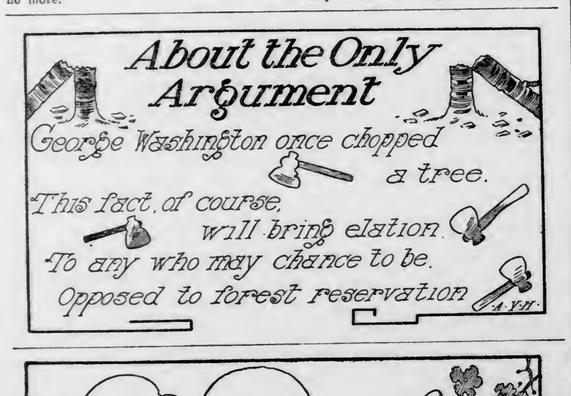

"It's his birthday."

"Oh, is it? And you stand there dallying and keeping me from my work! Well, if it's Washington's birthday I suppose I've got to help save the country."

And she went back to the kitchen and brought him out half a pie, but said:

"When Fourth of July comes along you say what you want without any dallying, or you'll be handed the poker instead of pie!"

JOE KERR.

AS IT MIGHT HAVE BEEN.

Old man Washington's favorite cherry tree looked as if a cyclone had struck it.

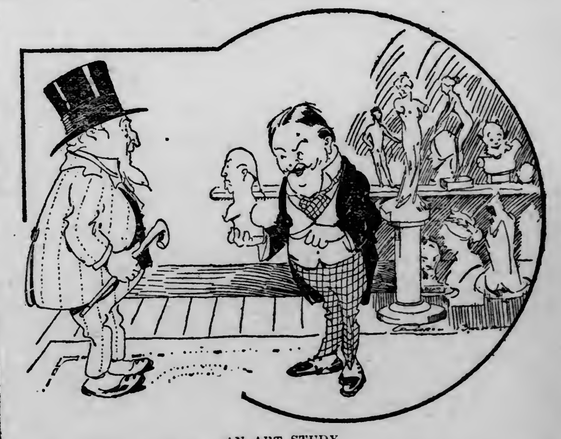

"What do you know about this, son?" he queried.

"Father," replied little George, "I cannot tell a lie. I did it with my new aeroplane."

IN COLONIAL DAYS.

Washington, Sr.—Since you have cut the cherry tree down you can now go ahead and cut it up into stove lengths. I'm glad you show some energy, anyway!

AN ART STUDY.

Dealer—This is a bust of papier mache.

Visitor—I swan, if he don't look enough like George Washington to be his brother.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

NO CAUSE OF ACTION

Action Involving Valuable Cuyuna Range Iron Land Is Dismissed.

Franklin Merritt Alleged Effort to "Freeze" Him Out of Property.

Brainerd, Minn., Feb. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—After hearing evidence and arguments for four days Judge McClenahan in the district court yesterday made an important ruling in an action involving a valuable piece of iron land on the Cuyuna range, near here.

The case was entitled Franklin W. Merritt against James T. Joyce, Campbell, McAlpine and others. After the plaintiff had presented his side of the case Judge McClenahan granted motions by the defense to dismiss as to Joyce, Campbell and McAlpine. The motions were based on the claim that the evidence did not make out a cause of action against the defendants. An appeal will be taken by Merritt to the state supreme court. The land involved is situated in the south half of the southeast quarter of section 3-46-29. Franklin W. Merritt of Minneapolis, had an option on the land in his own name. Afterwards he disposed of a one-third interest to each of the defendants, McAlpine and Campbell. The Merritt option was for a period of twenty-two months. Before this period had expired, J. A. Stetson, secured from the owner a six days' option on the land, entering into negotiations with Joyce, who agreed to take up the option and take over the land at $2,400 subject to the Merritt option.

Merritt Questions Transaction.

Joyce afterwards disposed of a quarter interest to two other persons, one of whom was Campbell and the other Root. Campbell originally had a one-third interest from Merritt. Merritt claimed this was not a bonafide transaction and that Joyce was not a purchaser in good faith, but alleged that those means had been employed to "freeze him out," and that Campbell and McAlpine had united forces to do this. The dismissal of the action serves to show that fraud was not proven. The plaintiff took a stay of ninety days to prepare an appeal to the supreme court. Judge Kerr of Kerr & Fowler of Minneapolis appeared for Merritt. Harris Richardson of St. Paul represented the defendant Joyce. R. R. Briggs of Duluth appeared for McAlpine.

WOLF'S OWNERSHIP ESTABLISHED

Unique Suit Tried in Municipal Court at Brainerd This Week.

Brainerd, Minn., Feb. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge G. S. Swanson, special municipal judge, has had a knotty case to decide, "When is a wolf the subject of larceny?" Nels Edlund, the complaining witness, had Miss Bertha Wicks, the young daughter of Lewis Wicks of Flak, brought to the municipal court on the charge of appropriating his wolf. The testimony developed that the wolf ran into Edlund's trap and then tore his chain and roamed over the country in an endeavor to get rid of the encumbrance. In the middle of the night, Miss Wicks was awakened by the fierce barking of the dogs, grabbed a gun and ran into the yard, firing at an object in a fence corner. Examining the animal she found it to be a wolf. The question resolved itself into who was the owner of the wolf. Judge Swanson granted the motion to dismiss the case, and the court held that the wolf was not the porperty of the complaining witness, as it had never been in his possession or control. This decision, of course, resulted in a dismissal of the larceny charge brought against Miss Wicks and declared her the rightful owner of the wolf and the resulting bounty on the same.

Sandstone, Minn., Feb. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Burns' concert, which was postponed until last Wednesday, proved a decided success in every way. "The Cotters' Saturday Night" was well recited by William Aiken, aged over 60. Although Mr. McKnight was not slated for a song, he seemed in such good humor that the chairman decided to try him out. He made good, however, at his first attempt and the applause accorded him stirred him to render a love song in addition. The concert was given under the auspices of the Presbyterian church.

PAY TAXES; GET NO COIN

That's the Plaint of Oneota People Who Will Form a Club.

It Will Seek Public Improvements for That Part of Town.

A movement, which has been forming for several months among public-spirited citizens of Oneota may materialize this evening at a meeting called for the purpose of organizing the Oneota Improvement club. The gathering will be held at the store of Charles Cederholm, Fortieth avenue west and Sixth street.

Oneota people claim that they have been grossly neglected in the way of public improvements, in spite of the fact that that section of the city in the last year has had wonderful strides in the building line and has prospered noticeably in other ways.

The property owners feel that they are not getting a fair deal and say that very little money is spent on street improvements and none at all for park or playground purposes. Oneota and Hazelwood are too poorly lighted, it is claimed.

The object of the new club will be to interest itself in all questions pertaining to paving, lighting, gas and water extensions, fire and police protection and in fact any project associated with public improvements in that part of the city.

A committee comprising Anton Wicklund, Conrad Wicklund, Bert N. Wheeler and Alderman-elect Joseph B. Gibson, has written rules and by-laws for the organization. These will be submitted at the meeting this evening, when it is expected that the organization of the club will be perfected, including the election of officers and the appointment of committees.

Oneota people have petitioned the park board to purchase for park purposes a block of land between Forty-fifth and Forty-sixth avenues and Magellan and Halifax streets. The cost of the proposed park would be about $8,000, and it is believed that with little expense, it could be converted into one of the most beautiful squares in the city. The park board has not finally considered the petition and it is probable that the newly organized club will bring considerable pressure to bear on the board to secure the new breathing spot.

Residents of Oneota has been working for some time on a comprehensive sewer. The petition was presented to the council last spring, but no definite action was taken by the aldermanic body. The action of the school board in building the new Jerome Merritt school at Fortieth avenue west and Sixth street this year has met with much favorable comment among the residents of this district, as a new schoolhouse has been needed for some time. It will be ready for the 1912 term.

ARSON CASE TO BE TRIED NEXT WEEK

West Duluth People Accused of Setting Fire to Their Home.

Henry C. Hendrickson and his wife will be tried on a charge of arson before Judge Cant of the district court next week.

Some time ago the Hendrickson home at West Duluth burned under peculiar circumstances. Flames were discovered streaming from a coal scuttle which had evidently been filled with kerosene and a burned line on the floor and under the carpet showed where a slow fuse had worked its way to the scuttle.

The fire took place in the day time and was discovered in time to put it out before a great amount of damage had been done.

At the time of the fire Hendrickson was at his work and Mrs. Hendrickson was downtown doing some shopping.

This is the first arson case to be tried in the local courts for some months.

ICE CROP IS BOUNTIFUL

Duluth's Harvest of 90,000 Tons Comes Chiefly From Spirit Lake.

Superior's Water Slow to Freeze This Year---The Cost.

Duluth's ice crop will amount approximately to 90,000 tons this year, most of which has already been harvested by the two local ice companies at Spirit Lake. The greater portion of the ice crop will be consumed in Duluth, although the harvesting concerns have contracts with outside firms and the railroads for several carloads.

Figured at $2.50 a ton, the ice crop in Duluth for 1911 is worth $135,000, allowing for a shrinkage of 40 per cent. In order to harvest the crop, nearly 150 men have been employed weekly for the last six weeks, an aggregate weekly wage of about $2,000.

From present indications, according to James Hart, manager of the Duluth ice company, no ice will be taken from Lake Superior this winter, which will mean that an additional 10,000 tons will have to be harvested at Spirit Lake and hauled to Duluth. The East End Ice company, which also has supply houses downtown, will stock up with at least 5,000 tons of the Spirit Lake product, if there be no ice on Lake Superior this season.

Mr. Hart said today that the total output of the Duluth Ice company this season would run close to 45,000 tons, of which 30,000 has already been cut and stored in the warehouses at New Duluth. A crew of men is now engaged in cutting more ice to supply the contracts with local breweries, packing houses and other concerns. The company's contracts amount to about 15,000 tons.

When the season was in full swing about two weeks ago, between ninety and 100 men were employed in addition to seventeen to twenty horses. The Duluth Ice company has three warehouses and during the summer it gives employment to about seventy-five men. The bulk of the output is consumed in private houses, hotels, at butchers' shops, saloons and ice cream stands. Boats departing from the city also take a large percentage.

E. H. Falgren, manager of the East End Ice company said that 22,000 tons have been cut and stored at Spirit Lake and that the concern is now filling contracts. The contracts call for the cutting of about 11,000 tons. At least 5,000 tons will be taken from the river and shipped to the downtown ice houses of the company if the ice on the lake does not reach the required thickness. The ice which has been harvested has averaged from eighteen to twenty-four inches in thickness. The trade, it is said, prefers smaller blocks, but owing to the rapidity with which the ice formed up the river just before the cutting started, the smaller blocks were not available.

The process of cutting ice is interesting. A large field is cleared on the ice and a small ice plow is run over it to mark out the size of the cakes to be cut. A larger plow follows, cutting the ice two-thirds of its depth. The ice is then sawed and sent to store houses on an incline similar to the kind used to convey logs from the water to a sawmill. Practically all of the ice consumed in Duluth is harvested at Spirit Lake.

WILL ASK AID OF THE CLUB

West Duluthians Want $25,000 for Branch of the Y. M. C. A.

Those who are behind the movement to secure for West Duluth a branch of the Young Men's Christian association, may ask the assistance of the West Duluth Commercial club in the materialization of the plans now mapped out.

H. G. House, principal of the Ely school, and chairman of the Y. M. C. A. committee, has stated that the proposition will be taken before the Commercial club with the view of enlisting its support. After the conference, it is probable that some definite steps towards raising a subscription fund for the erection of a suitable building, will be taken.

The probable cost of an appropriate building would be $25,000. This would easily meet all demands, including a large gymnasium. The site has already been purchased by the W. C. T. U. and comprises two lots at Forty-seventh avenue west and Wadena street. The committee in charge of the Y. M. C. A. proposition consists of H. G. House, chairman; Rev. E. F. Stidd, L. A. ADDITIONAL SOCIETY NEWS

Probably the most beautiful ball ever given in Duluth was held Tuesday evening at the Spalding hotel by Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Hartley and the Misses Hartley.

The ball room was decorated as it never was before, in a simple but pleasing color scheme of green and white. A wealth of smilax was most effectively festooned from chandelier to chandelier making a beautiful canopy over the gay scene and white hangings covered the walls and the vines were hung in festoons over this. The musicians' stand was screened with a solid bank of smilax and the chandeliers were wonderfully ornamented with the same vine, with the silver leaves of the white beech giving a softening effect to so much green.

The gowns of the guests in white and soft colors with here and there a brilliant colored gown, showed to advantage on this charming background.

Nearly 300 guests were received by Mr. and Mrs. Hartley, Miss Hartley, Miss Irma Hartley and Miss Judith Hartley, all of whom were in white.

Mrs. Hartley wore a gown of white satin with a handsome lace overdress. Miss Hartley's gown was of white chiffon with the skirt gracefully draped over silk. Miss Irma Hartley wore white chiffon over a gold messaline. The chiffon was edged with marabou in the natural color and the chiffon sash had a strip of the fur on each end. There were two large chiffon bows on each sleeve, caught on with little pink rosebuds. Miss Judith wore a simple little gown of white with a pink ribbon in her hair.

David Erickson, the Duluth artist whose work has been accepted here with such enthusiasm, has an exhibit of winter landscapes on display at Edwards' art store which will be open all next week to the public.

These pictures with their delicate colorings are shown in a room with delicate hangings which harmonize well with the winter scenes.

Some of the scenes are local, being painted at Lakeside. One particularly charming one was painted at the end of a three days' snow storm and seems like a glimpse of fairyland. A young spruce tree in the foreground with its white feathery covering of snow and the leafless branches of a birch tree in the background with its gathering of snow, give a delightful picture.

Another of the local scenes shows a valley and hillside with blue shadows and footprints in the snow. In the distance a small house shows among the trees. The color is especially good in this scene. Mr. Erickson calls this picture "The Children's Playground."

The most important picture in the group is one which the artist painted while he was in France on his last trip there and is most poetic and decorative. It was displayed in the Salon over there and attracted considerable notice. It is a big landscape of misty sunlight and tall elms. The rose of the sky combined with the silver of the foreground make a beautiful effect. In the foreground is a frozen pool of water.

HEARD AND SEEN IN HOTEL LOBBIES AND ELSEWHERE

Barney Riley and the Popularity of Skiing in Duluth—Gastronomic Calendar Goes Wrong in Court—Cake-Walking to Be Seen at Armory Next Month—When the Lady Removed Her Hat.

BARNEY Riley of New York and Barney Riley of Coleraine are not one and the same.

But a lot of people thought they were, and for that reason Mr. Riley of New York has been busy explaining that he can't cut any didoes on skis, doesn't care to pose in ski costume for young ladies with the camera habit, and doesn't want to answer any more telephone calls that have the slightest reference to skis.

Barney Riley of Coleraine is a ski runner and jumper of class. The Mr. Riley, who has been riled is the personal representative of Henry W. Savage, and has been in Duluth for some days preparing for the appearance here of "Madame X."

When it was noised about that Barney Riley was registered at the Spalding a lot of people who take an interest in skiing called up the hotel and asked for him. Some of the time he was out, and then messages were left for him. Of course, many Duluthians know Barney Riley of New York for himself and didn't have a thought of the Coleraine man, so he had a pleasant enough time when not being pestered by requests for information about skiing, requests for an exhibition of his daring and skill, and requests for poses before the camera. One dainty little note, it is said, contained a request for a lock of his hair.

The affair has gone so far that Mr. Riley of New York would like to know if Duluth has gone ski-crazy. "Madame X" is too important a dame to be sidetracked by this multiplicity of misdirected messaging, however, and Barney is not permitting that to happen.

Mr. Riley is a man whose popularity coincides with the extent of his acquaintanceship. He has visited Duluth many times, coming here first as manager of Albert Ingersoll's tours. He was with the famous orator for years and knew him perhaps better than did any other man. Mr. Riley has a good memory and can recite entire speeches that were delivered by Ingersoll. He frequently entertains his friends with memory recitations of gems from the works of Ingersoll.

CAKE walking which is cake walking is on the way hither, and next month Duluthians will have an opportunity to witness one of the most elaborate pranks festivals that ever was anywhere.

The affair will be at the Armory and the cake has already been contracted for. It is to be about five feet six inches across and correspondingly high. Bill Gibson, a waiter whose services have been appreciated by many prominent Duluthians, assisted by Edward Luttrell, an experienced minstrel man, is arranging for the cake walk.

There are reputed to be a number of exceptionally expert cake-walkers among the negroes of the city, "and all the girls can do it fine," according to creditable authority.

"Bill" has been assured by many of those wo are wont to eat what he brings them that they surely will be there to see the cake-walkers, and hasn't a doubt but that the affair will be a wonder and a winner.

IT WAS Thursday and a case was being tried in municipal court. Attorney M. H. McMahon was appearing in the case for one of the litigants and he suggested toward the close of the day that the trial be deferred until Monday.

"But why Monday? Why not tomorrow?" asked the court.

"Tomorrow being Saturday—" began Mr. McMahon.

"You are mistaken," he was corrected. "Tomorrow will be Friday."

"Why, this must be Friday," objected the attorney. "I had fish for lunch today."

MAROTTA has a parrot in his store out on East Second street of which he is quite fond, and the sentiment is a mutual one. The parrot is given to moods, as parrots are likely to be, and has a penchant for peanuts that serves to induce him to talk a bit now and then when otherwise he wouldn't. There's nothing in particular to tell about this parrot, but it suggested another story to one of a group of men idly watching the bird.

"A saloon keeper had a parrot that some one, on the sly, taught to yell, 'The beer is stale.' Well, that got on the saloon man's nerves, for people would come in, hear the remark, and duck, not knowing where it came from. One day the owner of the bird got a bit extra mad, reached up and grabbed it by the neck. He gave the thing a few vicious twists and hurled it out into the alley.

"Pretty soon Mr. Parrot begins to come to, and sees near him the remains of a cat that had died its nine deaths.

"'What did you say about the beer?' croaked the parrot."

IT WAST at one of the moving-picture shows on Superior street. The proud lady with the large chapeau had settled into her seat, but she made no move to take off her hat.

A nervous little man sat behind her. First he raised his hand as if to touch her shoulder, but withdrew it hastily. Then he wiggled from side to side, trying to get an occasional view of the pictures, but it was hopeless.

Then he got the idea.

The nervous little man reached under the seat, took out his derby and set it on his head.

Instantly the audience behind growled savagely and four or five men shouted, "Take that hat off."

The little man obeyed, but with not so much alacrity as was displayed by the woman in front.

HEIRS PAY HEAVY TAX

County Auditor Collects $37,682 From Estate of Michigan Man.

Payment Made Under Protest on Claim That Law Is Unconstitutional.

St. Louis county today turned over to the state $37,682, the amount of the inheritance tax collected by the county from the estate of the late Henry Stephens of Detroit, Mich., who was a heavy owner in St. Louis county timber and iron lands. Mr. Stephens' holdings in this county were valued at $799,639.99.

The money was collected by the county auditor's office and was paid by the heirs under protest. They claim that the law is unconstitutional. It is the largest inheritance tax ever paid in St. Louis county.

The amount was fixed at a much lower sum by the former judge of probate, but the state attorney general was of the opinion that the amount should be raised. Judge S. W. Gilpin raised the amount some time ago, the final payments were made to the auditor's office, and this morning the money was turned over to the state of Minnesota by Auditor Halden.

The amount of property left by Mr. Stephens in St. Louis county is said to be only a small part of an immense estate. He died at Atlantic City, N. J., a few months ago, without leaving a will. The property was divided among the near relatives under the law. He was at the time of death 56 years old.

The bulk of the St. Louis county property goes to the widow, Sarah M. Stephens, who lives at Detroit. Her share amounts to $264,546.67. Henry Stephens, Jr., a son, gets $176,364.44 and two daughters, Gail and Jacueline both get like amounts.

DECISION MAY ENABLE CITY TO ASSESS RAILROADS

Supreme Court Compels Roads to Secure Franchises for Extensions.

City Now in Position to Demand Payment of Street Assessments.

The decision of the state supreme court handed down yesterday by Judge Simpson, who held that a railroad cannot condemn a right-of-way along a city street or avenue without first securing a franchise from the city, gives Duluth a hold upon the railroads which will eventually, it is stated upon the most competent authority, enable the municipality to compel the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern railroads to pay assessments upon all street improvements upon highways abutting their property.

Men familiar with the situation at Duluth declare that both of these roads will, in the near future, be obliged to come to the city for franchises for spurs and extensions which will be absolutely necessary in the handling of their business. Armed with the decision of the supreme court handed down yesterday, they state that there is no doubt but that the city will be in a position to force these roads to agree to the assessment features which have been incorporated in the franchises granted the last two roads which have entered the city, namely the Soo and the Canadian Northern. These roads are under contract with the city to pay their share of all street improvements upon streets and avenues adjacent to their holdings.

The decision gives the municipality a way to circumvent the state law, which provides that the gross earnings tax shall be in lieu of all other taxes. With this decision the city will not be levying taxes, but will be making contracts with the roads which will hold in any court. The gain to the city will mean thousands of dollars, as formerly, where streets along railroad property have been improved, the city has had to stand the expense, or the property owners on the opposite side have had to shoulder the double burden.

The Northern Pacific and the Great Northern hold the biggest part of the available railroad property in Duluth. They came here before Duluth had assumed the proportions of a city and grabbed practically all the available frontage and terminal property on this side of the bay. They have refused to do anything in the way of assessments, with one or two exceptions, and up to this time the city has had no hold on them whereby it could even make a compromise with them.

The case, the title of which is the Duluth Terminal Railway company, appellant, against the City of Duluth, respondent, was started in the lower courts by Former City Attorney C. S. Wilson. It was tried before Judge Homer B. Dibell, who found for the city. The supreme court confirmed his findings throughout, giving the city the most sweeping and important victory it has won in the courts for years. The appeal was argued to the supreme court by City Attorney Bert Fesler. Mr. Fesler won another big case for the city in the United States supreme court some years ago when it was determined that the railroad had to pay for the Lake avenue viaduct and maintain it. The same ruling applies to other similar situations and is worth a big sum to this as well as other municipalities throughout the country.

The Syllabus.

The syllabus of the last case is of considerable interest and gives the history of the case briefly and concisely. It is as follows:

"1. The city of Duluth, by ordinance, granted to the Duluth-Thunder Bay Railway company a franchise on specified terms and conditions to construct a railway along Arthur avenue extended. Said company accepted the ordinance and is constructing the railway. Prior to the passage of this ordinance, but subsequent to its introduction in the city council, the petitioner herein instituted condemnation proceedings to acquire the right to construct a railway along the same portion of the street. The two rights being inconsistent, the franchise granted by the ordinance is the prior and superior right, and the city of Duluth had such an interest in the contract ordinance that it could introduce such grant in evidence and base thereon an objection to the prosecution of the condemnation proceedings instituted by the petitioner, the Duluth-Thunder Bay Railway company not objecting to such proceedings.

"2. Chapter 74, Laws 1893, an amendment to section 1 of title 1, of chapter 34, general statutes, 1888, provided that no corporation formed under this title shall have any right to construct, maintain or operate upon or within any street of any city or village a railway of any kind, without first obtaining a franchise therefor from such city or village. This provision was in direct partial conflict with the provision of section 29 of said chapter, authorizing railway companies to acquire, by condemnation, the right to occupy any road, street or alley for the necessary location of its railroad. To the extent of such conflict, section 29 was amended, and the right therein given a railway company to appropriate, through condemnation proceedings, such portion of highways as may be necessary for the construction of its road, without first obtaining a franchise, was limited to highways outside of cities and villages.

"3. The amendment of 1893 applies to action taken thereafter, but with reference to such action the section is constructed as it originally enacted in its amended form. It therefore limits the power conferred on all corporations organized thereunder, whether organized prior to or after 1893.

"4. The placing of such limitation on the power of eminent domain, by an amendment to the general law conferring the power, did not impair the obligation of a contract or destroy any property right.

"5. The provisions of the statutes referred to were carried forward into the revision of 1894 under a different arrangement of and sub-division into sections. But by such rearrangement no alteration was apparently intended and none was therefore made in the existing law.

"6. A railway company organized under title 1, chapter 34, general statutes, 1878, whether organized before or since 1893, is not authorized by the laws of this state, special reference being had to sections 2841 and 2916, revised laws 1905, to acquire by condemnation proceedings the public easement in any portion of a street within a city or village to construct, maintain or operate a railway of any kind along said street. A franchise must first be obtained from the city or village before such railway company can acquire such right to construct, maintain or operate a railway along a street therein."

MINISTER TRIED TO INFLUENCE HIM

So Charges Thomas L. Wann, Prominent Business Man of St. Paul.

St. Paul, Feb. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—An affidavit was filed in the Ramsey county district court today by Thomas L. Wann, a prominent business man and clubman, and member of the Ramsey county grand jury, charging Dr. Samuel G. Smith, pastor of the People's church, with an attempt to influence Mr. Wann as a member of the jury.

The affidavit states that while the grand jury was considering an indictment against Dr. Eugene Hubbell, a prominent physician on the charge of manslaughter, Dr. Smith approached Mr. Wann and by argument sought to convince him that an indictment on such a charge would be harmful and that it was doubtful if a conviction could be had as all of the doctors were with Dr. Hubbell.

Dr. Smith is pastor of one of the leading churches in St. Paul and is a member of the faculty of the University of Minnesota.

Dr Hubbell is prominent in his profession and equally as prominent socially as Mr. Wann and Dr. Smith.

The grand jury found an indictment against Dr. Hubbell yesterday charging him with manslaughter in causing the death of Rose Ibs Jan. 30. Dr. Hubbell was arrested and later released on bail bonds in the sum of $5,000.

Rain or snow, or a mixture of the two, is general over Iowa and the Southwest, according to Mr. Connor. The precipitation in this city was one and a half inches. Fruit is believed to be unhurt.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Armed with murderous looking revolvers and bound for Montana to hunt Indians, Floyd Russell and Henry Reinwald, small boys from Superior, Wis., were picked up at the union station by the police Thursday night.

They were taken to the central station and disarmed. Today they were taken before Judge Finehout in police court, and Russell was sentenced to ninety days in the workhouse, and Reinwald to a peaceful life at home. The sentence of Russell was suspended, however, and both given into custody of local friends to await the time until they could be sent back to Superior.

RULES TODAY IS YESTERDAY

Speaker Cannon Says Friday's Session of the House Continues.

Washington, Feb. 18.—Speaker Cannon at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon made the unique ruling that in so far as the national house of representatives is concerned today is yesterday. In other words, he sustained the contention that Friday's session was still in progress.

Then came the spectacle of a big majority of the house members, composed of practically all of the Democrats and many of the Republicans, trying in vain to work their will against a virile Republican minority valiantly led by Representative Mann of Illinois. Mr. Mann filibustered all day yesterday against the passage of the omnibus war claim bill. After he had failed in his effort to have the session resumed at 11 o'clock this morning declared a new legislative day, Mr. Mann renewed his filibuster and began to demand roll calls on every proposition put before the house.

Indications were that the filibuster would continue throughout the day.

RESIDENTS OF DULUTH FOR FORTY YEARS OBSERVE GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

MEMBERS OF KREAGER FAMILY.

CHRIS KREAGER.

MRS. CHRIS KREAGER.

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Kreager of 927 East Sixth street, which fell yesterday, will be celebrated at their home tomorrow evening. They will entertain their children and grandchildren and numerous old friends and acquaintances.

The aged people are among the very first of the pioneers residing in Duluth. They came here in 1870, when the place could hardly be designated a village. It was a mere settlement in the wilderness, without railroads or, in fact, a real dwelling. The Indians were common, and came to the trading posts with their furs to barter with the tradesmen. Mr. and Mrs. Kreager have a vast amount of information relative to the early history of Duluth, and they have a fund of interesting stories of happenings in the early days.

They have four daughters and four sons and eight grandchildren, all residing in this city. The sons and daughters are Mrs. A. McCormick, Mrs. B. Krissback, Mrs. A. J. Harker, Mrs. J. Nesgoda, Joe, George, Frank and Andrew Kreager.

Mrs. Saxby's orchestra will furnish the music. The patrons and patronesses follow: Mrs. W. E. Maddock, Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Turnbull, Principal and Mrs. H. A. Schofield and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Merriman. Dancing will be from 9 to 1.

McCUMBER CANNOT FAVOR SULLOWAY PENSION BILL.

Washington, Feb. 18.—Announcement was made in the senate today by Mr. McCumber of North Dakota, that notwithstanding a resolution adopted by the legislature of his state requesting him to do so, he could not favor the Sulloway general pension bill.

He said he favored his substitute which would entail expenditures of about $8,500,000 instead of the Sulloway $45,000,000 bill. He thought his substitute would be for the best interests of the veterans of the Civil war, and said if his legislature had "understood the question as it is understood here," his course would be approved.

The latter statement had reference to the current report that the Sulloway bill would meet with executive veto if passed.

Mr. McCumber said that if his substitute failed he would then vote for the Sulloway bill. Senator Scott moved to take the bill up at once, but he was declared out of order. He promised to renew the motion later.

TEACHERS CLOSE MOST SUCCESSFUL CONVENTION

Last Day Is Spent in Several Interesting Sectional Meetings.

State Inspector Urges Use of Schools as Social Centers.

"Everything has gone forward splendidly," said Dr. E. A. Winship of Boston, speaking this noon of the work done by the members of the Northeastern Minnesota Educational association now in convention here.

Sectional meetings were the order of the day, all of the scheduled morning meetings being held except that relating to manual training. This section met in the afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. at 2 o'clock, presided over by Harvey J. Scharr of Ely, director of the manual training school there.

Supt. W. C. Cobb of the Brainerd schools was chairman of the meeting of the high school section this morning in the high school building. Supt. George Butler of Aitkin read a paper on "The Social Side of the High School," and an animated discussion, led by Miss Charlotte Johnson, principal of the Chisholm high school, followed. The subordinate subjects considered were the influence of high school social activities on school work, and the question as to how far the teachers should go in exercising control over these social aspects of high school life. Principal C. C. Alexander read a paper on "Failures in the High School; Cause and Remedies." Principal R. B. Newman of the Ely high school led the discussion, which followed the reading of this interesting paper.

The elementary section, of which Eleanor Thompson, principal of the Duluth Jackson school, is chairman, heard an address on "Elementary School Problems" by Miss Theda Gildemeister of the Winona normal school training department. Miss Luella Murphy of Duluth gave a talk on the children of foreign-born residents, and Miss Martha Wilson, librarian of the state library commission, read a paper on "Influence of Literature on Character." There was a general discussion, participated in by many of those attending this sectional meeting.

"The Melting Pot."

One of the most interesting of these sectional meetings was that which concerned itself with the kindergarten and primary grades. The general theme for this section was "The Melting Pot," and the discussions brought out many valuable points bearing on the part had by the kindergarten and the primary grades in shaping the character of future American citizens of foreign birth or parentage. Miss Elizabeth Mascord of Hibbing read a paper dealing particularly with the aims and objects of the kindergarten, and Miss Harriet A. Dennis of Taconite read one which dealt specifically with the problems of the primary school.

Other features of this meeting were papers by Miss Ellen S. Nye, primary superintendent at Gilbert, and Miss Adelaide Holton, primary supervisor of the Minneapolis schools, the first on the teaching of primary reading and the second on child, literature and school.

Miss Anna M. Hicken of Duluth read a paper on "The Necessity of Bible Stories in Fundamental Character Building."

Mrs. Margaret Blair of the department of domestic arts and science at the state agricultural school, delivered an address on household economics at the meeting of the domestic arts and science section in the manual arts high school and then conducted a discussion which covered a wide range of subjects, all related to domestic economy and methods of teaching.

County Supt. Young had charge of the rural school section. Courses of study, school sanitation, books and their care, and allied topics were given consideration. The night school teachers' session was presided over by Principal Alexander and talks were made by Supt. J. P. Vaughn of Chisholm, Miss Inez Hudnach of Hibbing and Miss Cecil M. Palmer of the Duluth Normal school.

Platform Meeting.

At last evening's platform meeting George B. Aiton, state inspector of high schools, urged that the doors of the high school be thrown upon to the youth of the state for social purposes, declaring the movement to regard the high schools as social centers is one of the gratifying signs of the progress being made along educational lines. Continuing he said:

"Throw the doors of your school buildings open to the boys and let them play pool and billiards in a good wholesome atmosphere. It is far better than steal to other places.

"Schools in the range towns are especially adapted for these purposes and the teachers have an opportunity of doing great work."

He was of the opinion that if the money required for the building of a county agricultural school was devoted to the purpose of employing twenty more competent teachers in the range towns, the money would be put to the best purpose.

Supt. Denfeld coincided in Mr. Alton's regarding the high schools as social centers, and Dr. Kline of the normal school pleaded for a division of responsibility as between the teacher and the parent, declaring that the parents shirks. Improved rural school facilities were urged by Supt. W. E. Maddock of the Superior schools, and Andrew Nelson gave a talk on the general subject of the purposes of the common schools.

The convention has been a thoroughly profitable and successful one from every point of view, and the teachers are leaving Duluth this afternoon and evening with a feeling of complete satisfaction, their time here having been most advantageously spent. Notable people have addressed them and the discussions they have been enabled to take part in are counted upon to be of material benefit to them in their work. The Northeastern Minnesota Educational association is one of the most live teachers' organizations in the Northwest and its officers expect to see a steady and constant growth in its size and effectiveness.

Washington, Feb. 18.—Senator Lorimer gave notice today that he would address the senate next Wednesday on the questions involved in the charges of bribery in connection with his election.

ADAMS IS LOSING VOTES IN COLORADO.

Denver, Col., Feb. 18.—Indications of a disintegration of the Adams' strength which has come chiefly from the so-called "platform Democrats," was seen in today's ballot for United States senator. Adams' strength went down to 15, while O'Donnell's went up to 7.

Former Congressman J. C. Bell, Democrat, and John Grass of Trinidad, Republican, appeared as candidates.

SWELL TEAM, SAYS DARBY

Al Cummings Out of Baseball—Blancke Refuses to Sign Contract.

Al Cummings will not play the present season and Blancke has not signed his contract as yet. This was the information received by Jawn Desmond, manager of the Duluth baseball team, today.

In a long letter Darby writes that he has a strong bunch of candidates which should make one of the strongest teams that has ever represented this city. The training trip, according to the present plans of the orator, will start at Lima, Ohio, April 19.

There are already fourteen pitchers signed. Out of this material Darby expects to get four very good men. Hamm is a big fellow with the conventional "world of speed," and Hisley is a stouthpaw who worked for Winhan, Ohio, last season. Smith worked for Ansburge, Ohio, last year. So far these two men look very good.

Chase is a brother of the Indian who worked with Rochester last season. Woodburn is a recruit from the wilds of the Texas league and Winz is from the Detroit semi-professional league ranks. McLean is from the city league of Cleveland.

Darby thinks so well of Catcher Doar of Spooner, Wis., that he has asked permission to have this recruit go on the training trip. He is as big as Otto Mueller and the Poet is plum hopeful regarding him.

Mountain of Pittsburg is another catcher and third baseman and comes very highly recommended. Jimmy Williams of the Minneapolis team is the man who has sent in the flowers regarding the ability of Dewett of Canton, Ohio.

Maybe the poet is losing control of his imagination, but in his epistle he mutters something to the effect that Downing, no relation to Peter, by the way, is just as fast as Jimmy Anderson and also a better hitter. This man is from Bradock, Pa., where the Indians once roamed free and unrestrained.

It may be that Arthur Johnson of Rochester last season, will be added to the Duluth candidates. Negotiations were opened for his purchase the day before yesterday, and if successful the Johnson boy will be most likely to be found performing with wolves.

Schadden of St. Paul may be secured for first base—and he may not. Negotiations are on for this player, but Mike Kelley wants to see how Autrey starts the season before letting any promising youngster get away.

The Irish Author writes that many of the fast players in and around Cleveland will be tried out before the team leaves for the training trip and that some of these players may develop into finds. Jack Larkin, an outfielder, who has cultivated assiduously the habit of hitting the pellet over the fence, is a big outfielder Darby has his eye on at the present time. The big fellow will be given a trial before the team leaves for the trip, and if he comes up to expectations, he will be taken along.

In addition to the men he has at the present time, Darby states that he expects to sign an old catcher from Fort Wayne. He doesn't state his name, but says he is a very good man and will add to the strength of the team.

The Irishmen expects to have the hardest hitting team in the league and also hangs hope on the expectancy peg of having four pitchers who can win more than half of their games. If his expectations are realized, he will bring to Duluth a better looking aggregation than the team that strolled into the city one May morning, last season.

PRESIDENT'S ACT WILL NOT STAND

If Decisions of Judges Are Upheld, Says Brewers' Attorney.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—"If the decisions of Judge Willard and Judge Amidon are affirmed by the United States supreme court," said F. W. Zollman, representative of the brewery interests of Minnesota, today, "then the action of President Taft in drawing a line about a certain country and naming it 'dry' territory will not hold.

"I will go on record to this effect, at least, that the president's order regarding the territory set aside by the treaty of 1851 and creating dry zones within that territory, is illegal. The treaty of 1851 was set aside by the act of 1863, and the territory created by the earlier treaty was taken away from the Indians, and reverted to the national government. When Minnesota became a state she came into control of that territory just as she did of any other section. Therefore, I do believe the president has not the right to create a dry zone as he has done within that territory.

REWARD OFFERED FOR MINNEAPOLIS MURDERERS.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—On the suggestion of Chief of Police Michael Mealey, Governor A. O. Eberhart has offered two rewards, $250 each, for the arrest and conviction of the supposed murderers of two Minneapolis men. One is for the unknown slayer of Hom Fook, alias Sing Kee, a Chinaman, 1318 Washington avenue south, murdered Jan. 10, 1911, and the other names Tony Scarcello, an Italian, as suspected of the murder of August Johnson, 1510 Second street south, Dec. 25, 1910.

NAVAL MILITIAMEN WILL BE REVIEWED.

The naval militiamen of Duluth will be reviewed at the Armory next Friday evening by Adjt.-Gen. Fred B. Wood and Maj. Hart of St. Paul. This will be the first time the adjutant general of the Minnesota military forces has inspected a local organization.

Following the review and parade, there will be dancing. The guests will be members of the company and their friends and it will be an invitation affair.

BONILLA INDICTED.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 18.—Indictments were returned today by the United States grand jury against Manuel Bonilla, leader of the revolutionary forces in Honduras; Lee Christmas, his chief lieutenant, Joseph W. Beer and Florian Dabidi, in connection with the alleged filibustering expedition on the Hornet, which sailed from this port last December.

SICK MAN

A Word to You.

The Progressive Medical Association of Duluth is undoubtedly one of the most successful organizations of able physicians ever banded together for the cure of virulent diseases. Thousands of cures covering a period of many years has established our prestige absolutely in this city. There is no reason why you should go through life bowed down under the weight of past indiscretions or suffering the agonies of some fearful malady. It is true that once having "crossed that bourne from which no traveler returns," even Science cannot call you back, but while there is life there is hope, and the number of men who faltering at the very edge of the grave and filled with terrible thoughts of self destruction have come to us and gone away strong and healthy are legion. Our testimonials and references are of a peculiarly strong nature. Rheumatism, piles, nervous debility, heart disease and all skin and bool diseases are invariably successfully cured in this office.

Don't go to Minneapolis, Hot Springs or other far away places where you will be away from your business and burdened by unnecessary expense. We can perform a cure for you without in any way affecting your ordinary mode of life. Of all the cases that have come to us at least 50 per cent have come because some friend whom we had cured referred them to us. This is the greatest endorsement that any medical association could offer and we can substantiate this claim. Men, if you are ill, don't keep putting off seeing a physician. We would naturally prefer that you come to us, but in any event, do not make a mistake of delaying as your ailment will become more dangerous every day and you owe it to yourself to be a strong, hearty man. Consultation free at Progressive Medical Association, corner Lake avenue and Superior street, from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. Sundays 10 a. m. to 1 p. m.

GREATER BUOYANCY IN REAL ESTATE MARKET

Approach of Spring Is in Air and Causes an Awakening.

"Own Your Own Home" Slogan Will Have Many Followers.

A general increase in the volume of inquiry, a renewal of apparent interest in residence lots, a demand for lots in the Steel plant district and the sale of two pieces of property in the St. Croix avenue district to people who are intent on bringing about the transformation of the section into a wholesale house district were the principal developments in the real estate market in Duluth during the past week.

The spring-like weather conditions seemed to bring a spring-like buoyancy to the real estate market, although nobody is rash enough to believe that winter is over. At any rate, people are beginning to realize that spring is approaching fast and the approach of spring always sees an awakening in the real estate market. The dealers having plats that they intend to get on the market next season are hurrying their preliminaries, people who intend to build and have not yet obtained their sites are making up their minds as to the district in which they wish to locate, and a number of important deals have been put under way this week.

The approach of the first of May and the attendant lease expirations is also having an effect. People who are tired of living in flats and rented houses are once more having the futility of paying rent and changing every year or so impressed on them and there is a demand for improved residences. A large number of sales of improved residences have been made during the past few weeks and more are under way. On account of the expansion of the city during the past few years and the building up of the suburbs, more improved residences are being placed on the market. Many people, tiring of living in the central part of the city, are anxious to sell their homes in order that they may build anew. Others, who have paid rent in the central part of the city and prefer to live there, are ready to take residences on fair terms and many dealers have found it easy to bring the two classes together.

The "Own Your Own Home" slogan will be worked for its full value this year. Dealers realize that it is a good slogan and as the people are absorbing the weight of the arguments advanced in favor of it, they are beginning to realize it also. The man who said: "The only product of ten years of renting is a bushel of rent receipts," knew whereof he spoke. Ten years of monthly payments would give a man a home of his own and the cost would be little more than that of the bushel of rent receipts, which represents nothing but lack of foresight.

The building up of the suburbs is the hope of Duluth. A city without homes is a city without stability, without beauty, without contentment, without the true conception of life. The flat building and the rented house will always have their functions, for transients and whilom residents must have houses. The man who wants a home doesn't look to the flat building or the rented house. He gets a lot and a house and makes his home and when he has paid for it, it is his and his family's and the man to whom he has paid his money doesn't have the house and the money too.

Car service is the controlling force in suburb building. Lakeside and Woodland owe their growth to the car service and, there being no reason to suppose that the service will not be improved instead of impaired, they will continue to grow. What has been done in Lakeside and Woodland can be done in other districts. There is plenty of room in Lakeside and Woodland, but Duluth must look to the future and this city will grow in the next two or three years. The car line up the hill on Seventh avenue east is essential to the building up of a large district there. The line on Ninth street from Seventh avenue east to Fourteenth avenue east will help materially in that respect. A line up over the hill will not only build up a great market garden district, but will cause many people to build their homes on top of the hill, on land which people are looking upon now as farming land. Duluth's growth has just begun and the next five years should see a growth of suburbs that is not even dreamed of now by many people.

Dealers are somewhat surprised by the sudden increase in the volume of inquiry in regard to lots in the Steel plant district. Last week it was announced that Norton's Steel Plant division had been platted by Richardson, Day & Harrison and would be put on the market. Immediately there was a flood of inquiry and when the division goes on the market next Monday, there will be a rush for lots. The division is well located, with Commonwealth avenue, the principal thoroughfare in the district, running directly through it. The transfer railway crosses one corner and the Steel plant lands adjoin it on two sides. Prospective home builders and speculators are ready to step in Monday and make purchases and the limited number of lots is expected to be sold out in a very few days.

Other dealers having property in the Steel plant district have found corresponding interest on the part of the public and a small sized boom is in sight for that district this season.

The investment property market continues quiet as far as deals are concerned. The price which the Lincoln hotel on West First street, between Third and Fourth avenues west brought this week is considered a very fair one for West First street property. It is the first sale of the year on West First street and few sales in that district are in sight, as property is closely held. There is little Superior street property to be had and the quietness in investment deals is due more to property being closely held than to a lack of prospective purchasers.

Why Not Own Your Home?
WE WILL LEND YOU THE MONEY AT 5% SIMPLE INTEREST

Money invested in house rent receipts is a poor investment, and one that you will never derive any future benefits from. Anybody can pay rent, but it takes energy, economy and determination to own a home. We will lend you the money to buy, build, improve homes or lift mortgages anywhere in the Union. For each $1,000.00 borrowed, you pay us $7.50 per month, together with 5 per cent interest on yearly balances; giving you 10½ years in which to repay loan, with the privilege of taking up all notes or as many as you wish at any time, and by so doing you would get a discount of the 5 per cent interest on all notes taken up before maturity. We allow six months' grace in case of adverse circumstances. Now why do you pay rent when our plan will enable you to own a home with the money you spend for rent?
On receipt of this coupon, properly filled out, we will mail you full particulars in regard to our method of loaning money, or, better still, come to our office and let us explain to you our liberal proposition in detail.

ELABORATE HOME WHICH WOULD COST $15,000 TO BUILD IN DULUTH

ANTHONY PUCK & HOLSTEAD ARCHITECTS

The above design shows a charming and effective design for a brick house. The grouping of the entrance gable and chimney add to the dignity of the entrance, and the plain high roof gives a restful and unifying effect to the whole design. The chimneys are large and give individuality to the house. The brickwork is built of tapestry brick of varying tones of rich brown color, laid in natural colored cement, with tiled roof of light red. The window frames are painted white to give vim and cleanliness to the general exterior appearance.

The first floor plan shows a vestibule leading into a fine hall, with toilet adjacent. The living room is a fine, spacious room with a large ingle and can be thrown open to the reception room, which latter room is of considerable importance in a house of this size. The dining room is at the side of the long hall to the living room.

The kitchen is large and, with the pantry, is arranged in good relation to the dining room. A back stair gives access to the maids' bedroom and bathroom on the second floor, and the basement.

The second floor plan shows five bedrooms with closets and bathrooms.

The living room is to be finished in dark golden stained oak, the dining room in Holland blue stain on quartered oak, the hall in silver gray on quartered oak, the kitchen and pantry in birch and the bedrooms in white enamel.

The living room would have oak floor, the rest to be maple.

The above house would cost, inclusive of plumbing and heating, the sum of $15,000 in Duluth or vicinity.

THE SMITH REALTY CO.

MANY DEEDS ARE FILED

Increase in Business Reflected By Records of Register's Office.

Sales of Business Property to New Company—Deal on First Street.

The list of real estate transfers filed at the office of the register of deeds this week is longer than for many weeks. A good many of the deals are from the range towns, and a large number of the Duluth sales were of low-priced residence lots, but the number of sales to which importance is attached in the real estate market is larger than in any week since early last fall.

The principal sales recorded this week were those by Mary Le Flohic to the Alecsi Real Estate company. The Lincoln hotel property, formerly the Mason flats, on the upper side of First street between Third and Fourth avenues west, was sold for $55,000. The property at 111 East Superior street was sold for $31,500. It consists of a 25-foot lot and a two-story brick building. Two pieces of property on St. Croix avenue, improved with frame residences, brought $38,000, and one lot, included in the sale, in West Duluth brought $500, the total cash consideration being $135,000.

Another important sale recorded in the office of the register of deeds this week was that of 100 feet on the lower side of First street between Sixth and Seventh avenues west, by the Western Land association to James Sullivan. The consideration was $18,000.

Harry C. Strong has sold to Horace L. Palmer a property fronting 100 feet on the upper side of Fifth street between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth avenues west. The consideration was not named in the deed.

* * *

Anna E. McIntyre has sold to Fannie Rose a property 40 by 81 feet on Mesaba avenue, between Superior and First streets. The consideration was $3,500.

Following were the transfers for the week:

TO REMODEL BUILDING

Gray-Tallant Company to Occupy All Metropolitan Block.

Two Modern Flat Buildings to Be Built This Year.

When the work for which plans have been prepared is completed, the old Metropolitan block, which was damaged by fire a few weeks ago, will be one of the finest store buildings in the city. W. M. Prindle & Co., agents for the building, which is owned by Bradley, Lyman and Cabot of Boston, will let the contracts next week and the building will be prepared for occupancy as soon as possible.

When the remodeling is complete, the Gray-Tallant company, which has occupied the west half of the building for some years, will occupy the entire building, giving the company three floors, 100 by 140 feet.

The exterior appearance of the building will be completely changed. The peaks, which now adorn the front, will be removed and the building will be provided with a square cornice. The first floor front will be almost entirely of glass with an entrance in the middle where the entrance to the stairway is now. The second and third floor fronts will also be almost entirely of glass.

The entire interior of the building will be remodeled and rearranged, partitions to be removed so as to unite what are now two separate parts. The equipment of the store will be modern and elaborate and the Gray-Tallant company will have one of the finest stores in the city in one of the best arranged and best equipped buildings.

The Wahl-Messer Realty company has two important building projects under way. J. J. Wangenstein, architect, now has plans out for a four-family flat building to be erected on the northwest corner of Sixth avenue east and First street. The avenue at that location has recently been graded and provided with a sidewalk. The site overlooks the lake and is regarded as a very desirable one for the purpose for which it is to be utilized.

Mr. Wangenstein is also preparing plans for a twelve-family flat building to be erected in the central part of the city for the Wahl-Messer company. The location has not been announced. The building will be a brick structure and will cost about $35,000.

The weather of the past week has been very favorable for building and the contractors having work under way have taken full advantage of it. Good progress has been made on all structures under way and the contractors have almost made up for the delay, they experienced during the intense cold weather and the heavy snow storms of last week. A large number of residences are under construction and the builders have no fear of not being able to complete their work by moving day, May 1.

Work is coming out slowly, but the architects maintain their optimistic viewpoint and say the season will be one of the best in the history of Duluth in building. It is not expected that many buisness buildings will be built, but the volume of residence and apartment-house construction will be great.

INTEREST IN FARM LANDS

Many Iowa Farmers Will Come to Northern Minnesota This Year.

Have Money and Experience to Aid in Development of Region.

E. G. Church, secretary of the Guaranty Farm Lands company, returned this week from a business trip to Iowa and he is enthusiastic over the prospect of a great influx of Iowa farmers into northern Minnesota during the coming summer.

"The Iowa farmers have shown great interest in northern Minnesota farm lands during the past few years, but the interest was never greater than it is now," said Mr. Church. "Everywhere I went, I found men who were anxious to know about this country and I found many who are preparing to come here this year to look over the land and, if conditions are satisfactory, locate."

A great many sales of northern Minnesota farm lands have been sold to Iowans during the past few years. They sell their farms in Iowa for big prices and, with experience, money and a desire to make good, the purchasers are assisting in the development of the agricultural resources of this section. Purchases of land in this section at the low prices asked leave the farmers with a comfortable surplus from the sales of their Iowa lands, so they have money to use in clearing and development, a fact that is not true of a great many settlers in this region.

According to Mr. Church, the desire to move is strong among a great many Iowa farmers. Some of them have gone to western Canada, but they have not all found conditions there satisfactory. Those who have come to northern Minnesota have been so successful and have sent back to Iowa such glowing stories of the opportunities offered in this section of the country that the number of emigrants to this state has been increasing yearly and it will be greater this year than ever before.

BIG DEAL IN CUYUNA RANGE LAND CLOSED.

A deal of importance in Cuyuna range acreage was closed yesterday through the office of Ebert, Walker & McKnight, 2,400 acres being sold by W. H. Lammels, administrator of the Troy estate, to the Goodhue Investment company, a Duluth corporation. The land lies in 48-26, 51-25 and 51-17, Aitkin county. There are indications of mineral deposits on some of the land and the purchasing company will do some exploration work. It is likely some of the land will be put on the market. The consideration for the transfer was not made public, but it is understood to have been about $20,000 cash.

MAN'S MIND IS PERFECT BLANK

Found Trying to Chop Open Navigation in Lake of the Woods.

Crookston, Minn., Feb. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sheriff Olson of Roseau county and Officer Dufault of Warroad took a man, believed to be J. S. Lang of Fergus Falls, last night. Lang was arrested at Warroad Wednesday when found bareheaded chopping ice in Lake of the Woods to open navigation for the fleet of Christopher Columbus, which he believed to be the boats laid up for the winter there.

Lang was perfectly rational last night, but his life prior to his arrest was a total blank, barring the fact that he believed he had taught school near Barnesville. He did not even know his name, but "J. S. Lang" was marked on his clothing and a card with his name on it is supposed to establish his identity. He knows nothing of his relatives. At Barnesville last night, no one knew him and he was taken to Fergus Falls. He is well educated and well dressed. He had cyanide of potassium enough when found to kill 1,000 men. He is about 30, dark complexion, heavy black hair and smooth shaven. His cultured, gentlemanly manner, refined dress and general appearance leads to the belief that he is a man of prominence for whom search will be made within a few days. His memory is so blank that he cannot remember whether he is married or single or where he had ever been before.

MARKET UP; SHORTS COVER

Trading Is Light—Death of Scott Bill Is Bullish.

Rain and Snow Provide Ample Moisture for the Southwest.

Duluth Board of Trade, Feb. 18.—Wheat advanced fractionally today, May gaining ½c. July went forward a similar distance. Trading was light and insignificant in character. Cash wheat was ½c over May. Oats gained ⅛c, rye and barley were unchanged. The durum market was stronger, May gaining ⅝c. Some durum wheat has been reported sold for export, but other reports say that there is no export business in any kind of American wheat.

Flaxseed was ¼c up, May closing at $2.69¾ asked. Cash was 1c over. There were no receipts and the demand was evident, but trading was light. The United States continues to import seed from Argentina, about 4,400,000 bu having been sent from Argentina to this country since Jan. 1. This is about one-fourth of the entire crop produced in that country this season. On account of resales from profit takers the Antwerp market for La Plata seed slumped slightly today, closing $2.455 a bu. Winnipeg May closed $2.54 bid.

When cables were off, but the undertone of foreign market was firm on account of lighter world's shipments and less pressure of offerings. The continental demand was generous.

Today's strength was due in a large measure to the better feeling created by the quick defeat of Senator Scott's anti-option bill which was offered as a panacea for a host of economic and commercial ills but which was regarded by everybody but a few farmers as a joke. On the advance shorts covered freely. Toward the close there were signs indicating that considerable wheat was about to come on the market and the market weakened slightly before the end of the session.

The condition of the winter wheat seldom has been so favorable as at present. The state of Kansas is covered with from six inches to two feet of snow and in many regions it was still snowing this morning. The Southwestern states have received plenty of rain. B. W. Snow, crop expert, says that there was no frost in the ground and the rains in the Southwest soaked in thoroughly. Kansas and the Southwest, he says, have an ample supply of reserve moisture. A little cold weather, he believes, would be admirable as it would check too rapid growth of the plant.

In answer to an inquiry as to when the reciprocity pact will go into effect if passed, Washington wires that it would be made effective in the United States by proclamation of the president after having been passed by congress and the Canadian parliament. Senator Smoot of the finance committee and one of the Republicans who is opposed to reciprocity, told the president yesterday that he thought the bill will not be held up in committee, but will be reported to the senate and let the senate deal with it.

Country mills through the Northwest have been producing very little flour recently, according to the compilation of the Northwestern Miller. The production of fifty-six mills outside of Minneapolis and Duluth-Superior last week was 61,000 bbls less than for the corresponding week last year, while the big commercial mills at the above cities produced about 30,000 bbls more than a year ago. Recent competition has been very severe on the smaller mills in the Northwest, and a great many are closed down.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: Wheat weakness in America yesterday and freer offers of American winter wheat caused some realizing here and values were off ⅛@⅜d. The general tendency was steady with offers light and following the opening the market firmed on good buying and prices advanced ⅛@¾d. Support was induced by the expectations of lighter world's shipments on Monday, less La Plata offers, firmer Australian offers and expectations of a large decrease in local stocks here on Monday. The continent was a fair buyer of wheat, causing the close the market was steady and ⅛@¾d lower than yesterday with the principal pressure in July. Corn was quiet at the start and ½d lower and following the opening March further declined. Pressure was due to the weakness in America and prohibition of heavy American shipments to Liverpool this week and liquidation in March. At the close prices were ⅛@¾d lower than yesterday.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Signs of Lighter World's Shipments Give Wheat Firmness.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—Signs of lighter world shipments gave the wheat market a touch of firmness today. It was also expected there would be a decided decrease shown in the stocks on hand at Liverpool. On the other hand, the cash demand was limited slow, and the Southwest received further drenching rains over night. Opening prices were ¼c lower to ⅛c higher. May started at 96⅞@97⅛c, a shade off to a shade up, touched 96⅝@96¾c and advanced to 97c.

Rumors of plague quarantine against Russian ships led to an additional advance. The close was steady with May ¼c net higher at 97¼@97⅜c.

With smaller receipts in prospect, owing to wet weather, corn turned a little stronger. May opened unchanged to 1-16c higher at 48⅜ to 48⅝@48⅞c and rose to 49c.

There was not much pressure to sell and the market hardened a trifle with wheat. The close was steady with May at 49c, a net gain of ¼c.

Oats, though slow, mounted with corn and wheat. May started the same as last night at 31⅜c, sold at 31⅝c and then ascended to 31⅞c.

Limited offerings made hog products firm. First sales were 2½c dearer to a shade down with May options at $17.70 for pork, $9.42½ for lard and $9.47½ for ribs.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Prices Rise Steadily in the Face of Realizing Sales.

Losses in Mid-Week's Decline Reduced to Considerable Degree.

New York, Feb. 18.—The stock market today opened active and strong, with a continuation of yesterday's late buying movement. Southern Railway was especially strong, owing presumably to yesterday's dividend announcement, the preferred advancing 1¼ and the common 1. United States Steel, on sales of 12,000 shares in the first few minutes, advanced ½, and Reading, Lehigh Valley, Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Union Pacific maintained a like amount. St. Paul was up ¾.

Operations on the long side of the market were conducted with growing confidence and were reflected in steadily rising prices in the face of the realizing sales which the rise induced. Round amounts of the important issues were bid for, and as they forged steadily upward the whole market followed suit. By the end of the first hour advances had been effected about a point in many of the favorites, including United States Steel, Reading, St. Paul, Southern Pacific and Lehigh Valley. The new city bonds touched 102, the highest price yet reached.

The market closed active and strong. Further improvement was shown by the market in the final hour on a fairly large volume of business. The advance was quite general and in numerous instances reduced to a considerable degree the losses recorded in the mid-week's decline.

HOUSE TO TAKE ACTION ON REAPPORTIONMENT ON TUESDAY MORNING

Bill Will Be Passed as Reported By the Committee.

Chances for Direct Legislation Measures Are Not So Good.

Cashman Distance Tariff Bill to Be Defeated in Senate.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Today begins the eighth week of the session, and, assuming that final adjournment will not come until the Constitution puts an end to the sitting of the legislature on April 20, Thursday is the exact middle of the session.

And there will be no adjournment until the Constitution makes adjournment compulsory, even although the senate has gravely passed a resolution providing for final adjournment April 1. The house will not pass the resolution, and it cannot be made effective without the consent of both houses; and even if it did pass it both houses would be falling over themselves to rescind the action when April 1 drew near.

There has been at least the usual amount of loitering in both houses in the first half of the session, and the legislature isn't a bit further advanced at this stage than previous legislatures have been. Very few important measures have been put out of the way.

FAST DISTANCE RECORD BROKEN

Gates' Train Covers Nearly 3,000 Miles in Seventy-Eight Hours.

New York, Feb. 20.—A record in fast long distance travel by train was made by the arrival here last night of Charles G. Gates, son of John W. Gates, the New York financier, who completed a dash of nearly 3,000 miles across the continent to obtain expert treatment for a case of blood poisoning.

To be precise as possible, a chain of fast trains carried Mr. Gates over 2,989 miles of track in 78 hours, including all the stops, which are necessary for changing engines, switching, etc. This is an average for the whole distance of 37 miles an hour, counting stops.

The fastest time ever made from Chicago to New York is that of Mr. Yates' train in 16 hours and 49 minutes. The east-bound trip has never been made before under 17 hours, although the west-bound record has been 16 hours and 7 minutes. The portion of the trip covered in fastest time, was between Toledo and Cleveland, when 108 miles were covered in 97 minutes. The last leg of the journey over the New York Central lines from Albany was made in just a mile a minute, notwithstanding time taken to change from steam to electric locomotion at Highbridge.

Mr. Gates was so alarmed over the infection of a bruise on his leg while traveling in the West last week, that he offered $5,000 for a special train to New York for treatment.

Although confined to his bed in one of the five special cars on the train, Mr. Gates was in a cheerful mood when the train arrived here, and in as good condition, Dr. Davis, said, as could be expected. He explained that Mr. Gates suffered a similar bruise two years ago and had had so much trouble from infection at that time, he did not desire to take the slightest chances.

He was removed last night to his Madison avenue home, where a consultation of physicians was held over his case.

COUNTESS DE LASSY HAS DISAPPEARED

Wife of Convicted Poisoner Said to Have Lost Her Mind.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 20.—The police are making a searching investigation of the circumstances surrounding the disappearance of the Countess de Lassy following the conviction of her husband, Count Patrick O'Brien de Lassy, of the murder of Count Vassilli Bouturlin. The countess was discovered on Saturday, and a subsequent inquiry by physicians was said to have disclosed that she had lost her mind.

It now appears that during the trial the countess received letters from parties who offered to organize a plan by which De Lassy might escape his sentence to penal servitude for life. This has given a new turn to the temporary absence of the countess from her home and she is being further interrogated to determine whether she is really insane as at first thought.

DIVIDENT OF HARVESTER COMPANY IS INCREASED.

New York, Feb. 20. — The International Harvester company today declared a quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent on common. This is an increase of ¼ of 1 per cent in the dividend over that declared the previous quarter.

SENATOR V. L. JOHNSON Of Center City.

STATE-WIDE PRIMARY LAW

Elaborate Revision of Primary Law Proposed By Senator Gunderson.

Bill to Increase the District Judges' Pay in Three Large Counties.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A new and elaborate revision of the primary election law, including state-wide primaries, non-partisan judiciary, non-partisan nomination and election of county and city officers, and punishment for those who mix in the primaries of parties to which they do not belong, is provided in a bill introduced in the senate this morning by Senator Gunderson of Alexandria. It extends the primary election to all state officers, puts the nomination of supreme and district court judges, and county and city officers on a non-partisan basis, provides for the placing of names of candidates on primary election ballots by petition, allows candidates, in filing for office, to file their platforms up to 200 words;; requires voters to register their party affiliations when voting at the primary, and makes it a gross misdemeanor to register the wrong party affiliations.

Senator Anderson this morning brought up again his resolution asking the United States senate to pass the Sulloway bill to increase pensions.

Senator Cheadle of Duluth offered as a substitute a resolution expressing confidence in the senate's ability to do the right thing and willingness on the part of the state senate to let it do it.

Senator Rockne put the whole matter over by giving notice of debate.

Senator Wilson introduced a bill this morning increasing the pay of district judges in St. Louis, Hennepin and Ramsey counties $800 a year, the increase to be paid by the counties.

"DYED" FISH IS A NEW SUBSTITUTE

Food Bureau Extracts Coloring Matter Enough to Dye Wool.

Philadelphia, Feb. 20.—The dairy and food bureau of the state agricultural department has discovered that a large number of delicatessen and other stores of this city have been for a long time selling "dyed" fish as a substitute for smoked fish. When Harry P. Cassidy, the agent of the bureau, told the retail store proprietors what they were doing they were surprised as they had purchased the stuff as genuine smoked fish.

Cassidy's attention to the food article was attracted by its rich red color. Purchasing some of the fish, he had it examined and the expert reported that he could dye wool with the coloring matter extracted from it. In smoking fish there is a loss of fifteen pounds to every 100, it is said, but in dyeing the article there is no loss. This permitted the violators of the law to undersell their competitors in the smoked fish industry. The dairy and food bureau promises prosecutions this week against certain wholesale dealers.

Loses Hand in Mill Crusher.

Walcott, N. D., Feb. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Adolph Stenberg, proprietor of the Walcott feed mill, had his right hand so badly crushed by the steel rollers that crush the grain, that it was necessary to amputate his first and second fingers. The physicians hope to save his thumb which was also almost torn off.

HEARING ON RECIPROCITY

Senate Committee on Finance Listens to Arguments Against Bill.

Paper Maker of Wisconsin Strongly Opposes the Measure.

Washington, Feb. 20.—Hearings on the McCall bill to carry out the provisions of the Canadian reciprocity agreement were begun today by the senate committee on finance. During the forenoon the only witness was John Strange of Neenah, Wis., a paper manufacturer and former lieutenant governor of his state.

Mr. Strange opposed the bill in vigorous language, charging that false sentiment in favor of it had been manufactured by a league of newspapers which he believed to be in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Considerable difficulty was experienced by Senators Lodge, Cullom, Flint and Stone in keeping Mr. Strange to his subject and obtaining from him reasons why the agreement should not be confirmed. Sometimes Senator Lodge sharply demanded something other than attacks upon the motives of newspapers in their demand for cheaper paper.

John Norris, chairman of the paper

FOREMAN OF GRAND JURY SERIOUSLY ILL

Isaac Woodyard of Danville, Ill., Forced to Give Up Work.

Danville, Ill., Feb. 20.—Isaac Woodyard, foreman of the vote probe grand jury of Vermillion county, is dangerously ill at his home in Ridge farm and will probably not serve again during the session of the body. His physician stated this morning that he is suffering from the grip and is in a serious, if not dangerous, condition.

Sunday it was thought for a time that he could not live. He was considerably better today.

When the grand jury meets at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon it will elect a new foreman and continue its duties.

Mr. Woodyard has been the guiding spirit in the investigation. He did a greater part of the quizzing of witnesses and it was he who fought off outside influences when an effort was made to block the inquiry.

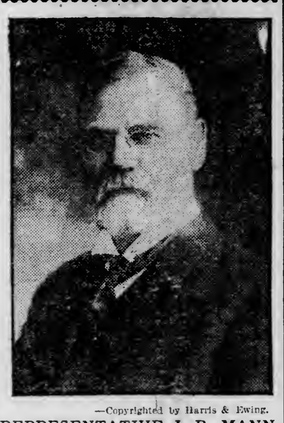

AX WOUND IS FATAL.

Young Man Living Near Backus Victim of Blood Poisoning.

Brainerd, Minn., Feb. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Earl King, 19 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. George D. King, residing near Backus, died at a local hospital of blood poisoning about two weeks ago the boy was cutting wood at home. The ax struck a knot and glanced, injuring the knee bone. The cut did not appear to be serious, but complications set in and blood poisoning developed which the skill of the doctors could not check.

REPRESENTATIVE J. R. MANN.

Has Been Continuously Before Representatives Since Last Week.

Still Legislative Day of Friday When House Convenes Monday.

Committee Brings in "Gag" Rule Limiting Debate to Forty Minutes.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The war claims bill passed the house today at 12:40 p. m., after having been under consideration since last Friday, because of a filibuster waged against it.

It was still the legislative day of Friday in the house when that body met at 10 o'clock today in pursuance of the recess of the 28-hour session ordered shortly before 4 o'clock yesterday.

One of the omnibus claim bills which have held the house in a tangle since Friday last was still under consideration today. It was the house bill carrying war claims only and omitting the French spoliation and navy yard overtime claims, and there was still a filibuster proceeding against the measure. Mr. Mann of Illinois, who commanded the filibuster under which the French claims were stricken out,

Bismarck, N. D., Feb. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—North Dakota will, on July 1, join the ranks of the anti-pass states, the measure passed by the legislative assembly late Saturday afternoon going into effect at that time. This important bill was passed by the assembly in record time, it requiring less than an hour and fifteen minutes after the bill was reported out by the conference committee in the house till it had been passed by that body, and the amendments made had been concurred in by the senate. The bill gained its start in the senate, being drawn by the railroad committee of that body.

As it had been passed, the bill ex-

BOILERMAKERS ON N. Y. CENTRAL CALLED OUT BY UNION ORDERS

EXPRESSES VIEWS ON THE WAR IN MEXICO

JOSE YVES LIMANTOUR,
Mexican Minister of Finance, Who Talks on the Crisis in Mexico.

Eight Hundred Men From Buffalo to Chicago Are Affected.

Demand of Men Is for the Abolishment of Piece Work.

Railroad Officials Say the Boilermakers Have No Real Grievance.

Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 20.—Vice President Louis Weyand of the Brotherhood of Boiler Makers and Iron Ship Builders of America, today ordered out 800 boiler makers employed on the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern division of the New York Central railroad letween Buffalo and Chicago.

A strike has been pending for weeks while negotiations were carried on between the boiler makers' representatives and officials of the road. The demand of the men for the abolishment of piece work was the cause. The company was given until 10 o'clock this morning to meet the demands.

Following a conference here last week a strike vote was taken. This was submitted to the international headquarters at Kansas City, Mo., for a count. The executive committee today sent the order to call the strike to Vice President Weyand.

Seventy-five employes in the Cottonwood shops here quit work at 10 o'clock.

General Manager Moon of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad is in Indianapolis today and in his absence D. R. MacBain, superintendent of motive power, issued a statement:

"The boiler makers really have no

SHOULD LAY DOWN ARMS

Mexican Minister Says Government Will Then Treat With Insurgents.

Otherwise There Is a Probability of a Long, Wasting Struggle.

Paris, Feb. 20.—In a review of the crisis in Mexico made today for the Associated Press, Jose Yves Limantour, minister of finance in the cabinet of President Diaz, declared that the only basis for peace was that the insurgents lay down their arms pending negotiations with the government, which on its part should grant a reform of the evils that made the revolution possible.

The only alternative that he foresaw was the probability of a long wasting struggle, for, said the minister, "the federal troops are no match for the cowboy insurgents." In the opinion of Senor Limantour, the feudal system in Mexico must go and the great estates in the north which have been passed from family to family should be distributed among the people.

For himself, the minister said that he had no political ambitions, though he had been frequently urged to contest the presidency with President Diaz. He expects to start home within two weeks.

No Political Aspirations.

"I have no political aspirations," said Senor Limantour, in concluding the interview. "I seek merely the uplifting of my country. I have often been asked to run for the presidency, but I have refused. I expect to leave Paris in a fortnight for New York and to proceed thence to Yucatan for a private visit."

Minister Limantour came to Paris

HEAVY SNOW STORM RAGES IN NEW YORK

Metropolis Is Enveloped in Snowy Mantle With Falling Temperature.

New York, Feb. 20.—The storm from Southwest, which raged over the south central portion of the country yesterday, and last night struck New York and vicinity increased in force this morning and before 9 o'clock a snow blanket more than two inches in thickness had been deposited here with prospects that the fall would continue through the day. There was little wind, but the temperature was 24 deg. at 8 o'clock and falling, this increasing the probability of considerable accumulations of the fleecy covering.

POLICE EXTINGUISH FUSE JUST IN TIME

Stamp Out Fire and Prevent Explosion of a Dynamite Bomb.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—A dynamite bomb with a lighted time fuse two feet long, sputtering and spitting fire was found early today on the front steps of a house occupied by Giacomo Frisa, an Italian laborer. Two policemen saw the burning fuse and extinguished the fire.

The bomb consisted of five sticks of high percentage dynamite, bound together with a string and with fuse and cap adjusted.

Frisa lives in the two-story house with his wife and four children. He has received threatening letters in the past few months, signed "The Black Hand," and asking for money. The last, received a week ago, advised him that his home would be blown up if he failed to leave $500 in a package on his front doorstep or if he notified the police.

The fuse when taken to the police station was found to have burned scarcely an inch. Although the indications were that the bomb had been left on the doorstep only a moment before it was found, the police saw no one leaving the place.

Chiropractic Method Wins

Dr. Riesland Completely Cures a Severe Case of Chronic Stomach Trouble, After All Drug Methods Failed Absolutely.

Chiropractic methods of coping with disease win over other methods because chiropractic methods, as practiced by Dr. Riesland, concern the causes of the trouble and the efforts of curing are centered on removing the pinched nerves. The skilled chiropractor removes the pressure on the affected nerves by readjusting the spine and thus the illness ceases, for there is no cause or reason, for it to exist.

Mr. S. P. Thygeson was troubled with chronic stomach trouble. After going the rounds of the best medicine doctors, friends advised him to go to Dr. Riesland. Here he received complete cure, as he says in his letter. Read it for yourselves.

MR. S. P. THYGESON.

Park Falls, Wis., Feb. 16, 1911.
Dr. D. W. Riesland,
Duluth, Minn.,
Dear Doctor:

I feel in duty bound to make you this unsolicited acknowledgement of the superiority of your treatment over anything that I ever have come in contact with. For years I was a slave to the drug system, spending large amounts of money and no end of time, in seeking a cure for a severe chronic stomach ailment, which threatened to completely incapacitate me from all work or business. A number of the very best medical doctors tried their skill, without success and I felt that I was only going from bad to worse. One even told me that a cure was impossible in my case and that the best I could hope for was to keep up under stimulates, so that I would be able to do my work for some time longer at least. A friend advised me to try your treatment and I started in with you, to be frank, without much hope or expectation of any benefit. I noticed a great change after the first four or five treatments and now, after having treated faithfully for three weeks I feel that I am completely restored. All trace of my old ailment has disappeared and I am back at my work and enjoying it. If this unsolicited testimonial will come to the notice of some fellow sufferer I would be glad if my experience will hold out new hope to him. I can honestly recommend your system of treatment as superior to anything that medicine can ever accomplish.

Yours gratefully,
(Signed) S. P. THYGESON.

When you are sick come to Dr. Riesland first. It saves your time and money, and you get well sooner.

Dr. Riesland's offices are at 707-708-709-710-711-712 Palladio Building, Duluth, Minn. Call on him today.

COLLEGE MEN WILL DINE

University Dinner Will Be Held at the Spalding Tuesday.

All Graduates and Undergraduates in the City Are Eligible.

Tomorrow evening at the Spalding the college men of this city will hold a banquet for the purpose of renewing youthful spirits, and during the course of the evening they may lay the foundatoin for the organization of a university club for this city.

A. F. Benson, a graduate of the school of mines, who is at the present time at Virginia, will be the first speaker of the evening. He will be followed by Solin L. Perrin of Superior, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin. W. A. McGonagle, Charles Mitchell and John Walker Powell will be the other speakers on the program. Wilson G. Crosby, a Harvard graduate, will be the toastmaster.

Any man who has attended college for one year is cordially invited to attend the banquet, whether he has received one of the written invitations or not. The prime object is to get the college men together and to promote acquaintance among them. While nothing definite has been determined upon in regard to the organization in Duluth of a university club, something on the order of the club of Minneapolis, some of the college men of this city have the idea in mind and the suggestion will probably be broached at the dinner.

Those who were instrumental in getting the dinner up believe there is room in this city for the organizatoin of such a club, and there will probably be a discussion of the subject tomorrow evening. It is expected that the majority of the college men of Duluth will turn out.

CHINA LIKELY TO STAND PAT

Will Probably Contest Demands of the Russian Government.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The Chinese government apparently has determined to contest the demands of the Russian government in the matter of extension of trade relations and the recognition of special privileges in the province of Ill Northwestern China.

The Chinese legation here has informed the state department that the Chinese foreign board at Pekin has addressed a note to the St. Petersburg foreign office replying to the ultimatum threatening a military demonstration in Turkestan.

The Chinese note in substance is a sweeping denial of the charges made by the Russian government that China has violated the provisions of the treaty of 1881 so far as they relate to consular offices and the rights of Russian merchants in the Northwestern provinces of China.

The Chinese legation so far has contented itself with supplying the state dialect monologue with a brief statement of the Chinese reply and has asked further instructions from Pekin before endeavoring to enlist the good offices of America in adjusting the dispute with Russia.

The laws are those relating to drunkenness, vagrants and desertion and were published in The Herald in full a few days ago.

People are being urged to write the representatives and urge their passage. The letter which is being sent out follows:

"Through your interest in helping the poor and in protecting helpless children, you will want to see laws we proposed enacted.

"They aim to help prevent desertion, to alleviate the distress resulting from it, and to restore the deserter to a normal life with his family. They attempt to cure the drinker before he has become a drunkard. They make it possible to teach the tramp to become a useful citizen instead of a "rounder" from jail to jail and city to city.

"Above all, they aim, through a commission on causes of poverty to discover the root of the troubles dealt with day after day by police, judges, ministers and charity workers, and as far as it is humanly possible, to help remove the causes of poverty.

"If you approve of these laws you can greatly help in having them passed by writing yourself and by urging every individual, through personal letters, to write to the representatives and senators from your district endorsing the proposed laws and urging their passage."

The senators and representatives from the Eighth district are:

Senators—T. W. Pugh, Duluth; H. W. Cheadle, Duluth; C. J. Swanson, Fridley; James P. Boyle, Eveleth; D. W. Gunn, Grand Rapids.

Representatives—Henry Rines, Mora; Henry P. Webb, Sandstone; Rufus P. Merton, Bethlehem; R. C. Dunn, Princeton; W. A. Healey, Hibbing; Anton Borgen, Duluth; E. B. Ribenack, Duluth; C. A. Congdon, Duluth; N. S. Hillman, Two Harbors; T. M. Ferguson, Barker, C. H. Warner, Aitkin; C. T. Knapp, Chisholm.

VISITED IN DULUTH THIRTY YEARS AGO

Sheriff W. S. Robertson of Edmonton, Alberta, who has not been in Duluth since his first trip West thirty years ago, was a caller at the sheriff's office at the courthouse this morning.

Mr. Robertson came through St. Paul yesterday and got lost there trying to find his old stamping ground, the Merchants hotel. He found himself lost when he began to try to tell about the growth of Duluth. All he could say was that it was more than wonderful, and that he would not have believed it unless he had been here to see for himself.

He was born in Eastern Canada and hit Duluth thirty years ago on his way West. At that time there were but two hotels, the old Lakeview and the Clark house. The old Lakeview stood where the Palladio building now stands.

There were in Duluth at that time but 2,000 people. Mr. Robertson was impressed at the time but pushed on to Edmonton where he has been sheriff for twenty-seven years. The position there is given by the government and is for life.

When he arrived at Edmonton thirty years ago there were but three or four white women, a half a hundred white men and the rest of the population was made up of Cree and Stone Indians. The Indians are now practically all gone, he says. The land they used to own has been taken up by the government and they have been pushed further West. Edmonton today has between 25,000 and 40,000 inhabitants.

Mr. Robertson says that he remembers the trip from St. Paul to Duluth. It took more than a day to make the journey. If the berries looked good to the passengers at a certain point, they simply notified the engineer that they would like to have the train stopped for a time while they filled their pails. The engineer usually had as much time to make the trip as he liked and he was only too glad to take a short vacation. He states that many times on his way here the train was stopped that the passengers might pick flowers.

Mr. Robertson is on his way to visit at his old home in Eastern Canada.

MAY CUT DOWN SIZE OF PIPE

Prof. Bass Confers With Property Owners on Woodland Sewer.

Prof. Frederick Bass of the University of Minnesota, a leading expert on sanitary matters, visited Duluth yesterday to confer with property owners relative to the proposed Woodland trunk sewer. The plans were gone over at some length.

Prof. Bass believes that the size of the sewer can be cut down considerably, reducing the price proportionately. The specifications of the city engineering department call for unusually large pipe. This was done primarily because the members of the engineering force believe that the Woodland district will build up rapidly after the sewer is put in, and they figure that the needs of a big pipe will constantly increase. They also drew the plans so that the sewer would take care of rain water.

No definite conclusion was reached at the meeting, but the subject will be taken up again at a later date, which has not been determined upon.

INDORSES MAYOR'S SENTIMENTS

Rev. John Walker Powell Says People Make the Government.

The sentiments on law enforcement expressed by Mayor Cullum Friday evening were indorsed yesterday by Rev. John Walker Powell, Jr., of the Endion M. E. church.

He did not go into the matter in detail, but made passing mention of it in connection with his sermon. Rev. Powell took the position that the government will only be as good as the people make it, agreeing with the mayor. He stated that this was not only true of politics and business, but in church matters as well.

Rev. M. S. Rice did not speak of the subject in his sermons yesterday, but stated that he was of the opinion that the speech of Dr. Cullum was timely and that he agreed with the thoughts of the mayor.

GIVES TALK ON TEMPERANCE

Bishop McGolrick Tells Children of Evils of Strong Drink.

"Whisky never did any man any good," said Bishop James McGolrick at the children's mass at Sacred Heart cathedral yesterday morning in a strong plea to the boys to avoid strong drink.

Since 300 years before Christ, Bishop McGolrick told the children, all the battles that have been fought in the wars have resulted in the death of 2,700,000 men. Of these only 700,000 were killed outright on the battle field, the others dying of wounds. In the United States, he said, 735,000 men die every year as a result of indulgence in alcoholic drinks, so that more men die in the United States every year of drink than were killed on the battle fields in the wars of nearly 2,400 years.

"If I water a plant with water containing a few spoonfuls of alcohol to the bucket, the plant droops and becomes stunted," he said. "If a little alcohol is put into a cat's milk regularly, the cat's growth is stunted. What is true of the plant and the animal is true of the human being. The human system will stand much, but not alcohol."

How Is Your Weight?

While it is true that too much weight is not to be desired, yet the fact remains that many men and women are thin to the point of danger. This danger lies in their having no reserve force or nerve power to combat deadly diseases. A little extra flesh is needed by all to feel well and look well, and this calls up the question of how best to increase the weight. Physicians and chemists, by experiments have solved the problem of increasing the white and red corpuscles of the blood, by the administration of 3 grain hyponuclane tablets, and this is always followed by an increase of weight. Obtain in sealed packages, and take for a period of several months according to directions with package.

BOARDS WILL WORK TOGETHER

Water and Light Board to Consult Other City Departments.

The board of public works this morning received a communication from the water and light department stating that the water and light board desires to work more closely with the works board and the engineering department in working on improvements.

The communication said that in the future the other city departments will be asked for necessary information before mains are put in. This action is taken so that when water pipes are laid the work will not interfere or damage other pipes which may already be in the street.

GIVE FAREWELL DANCE.

Mrs. Seely and Daughter of Cloquet Entertain Finely.

Cloquet, Minn., Feb. 20. — Saturday evening, from 8 to 12, in the Nelson opera house, one of the prettiest dancing parties of the season was given, the hostesses, Mrs. Henry Seeley and daughter, Miss E. Maud Seeley, and Miss Nell Carley. There were seventy-five present, a number from out of the city. The ballroom was decorated with beautiful festoons of wisteria and colored lights. Great quantities of the flowers were banked round the Moody orchestra, and a canopy of blossoms was arranged over the punch table. There were many beautiful gowns. At midnight the hostesses and guests repaired to R. F. Cochrane's, where refreshments were served. The decorations were red and white roses and daffodils, and on the tables, red carnations, while at each place was a lighted red candle. The sketch of a bird on the place cards corresponded to the invitations, written in rhyme, and bearing the crayon sketch of a bird, and to which each guest had sent poetic acceptance. The Seeleys are old residents of Cloquet and leave in a few months for Spokane, Wash., to reside.

Mrs. Olesen Entertains Club.

Mrs. Peter Olesen was hostess Saturday afternoon to the North Country club, the topic under discussion, "German Music of the Nineteenth Century." Davis; "Modern Composers—Brahms, Joachim and Strauss," Miss Hubman. Several visitors were present. The program committee for next year was appointed, consisting of Mrs. Searles, Mrs. Peter Olesen and Miss Louise Lowe. Mrs. O. S. Smith was elected club critic. The next meeting, March 4, will be at the home of Mrs. Searles.

This Is "Corset Week"

The Redfern Corset Demonstration began this morning. It was a pleasure to see patrons availing themselves of this courtesy of the Redfern designers.

Mrs. L. Stebbins, a New York corsetiere, is in attendance. Consult her as to desirability of New Redfern models as compared with other good corsets.

To put it in her own words—Why will women use wood fibre, rattan, or steel boning when Redfern models all have resilient whalebone?

Mrs. Stebbins will give scientific fittings to all who desire them. A purchase is not expected. She will be pleased to give the style number of your individual model, and you may get it when you are ready.

Mrs. Stebbins will be pleased to see you any time this week—preferably tomorrow.

CERTAINLY ENDS STOMACH MISERY

Indigestion, Gas, Heartburn or Dyspepsia Go In Five Minutes.

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of Indigestion or Dyspepsia, or that you food will ferment or sour on your stomach, if you will take a little Diapepsin occasionally.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea, Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), Biliousness, Heartburn, Water brash, Pain in stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. A single dose will digest all the food you eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour and upset the stomach.

Get a large 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist and start taking now, and in a little while you will actually brag about your healthy, strong Stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of impurity and Gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

Should you at this moment be suffering from Indigestion or any stomach disorder, you can get relief within five minutes.

CAME TO DULUTH ON FIRST TRAIN

Mrs. Elmina McDaniel, Resident of City Since 1870, Dies.

Mrs. Elmina McDaniel, 79 years of age, died yesterday at the home of Mrs. Kaster Stahll, 24 Seventh avenue west.

She was the widow of the late Henry E. McDaniel, who died three years ago. Both were pioneer residents, coming here in the early days. Mrs. McDaniel was born in Ohio and came to the Head of the Lakes Aug. 20, 1870, over the first train run into Duluth. The funeral services are set for 3 o'clock this afternoon at the First M. E. church. The body will be sent to Le Sueur Center for interment. Mrs. McDaniel had no children. W. V. Brockway and H. W. Brockway of Le Sueur Center, nephews, came to Duluth to make the funeral arrangements. Mrs. S. W. Elwood of Le Sueur Center and Mrs. D. Wright of Minneapolis are nieces.

DULUTH GROCERS GO TO ST. PAUL

Large Delegation to Attend Convention of State Association.

About sixty Duluth grocers and forty grocers from nearby towns left today for St. Paul, where the annual state convention of the Retail Grocers' and General Merchants' association will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

An effort will be made to secure the next convention for Duluth. The grocers occupied a special car attached to the Northern Pacific's train which left here at 1:55 p. m.

George H. Schulenberg of Duluth, second vice president of the state association, probably will be a candidate for first vice president. George M. Peterson, secretary of the local association, may be appointed an assistant secretary of the state body. The speakers will include Mr. Schulenberg, Mr. Peterson and Simon Clark of Duluth.

VOTES FOR ANTI-PASS

cepts farmers' institute lecturers, men employed in the state geological survery, men employed in the work on good farming special service trains, together with policemen and mail carriers on street cars. Other exceptions are those made in the federal law. The measure now goes to the governor for his signature.

In the house there were only twenty-six votes against the bill while in the senate there were seven. Those opposed to the bill in the house were Messrs. Anshein, Akesson, Burns, De Lance, Edwards, Englund, Fox, France, Fritz, Hedalen, Martin, McClellan, O'Shea, Peart, Pendray, Ray, Roquette, Scott, Stern, Stranahan, Streeter, Tollefson, Tostenson, Tuttle, Walters and Whiter, while in the senate the votes against the bill were cast by Messrs. Carter, Hookway, Martin, McDonald, Movius, Simpson and Walton.

Recall Passed By Senate.

Other important measures that were up for the consideration of the assembly Saturday were the recall, passed by the senate and which provides that recall proceedings may be instituted on a petition of at least 30 per cent of the voters. Another bill changes the time of the election from June till July, another provides first and second choice in the selection of state office candidates, while another regulates the manner of selecting the county precinct committeemen. The primary bills were passed by the senate and go to the house for approval, while the same holds true of the recall.

There probably will be some opposition to the plain initiative and referendum bill in the house, that body having evidently taken up the Doyle-Ployhar bill, the provisions of which are much the same as those of the Plain bill. The Doyle-Ployhar bill is now in the house committee of the whole where it will be considered today.

Trouble occurred in the house over the register of deeds salary increase bill. This measure would raise the salaries of the registers of deeds of the various counties to the same as now paid the auditors and county treasurers. There were majority and minority reports, the minority being for indefinite postponement. On the report Mr. Ployhar of Barnes moved that the majority report be adopted, while Mr. Fried, seconded by Mr. Tuttle, moved that the motion be laid on the table and the bill indefinitely postponed. On the vote to postpone there was a tie ballot, the motion being lost, and on the Ployhar motion to adopt the majority report, made by roll call, the report was adopted and the bill is now on its third reading.

Judicial District Bills.

In the Fifth judicial district bills reported out, which are by Ployhar of Barnes, it is provided that the Fifth district shall consist of Stutsman, Le Moure, Logan and McIntosh, while the Thirteenth judicial district is to be composed of Barnes, Griggs, Wells, Foster and Eddy. This would give the chambers to Valley City and to Jamestown. The De Nault bills, providing for the division of the district, were postponed.

The bill for the indemnity of tubercular cattle was sent back to the live stock committee, because of objections raised as to the amount of the indemnity proposed.

No bills will be introduced after the fifty-first day of the session if the resolution, introduced in the senate and providing that no bills should be introduced after the forty-fifth day, is concurred in by the senate as amended.

Among the important bills up on third reading in the house were the Hoge bill for control of all state institutions by a board, and the Fraine constitutional convention. The former was laid over till today at 3:30, while the latter failed to carry on a vote of 44 to 42, not having a majority of the house membership.

H. D. PAULSON.

CHANGE OF TIME

HOUSE FILIBUSTER ENDS WITH PASSING OF WAR CLAIMS BILL

was lined up with those in favor of the bill, but several advocates of the spoliation claims had taken up the fight against the bill.

As the house convened a point of no quorum was made and a roll call ordered. The clerk reported 201 members present, a quorum. The reading of the omnibus bill for amendments was begun.

Representative Roberts of Massachusetts, one of the new filibusters offered an amendment to the entire list of French claims and demanded the reading of the seventy pages. Mr. Mann made a point of order that the amendment was not germane.

While this point was pending, Representative Dalzell of Pennsylvania brought in from the committee on rules a rule providing for the suspension of the rules on all bills from now until the end of the session. Whenever suspension is invoked it limits all discussion to forty minutes on each measure. Mr. Dalzell said the state of the public business required the adoption of the rule.

A Truce on Sunday.

A truce entered into shortly before 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon, brought the long filibuster in the house against the omnibus war claims bill temporarily to an end. The agreement to suspend hostilities was reached following an intermission of three hours, devoted to memorial service eulogies to Senator Clay of Georgia and the late Representative Brownlow of Tennessee. These services, occurring at midday of Sunday, seemed to put the house combatants in a more peaceful frame of mind. A recess was ordered until 10 o'clock this morning.

Representative Mann of Illinois, who conducted the original filibuster, ended his fight when he succeeded in having the old French spoliation and the navy yard overtime claims stricken out. This was accomplished when the house voted to substitute a house bill for the senate bill. The house bill carries only war claims which have been adjudicated in the court of claims.

The Democrats, who were particularly interested in the war claims affecting Southern people, were opposed to the spoliation claims. When they voted to strike out the latter, however, they lost the support of the Republican members, who favored the omnibus bill, because it included the French claims. Realizing that the new house bill probably has not the slightest chance of passing the senate, Mr. Mann ceased his filibuster. It was immediately taken up, however, by Representative Gardner of Massachusetts, Bennett and Parsons of New York and several New England members. The New Englanders declared that unless the bill contained the spoliation claims, it should not pass.

The house remained in session all Saturday night and until a few minutes before 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Thus practically nothing was accomplished during the twelve hours of the sitting, except the pronouncement of the eulogies, which were permitted by unanimous consent. The remainder of the day was spent in waiting for a quorum.

The first authoritative announcement that President Taft will call an extra session of congress if the senate fails to act on the McCall bill, carrying into effect the Canadian reciprocity agreement, came Sunday from Mr. McCall himself, following an interview with the president at the White House.

According to Mr. McCall's announcement, the president feels that he is under an international obligation to summon an extra session if it be necessary to secure action on the reciprocity agreement. That session would be called immediately following the adjournment of congress at noon on March 4.

BOILERMAKERS ON N. Y. CENTRAL CALLED OUT BY UNION ORDERS

grievance," said MacBain. "About half of them were put on piece work and their wages were increased from 30 to 50 per cent as a result. It appears, however, that piece work is contrary to their constitution and a change was demanded. We still hope that trouble may be averted.

"We are perfectly able to handle these situations, however. Service will not be impaired in the least."

MacBain said that word had been received of similar action on the part of the boiler makers employed east of Buffalo.

The towns in which the vote was taken are Cleveland, Buffalo, Toledo, Syracuse, Oswego, Elkhart, Ind.; Albany, Springfield, Mass.; Utica, Rochester, Corning, N. Y.; Pittsburg, Ashtabula, Ohio; Boston, Norwich, New York, Highbridge, N. Y.; Jackson, Mich.; Detroit, St. Thomas, Ont., and Weehawken, N. Y.

No Notice at Toledo.

Toledo, Ohio, Feb. 20.—Only six boiler makers are employed by the Lake Shore here. They have received no notification to quit up to 10 o'clock this morning.

Walk Out at Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 20.—The boiler makers employed at the Depew works of the New York Central railroad, about 125 in number, walked out at 10 o'clock today following instructions from international headquarters in Kansas City.

Want to Work on Day Basis.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 20.—J. A. Franklin of this city, president of the International Boiler Makers' union, said today that the strike of the boiler makers on the New York Central lines was the result of dissatisfaction with the system of "piece work" installed by the company Feb. 1. The workmen wish to continue being paid on a "day work" basis. Mr. Franklin said he believed an agreement would be reached soon.

WARREN COMMERCIAL CLUB IS NON-COMMITTAL.

Warren, Minn., Feb. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a special meeting of the Commercial club to discuss the Canadian reciprocity agreement a motion to appoint a committee to draft a resolution protesting against the ratification was lost on a rising vote. No one made an out and out defense of the plan, though several spoke in favor of the agreement as an abstract proposition.

committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, was an interested listener to Mr. Strange's testimony. He said that later he would have something to say on the subject himself.

Sifted of its attacks upon newspapers and other organization which favor the agreement, Mr. Strange's statement contained the following arguments:

That this country has no more need for Canadian pulp wood than it has for Canadian disease germs; that spruce is not necessary to paper making as any wood which has a fiber will suffice, and there are many woods which are better than spruce; that the firs of the Northwest make excellent paper, and that there is nothing better than the soft woods of the South.

In connection with his statement about timber of the South Mr. Strange said that if the Democrats knew what they were about they would take such action as would make them the future paper makers of the country.

Mr. Strange declared that Wisconsin, Minnesota and West Virginia in twenty years would be growing enough for all the mills of the country and that paper making was just developing in the South through the utilization of timber unfit for lumber.

SHOULD LAY DOWN ARMS

early last August in order that his wife, who is in ill health, might receive medical treatment. Before leaving Mexico he declined a nomination for the presidency and though he remained in the cabinet it was rumored that his relations with President Diaz were not as close as formerly. Consequently there has been much interest in his attitude as to whether he would feel under the necessity of returning home during the rebellion.

It was stated a week ago that his departure from Paris had been indefinitely postponed because of Senora Limantour's condition, which, however, subsequently so improved that on Saturday the minister thought that he might start home this week. He has now decided to go during the first week in March.

Only One Plan for Peace.

"The only plan which I have for the restoration of peace in Mexico," said Senator Limantour when asked to review the situation in his country, "is for the revolutionists to lay down their arms. Then and only then will "the dignity and honor of Mexico permit pour parlers with the insurgents, who have endangered both the security and the credit of the nation."

This was asserted vigorously and was at once followed by the statement that he was convinced, the insurgents having once laid down their arms, the various reforms, they demand for which formed the genesis of the revolution, should be granted to the people after careful study and elaboration. The minister makes three suggestions:

Makes Three Suggestions.

First, the abuses contaminating local administrations as in the cities and towns which have the greatest grievances, should be immediately abolished.

Second, some means should be found to allow the people to share more extensively in the holdings of land.

"Mexico has worn out the feudal system, which is a relic of the days of Cortez," he said.

In the third place, there is opposition to President Diaz on the ground that he has been too long in office and that new blood is needed to direct the affairs of the republic. He recommends the immediate formation of guerilla bands by the government for the purpose of combatting the insurgents on their own conditions.

Question of Neutrality.

"I dislike to touch on the delicate question of neutrality," continued the Mexican, "but I am convinced that the United States' interpretation is too restricted. Unless it is enlarged it will seriously imperil the government's chances of quelling the revolution. Mexico prevents Guatemalan revolutionists from remaining near the frontier.

"Why cannot the United States adopt the same attitude and not only arrest armed revolutionists if found crossing into Mexico but also prevent revolutionary meetings and the dispatch of arms and ships?"

Minister Limantour who already has placed in Europe $55,000,000 of bonds in conversion of the Mexican national debt of $110,000,000, has decided not to place the other half of the bonds for the present. His success in placing the new 4 per cent bonds at 97¾ he considers a special tribute to Mexico's credit abroad, though the revolution caused Mexico's security to fall from 1 to 2 points.

It abolishes demurrers to complaints and indictments and provides that on complaint shall be held invalid on the ground that it does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, though it can be declared invalid if it fails to show the nature and cause of the accusation.

Day, now of Montana.

VENEER BUSINESS GOOD.

Notable Increase in the Manufacture of Material in 1909.

Washington, Feb. 20.—There was a noticeable increase in the manufacture of veneer material during the year 1909 over the previous year, according to a report made public today by the bureau of the census. During the calendar year 1909 the outlay for veneer material, both domestic and imported woods, was $8,977,516 compared with $7,891,431 for the preceding year, and $6,436,237 for 1907. An increase of 255 establishments engaged in this business during 1909 over those engaged in 1908 was reported. The figures for 1909 show the number of establishments engaged in this business during this year to be 637.

The industry has been spreading itself from 30 states in 1907 to 34 states in 1909. Thirty-six species of domestic and 11 of the imported woods are reported to have been consumed during the 1909 period. This, says the report, makes a total practically equal of the number of wood species utilized during the same year in the United States as lumber material.

BLACK HAND GANGS DEFY N. Y. POLICE

Renew Their Reign of Terror With Torch and Bomb.

New York, Feb. 20.—Black Hand gangs, defying the efforts of Chief Flynn and his detectives to check their operations, renewed their reign of terror with torch and bomb early today, making two daring attempts to wreck with dynamite.

Two agents of the blackmailing society drove up in front of the house of Dr. Bartoll, a wealthy physician on East One Hundred and Sixth street today, laid a bomb near the doctor's door, touched it off and then fled. The explosion caused a panic of 100 girls in St. Cecilie's convent. The doctor has been receiving Black Hand letters for some time.

Giovanni Cataldo, a Chrystle street grocery man, sat up last night in his darkened store and awaited the coming of the bomb throwers. He had kept vigil for several nights. Just before dawn the grocery man saw two figures near his door getting ready to set off a bomb. Cataldo fired a shot from a revolver, and the Black Handers fled.

THREE PASTORS DIE WHILE IN CHURCH

Unusual Fatalities From Different Parts of the Country.

Montreal, Feb. 20. — "When I saw him, I fell at his feet as one dead" (Revelations 1-17), was the text from which the Rev. Andrew Mowatt was about to preach a sermon on "A Vision of Christ," at the Erskine Presbyterian church yesterday when he was fatally stricken with heart failure. The choir was singing the hymn just preceding the sermon when members of the congregation noticed that their pastor was in distress. Several helped to carry him to the vestry where he passed away without regaining consciousness.

Dr. Mowatt was 72 years old and on account of his ill health, had handed in his resignation two months ago, but agreed to continue in the pastorate pending the appointment of a successor.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 20.—Miss Annie Hayett, aged 51, of Windsor, Ont., was stricken with paralysis while in the Church of Our Father in Detroit yesterday, and died in a few minutes.

Stricken With Apoplexy.

Springfield, Ohio, Feb. 20.—Stricken with apoplexy while assisting with the holy communion at the 7:30 o'clock mass yesterday morning, the Rev. Father Francis M. Kennedy, chief assistant pastor of St. Raphael's Catholic church, died at 8:22 o'clock last night, never regaining consciousness. He was 26 years old.

Albany Pastor Falls Dead.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 20.—Rev. James F. Robinson, 76 years old, pastor of the First Methodist-Episcopal church, died suddenly yesterday, five minutes before he was to begin the morning service. He had walked to the church with his wife and daughter from his home and fell to the floor while talking with one of his parishioners.

WILL OBSERVE THE HOLIDAY

Banks, Schools and Grain and Stock Exchanges Will Close Wednesday.

Though Lincoln's birthday passed with observance confined to the banks, stock markets and some public offices, Washington's birthday will be quite generally observed in Duluth on Wednesday. All of the public offices in the city will be closed and the schools will also suspend.

There will be one carrier delivery of mail Wednesday morning. The stamp and general delivery windows will be open from 9:30 to 10:30. The circulation department of the public library will be closed all day, but the reading rooms will be open from 2 to 9 p. m. The board of trade and Duluth stock exchange will be closed all day and the brokers' offices will consequently be closed.

There will be many private social activities for the day, but the observance will be, on the whole, a quiet one.

EBERHART IS HONOR GUEST

Aids in Dedicating New Building of Chicago Swedish Club.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—The new building of the Swedish club at La Salle avenue and Goethe street was dedicated Saturday night with a banquet at which Governor Deneen of Illinois and Governor and Mrs. Eberhart of Minnesota were the guests of honor. Two hundred of the most prominent Swedish-American residents of the city were present. National anthems of Sweden were sung and national dishes eaten by the banqueters. Governor Deneen was compelled to cut short his address, as important state business made it necessary for him to return to Springfield tonight.

Governor Eberhart in his address told of the purpose of such organizations as the Swedish club, which he pronounced the best of its kind.

"This organization," he said, "is not merely a place to eat and talk, but it is a place where the art and languages of Sweden can be preserved. True culture consists of being able to understand art and for the descendants of a race to lose sight of the standard kept by their forefathers is a grievous mistake. The art exhibit of this club is undoubtedly the foundation of what will be the center of Swedish art in Chicago."

The new auditorium of the Swedish club was designed by Andrew Sandlagren. The cost was $25,000 exclusive of decorations and furnishings, which brought the total to $40,000. The upper part of the addition is the auditorium and the lower floor contains the dining room and the art exhibit which is under charge of Charles Halberg, the marine painter. The decorations are in the old Gothic style exclusively.

The other speakers of the evening were Chief Justice Harry Olson of the municipal court, Carl Chindbloom, G. Bernard Anderson and C. S. Peterson, who acted as toastmaster.

GAMBLES ON OWN LIFE.

Senator Palmer of Michigan Puts One Over Insurance Man.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 20.—A letter received by former Senator Thomas W. Palmer of Michian on his eighty-first birthday reveals a curious incident in his career in which he practically bet $150,000 he would live to be 75 years old.

The head of an insurance company had been after Mr. Palmer for a $100,000 policy. Finally, about seventeen years ago, he obtained consent, but the company refused the risk. Mr. Palmer was then 64 years old.

Mr. Palmer did not need the policy particularly, for he was wealthy and still is. He proceeded to wager $150,000 with several insurance companies, for no company would take the entire amount alone, that he would live more than eleven years. This took the form of an income policy.

For the amount Mr. Palmer deposited he received an income of $12,600 a year for life, whether he lived one year or 100.

Mr. Palmer has drawn $212,500 on the "bet" and is hale and hearty and still winnning.

Brainerd, Minn., Feb. 20.—(Special to The Herald)—George H. Crosby of Duluth, owner of the Crosby townsite, has placed on file at the register of deeds office a mineral lease he has secured from the state of Minnesota covering the southwest quarter of the southeast quarter of section 2, 46-29. Up to the time when the first 1,000 tons are mined and removed the grantee pays the state annually the sum of $100.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

Lent is only eight days off now and hostesses who want to entertain must hurry their parties, for a week from Wednesday is Ash Wednesday and Duluth society is planning to keep the forty days religiously.

"Oh, I am planning to give up candy as usual," is the most frequent answer from the girls when you ask what they intend denying themselves.

"Well," said another, by the way she always starts everything she says with "Well," "Well, I am going to try to play bridge at least three times a week. That is the biggest punishment I know of but—Oh, dear, I don't suppose I ever can." This girl says bridge gives her a headache, but she wants to play at a bridge club because "So-and-so" does, so she is going to try to learn.

Another Duluth girl said she thought she would leave off all her false hair during the forty days.

The churches are planning special services to be conducted during Lent and the societies and clubs are planning to get in work for their Easter sales.

Members of Circle No. 4, of St. Paul's Episcopal church, instead of planning a sale have decided to take in plain sewing to do, as their way of earning money for the church and other societies will probably follow their example.

THE EVENING STORY

THE PEACEMAKER

By Gwendolen Minton.

"Bobby, be quiet—you're perfectly horrid!"

"And you're—you're perfectly lovely!" Bobby thrust both hands in his trousers pockets, stuck his head in the air unconcernedly, and whistled the last lines of the verse which has caused Gwen's interruption.

"It's true, Gwen—you know it! And the worst part about it, old girl, is that you're right down, really in love with him!"

"Bobby, you're horrid—perfectly horrid!"

"I believe you've remarked that once before, sister mine. Why, I do declare, there are tears in your eyes; you're not going to cry, Gwen—that's more than a fellow can stand."

Gwen Travers' pretty head bent lower, and she leaned against the cherry tree.

"And there's another thing, Gwen. Geoffry loves you—loves you dearly."

"Don't, Bobs, don't!" With a hopeless gesture Gwen turned to the boy beside her. "You're only a kid, dear, and you don't understand."

"Whew! Don't understand! Why, my dear Gwen, don't you think a fellow's got any eyes at all? To put the matter into a nutshell—you and Geoffry love each other; you're both trying to kid yourselves you don't; you've had a row; Geoff's gone off in a huff, never to return; and you're too proud to fetch him back——"

"Oh, please be quiet, Bobby!" Gwen's voice was full of pleading. "You don't—you really don't understand!"

Bobby shrugged his boyish shoulders.

"Very well, Gwen. I've said what I wanted to say, and I'll leave you to digest it."

Bobby Travers sauntered off, and Gwen's eyes followed him lovingly. Then she sighed.

"Dear old Bobs—he's quite right. I do love Geoffry; yes I do."

She stamped her foot as though to emphasize her words, then sank on to the rustic seat in the cherry tree's shade.

Bobby's whistling continued until he reached the house; then it ceased as he suddenly wheeled round and regarded Gwen in the distance.

"Shame!" he murmured, kicking his heels savagely against the water-butt. "Old Geoff's one of the best fellows going, but as hot-tempered as you make 'em."

Two days later Gwen came rushing into his room, her sweet face wreathed in smiles.

"I say, Bobby,—what do you think?"

Bobby shut his eyes and leaned back in his chair at a break-neck angle.

"Lots of things, Gwen. But what's up now?"

"Simply that I've had a note from Geoff. Apparently he doesn't go until next week, and he wants to see me particularly."

Not a shade of expression flitted across Bobby's face.

"H'm! Jolly sorry he's lost you now, I bet!"

Gwen flushed.

"It—it wasn't all his fault, Bobby. In fact, it was mostly mine, and—"

Bobby's eyes opened wide, and stared into Gwen's burning face.

"H'm! What? When are you going to see him, I mean?"

"Why, now—almost at once."

"Where?"

"In the garden—near the cherry tree."

"I see. Then the cherry tree's booked for the next half hour."

"Oh, Bobby, you're a darling!"

Gwen's soft cheek rubbed caressingly against her brother's, and she kissed him hastily.

"Ah, Miss Gwen," he muttered as the door closed behind her, "so you got my note, did you?" Then he leaned back in his chair and laughed heartily.

Down the gravelled path Gwen tripped, a soft light in hear beautiful eyes. Near the cherry tree she paused, then glanced around her. For a few minutes she stood there, the afternoon sunlight streaming on her rippling hair.

"He—he hasn't come," she whispered at last. "Perhaps—oh, perhaps he didn't mean to!" With a little sigh she turned to the seat under the cherry tree, and pulled out Geoffry's note.

"Under the cherry tree at 3 o'clock," she read. "Yes, that's quite right. This is the tree, and it's five minutes past 3, and as yet he hasn't come."

Just then a shower of leaves fell, smothering Gwen. Quickly she stood up and looked about her.

"Perhaps he didn't mean to come!" a mocking voice said behind her; then, before she was aware of it Gwen was in a strong pair of arms, and a man's lips were pressed to hers.

"But he did come, Gwen," Geoffry said at last, looking into the depths of her shining eyes. "And he's come to say that he's sorry, and that it was all his fault."

Up went Gwen's little brown hand to Geoffry's lips.

"Hush! That isn't true," she said slowly, hanging her head. "It was every bit my fault. No—you mustn't contradict me. Ever since I got your note I've been hating myself—"

Geoffry looked straight at Gwen's sweet face.

"Have you got it with you now?" he asked, and odd little quiver in his voice.

"Yes, of course. Here it is."

He took it, scanning it closely.

"And here's yours," he said at length.

"Mine? Why, I never wrote one!"

"Nor did I!"

Gwen orlmsoned.

"Oh," she said reproachfully. "Then you didn't want to see me?"

She tore the notes into tiny fragments, her fingers twitching nervously. Tears of mortification stood in her lovely eyes as she turned to go, but Geoffry stayed her.

"Don't go, Gwen," he pleaded. "What does it matter how we came, as long as we came here?"

Gwen did not answer. Coming down the path was Bobby, a perfectly blank expression on his face.

"Oh, I know!" she said suddenly, moving a step nearer to Geoffry. "It was that imp of a Bobs."

"Then here's to Bobs!" Geoffry said emphatically, drawing Gwen into his arms and kissing her passionately. "Here's to a thorough young scamp!"

As her brother approached, Gwen struggled out of the encircling arms.

Then suddenly Bobby drew up sharply before them.

"Hello, Geoff—why, what on earth brought you here? I haven't seen you for over a month!"

Bobby's surprise was not well simulated, and he could not repress a rougish smile.

"Don't ask questions, little boy—then you'll hear no stories," Geoffry's voice was full of merriment. "Besides, we might ask you a few!"

Bobby flushed, then stooped and picked up a fragment of paper.

"It's no good, Bobs—you might just as well own up!" Gwen pinched his ear affectionately.

"Well, you were such a couple of silly beggars to go and quarrel—and besides, Geoff's goin' away to where a soft wind blows and—"

"Two arms entwined and a love combined," Geoffry finished, "are enough to keep any fellow back—eh, Gwen?"

Gwen vouchsafed no answer, only bent her pretty head to hide the unbidden blushes in her cheeks.

"I don't know," she said at last.

"Oh, yes you do!" Bobby put it quickly. "Girls are so silly; they think a fellow's got nothing else to do but to keep on patching up his sister's love affairs. Well, I'm off! Good bye, old Geoff—a pleasant voyage."

Bobby put out a grubby hand, but Geoffry did not take it. Instead he drew Gwen closer to him.

"I'm not going away now," he said.

TEN YEARS FOR VOSHALL

Prisoner Sentenced for Shooting James Sheeran on Steamer Barton.

Tells Court That He Shot Only in Self-Defense.

For shooting James Sheeran on board the steamer J. H. Bartow Nov. 4, last, Bradford Voshall, 62 years old, will spend the next ten years in the state prison at Stillwater.

This was the sentence imposed on Voshall by Judge William A. Cant of the district court Saturday afternoon. Voshall was convicted of assault in the first degree recently.

The shooting occurred after a quarrel. Sheeran was shot through the stomach and recovered only after fifty days in a local hospital and a most unusual operation performed by a local physician.

At the time of the trial Voshall claimed that he shot in self-defense and Sheeran claimed that Voshall took another man's quarrel into his own hands and shot him from a point several feet away from where the main trouble was going on. The jury evidently believed Sheeran's statement.

When asked if he had anything to say before sentence was passed upon him Voshall said:

"Your Honor, I see myself standing here in the very doors of the state prison and apparently going to be shoved in by two gentlemen testifying falsely and perjuring themselves. I don't deny I shot that man but I shot in self-defense and after he had made the first assault on me. If I was 30 II wouldn't mind, but I'm an old man."

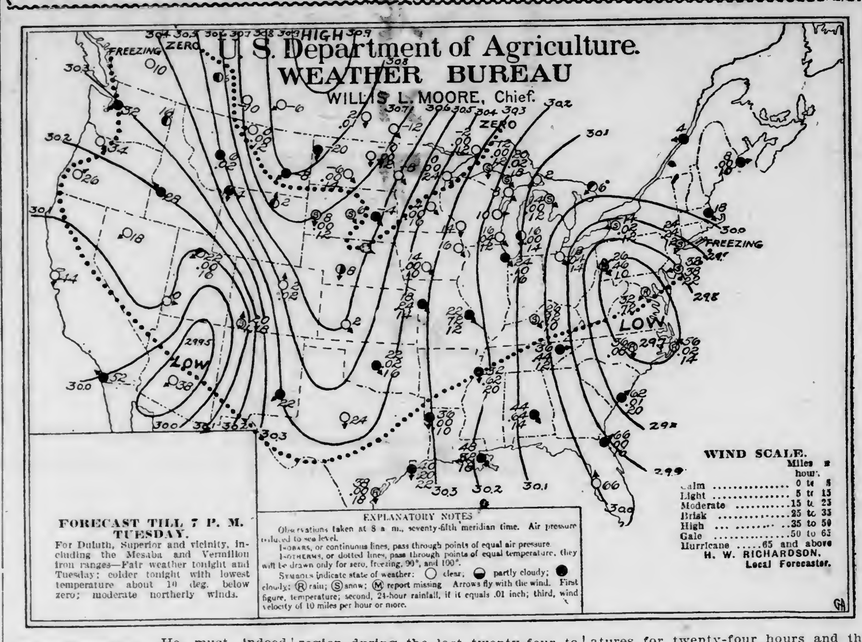

Judge Cant told him that a man who used dangerous weapons at all, had something of a burden placed upon him to explain his actions.

Voshall will be taken away as soon as the papers can be made out. He can reduce his sentence materially by good conduct.

George O'Toole of Proctor, was given a fine of $100 or sixty days in jail and an additional punishment of ninety days at hard labor at the jail, for selling liquor on Sunday. Thomas R. Hancock, another Proctor saloon keeper was given a fine of $100 and a suspended sentence of ninety days pending good behavior.

Anthony Hendrickson smiled when brought before the court and seemed to think petty larceny was a joke. He sold a watch that had been given to him for repairs. Judge Cant said there was no joke apparent and fined him $100 or sixty days in jail.

OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER

COLDER

He must indeed be a watery-blooded individual who has any complaint on this weather. The pleasure which the weather man showered on Duluth yesterday had to be felt to be appreciated. All the unkind things said about the sage on the hill in the past are hereby retracted. The mercury dropped to zero this morning, but the snappy air was accompanied by bright sunshine, and Duluth is not in the banana belt. More fair weather and below-zero temperatures are predicted for tonight and tomorrow.

The cold wave which struck Duluth Feb. 16, was still working a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 7:04 and it will set at 5:40 this evening, giving ten hours and thirty-six minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"Low pressure areas central over Middle Atlantic states and Arizona, caused snow or rain throughout the Rocky Mountains, the Southwest, Central, Southern and Atlantic states and Lake region during the last twenty-four to forty-eight hours. Abnormally high barometric pressures overlying the Northwest have caused colder weather there and throughout the central valleys and South since Saturday night. Conditions indicate continued zero weather in St. Louis and Douglas counties tonight."

General Forecasts.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Tuesday:

Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa—Generally fair tonight and Tuesday; colder tonight.

Upper Michigan—Fair weather except snow flurries in north central portion tonight; colder tonight.

North and South Dakota—Generally fair and continued cold tonight and Tuesday.

Montana—Fair in east, probably snow flurries in west portion tonight or Tuesday.

Shippers' Forecast—Protect thirty-six-hour shipments of perishables against zero temperature in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin and the Michigan Copper country.

AFFIDAVIT NOT LEGAL.

Judgment Winner Executed It Before the Wrong Official.

Grand Forks, N. D., Feb. 20.—(Special to The Herald.—Judge C. F. Templeton has rendered a decision in the case of the Plano Manufacturing company vs. Frank Grams, vacating judgment given the company on the grounds that in an affidavit made in the proceedings of a state court cannot be made before a United States commissioner. The Plano company was given judgment against Grams on a note ten years ago and the affidavit of service was made before a United States commissioner. The motion for vacation of judgment was argued by the attorney for the defendant holding that the commissioner had power to administer oaths only under the federal law and no authority to do so under the state statutes.

Want County Redistricted.

Grand Forks, N. D., Feb. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A petition is being circulated by the residents of the western part of Grand Fork county asking for a redistricting of the county so that the commissioners will serve a comparatively equal number of people.

To Distribute Brainerd Electricity.

Brainerd, Minn., Feb. 20.—(Special to the Herald.)—Secretary William Nelson of the water and light board is engaged in the compilation and the drawing of an extensive map of the city, showing all transmission lines, the primary lines and transformers, with their size and capacity. It has been found absolutely necessary to do this in order to divide the city into proper shape to conform with the new three-phase system to be supplied by the Toltz Engineering company of St. Paul, which has a ten-year contract furnishing electric light and power to the city. Secretary Nelson is also drawing a map for the water department.

Bowbells, N. D., Grand Jury.

Bowbells, N. D., Feb. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Leighton has called a special term of court to be held in this city beginning Monday, Feb. 27, when all criminal cases will be disposed of and as many civil cases as time will permit. The county seat cases will come up first and then the case of Oscar Benson, charged with murder. Most of the other criminal cases involve violation of the prohibition law.

PINNED TO WALL BY TUSKS.

Elbert Hubbard Near Death as Elephant Attacks Him.

Portland, Or., Feb. 20.—While attending a reception in his honor given by the Portland Press club, Elbert Hubbard was attacked by a trick elephant which had been taken up to the club, and it was only by rare luck that he esaped death, or at least serious injury.

Soon after Mr. Hubbard had seated himself in the club he grasped the extended trunk of the animal, which twice wrapped it around the author's neck. Suddenly the beast lunged forward with trunk uplifted. The tusks passed by Hubbard's head and pinned him fast to the wall.

Then the trainer whipped the brute off and Hubbard, deathly pale but uninjured, crept from the chair to a place of safety.

CHILD TREATED BY ITS MOTHER

The use of medicine not prescribed by a physician is said to have been the cause of the death of Frank Schmelick last week at the home of his parents at Fourteenth street and Second avenue west.

Instead of calling in a physician when three of the children were ill, the mother tried to treat them herself. When the son died she notified the police and they in turn informed the health department official. The two other children were given proper treatment and the house placed under quarantine. All three children were suffering with diphtheria.

DESCRIPTION OF LAND IN NORTERN MINNESOTA.

Farm, Stock and Home, an agricultural paper published at Minneapolis, Minn., has in its latest issue an exhaustive description of the land in Northern Minnesota opened up by the new branches of the Soo line from Duluth west and northwest.

The story is illustrated, well written and places especial emphasis on the proximity of the land to the markets at the Head of the Lakes. It tells of the Producers' Market association which has revolutionized the methods of marketing agricultural products in this part of the state and cites the campaign which is being carried on by the Soo line to colonize the territory served by its new branches.

RECIPROCITY PACT HAS MADE HIT

J. M. Gidding Finds Change of Feeling Toward President Taft.

The Cincinnati Star contains the following:

"President Taft's reciprocity agreement with Canada has struck a keynote for the entire country, particularly for the great Northwest," said J. M. Gidding, who returned to Cincinnati, Saturday, from a business trip to the Northwest. Mr. Gidding's intimate knowledge of business conditions in that part of the country made him observe more carefully the feelings of the people. "Everywhere I went, there was evident a remarkable change of feeling on the part of the citizens toward the administration at Washington, a change that was caused primarily by the president's position in regard to reciprocity with Canada. On all sides, expressions of approval of the proposed agreement were heard. An important point in this movement was brought to my attention. Montreal business men are opposed to the agreement, because, under the present tariff system, she is getting a great proportion of the wheat trade of Canada. Under the reciprocity agreement, much of this trade will be taken from her and go to our cities in the Northwest. Under reciprocity, it would be cheaper for the grain, as well as other products of the farm and field, to be shipped to St. Paul and Minneapolis, and thence to Duluth, Chicago, Superior or other points on the great lakes, and then by boat over the lakes East, through the St. Lawrence to Europe. The Canadian railroads carry a vast amount of food products into Montreal. This is the trade that city fears it will lose. While a few people on both sides of the line may object to the president's agreement, the great majority favor it, and the result has been that the Northwest is more friendly to the present administration than ever before. Business conditions have been improving in the Northwest, possibly because of the safer feeling that the reciprocity agreement has instilled. Much capital is being invested, and more will be spent soon. There has been a big change for the better in the past thirty or sixty days. Increased trade between the United States and Canada may be looked for as a result of the reciprocity agreement, which it is to be hoped will be passed."

BEMIDJI VETERAN IS BURNED IN HIS HOME.

Bemidji, Minn., Feb. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Bardwell, well known as "Uncle George," aged 77, a civil war veteran, known to everyone here, lost his life Saturday evening with the destruction of the little house in which he lived. He perished while he slept.

Mr. Barwdell had lived here for fifteen years. He came to Minnesota in 1857. He was a member of R. H. Carr Post No. 174, G. A. R., and was recognized by his fellow old soldiers as one of the most popular "boys" of the post.

MISS EVERTS HEARD IN BIBLE READINGS.

Miss Katherine Jewel Everts read several passages from the Bible to a large audience in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium yesterday afternoon. She recited well known passages such as a part of Paul's letter to the Corinthians, the Twenty-third Psalm, a portion of the gospel of St. John, and several extracts from the Old Testament. She read also a short poem by the late William Vaughn Moody.

Miss Everts will give a reading of Browning's "In a Balcony," and several shorter dramatic lyrics in the Endion Methodist Episcopal church, First street and Nineteenth avenue east, this evening as a feature of the series of Browning studies which are being conducted by the Rev. John Walker Powell, under the auspices of the ladies guild of the church.

Taken to the offices of Drs. Loughney & Loughney, in an ambulance, and carried from the ambulance on a stretcher to the Bake Oven—totally unable to move and with his knees swollen to three times their normal size and highly inflamed, R. S. Sorenson left the treatment rooms of Drs. Loughney & Loughney, in the Christie building, Duluth, a much pleased and surprised man, he was able to walk to 318 West Second street, to the Melrose apartments, where he was directed by Dr. Loughney as the most comfortable place for him to board and room.

The change in the condition of Mr. Sorenson, who has been suffering for a long time from rheumatism, was marvelous.

He was given immediate treatment in the oven. When he was taken from the oven he was able to walk into the shower room, and, after taking the shower, dressed himself. That was something he had not done for weeks.

Then the patient stepped into the resting room, where he was greeted by friends, all of whom were intensely surprised to see him walk there unassisted. The ambulance had been kept in waiting for him, but when the treatment was over he had no further use for it and was able to walk to the Melrose apartments.

The marvelous change in the patient was particularly noticed by the elevator boy in the building, who was as much astonished as the friends, when they saw Mr. Sorenson walk away from the offices after taking only one treatment. Mr. Sorenson's case is only one of scores that Drs. Loughney & Loughney have successfully treated. Dozens of testimonials of the wonder of the invention are given to the doctors every week.

Drs. Loughney & Loughney occupy all of the offices on the third floor of the Christie building, on Fourth avenue west between First and Second street. They give free consultation. They have the best of lady nurses to care for lady patients. Their hours are 8 a. m. to 7 p. m. Sundays, 9 to 12 only.

"MISS NOBODY FROM STARLAND"

Clever Musical Comedy Pleases Two Large Lyceum Audiences.

"Miss Nobody From Starland," a "bully" good musical comedy, with new musical characters, original lines, pretty songs, clever principals and a unique plot that covered a wide area in scope, played to two immense audiences at the Lyceum theater Saturday and left a happy impression with those who witnessed the performance.

The play abounds in clever and humorous situations. The chorus might be improved upon but especial care seems to have been taken in the selection of the principals and they were happily cast.

The plot is about as substantial as stocks in the south sea bubble and serves only to bring on situation after situation and introduce a number of pretty songs and clever dances.

Miss Olive Vail as "Miss Nobody" shares honors with Miss Bertee Beaumont, who impersonates an Italian girl, and does about as clever a dance as has ever been executed on the local stage.

"Miss Nobody From Starland" is a piece that one could witness a second time and still find plenty to amuse. Its engagement was for the one day only.

CLEVER "FAKE" AT THE ORPHEUM

Spirit Paintings Most Interesting Feature of Excellent Bill.

The most interesting fake seen in Duluth in many a month is being presented at the Orpheum this week, in Dr. Wilmar's spirit paintings, shown by P. T. Selbit.

A fake it undoubtedly is, but just where the trick comes in is something that those in the two big audiences yesterday were unable to solve.

Mystery acts are quite common in vaudeville and the audiences become accustomed to surprises and results which they cannot explain, but the spirit paintings are a most amazing trick. There is apparently no chance for mechanical or chemical devices to produce the pictures, and the audience sees them slowly develop on the canvas, in plain sight, on a well lighted stage, and with no person within ten feet of the easel. The pictures are later taken from the frames and exhibited in the lobby. They are made from a chalk preparation, but from a short distance look like water colors. Mr. Selbit stated to the audience that after a short time the chalk hardens and the pictures are permanent and almost as lasting as oils.

Needless to state, Mr. Selbit does not explain how it is done, but leaves the audience to guess, and there were few yesterday who were able to even hazard a guess, after the producer's offer to submit the canvases to a chemist for analysis, with a standing offer of a reward for the discovery of any chemical compound on them, similar to a photographer's plate.

The feature act this week is "The Suspect," a highly dramatic little sketch, dealing with the police department and the "third degree." The sketch was highly successful in England, and is being produced in this country by William A. Brady, which is a good guaranty of the quality of the production. It is an interesting and entertaining little drama, and is presented by five capable actors.

The bill this week is uniformely good, and there is not a weak spot on it.

The Melnotte Twins and Clay Smith have a snappy, bright, musical and dancing act, which is best described by the word "smart." The act is well dressed, the girls prepossessing in appearance, and the comedy is of a rapid-fire nature, so rapid in fact and so quietly delivered, that only a part of the audience yesterday seemed to "get it," and the act received less applause than others less meritorious.

The Six Kaufmans have a truly remarkable cycling act. The Kaufmans are one of the best known troupes of bicycle riders in the world, and have been featured by several of the larger circuses, including Barnum's. Their act is different from the ordinary act of this type. They do the more difficult of the ordinary feats, and some additional ones, which a troupe of two or three performers could not attempt. The Kaufmans fared very well at the hands of the audiences yesterday, and were a genuine hit.

Lew Wells, monologist, was the real hit of the bill yesterday. Lew plays a saxophone and gives a monologue. There is nothing fancy about Lew's work, and no frills to the act. He has a blunt, plain manner of delivering his jokes and his homely philosophy, which made a tremendous hit yesterday, and the audience seemed willing to take all that Lew had to offer, and a little more. He also manages to get some real music out of his saxophone.

Irene Romain contributes a pianologue to the bill. She sings four numbers playing her own accompaniments, and gives a little recitation with a musical accompaniment, which took well yesterday.

The opening number on the bill is presented by Christy and Willis, comedy jugglers. Their comedy and their amusing horse play are the feature of their act, although the juggling is also very fair. The juggler enters in comedy makeup, riding in a toy automobile, and throughout the act there are numerous little mechanical devices introduced to provide the laughs, and much amusing "business."

The moving pictures this week shows scenes from the actors' benefit at the Polo grounds, New York, and the overture completes an excellent bill, which will continue all week with a daily matinee.

ALL-STAR BILL AT THE EMPRESS

New Vaudeville Program Pleases Three Large Audiences on Opening Day.

The new vaudeville bill which opened yesterday and pleased three very large audiences at the Empress theater yesterday, offers many good things and of such variety that there is something for all tastes.

There is no headliner, but all the acts seem to be far above the ordinary in point of merit. Opening with a juggling act and closing with a happily constructed little playlet, there are singers and dancers, a ventriloquist and comedians in new and original monologues.

From the opening to the close the show goes with a snap. It is an all-star bill and yesterday three audiences laughed and applauded the acts as they were presented.

Walker and Strum are jugglers—good jugglers—who make a feature of juggling tennis racquets and balls. They open the bill and their work is fast, interesting and entertaining. There have been many good jugglers at the Empress this year, but Walker and Strum are not second to any of them.

Norton and Russell sing and dance and change their costumes. Their songs are good and their dances are new. As rapid change artists they are so quick that many thought there were more than two people in the act, and that the others came on as the first number went off. This act is a novelty and is especially pleasing, as it is new and bright and is done with no waits.

Trovello is a ventriloquist. He kept yesterday's audiences in roars of laughter. Besides being able to "throw his voice" in any direction, he has a happy line of talk. Trovello is a good entertainer and his performance was greatly enjoyed.

Carl McCullough has some "Footlight Impressions" that please. Mr. McCullough was recently with McIntyre & Heath.

Robert Henry Hodge and company present a laughable little sketch entitled "Troubles of Bill Blithers, Bachelor." The little playlet is very amusing. It deals with a man who is a chronic woman hater. Three women take it upon themselves to teach him a lesson, and they do. There are many laughable situations and the people put plenty of life into the sketch, which proved a genuine hit yesterday.

The bill closes with the moving pictures, which are as interesting as ever this week. There will be three performances daily all the week, one each afternoon and two each evening.

FOUR PLAYLETS ON ONE BILL

Mack-Leone Company Presents an Original Program at Lyceum.

Two large Duluth audiences were yesterday afternoon and evening given an opportunity to become better acquainted with the members of the Mack-Leone company through the medium of four one-act plays, all from the pen of Willard Mack.

"Kid Corrigan's Romance," the story of a professional fighter, with Willard Mack in the role of the pugilist; "The Strike Breaker," with the author in the role of the foreman of a steel plant driven desperate by lack of work and the actual want of food for his wife and baby; "The Open Range," a Western story of Wyoming in the time of the big cattle roundups, and "When Lee Surrendered," a little episode of the days of '65, made up the program.

Miss Leone appeared as Millie Burbank in "Kid Corrigan's Romance," and again as Betsy Fairfax in "When Lee Surrendered," and showed that inability to sink her personality into the part she is playing, is not one of her limitations. Miss Leone had little to do in the opening sketch that had to do with the pugilist, but in the little episode of Lee's surrender, the part presented better opportunities, of which the actress took full advantage.

G. R. Walling, who was one of the big hits in "In God's Country," showed to advantage in the role of the father who taught a Bible class and yet relished with supreme delight the strenuous and generally trod upon game of prize fighting.

Miss Viola Marshall had an entirely new line of work in "The Strike Breaker," and this sketch also served to introduce Forrest Taylor in a somewhat different part than the one in which he first appeared.

"When Lee Surrendered" is a little sketch filled with the pathos that was attendant on the closing incidents of the rebellion. It is one of the best offerings that Mr. Mack has given to the public and yesterday made a hit with two large audiences.

All in all the four sketches, presenting a novel form of entertainment, greatly pleased the audiences yesterday.

"MADAME X" IS COMING TO THE LYCEUM.

"Madame X," the powerful melodrama, will be the dramatic attraction at the Lyceum next Friday and Saturday.

No play in recent years has so swept the playgoers of New York, while in Paris, whence it came, it played for an entire season an unprecedented record for the French metropolis. Henry W. Savage has made as wonderful a record of success as a chooser of theatrical material in the case of "Madame X," as he has hitherto in such triumphs, in other fields, as "The Merry Widow" or his other notable hits. In New York "Madame X" has been seen by 400,000 playgoers.

"Madame X" will be seen at the Lyceum Friday and Saturday with Saturday matinee.

HOUSE TO TAKE ACTION ON REAPPORTIONMENT ON TUESDAY MORNING.

and there are enough of them left to keep both houses busy from now to April 20, when the session will adjourn with the usual amount of unfinished business.

Program of the Week.

This will be a busy week. Among the events scheduled are the following:

This afternoon at 2 o'clock, the V. L. Johnson county option bill is a special order. The senate will defeat the bill, following the example set by the house. Estimates of the county option strength that will be shown by this afternoon's vote range from twenty-three to twenty-eight votes—and it takes thirty-two votes to pass the bill.

Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock the reapportionment bill is a special order in the house. There will be rather a lively fight, with the opposition to reapportionment led by Thomas Frankson and J. N. Johnson, authors of the tonnage tax bill, and with the reapportionment cause led by Chester A. Congdon, R. C. Dunn, G. H. Mattson, Lewis C. Spooner and others. The reapportionment bill, unamended in details approved by the reapportionment committee, will pass by a substantial vote. The bill will then go to the senate, where the real fight will develop.

Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock the Cashman distance tariff bill will be a special order in the senate. In all probability it will be defeated. This belief is strengthened by the adverse reports of the attorneys concerned in the state's pending railroad rate litigation in the federal courts, referred to below.

Early in the week there is likely to be a fight on the initiative and referendum. The house elections committee, after throwing up its hands in despair of ever reaching an agreement as to the seven pending bills providing for the initative and referendum, decided to send the whole batch to the house and let that body decide whether it wants any such bill or not, and if so which bill it wants.

Four of the seven bills will, it is said, be withdrawn by their authors, leaving but three to be considered. The house will also consider a bill providing for the referendum only, without the initative, and a bill providing for the recall.

There is a great variety of opinions in the house about initiative and referendum. There are those who don't want any kind of bill passed, and there are those who will vote for any bill that provides direct legislation in any form. There are those who will vote for initiative and referendum if they can get their particular kind, but who won't vote for anybody else's variety of bill.

Chances Not So Good.

Altogether, the chances for the passage of a direct legislation bill are by no means so strong as they seemed to be at the beginning of the session. Between those who want low percentage initiative and those who want none at all, it is going to be so difficult to agree upon a bill that the chances are now that none at all will be passed. It may be that a referendum bill will go through, and it is entirely probable that the recall will be provided for. It may be that the initiative will go through too, but at this writing it is by no means probable.

State wide primary election and the Oregon plan of popular election of United States senators have a fair chance to pass, unless the Republican senators who are going to caucus tonight decide to oppose them because they are proposed by Democrats.

The Moonan state wide primary bill, which simply extends the primary election to state officers, not including United States senators or judges of the supreme or district courts, will be a special order in the senate Tuesday afternoon.

Unless pending efforts to induce the advocates of both sides of the Canadian reciprocity dispute to drop the whole thing to be successful, this week should see a lively fight in the senate on the three pending resolutions relating to this subject—Senator Dwinnell's resolution favoring the treaty, Senator Putnam's resolution opposing it, and the resolution by Senators Rockne and Moonan urging congress to lay the treaty over until the next regular session of congress to give the people a chance to study it.

Those who are advocating that the whole matter be dropped say that the senate has enough to do without concerning itself in such matters as this, and that as the senators and representatives in congress are on the ground and know what to do as well as the Minnesota lawmakers, it is folly to set the senate by the ears over this issue.

This may be one of the matters discussed at tonight's caucus of Republican senators, the calling of which Senator James P. Boyle of Eveleth was one of those to take the initiative.

Cashman Distance Tariff Bill.

Friday evening The Herald stated that Attorney General Simpson would in a day or two hand down an opinion to the effect that the passage of the Cashman distance tariff bill would result in putting an end to the pending rate litigation between the state and the railroads, and that this would involve a heavy loss to the state and Minnesota shippers.

Saturday afternoon Attorney General Simpson gave out this opinion, following exactly the lines suggested in The Herald Friday. His opinion is concurred in by T. D. O'Brien, Edward T. Young and R. A. Stone, the attorneys who are acting as special counsel for the state in the commodity rate cases.

There is little doubt, in view of these opinions, that the Cashman bill is beaten, and that when it comes up for action in the senate Friday it will be voted down decisively.

The opinions handed down Saturday afternoon were asked for by Chairman B. E. Sundberg of the senate railroad committee, and they will be submitted to the senate Friday when the bill comes up.

The O'Brien-Young-Stone opinion is as follows:

"Knowing the honesty and sincerity of the author of the Cashman bill, and the earnestness with which many senators are urging its passage, we dislike to say anything that would interfere with the consideration of the bill on its merits at this time. But as you ask our opinion as to the possible effect of the same on pending litigation in the federal courts, in which we have been employed by the state, we feel constrained to say that, in our opinion, any rates prescribed, whether on the pure distance tariff basis or not, which would supersede and take the place of the class and commodity rates now in litigation, would necessarily put an end to the litigation. Two differing schedules of rates applying to the same subject cannot coexist. In case two such schedules were prescribed, the last schedule would be deemed, in law, to supersede the other, whether the first schedule was expressly repealed or not.

"The importance of the cases now pending does not depend so much upon the specific rates called in question as upon the principles involved as to the basis upon which interstate rates must rest. These questions to be determined are:

"First—The basis upon which railroads are entitled to income—whether on the original cost or present value. If on the present value, what rules shall be followed in making the valuation?

"Second—For the purpose of computing income, how shall the value of terminals and other facilities used in commerce be apportioned between state and interstate business?

"Third—Can the state prescribe interstate rates lower than interstate rates in the same territory without interfering with interstate commerce?

"Fourth—What shall be the basis for the apportionment between interstate and intrastate business, of the items of cost that are common to both?

"On all of these questions the courts and railway commissioners of the country are hopelessly at variance, and in these cases the claims of the state and the companies are wide apart.

Rates Not Important.

"Thus settlement of these questions is more important than the establishment of any particular schedule of rates. If the valuation contended for by the railroads in the pending suits, and the apportionment thereof between interstate and intrastate business should be upheld, all Minnesota rates now in force would be confiscatory. It is also true that if the contentions of the railroads in the pending suits as to the relative cost of handling interstate and intrastate business is upheld, all Minnesota intrastate rates are confiscatory.

"The state has, at great expense, gathered evidence on all of those questions and presented it in the pending cases. Until there is a decision of all of these questions from the tribunal of highest authority, neither the railway commission nor the legislature can determine whether the rates in any given schedule are reasonable or unreasonable.

When the fundamental questions are settled, rate regulation will be a simple matter, but until then any schedule prescribed by public authority is more or less of a guess.

"We believe that the evidence in the cases now pending presents the public's side of these questions as strongly as it can be presented, and for that reason that it is for the best interests of the state to have the cases pushed to a finality. Rates can then be prescribed intelligently, without the expense, delay or annoyance of further litigation. Yours truly

"O'BRIEN, YOUNG & STONE."

Attorney General's Opinion.

Attorney General Simpson, who expressed an informal opinion along the same line, Friday confirmed it in his letter, which reads as follows:

"Hon. B. E. Sundberg, chairman committee on railroads, state senate. Sir: In your favor of Feb. 16, you enclose a copy of Senate File No. 5, otherwise known as the Cashman distance tariff bill, and you request my opinion as to what effect, if any, the passage of this bill would have on the present Minnesota commodity rate suits, and further, what effect, if any, would the passage of any law which changes the maximum rate policy of this state to a rigid distance tariff policy have on such rate suits.

"Replying thereto, I beg to advise that in my opinion the imposition of the rates proposed by the bill in question, or by any other law which would change the maximum rate policy of this state, would make of the commodity rate suits moot cases, which the court would not thereafter decide, and that there would thus be wasted three years of determined effort in what is believed to be an opportunity favorable to the state, and the expenditure of over $100,000 of the moneys of the commonwealth.

Some Legal History.

"In any question involving a decided change in the commodity rates in force in the state of Minnesota, attention should be given to the existing situation. While it may be familiar history, I beg to call your attention to the fact that the legislature in 1907, by chapter 232, laws of that year, amended by chapter 136, Laws 1909, attempted to establish in this state what are known as maximum rates and applied the same to a certain classification of commodities named in the law. Thereupon and before the act of 1907 could go into effect, nine of the railway companies operating therein obtained from the federal courts an injunction restraining the attorney general and the state officers generally from enforcing the laws of the state. Suit thereon has been pending ever since.

"In the trial of the same, and necessarily incident thereto, the state for the first time in its history made at great expense a valuation of the physical property of the railroads. The taking of testimony has consumed more than two and a half years. It is a matter of common knowledge that the cases have been tried on both sides with the greatest care, and that by reason thereof there will be presented to the trial court for its determination for the first time in the history of the United States, fairly and exhaustively, the questions that are commonly involved in litigation of this character.

"The testimony was taken before a master and he has but lately made his report in the court.

"It is likewise a matter of common knowledge that such report is contrary to the contentions of the state. The court now has the matter under consideration. It will be presumed that upon the filing of the opinion of the court, either or both sides will take the matter to the supreme court of the United States, where, it may be fairly said, there will be presented to that tribunal for the first time in its history on a complete record, the question as to what constitutes a proper rate; what factors make it up, and the further question as to what are the relative rights of the state and the railroads where questions of this character are involved.

"The rates involved in this litigation extend over the entire state. While in terms there are no rates prescribed in the Cashman bill, yet, in my opinion, that bill does, in effect, prescribe a schedule of rates just as effectively as if it were done in terms, and the rates in effect prescribed therein likewise extend over the entire state. The litigation to which you refer rests upon the rates established in 1907. It is clear, then, that any change now made in these commodity rates extending over any large portion of the state would take away from the commodity rate cases the very foundations upon which the latter rest and therefore make of them mere moot cases which the court would not decide and, assuming that I am right in my opinion, that the Cashman bill would establish state-wide rates, and a state-wide change of the rates prescribed by the act of 1907, then it follows that the passage of the bill would make of the suits based thereon moot cases, to which reference has just been made.

"Further than this, the legislature of 1909 passed what is known as chapter 195 of the laws of that year, which preserves to shippers the right of recovery as to excess charges, should the state be successful in the pending litigation. I am informed by the railroad and warehouse commission that such excess charges—such difference to the shippers of the state—should the state be successful therein, amounts to $302,231.88 annually. Bearing in mind that the report of the master is against the contentions of the state and that, on its face, without being further acted on by the courts, this litigation is decided against the state, it goes without saying that if the Cashman bill becomes a law, and therefore the pending litigation fails, and the cases become mere moot cases and are not therefore further determined, this great sum of money last mentioned will never be recovered by any person but will, on the other hand, remain with the railroads and will be lost for all time to the people of the state who paid the same.

State Money Wasted.

"Besides the waste of effort involved, beside the waste of private money, beside the waste of time spent, beside the favorable opportunity presented in the pending litigation to present the claims of the state as distinguished from the contentions of the railroad, I cannot forbear to further call your attention to the fact that the state itself has spent in this litigation up to the present time $131,347.87, of which $63,260.80 was paid for the physical valuation of the properties; $43,694.07 was paid from the appropriations of the railroad and warehouse commission for the conduct of the cases, and $24,393 has been paid from the appropriations made to the attorney general for outside counsel in connection therewith.

"To destroy this litigation by the passage of the proposed bill means, in addition to the waste of the private money expended, the waste of this public money, at least as to every item except the physical valuation of the property. Public moneys should not be lightly thrown away.

"In conclusion, permit me to suggest that in any event, and whether the passage of the bill in question be presently advantageous to the state or not, a wise course of procedure would seem to allow the pending suits to go to judgment in the supreme court of the United States, and thereafter when the decision of that tribunal shall have been rendered, and in the light of relative rights of the state and the railroads as disclosed thereby, the state may then take such action in the premises as it deems wise. Yours truly,

"GEORGE T. SIMPSON,
"Attorney General."

Killing Carrington's Stray Dogs.

Carrington, N. D., Feb. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—By proclamation of the mayor, all dogs found running at large within the city limits are ordered shot on sight, this authority being given to private citizens as well as officers. The action is the result of a mad dog scare and the great uncertainty as to the number of dogs already infected.

OPEN CITY HALL BIDS.

Grand Forks Council Is to Let Important Contract.

Grand Forks, N. D., Feb. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The bids for the construction of the new city hall were opened before an adjourned meeting of the city council today and referred to the building committee which will either report at the regular meeting of the council this evening or a special meeting tomorrow evening. Each contractor presented two bids, one with the tower and one without, and the decision as to this matter will also come up at the coming meeting. The style of brick to be used is also creating a great deal of discussion, there being petitions out to follow the style of the federal building which is of Dickinson pressed brick trimmed with Bedford stone and conceded by every one as the handsomest building in the city. The original plans called for Hebron pressed brick, but those interested in civic beauty hope to change this. There are several prominent contractors in the city today and the material men will arrive later in the week. There are separate bids for plumbing, heating and lighting which will also be opened today.

Cavalier County Auditor Wins.

Langdon, N. D., Feb. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. K. Hamilton retains the office of county auditor of Cavalier county, the contest brought by Joseph Power, the opposing candidate in the November election, having been dismissed in the district court by Judge W. J. Kneeshaw. The charges of illegal voting in certain precincts were withdrawn.

Cures Coughs
After Ordinary Preparations Fail —Wonderful New Mixture Made at Home.
An investigating chemist of national reputation just recently discovered in a compound known to the medical world as essence mentho-laxene, a most wonderful virtue as a curative, laxative cough syrup, and the best part of it is, it can be made at home about 8 times cheaper than one can buy labeled cough syrups. It immediately relieves the severest cases of asthma, bronchitis, coughs and chronic colds on the lungs, and it effects a cure, too, because it has a laxative action when 8 to 10 doses are taken daily. In very short order it will loosen the tightest cough and one can feel it "taking hold" in its curative action. Obtain of the druggist, or have him order from wholesale firm 2½ ounces essence mentho-laxene. Empty it into a pint bottle. Make a syrup with a pint of sugar and a half pint of boiling water, stir and let cool. Then fill up the bottle with syrup, shake well and take a teaspoonful 8 to 10 times daily or as needed. Give children less according to age. It is very pleasant to take.

A TRYOUT FOR THE LEAGUE.

It would not be very surprising if some members of the recently born Republican Progressive league could find it in their hearts to curse the conditions that brought the Canadian agreement into the center of the stage just at this time. To any members of that organization who are not sincere in their protestations the arising of the question just now cannot help but appear as an unforeseen disaster. That is their view of it. The public, however, can hardly help but think of the chronological sequence of the formation of the league and the presentation of the reciprocity issue as something in the nature of providential.

There have been many insinuations made regarding the league, and a goodly proportion of these have been to the effect that it was to be in fact only a perfection of organization in the interests of some one person. Who this person might be there have been diversities of opinion, with Senators La Follette of Wisconsin and Cummins of Iowa the ones most frequently mentioned as probable beneficiaries. While some have taken the organization in good faith at its face value, others have doubted the sincerity of the men back of it, though there may have been no ground for questioning the straightforwardness of many or most of the less prominent members.

And now, with the league hardly more than launched, and with the anti-Payne law speeches of its leaders yet ringing in the memories of the voters of the country, has come this Canadian reciprocity question, which is serving as a real acid test to prove the good faith of the progressives in congress. Whether the agreement is ratified or rejected in the senate, the vote there will help to establish the sincerity or selfishness of the members of the league; will go a long ways toward showing whether the leaders in the movement are in earnest in their demands, and meant what they said in their speeches to the people, or whether in fact they are only lining up all the available forces for a fight against President Taft in the next Republican national convention.

Unfortunately for the league, as far as its standing in the popular mind is concerned, one of its chief men—Senator Cummins—seems to be trying to hedge on the reciprocity matter, and another, Senator La Follette, is maintaining an unnatural silence regarding the proposed agreement with Canada. Why? Both of these men have been outspoken against the Payne law and both have urged piecemeal revision of the tariff, two positions that are thoroughly accorded with by the agreement.

Meanwhile the League of Republican Newspapers of Wisconsin is urging the immediate formation of a state branch of the Progressive league. At the very least it would be well for the advocates of state organizations to wait a bit before going on with their plans, and find out whether these leaders at the national capital are forming a bona fide league or a personal boom club.

The way Senators La Follette and Cummins and others vote on this reciprocity measure will go a long ways toward showing just what the people at large want to know about this league. If the members vote for reciprocity, it will be evidence that they are in earnest in their claims. If they vote against reciprocity it will be proof that they should have named their organization "The Anti-Taft Agitators," since it will be clear that they stand not for a principle, but for some unnamed individual.

MORE FOR THE MAINE.

Congress should not hesitate about giving the funds needed for the completion of the work of raising the Maine. In reports made unofficially thus far there is said to have been found evidence that the battleship was sunk as a result of an explosion from within, instead of by a torpedo laid without the hull. Spain naturally is taking a great interest in the progress made in the Havana harbor, and these unconfirmed reports have been given wide circulation in that country.

There should be no halting of the investigation now. The cost will be great, much greater than it would have been had the work been done years ago, when it should have been done. But the nation, having undertaken the task, owes it not only to the Spaniards but to itself to make the investigation as thorough as possible.

In case it proves that the battleship was indeed sunk by an explosion from within, it can of course make no difference as far as the results of the war with Spain are concerned. That conflict was based on matters not dependent on the sinking of the Maine. The disaster to the American vessel only served to inflame the minds of the people of this country, and it furnished a battle slogan for the American army and navy. But it was not because of the sinking of the Maine that the war was fought. That was only a contributory incident in hastening the outbreak of hostilities. To abandon the investigation now, even for a short time, would be to give the other nations the impression that the United States had fought the war on the strength of the Maine disaster and was trying to back out of a probe that would show this country in an unfavorable light.

For some reasons it is to be hoped that the investigation will prove that the Maine was blown up from within. There have been naval accidents of similar character, and it is not pleasant to think that the American navy was subject to such an experience. But it is no more pleasant to think that representatives of a civilized power would stoop to the torpedoing of a vessel of another power during times of peace, however strained might be the relations of the two governments. Whatever the indications as to the outcome of the investigation, it should be carried to completion, and all the more so now that it has been begun.

A BIG STEP FORWARD.

Few more significant events have been set down in the Congressional Record in the last few years than the passage by the senate of the bill creating an Appalachian and White Mountain forest reserve. The bill passed the house some two years ago, and now goes to the president for his signature. After eight years of hard fighting, the securing of the senate's favorable action furnishes a cause for congratulation among the conservation advocates, and gives ground for a hope that this only marks the beginning of a policy of federal action that will mean great things for the nation.

According to the provisions of the bill, the country will spend $2,000,000 annually for five years to create forest reservations in the White Mountain and Appalachian systems. The purpose is to regulate rainfall and the flow of streams, prevent soil erosion, insure the navigability of connecting streams and safeguard the sources of water power. Our government in past years has been prodigal in its use and in the use it has allowed private interests to make of the resources of the country. When some far-sighted and public-spirited men saw the evils to which the country was drifting and pointed out the remedy, there was an instant organization of oppositon, and the fight to save what now is left has proved even harder than was expected.

The war is far from over. Other battles must be fought, and at every succeeding stand the forces of pillage and privilege will fight harder than at the last one. But the nation is aroused, and the passage of this bill by congress establishes a precedent that has been longed for by the conservation advocates. It does not mean that the rest will be easy. It means only that there has been a big step forward, and that in this action the men who are fighting for the good of the nation will have something tangible back of them, instead of mere theory and principle.

SOME UNWRITTEN HISTORY.

Queer how history gets things twisted sometimes, and leaves them that way for generations and even centuries, until some little incident throws a whole battery of light on the past and clears up the atmosphere. Men have been looked up to as heroes or despised as criminals on account of the way history spoke of them, and in the last accounting it has developed that history was wrong, and that both classes were the victims of circumstances or customs that have not been passed down in song or story, but whose influence on events and deeds can be seen at a glance, even by the unthinking.

Another such discovery has come to light in the last few weeks. Students of antiquity have found out and announced that the ancient Greeks wore straw hats. Nothing could be more significant. It solves a whole lot of problems. Take the case of the Golden Helen, for instance. No wonder she left her home for Paris, if Menelaus refused to indulge her to the extent of buying her the very latest creation in straw. Evidently she was not half the unworthy woman that she has been painted. And there are many other instances in Greek history in which it is plain that the straw hat figured, though historians failed to tell us so.

Take the Battle of Marathon, for instance. It has always been a puzzle to the skeptical how the Greeks got their shields to reflect the sunlight so brightly as to scare the Persians. Now it is easy. It wasn't sunlight at all. They just put their straw hats on the ends of their spears and set fire to them, and the Persians had no alternative but to back into the water or get their hands burned. And those "crowns" that they used to give the winners of athletic events—nothing but new and fashionable models of straw hats, with blue ribbon bands and red and yellow streamers to show the rank of the prizes.

We have admired Leander for years as a daring lover, but who can say that his real reason for trying to swim the Hellespont was not the fact that his hat blew into the water? It's rather rough on Hero, but a girl with a name like that ought to be able to stand it.

Then there was Socrates. He probably got his ducking from Xantippe because he persisted in wearing a hat she didn't like the shape of, and everybody knows what a good soaking will do to a straw. And the chances are that instead of deliberately drinking hemlock as a way of committing suicide, Socrates made a mistake in the dark and got hold of a bottle of straw cleaner instead of hair tonic, or something. Also this new knowledge gives us a clew to the origin of that trite saw, "Straws show which way the wind blows." Undoubtedly the remark originated with one of those ancient Greek philosophers as he chased his own wayward headgear down the avenue on a breezy day. And the "straw ballot"—surely that means that only those could vote who were able to afford straw hats. Or maybe the people dropped their ballots in one that was passed around.

These delvings into the past have a wonderful value, and none of recent years can approach in significance this discovery that the straw headgear was known and used in ancient Greece.

The United States is the world's greatest cotton producer. Maybe that is why we have cottoned to the special interests so long.

Banker Robin overlooked a valuable assistant. A school teacher in New York, with a $25 a week salary, ran up debts amounting to $130,000.

It seems too bad to put extra expense on the advertising pages of magazines when those pages so often contain the best reading in the whole publication.

Some men make as much fuss over putting on a new hat as George V is making about donning a new crown. And some of them do it just about as often as George does.

Magazines, says a publisher, sometimes pay from $30,000 to $50,000 for a special series of articles. If there are articles worth that much why in the name of goodness don't the magazines publish them?

Representative Dalzell says he intends to stand just where he has stood for forty years. If he only knew it, he has got that place worn so smooth by this time that he may find standing a matter of difficulty almost any time now.

Speaking in the house the other day against the Canadian agreement, Representative Broussard of Louisiana cited the lumber industry as being "in a languishing condition." There are a good many consumers in the country who would like to languish awhile in the same way.

TALKS WITH THE STATE PRESS

As to Whoops.

Mankato Free Press: Says the Milwaukee Sentinel: "Doc Cook avers that he can prove that Peary never reached the Pole. Aside from Cook and Peary, is there anybody who cares two whoops whether either of them ever reached the pole? We wouldn't give one whoop.

And we wouldn't give even a Chautauqua salute.

H. Cabot Lodge's Fear.

Mesabe-Ore: Senator Lodge, in a speech the other day, declared against the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people. Sure thing—he knows well enough that if senators were the choice of the people there would be a big scarcity of Lodges in the senate.

And there'd be many a Lodge in the vast wilderness of oblivion which is whence they all are headed, if they but knew it.

An Old Story in These Parts.

Little Falls Transcript: With blackbirds in Duluth, robins in Little Falls and Superior, and buttertlies in Brainerd it must be that spring is not coming but is already here.

It's been spring mostly all winter up here.

Too Bad, Too Bad.

Carlton Vidette: A pair of Minnesota, Carlton county newlyweds have set the pace for a profitable, if not romantic, honeymoon. Instead of taking a trip, they have enrolled as students in the state agricultural college and will take a six weeks' course before settling down to life on the farm.

And they talked of making T. Roosevelt president of the University of Minnesota.

Help the Railroads

Winona Independent: The railroads should also regard Canadian reciprocity with alarm It would mean lots more freight to haul, and they are already carrying freight at a loss

For the sake of the poor railroads, let the watchword be: Improve the waterways!

Sam Gordon's Vehicle.

Virginia Virginian: If Sam Gordon expects to run for governor in another two years he will have to hitch up another horse besides his "county option Dobbin" to his shay.

Maybe he expects to travel in a chariot with three horses attached to keep ahead of the steam-roller

Given Without a Qualm

Fertile Journal: There is some talk of dividing the state of Minnesota, drawing the line east and west somewhere in the neighborhood of Brainerd. How would Fertile do for the state capital?

Sure, you can have it Until the state is divided

Controlling the Control

Red Wing Free Press: Much of the hullabalo we hear about the baneful effect of this or that interest controlling politics and legislation is on a par with the pot calling the kettle black One selfish interest in control is no better than another In a controlling capacity they are as bad.

Right you are; but how'd you like to be in control of an interest that does exercise control?

Not a Threat, Either.

Fairmont Sentinel: Wall street may expend all its time and money in buying up the muckraking magazines, but take it from us, so long as there's a muck heap, the rake will be on duty.

The sooner this fact is distinctly understood in Wall street, the sooner will there be less effort exerted to coerce the press.

CANADIANS AND CHAMP CLARK.

Calgary News-Telegram: Representative Champ Clark proved himself no diplomat. Merely that and nothing more. Unless, indeed, the best diplomacy consists in being frank. He spoke out his hope of some day seeing the Stars and Stripes floating over the whole of North America. He said no very remarkable thing, but he said it inopportunely. There are millions of Americans who have said it millions of times. The late Governor Johnson of Minnesota, the recognized Democratic candidate for the presidency, made a speech at Duluth in which he went into the subject exhaustively. Americans applauded and Canadians did not take offense.

Such a declaration as that attributed to the speaker-elect is not extraordinary except for the time and the place of its making. It was inopportune. The Missouri statesman has a right to cherish any hope whatever, but he has no right to jeopardize a consummation devoutly to be desired. He has no right to intrude such an expression of his personal hopes at a moment so critical.

But, then. Canadians are level headed. They reason logically to a conclusion. On this occasion they will reason that the declaration was made for American consumption. A million American farmers are objecting to the free admission of Alberta wheat. Clark sought to appease them. He held up to then a continent.

But he had no right to do it. We know that union is a dream for dreamers. We know that Canada is loyal to her native soil. We know that Canadian patriotism is true and pure. A wild remark like his could precipitate a stampede. The opponents of reciprocity at Ottawa could set up the cry of alarm, the plea for the home land.

But they will not. They doubtless were forewarned that statements would be used to kindle the patriotic fires that burn in American breasts. Reciprocity must be carried in the American senate. The senate is the stamping ground of the standpatter. Visions of glory to be won will impel Americans strongly. Clark knows this. He puts the knowledge to use. He banked, no doubt, on the cool heads of his Canadian cousins to count the sixes and sevens and not become alarmed.

Length of Court Sermons.

From M. A. P.: The recognized time for a preacher to occupy the pulpit when preaching before the late king was 10 minutes. King George, however, has never quite approved of these very short sermons, and it has been intimated to the chaplains in ordinary attached to the royal household, from whom the preacher for the morning service at Buckingham palace is usually selected, that their sermons may be lengthier than they were customarily in the late reign. An intimation of this sort amounts practically to a command, but it is doubtful if it will be very welcome to some of the chaplains who were in the late king's household, who have during the past years rarely preached a sermon of more than 10 minutes duration. When the king is at Buckingham palace on Sunday the preacher for the morning service is selected by his majesty; the selection is usually made on Friday, and the chaplain who has been chosen is notified of the fact by the sub-dean.

Queen Alexandra's Photographs.

From M. A. P.: Queen Alexandra is nowadays rarely seen abroad with her camera. For many years past she has snapshotted with avidity, the result being that she now possesses quite a valuable pictorial record of her extensive travels. Among her "victims" are hundreds of European royalties and celebrities, many of them in delightful inconsequential poses and attitudes. The collection fills a score of big albums, while numbers of the photographs have been transferred by the queen herself to porcelain.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

HOW EGYPT IS BEING RECLAIMED.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The work of the Egypt Exploration fund, of which Lord Cromer is president, is going on very successfully this winter at Abydos. Prof. E. Naville superintends the expedition, and the winter camp, now open, is in charge of T. Eric Peet and J. A. Dixon. To Americans the work of the society this year is of special interest, because for the first time in twenty-five years an American assistant joins the staff of exporers in Egypt. He is Prof. Thomas Whittemore of Tufts college.

For years the interest of the civilized world has been centered on Egypt. Men—trained, resourceful and fearless—have given time, energy and even health and file, to bring back to our knowledge this ancient civilization. The results have surpassed the dreams and desires of the most sanguine. Today there is no people to whom universities and museums are more indebted or to whom the world owes more than to Egypt.

Upon none does the obligation weigh more heavily than on the Old and New Testament student. Passages heretofore obscure are made luminous by the finds which give us so much on the historic setting of these books. Within recent years New Testament study has been given an especial impetus by the discovery of papyri. The language, the literature, the customs, the life of the New Testament have all been set in a new light, and from Egypt have come the rich sources of present day research.

And now the crisis has come. Egypt that has lain dormant so many years must be reclaimed. It is an economic necessity. Even for archaeology the world cannot wait. The great dam erected at Aswan, ninety-five feet high, for the storing up of the Nile waters, has sent the floods back over many of the sites of ancient culture. Old cities, temples and tombs are rapidly being submerged. At least twelve of these great temples are now under water. Moreover, by infiltration the soil is rapidly becoming saturated. What has so long been preserved by the dry sand will now rapidly perish even before the rising waters flood the surface. Last season the camp of the Graeco-Roman branch of the Egypt Exploration fund was moved five times in two months in the district above Behnesa; thirty fi ne-appearing papyrus mummies were found which crumbled to powder at the lightest touch.

For the first time in twenty-five years the Egypt Exploration fund has an American representative on the staff of explorers. Prof. Thomas Whittemore of Tufts college departed Jan. 25 to enter upon his responsible duties at our camp at Abydos. He is a valuable man to have in the field, having conducted independent investigations in Egypt.

Prof. Whittemore desires to keep the camp at Abydos open and to continue digging at least till April. To do this $1,000 extra must be raised and dispatched promptly. This extra draft should prove of incalculable value to science and enrich our institutions in such antiquities from Abydos and the Royal Tombs as have already afforded scholars and students so much instruction and delight.

This plea is sent out for assistance in order to secure such advantages to American interests as must result from prolonging this season's researches. To all assisting in the work the Egypt Exploration fund will make the most generous returns. The society maintains three departments in its investigations. The three camps are widely separated. The Egypt Exploration fund excavates; its Archaeological Survey fund copies inscriptions; the Graeco-Roman branch digs for papyri. Antiquities brought to light and papyri after translation, are presented to museums and universities pro rata of the subscriptions received from the various localities.

Annual membership to either branch is $5. Life membership is $125. Patrons contribute $25. Each of these subscriptions carries with it the right to one copy of the annual memoir of the department concerned and the two reports, one illustrated.

For those special subscription patrons of $25 will receive a special recognition. The committee in London will present to each patron six royal folios and one quarto volume containing nearly two hundred plates, describing their ten years' operations in clearing and restoring the beautiful temple of Queen Hatshepsu at Deir el Bahari.

Checks should be made payable to the Egypt Exploration fund and sent to Mrs. Marie X. Buckman, secretary for the United States, 527 Tremond temple, Boston, Mass. Illustrated circular will be sent upon request.

DWIGHT LATHROP ELMENDORF,
Honorary Secretary for the United States.
New York, Feb. 17.

GOOD START ON KNOTTY PROBLEM.

To the Editor of The Herald:

That was a good start made by the board of county commissioners and the city council when they appointed committees to investigate the workhouse problem. I trust that the members of the joint committee will go into the matter thoroughly. St. Louis county has to have a new jail and if a suitable arrangement can be made with the county, the two should go together. There has been something said about the city acting independently and handling its own prisoners, but this would be a poor move for the municipality. Duluth is too hard up financially to put such a deal through successfully. There are many other things which should be taken care of first, among them being a new city hall on the property at Fourth avenue west and First street.

Duluth, Feb. 20. J. I. C.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: And many an open book is hide bound.

The more you are promised the less you may expect.

Some women look upon a husband as a necessary incumbrance.

Women have a pleasant way of being mean that no man can equal.

All the world doesn't lie within the boundaries of your back yard.

Flattery is better than peroxide for making a brunette light headed.

Sometimes it is better to have loved and lost than to have been the other fellow.

A woman doesn't mind her husband having a good time according to her idea of it.

No matter how homely a man is he can always find some woman willing to marry him.

But did you ever hear of a woman who earned her pin money by running a bowling alley?

The happy women are not all married to good men; lots of happy women are not married at all.

The unhappiness of most people in this world is due to the fact that they are unable to depend upon themselves.

No, Alonzo, it isn't any wickeder for a man to separate you from your money by gambling than it is for him to steal it from you.

A Kentucky Trader.

Cadiz Record: Our good friend Uncle Bill Owen, who lives about three miles from town, still possesses the shrewdness as a trader that he did when he was a youth. A few days ago he made a trade with his neighbor, Elbert Skinner, for a bushel of shelled corn. Elbert was busy and had not had time to shell the corn when Uncle Bill called for it. He told Uncle Bill to shell the corn himself and he would pay him for it. When Uncle Bill had finished shelling it and went to Elbert to make settlement with him it was ascertained that Uncle Bill's charges for shelling amounted to seven ears.

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Exchange: "Do you know anything about palmistry, Herbert?" she asked.

"Oh, not much," he answered, with the air of modesty which is not intended to be implicitly believed in. "Not a great deal, although I had an experience last night which might be considered a remarkable example of the art you mention. I happened to glance at the hand of a friend of mine, and I immediately predicted that he would presently become the possessor of a considerable amount of money. Before he left the room he had a nice little sum handed to him."

"And you told it from his hand?"

"Yes; it had four aces in it."

Argonaut: The proposed appointment of a coal officer for the London county council recalls the experience of a canvasser who was doing his best to win over a lady to the interest of the progressive candidate. Among other good works of the council in the cause of the people he mentioned the protection it gave to purchasers of coal by appointing inspectors to see that just weight was given by the street venders.

"And well I know it," screamed the lady, "they have ruined my poor father!" who had been a coal merchant.

Houstin Chronicle: "What kind of an appointment do you want?"

"Well," said the applicant, "what I'd like is one of those positions in which a man can make a hit by seeing that nobody else has a sinecure."

Detroit Free Press: Will some expert on tact kindly tell us what is a man to do when he discovers early in the morning that his only shirt is in the bureau of the guest room, and the lady company in there is still asleep?

Argonaut: A good-sized squad of newspaper men, citizens and merry villagers flanked the entrance to the Taft summer home at Beverly and kept their eyes on the road back of the secret service guard for the approach of the carriage containing Col. Roosevelt and Senator Lodge. The wait was more than two hours long and conversation flourished at times. One knot fell to discussing Roosevelt.

"The secret of his success," said a villager, "is that he is a good man."

"That makes me think of the death of Casey," replied another. "When Casey lay in his coffin a neighbor looked long at his face and then said to the widow, 'He was a good man, Mrs. Casey.' 'He was that,' she replied. 'It always tuk more than two cops to handle him.'"

Houston Post: We didn't get to attend Col. Frank Holland's Cattalo banquet in Dallas, but Will West of Livingston, Tex., sent us five gallons of ribbon cane syrup, and Winifred Davis of Meshoppen, Pa., sent us one gallon of maple syrup and Mr. Gardien of Gonbales sent us a sack of pecans, and M. P. Daniels of Dayton sent us a sack of walnuts and J. W. Jones of Harlingen, sent us a four and a half pound turnip, and several handsome gentlemen and beautiful ladies sent us boxes of cigars, so it looks as if we might manage to pull through the balance of the winter all right.

Cleveland Leader: The Hobo—Please, mum, I'm a sick man. De doctor gimme dis medicine, but I needs assistance in takin' it.

The Lady — Poor fellow! Do you want a spoon and a glass of water?

The Hobo—No, mum. I wouldn't trouble yer. But dis medicine haster to be took before meals. Have yer got a meal handy?

Chicago Tribune: "Senator," ventured the reporter, "as you look back over the campaign, now that you can view it in the perspective, does it not seem to you there was—er—something lacking in the genral management of it?"

"It does, young man."

"Well, what was it, may I ask?"

"Votes," thundered the eminent statesman.

Toledo Blade: "Let's get some luncheon and a bottle of whisky and take a day off squirrel hunting. We'll go to Thompson's woods."

"I haven't any gun."

"That won't matter—there ain't any squirrels in Thompson's woods."

Fliegende Blaetter: "I say, a man of the same name as mine has just been run in for fraud by credit. Beastly awkward, you know."

"Don't alarm yourself, my dear fellow. Everyone knows you can't get money on credit at all."

Chicago Tribune: Mrs. Chugwater—Josiah, what is the origin of the name Milwaukee, and what does it mean?"

Mr. Chugwater—It comes from the Latin word mille, meaning a thousand, and Wau Kee, a Chinaman: Milwaukee, a thousand Chinaman. Think you can remember that?

Judge: "Papa," asks the little boy, "why do they say a woman is 'setting her cap' for a man when she wants to marry him?"

"Because, my son," explains the father, softly, "if she sets her bonnet for him she knows blame well the price of it will scare him to death."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Youth can gain sense by losing youth.

Marriage is a lottery with a chance for men, but never women, to draw a prize.

A woman can think the baby is going to be a great singer because it can howl all night.

People who live in glass houses throw stones in the hope that somebody else's will be smashed first.

Women learn a little something about politics in spite of the jumbled explanations their husbands give them of it.

When Johnny Counted.

New York Sun: Mother—Johnny Jones counts ten before he fights.

Tommy—Yep; and he doesn't count for anything after it.

A MISTAKEN PROFESSOR.

New York World: Prof. Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard must have been misquoted in the dispatch from Cambridge which makes him say that "to the student delving in our political problems one fact is uppermost, the tremendous lack of big men in big places. This is the gravest possible defect of a system of popular government."

There is always a tremendous lack of big men in big places, but is it more conspicuous in the United States than elsewhere? Can any European country, for example, show twenty-seven successive monarchs or twenty-seven successive prime ministers who tower above the twenty-seven presidents of the United States from Washington to Taft? The question answers itself.

We do not regard Mr. Taft as a great president, but there is no English or continental statesman whom we would accept in place of him. We do not regard Mr. Bryan as a safe political adviser, but there is no European orator who outranks him. We disagree sharply with Mr. Roosevelt's theories of government, but there is no European who equals Mr. Roosevelt in political genius or dynamic force.

There is much to be said in criticism of the United States senate; yet it is unquestionably the greatest deliberative body in the world, with the highest average of intellect, ability and governmental sense. As for the house of representatives, it will compare favorably with any other parliament, while the United States supreme court is the most exalted judicial tribunal known to human history.

Democracy necessarily breeds all sorts of political leaders, from a ward boss to a Lincoln; but in the 122 years of the American Constitution no other country has produced so many statesmen of the first rank. They have revolutionized the political ideas of the whole world.

Lobbying For Scallops.

Lewiston Journal: A unique method of lobbying has been adopted by the fishermen who are anxious that scallops along the Maine coast should be better protected. Each member of the legislature Thursday morning found upon his desk a clean white scallop decorated with the single word, "Help" typewritten upon a piece of white paper and pasted upon the shell. The shells are fine souvenirs of the coast, make excellent ash trays or match receivers, and will doubtless be treasured by those who have received them long after all the printed matter distributed in the two chambers during this session has passed into oblivion.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH.

A Pleasant, Simple, But Safe and Effectual Cure For It.

Catarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable. The usual symptoms are a full or bloating sensation after eating, accompanied sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on the heart and lungs and difficult breathing, headaches, fickle appetite, nervousness and a general played out, languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue and if the interior of the stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition.

The cure for this common and obstinate trouble is found in a treatment which causes the food to be readily, thoroughly digested before it has time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of the stomach. To secure a prompt and healthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhal condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Harlanson, the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet, composed of Diastase, Aseptic Pepsin, a little Nux, Golden Seal and fruit acids. These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and not being a patent medicine can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

The plan of dieting is simply another name for starvation, and the use of prepared foods and new fangled breakfast foods simply makes matters worse as any dyspeptic who has tried them knows.

As Dr. Bennett says, the only reason I can imagine why Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not universally used by everybody who is troubled in any way with poor digestion is because many people seem to think that because a medicine is advertised or is sold in drug stores or is protected by a trade mark it must be a humbug whereas as a matter of truth any druggist who is observant knows that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have cured more people of catarrh of the stomach, indigestion, heartburn, heart trouble, nervous prostration and run down condition generally than all the patent medicines and doctors' prescriptions for stomach trouble combined.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest preparation as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, catarrh of the stomach, billiousness, sour stomach, heartburn and bloating after meals.

SALARIES OF MINISTERS

Country-Wide Movement to Bring Level Higher Is Started.

Ministers Better Paid Here Than in Other Cities of Same Size.

Is the average salary paid to ministers sufficient to enable a man to live and maintain a family as becomes a man of the cloth?

Does the average church intentionally ask a poorly paid man to deliver stirring sermons?

If the average minister in the smaller churches grows lax in his enthusiasm occasionally and even seeks a change of location or employment, is he blamable?

Although the average salary of the ministers of Duluth is higher than the average for cities between 50,000 and 100,000 population throughout the country generally and the ministers in the district around Duluth are better paid than country ministers generally, the members of the clergy in this district will undoubtedly be interested in a movement begun by S. M. Barton of Cleveland, publisher of the Expositor, for better salaries for ministers.

Country-Wide Movement.

Mr. Barton plans a country-wide movement for the betterment of the conditions under which clergymen work and he believes that when the facts are once known and appreciated by laymen, they will take steps to correct conditions and give the ministers a compensation in keeping with the living expenses of the day and in harmony with the character of the work they are called upon to do.

In the February number of the Expositor Mr. Barton sets forth the troubles of the minister from the financial standpoint. He is convinced that congregations, where many members ride in autos, are abundantly able and ought to be willing to allow their ministers a salary that would at least solve the problem of maintaining a household. He is of the opinion that ministers ought to be expected to do good work and for that they ought to be paid by the congregations they serve, rather than be compelled to add to their income by outside employment. If the salary is ample to meet the living problem the minister has the time to devote to his work and the result should be better sermons, more effective pastoral supervision and more substantial results for the churches.

Salaries Too Small.

As soon as the movement is under way here Mr. Barton will tour the East and already has arranged to form an association in Philadelphia and another in Boston. He believes the movement will be country-wide in a few months. He has arranged to have the work told in detail in a number of farm papers that will stir up the subject in country villages.

"The average salary paid to ministers outside of the twenty-five large cities of the country is $575," Mr. Barton said yesterday. "We have information of ministers in the smaller places being paid as low as $250 per year. In cities averaging 25,000 the average salary of the ministers is about $800. There are cases where the salary has been cut to enable the church to buy a pipe organ. We know of one church in New York where the salary is $500 and where twenty costly automobiles are driven to the church by the members almost every Sunday. Some of the letters received from ministers are pethetic. We want them to have a living wage and we want a form of contract used that will afford them payment at regular intervals. Churchmen, college presidents and wealthy business men have said they were willing to help us in the work we are trying to do."

Duluth Salaries.

Figures for all denominations are not available, but the Methodist Episcopal church probably pays a little better salaries than any other denomination. The average salary of a Methodist minister in Duluth is $1,900 a year. In the Duluth district, the average is a little over $800 and in the district, exclusive of the city of Duluth, the average is about $600. Some of the denominations measure up to the Methodist Episcopal church in point of salaries paid, but the Methodist average is a fair one in that it is probably as high as that of any denomination. The average in the Roman Catholic church, in and out of the city, is but a little over $500.

Throughout the country generally in cities of between 50,000 and $100,000 population, the average salary of Methodist Episcopal ministers is $1,207.

SEVEN LOSE LIVES IN FIRE

Home of J. D. Hardin, Sutton, W. Va., Destroyed By Flames.

Sutton, W. Va., Feb. 20.—Seven persons lost their lives in a fire which destroyed the home of J. D. Hardin in this city early yesterday. Only Mr. Hardin escaped, the six remaining members of his family and a little girl who made her home with the family, perishing in the flames. The dead:

MRS. J. D. HARDIN, aged 38.
ADA GREEN, aged 14.
PEMBROKE HARDIN, aged 11.
MARGARET HARDIN, aged 8.
JAMES and RIVA HARDIN, twins, aged 5.
PAUL HARDIN, aged 3.

The fire was caused by a natural gas grate. When Mrs. Hardin awoke the entire first floor was ablaze. Awakening her husband, she seized two of the children and dashed for a stairway which immediately collapsed. The two children were lost and the father was precipiated to a point of safety. Mrs. Hardin seeing the stairway fall, jumped from the second story window, receiving injuries from which she died later.

The bodies of the five Hardin children and that of Ada Green were cremated.

GOLD DUST
Digs Deep After Germs

GOLD DUST not only cleans but sterilizes.

Soap merely washes over the surface, leaving a greasy film behind it.

GOLD DUST "goes to the bottom," and insures absolute purity and sanitary safety. Why not sanatize your home, as well as clean it?

Soap needs muscle help; GOLD DUST does all the hard part of the task without your assistance.

GOLD DUST is a good, honest, vegetable-oil soap, to which are added other purifying materials in just the right proportions to cleanse easily, vigorously, and without harm to fabric, utensils or hand.

Foolish, indeed, is the woman who tries to get along without GOLD DUST.

Do not use Soap, Naphtha, Borax, Soda, Ammonia or Kerosene with Gold Dust. Gold Dust has all desirable cleansing qualities in a perfectly harmless and lasting form.

DIVINITY IN HUMANITY

Every Man Is Born Out of God's Eternal Self, Says Preacher.

Man Is Not God, But God Is in Every Man.

Rev. George R. Gebauer, pastor of the First Unitarian church, preached on "The Unity of the Human and Divine" yesterday. He said in part:

"Certainly Goethe is right, when he contends that mere passive contemplation will not solve for us the riddle of being. For our Western minds at least, as generally constituted, nine-tenths of what the Hindoo Yogi talks about is mere twaddle. Yes, it is true that we may best learn to know ourselves in what we do, or in what we see others do, who are made of the same stuff as ourselves. Indeed still more suggestive than Goethe is the Persian poet who says 'If you would know yourself, see what others are doing and if you would understand others look into your own heart.' We learn to understand humanity in its action and we understand action best in others rather than in ourselves, because we are too near to ourselves, we cannot get out of our skin and look at ourselves objectively. And again we can only interpret the action of others, by realizing its reaction in ourselves. Thus true and fruitful contemplation is based upon the observation of human action.

"But not all action shows the real, the eternal man. There is action which simply mirrors the animal, temporal man in his appetites and lusts. The real man is seen in his duties, or better in his duty, when he works not for his own temporal interest, but for the highest interest of others. We see the real self in the great Son of Man, who lays down his life for his brethren and is ready to die for the truth he believes in. And now, right and truth and love are not mere abstractions of the human mind, but they are eternal things and man in doing them, reveals his own eternal self. He shows by his response to what is eternal, that he is at one with the eternal spirit in the universe which makes for right and truth and love. And this spirit is God, the holy trinity of love and right and truth.

"Truly we are then 'divine inside and outside' as Walt Whitman has said. We are divine, not merely of divine manufacture, not merely automatons turned out by the divine workshop of nature, but we are born out of God's eternal self. There is no false and arrogant assumption in this. It does not mean that our little passing individuals are God; it rather means that God is in us little passing individuals, and that he is at one with the eternal children. The drop in the ocean may not well say, 'I am the ocean,' though it may say, 'the ocean is in me;' but the ocean may say, 'I am every drop in it.' We are divine because we are drops in the eternal ocean of God. And because this is so therefore we believe in eternal life and not because perchance someone has given 'such good reasons' why we should live again.

"And because that ocean is a sea of love, therefore the deeps speak to us 'thou ought' and we obey, and the surges sing 'love your enemy' and we listen. Now all this is not impractical mysticism, but rather a helpful explanation of life. It does not stand in the way of culture and progress, but bids us go forth on the highways and byways to fulfil our duty, the bidding of divinity in us. The man who will thus feel himself in touch with God, the dynamo of all that is good and true in the world, will try to live worthy of his God-like nature.

"He, too, will understand the sayings of the great sons of man, who knew themselves the sons of God and the children of men. Jesus could well say 'I and the Father are one,' because he knew the eternal truth of being, because he had observed divinity in others and had realized divine sonship in himself.

"To you and me, who dimly perhaps realize the truth of this divine sonship, those words seem strange at times, but when we look into our innermost self, after we have seen the great Son of Man, we, too, see then the Son of God in all his glory, we see Him coming in the clouds of heaven, we see Him sitting eternally at the right hand of the Father i nourselves. We see the Son of God in every man's son, in every woman's daughter, who has realized the eternal truth of the unity of the human and divine."

LARGER OUTPUT OF PIG METAL

Steel Corporation Has Sixty Per Cent of Furnace Capacity Active.

New York, Feb. 20.—Speculation on recent large steel contracts for finished material enabled the steel companies last week to put more mills in commission and called for a larger output of pig metal. The steel corporation now has about 60 per cent of furnace capacity active.

The corporation and some of the independent companies are indebted to large miscellaneous export contracts for much of their increase in active capacity since Jan. 1, but, of course, rail tonnage and more generous orders for light material—wire, tubes, sheets and tinplate—have been important factors. During the last ten days domestic trade in rails, plates, shapes, bars and fabricated steel has been disappointing, however.

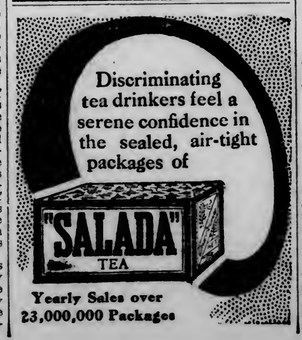

Last week railroad orders for equipment were only 30,000 tons rails, 1,800 cars, 36 locomotives and 5,000 tons of bridge material. Fabricated structural steel orders were less than 15,000 tons. Competition was keen and prices low.

Since all the large and many of the small steel companies became self-contained, the billet price has been less important and an advance of $1 per ton now is of less significance.

The interesting feature in pig iron last week was the taking of contracts for 10,000 tons of foundry iron in New England by a Buffalo interest competing against itself. Miscellaneous business in other Eastern territory ran from 5,000 to 10,000 tons.

The principal business was at minimum prices, but furnaces are now asking an advance. Steel plants and bridge works in eastern Pennsylvania closed for about 18,000 tons of basic at $14.50 delivered. In the interior contracts were closed for about 40,000 tons, making the total about 90,000 tons in all districts.

ENGLISH MUSIC AT THE TEMPLE

Large Audience Hears Program—Dwight W. Hiestand Is Soloist.

Following the patriotic Lincoln program of Feb. 12 came that of yesterday afternoon at the Masonic temple, when the numbers were distinctively English, either in character or by an English composer, and a large audience gathered to enjoy them.

Dwight W. Hiestand, the singer, was evidently imbued with the strong, virile peculiarities of the English people when making his selections and Bullard's rousing song, "The Sword of Ferrarra," was worthy of the subject and was sung in an appreciative manner, showing the wide range of the voice and its adaptability to songs in the middle and lower registers, although in the upper notes there is promise of great possibilities which a slight nervousness prevented from being fully developed. For an encore he sang the splendid "Song of Hybrias the Cretan," another bravura composition which was handled well and with must taste. The second vocal number was from the opera, "The Vicar of Wakefield," by Liza Lehman, which also called on the resources of Mr. Hiestand. He responded heartily, demonstrating an appreciation of the spirit of the piece and its requirements. For a second encore he sang Stevenson's "Requiem," giving it a good rendition in a pleasing manner. The difficult task of being a responsive accompanist fell on Mrs. Alphin Flaaten and with her usual grace and good taste she ably assisted Mr. Hiestand.

The organ music introduced the program with Paull's "Charge of the Light Brigade," which was followed by the finale of the first act of "The Mikado" in which comes several of the well known Mikado airs, ending with the rousing finale. After the first vocal number, Sullivan's "Lost Chord," was played in a very artistic manner and as a contract three dances from "Nell Gwyn," by German, were given in a most satisfying style, the different forms of dancing being well represented. Nicolai's "Merry Wives of Windsor" overture with its captivating melodies and dainty fairy music, charmed. The program was closed by Godfrey's "Reminiscences of England," a collection of old English songs beginning with "Down Among the Dead Men," and ending with the stirring "Rula Britannia," with many of the ballads between, such as "Barbara Allen," "Sally In Our Alley," "Poor Tom Bowling," and others. The program for next Sunday will have a Scotch tinge, "bagpipes and a'."

ALL DAY CURLING BONSPIEL ON ST. LOUIS RIVER, PLANNED

The classiest and most scientific exhibition of curling ever witnessed in Duluth is scheduled for Fond du Lac next Saturday. At that time the suburb club will pull off its annual bonspiel.

Two sheets of ice have been cleared on the St. Louis river at the foot of One Hundred and Thirty-fifth avenue west, and those who have cast a few stanes down them declare that for condition they have anything beaten that was ever manufactured under a roof. The other preparations have been completed. All that remains is for the weather man to do the right thing and the hearts of the commuters will beat in unison with the universe.

The Fond du Lac club was organized this winter and officers duly elected. 'Tis said by those on the inside that there were more officers than men present at that memorable gathering, but those who got the jobs deny this strenuously. The most important offices are filled by A. Krause and Walter J. Richeson, the former being president and the latter secretary-treasurer. There is no vice president. It is alleged in support of the above statement that nobody could be seen at the meeting to whom to delegate the job. Cameron Hewitt has been chosen general instructor, so many members of the club being novices, part of them not being able to tell the difference between a bowling ball and a curling stone before the present season. But these have been practicing faithfully and they feel that when the day of the big 'spiel arrives they will be able to acquit themselves creditably before the eyes of the vast throng of experts who are expected to attend. Secretary Richeson has issued about 200 invitations to the Duluthians who are known to indulge in the game, and he says that the majority of them have declared that they wouldn't miss it under any consideration. Secretary Richeson doesn't pretend that he can give pointers to Bob Dunbar on the game, but he thinks he will be able to stick it out if the ice doesn't get too slippery. Play is scheduled to start early in the morning and continue until darkness makes it imperative to cease. Secretary-Treasurer Richeson estimates that they will be able to finish three or four draws, if the players apply themselves strenuously to the enjoyment of the occasion. The feature of the day, however, is not expected to be enjoyed on the ice. Arrangements have been made with Charley Bergquist for the biggest feast he ever set in his restaurant. He has been promised the assistance of every member of the club and the menu will consist almost entirely of local products, raised in the famed gardens of the village.

McLEOD WINS BONSPIEL

Finals in City Event Played Off Saturday Evening.

Dinham Loses to McLeod and Smith Wins From Harris.

Ron McLeod's rink won the city curling bonspiel, which was finished Saturday evening at the rink of the Duluth Curling club. Ron Smith's rink won second, the two Rons being right in their element. While the ice was not in the best condition, owing to the warm weather that prevailed during the week, it was better than it was last Monday, when curling became a sort of wading exhibition.

The spiel was brought down to the semi-finals Monday, Smith, Harris, Dinham and McLeod being left. In the games of Saturday evening McLeod defeated Dinham's rink and Smith defeated Harris. Smith and McLeod met in the finals and the game went to Ron McLeod.

Except for the unfavorable weather the spiel was very successful. The members of the winning rink will be presented with silver cuff links, presented by Gruesen, the jeweler.

There are a number of games scheduled for the Bagley and St. Louis event for this evening. The members of the games committee state that the games remaining in these two events will be rushed right through as it will be necessary for three or four contests to be played each evening in order to have the events completed before the close of the season.

Following is the play from the semi-finals down in the city bonspiel:

LOST SECOND GAME TO CANUCKS

Fort William Won Saturday Evening Contest By 6 to 5 Score.

Against the Fort William hockey team Saturday evening the Duluth Curling club hockey seven put up a very fast and hard game. The final score was 6 to 5 in favor of the Fort William team, which had Ward, one of the old international stars in the line-up, and also Greene, who in the past has played in Stanley cup games.

The members of the Duluth team cannot say too much for the hospitality of the Fort William people, who showed the Duluth boys the best time they have had on any of the trips the present season. The boys were given a dinner and reception and were shown every act of hospitality during their stay.

BREWER AND ENGLISH TO MEET AT KANSAS CITY.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 20.—Harry Brewer of this city and Clarence English of Omaha will meet in a 10-round bout at the Hippodromo here tonight. There will be a preliminary bout between Monte Dale and Jem Evans. Dale's first fight since he broke his arm in a bout with Battling Nelson.

MORE STORIES ON THE HOLLAND

New Hotel Building Will Be in the Skyscraper Class.

The Holland hotel, Fifth avenue west and Superior street, which was originally planned as a ten-story building, will be enlarged to its full size this year, it is expected. The building is now six stories in height, but the erection of four additional stories is contemplated and will probably go through.

The hotel has 140 rooms and since it was opened last year has been filled to capacity almost constantly. Goldberg Bros., who conduct the hotel under lease from the owners, find the demand for accommodations so great that they believe they will find use for the additional quarters which the four stories will provide as soon as the work can be completed.

PARTY MURDERED BY THE NATIVES

Staniforth Smith and Others Meet Death in New Guinea.

Brisbane, Australia, Feb. 20.—Word was received today from Papua, a division of the island of New Guinea, of the massacre of Staniforth Smith, the British administrator of Papua, two white officers and a party of natives, by inhabitants of the interior.

Two natives, who accompanied the expedition, arrived at Gourlabari with the tidings that all of the party except themselves were killed by natives.

In November in the following year, he was made administratoral commissioner for lands and director of mines and agriculture and public works. COPPERS NERVOUS AND ERRATIC Market Opens Weak, Advances Sharply and Declines at Close.

The copper market was erratic and the undertone was extremely nervous today. The market opened weak and declined, then advanced sharply when shorts became frightened and covered. Toward the close the market became weak and unsettled on account of the doubt and uncertainty regarding forthcoming decisions in railroad rate cases and the Standard Oil and American Tobacco suits.

The market today was frightened by occasional rumors from Washington that the United States supreme court would hand down decisions of momentous import. Then came rumors that no decisions would be given out, but when several decisions were announced the market came to the conclusion that perhaps the court might do something to hurt the market, after all so the traders dumped stocks at the close, sending values slightly below yesterday's close.

The forthcoming decisions and the holiday on Wednesday probably will put a damper on speculation this week. The public is not much interested, anyway, the professionals doing the bulk of the trading.

Butte Ballaklava walked forward today. The advance came early in the session and nobdy seemed to know what the cause was. The buying was in the East and probably came from people interested in seeing the stock higher or who have inside information regarding the outcome of the Anaconda-Ballaklava suit. In this connection it is interesting to note that Senator Clapp of this state introduced the resolution in the United States senate calling for an investigation of Amalgamated, Anaconda and United States Metals Selling while a prominent stockholder and officer of the Butte Ballaklava was in the East. This officer is in a position to exercise considerable influence politically and he is also a friend of the senator's. It is not unlikely that the Butte Ballaklava official knew of the senator's resolution.

The locad market was fairly active with a weak undertone. Keating had a nervous and active day. The stock sold at the opening at $2.87½ and climbed up to $3 and then sagged to $2.81¼ on some profit taking from people who got in at lower values. Butte Ballaklava sold here at $6.25, Denn at $5.25, Warren at $2.12½, Amazon at $1.43¾ to $1.50, Calumet & Corbin at 32c and 30c, Carman at $1, North American at $2.25.

Amalgamated sold at $64.75 to $64.12½ to $65.50 to $64.75, Butte Coalition at $18.50, Butte Ballaklava at $5.50 to $6.25, Giroux at $6.75, Calumet & Arizona at $52, Greene at $6.12½, North Butte at $28.75 to $29.50, Cactus at 19c, Shattuck at $21.50, Superior & Pittsburg at $14.75 to $15 to $14.87½.

President Quincy A. Shaw of the Calumet & Hecla Mining company makes reply to the letter of G. S. Baldwin, chairman of the Boston Stock exchange committee, declining to accept the committee's holding company suggestion, which provided for the issuance of four shares of holding company stock for one of consolidated C. & H. and the reduction in the trading units to something over $50 per share.

The Boston News Bureau says: Could the order books of the various selling agencies be seen pertaining to last week's volume of copper sales they would show a substantial tonnage, electrolytic sold to consumers. So far as can be ascertained there were no phenomenally large individual commitments, but the total of all business done would easily round out between 10,000,000 and 15,000,000 pounds. The price for electrolytic remained unchanged all week at 12½c for round tonnages.

Thompson, Towle & Co. say, concerning North Butte:

"Production for January is estimated at about 2,000,000 pounds copper, which compares with an average production for the months of October, November and December of 2,020,000 pounds, and which indicates an annual production slightly in excess of 24,000,000 pounds.

"Considerable improvement development work is in progress. The Speculator shaft is being sunk from the 2,200 foot level to the 2,900 foot level at the rate of about 75 feet per month. The shaft is now down 2,640 feet and should reach the 2,900 foot point, at the present rate of sinking, within the next four months.

"Crosscuts will be run on the 2,400, 2,600 and 2,800 foot levels of the Edith May vein, the former of which should reach the vein about Feb. 15, and the other crosscuts by May 15 and June 15, respectively.

"The next few months will witness the opening up of some of the north veins on the lower levels of the mine, where recent developments have been rather favorable.

"The aggressive development of the property during the past year has resulted in reducing costs from 10½c for the first six months of 1910 to 9½c for the last six months of the year. With production maintained at the present rate the company is earning roughly $700,000 per annum, or $1.70 per share on 12½c copper.

FIGHTS TWO FIRES ABOUT SAME TIME

Hibbing Department, Called to Hotel, Discovers Nearby Chimney Fire.

Hibbing, Minn., Feb. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fire department was called to the Central hotel last evening, about 7:30, and found that the bedding in one of the upstairs bedrooms was ablaze. The men quickly had the fire out by throwing the burning clothes out of the window. DEER RIVER CASE UP.

Fight Against Moving Picture Show Being Aired in Court.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Feb. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Wright opened court here today taking up the court cases remaining from the October term. The case that is attracting attention is the injunction W. A. Ryan seeks against the Deer River council to prevent that body from interfering with his moving picture business. Ryan refuses to pay the $200 license fee exacted by the council on the ground that it is unreasonable and that the ordinance was enacted for the purpose of revenue only, and was not a police measure. The matter has now gotten into the district court in the form of an action to obtain an injunction from any attempt to enforce the ordinance in question.

The question over the validity of this ordinance is of general interest to villages all through the northern part of the state where conditions are the same as in Deer River.

The committee has been offered forty acres of land north of town as a site, but believe a location near Wolf, which is close to Eveleth, Virginia and Hibbing, is the most advisable place for the station. Efforts will be made to have the second county agricultural school located in this vicinity if Eveleth is unsuccessful in securing a state agricultural experimental station.

WEST END

MUSIC WILL BE FEATURE

Noted Swedish Singers Will Come for Augustana Synod Conference.

That one of the most pleasing features of the annual conference of the Augustana Synod of Swedish Lutheran churches of America, which will be held in the West end the early part of June, will be the musical program, is the aim of the committees now having the entertainment of the delegates in charge.

Not only will the best singers of the four Swedish Lutheran churches of Duluth combine for an oratorio, but the committee on music will also bring to Duluth some of the most noted Swedish sacred concert singers of the country. The affair will last for ten days and promises to be one of the largest church gatherings Duluth ever entertained.

There will be 350 delegates and about 2,000 visitors from different parts of the country. Dr. R. Magerstrom, musical director of Gustavus Adolphus college in St. Peter, Minn., will have charge of the musical program and in addition to the oratorio by the four combined choirs of the city, will present a jubilee cantata.

The committee on music has been selected from Bethany church at the West end. The commiteee held a meeting last evening and discussed plans for the affair. The members of the committee are: Rev. C. G. Olson, John G. Anderson, organist, Henry Trulson, trustee, John Swanson, deacon, and George Anderson, Herman Olson and Elmer Nelson of Bethany choir.

Rev. Mr. Olson will leave this evening for St. Paul to attend the annual conference of the Minnesota Swedish Lutheran churches, which will convene at Stillwater, tomorrow evening. The sessions will last for a week.

It is expected that some definite action may be taken at this time in regard to the building of a new hospital in Duluth by the Lutheran conference. The matter was discussed at the last annual meeting although nothing was done at that time.

The date for the synod meeting in Duluth will probably be set at the conference this week. It is understood that it will be held about the first ten days in June, including the Sundays, June 2 and 11.

I don't know how to express my thanks for the good it has done me and I hope all suffering women will give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It was worth its weight in gold."—Mrs. J. P. ENDLICH, R. F. D. No. 7, Erie, Pa.

MANY GATHERINGS AT THIEF RIVER

Pennington County Metropolis to Do Honors During Month of June.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Feb. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Several large societies will hold their annual conventions in the auditorium building here next June.

The Sathesdahl society will meet here June 7 and 8, and about 600 people will attend and listen to the splendid program which is being prepared.

Some 1,500 people constitute this bodoy and it will tax the hospitality of the city to care for them. The great audimtorium is offered free to all these bodies and the railways present unexcelled facilities for getting visitors here and out again. There are few points so easy of access in the Northwest by rail as Thief River Falls and it is beginning to reap the benefit of its geographical and railway situation and of its superior accommodations for caring for large gatherings.

Some smaller assemblies are booked for this city for the summer, but the above indicate the scope of the convention business at Thief River Falls.

LATEST SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

WILL SAIL NEXT MONTH

Hackenschmidt May Not Meet Gotch During the Present Season.

Foreigner Has Defeated Many Stars and Has Made Enviable Record.

With a record of having defeated decisively every American wrestler of note in that extensive division known as the second class, George Hackenschmidt, the "Russian Lion," is making preparations to leave America for Europe with his manager, Jack Curley. They expect to sail the latter part of March and will be gone until next fall. Then they plan to return and if possible secure a meeting with Frank Gotch for the world's title.

Hackenschmidt completed a clean sweep of the American wrestlers in Chicago the other night when he downed Charley Cutler, who was the last of the secondary division to fall before the enormous strength and stamina, not to say skill, of the mighty foreign star.

And when Cutler had been safely tucked away into the "Lion's" bag of victories, the Russian heaved a big sigh of relief and told Manager Curley that he thought the job had been well done. To which Curley added a fervent "You bet" and let it go at that.

Hackenschmidt was asked after the Cutler bout to express some opinions about the American wrestlers he had defeated.

"Opinions as to their ability, respectively?" he asked.

"Well, for very good reasons I would hardly care to do that in the way that I know you want," the big man said slowly and thoughtfully. "It might cause a lot of offense to some of these men, whom I have found to be exceptionally good sportsmen and the best of losers. I wouldn't care to offend any of them and therefore I could express an opinion only in a general way.

"No, I wouldn't say which is the best of them, in my opinion, for all of them have points that make them stand out. For instance, I could find points about Henry Ordemann that would make him better than Jesse Westergaard, and see something in Cutler's work that might make him better than either of those men. But the good points of one are offset by the good points, in another direction, of the others. And thus it goes all the way through.

"When I wrestled Ordemann he seemed to be at his very best. He was so strong and powerful that I was put to my best to defeat him. That made him look great, didn't it? Yet when he met Cutler he fell and fell hard. Going down the line, I beat Cutler much more easily, or rather more quickly, than I did Ordemann. You see, it is possible that Ordemann was not himself when he faced Cutler, but I would not want to detract one bit from Cutler's great victory over the Norsk.

"Dr. Roller is an exceptionally clever man, but may lack stamina and ability to go over a distance at a hard gait. Americus, too, is so speedy and skillful that it would take a real champion to tumbel him over. The same may be said of Fred Beell, although, of course I would say that all of these men are a trifle too light to be considered seriously with the big men.

"There are a number of others that must be classed right up there with the best of them, and under the conditions it would really be a difficult matter for me to express opinions, meeting all of them under such different circumstances all the time. I must give praise to all of them for their fine bearing, especially in times of defeat. Yes, American sportsmanship is highly developed among the wrestlers of this country.

"Far from being worn out with this tremendous trip I am more than delighted that I took it. The journey, while wearing at times, has given me an idea of the vastness of the country that never could have obtained in any other way and I have enjoyed every minute of the time. I hope I have made many friends and am extremely sorry if the trip winds up as it looks now—without a Gotch match But that simply was to be and that is all there is to it. We hope for better luck another time."

BASEBALL BREVITIES

A manager doesn't want a ball player to run too close to form.

Jess Baker, southpaw, Spokane, big fellow, is Chicago's pitching "hope."

Leaving Boston Saturday, the Red Sox will cover 18,000 miles on their training trip.

"There's such a thing as a ball player's having too much temperament," sighs Clark Griffith.

Lew Moren will pitch for Cincinnati this season. No chance of the Pittsburg boy's figuring in a trade.

Jim Delahanty has sent out a strenuous kick about the way his name has been misspelled by so many scribes. It is not Delehanty, but there are two a's to the right spelling.

Ty Cobb is one of the stockholders in a company that announced the purchase of the Augusta Chronicle. The extent of the ball player's holdings in the newspaper was not given out.

Judge Elliott and William Conors, two of the officials of the Phillies, have sailed for Europe for a pleasure trip. President Fogel might have gone with them, but he was sick in bed when they left.

Just listen. Over in New York they are holding out as a reward for good behavior to "Bugs" Raymond, that they will hereafter call him "Arthur" and drop the "Bugs," if he will keep on the water wagon.

Mike Mitchell is working out in Jacksonville, Fla. Manager Griffith sent him a uniform. Mike is quite successful "beating the races." However, he thinks he can make more money playing ball this summer.

Hal Chase will give Birdie Cree a chance on his infield the coming season. Cree was a wonder in the outfield last season, and Chase wants to keep him in the game for his hitting and base running again this year.

Fred Snodgrass is the only one of the Giants who has not signed a contract for 1911. Doyle held out until last week, when he sent his signature to Johnny McGraw, and Snodgrass will likely be in the line in a few days.

The Red Sox are going to play something like sixty games on their coming training trip to California and back home. If there is anything left of the players by the time they get home they should be in good fighting trim.

The Highlanders new ball park will seat 40,000, and the patrons are to have every convenience in the grandstand they get at first-class theaters. The grandstand will be three decks and 20,000 will be able to find seats there.

By the by, it's barely possible that the New York scribes are picking the wrong team to win the flag. Wouldn't it upset the critics if the Yankees, not the Giants, won their way into the World's series? Stranger things have happened.

Hal Chase is some billiard player as well as a ball player. He beat "Chick" Wright in a three-cushion match by a score of 15 to 12 recently at Wright's parlors in San Francisco, and Wright is regarded as a clever player in the billiard world.

Larry McLean won't wear shin guards this year. He is having a pair of leather kneecaps made. "I used to be quite a base runner," explains Larry. "I have a notion if I discard the shin guards I can steal as many bases as Bob Bescher.

Training in Porto Rico should help the Brooklyn team if anything can help them. Charley Ebbets is wise enough to know that if he gets his men down there he will be able to keep them under his eye all the time and have them keep strict training regulations.

President Ed Barrow of the Eastern league thinks that Bobby Keefe will prove one of the sensations of the National league. Barrow had Keefe in Montreal last season and the Eastern league president firmly believes Bobbie was the best twirler in the circuit.

Manager Tenney of the Rustlers says that he will give himself a good tryout on the spring training trip to find out if he can play first base next season. If Fred Tenney fails to please Manager Tenney in the South Fred Tenney will have to be content with a job as manager only.

Long Tom Hughes has reported to the Washington club already and is the first member of the team to make his appearance. The veteran flinger is determined to make a good showing this year and is apparently anxious to get going.

Pittsburg scribes declare that Hans Wagner will surely be switched to first base during the coming campaign, if a new recruit named Hunter falls down on the first corner assignment. In case of a switch, McKechnie would try to fill the Dutchman's shoes at the side of Jack Miller.

Hughey Duffy is banking on a good pitching staff for the White Sox Club next season. Hughey thinks that Lang, the new hurler, will be one of the best in the Johnson organization next season. The experience he had last year will just make him a good big league pitcher is the opinion of the Chicago manager.

Peter Cassidy, who will manage the Wilmington club of the Tri-State league, is on the lookout for players. He is anxious to secure some of the recruits who will be tried out by the various clubs in the Eastern league for his team. It is likely that Peter will land several who will fail to make good in the Barrow circuit.

NEW WORLD'S AMATEUR CHAMPION AT THE 18.2 BALK LINE BILLIARD GAME

C. F. CONKLIN.

THE "DIGGER" WAS DUMBFOUNDED.

New York, Feb. 20. — An outgoing trans-Atlantic liner this week will have as one of her passengers Digger Stanley, the English bantamweight champion, on his way home. Stanley says he is discouraged by the treatment some critics of boxing in this country have accorded him.

"I was truly dumbfounded," said Stanley, "when after beating Frankie Burns safely on points, I read in some papers the next day that I'd lost. I'll be glad to box Burns in London and will guarantee him a square deal, too."

Stanley was charged by some critics with using unwarrantedly rough tactics in the bout with Burns.

COMMENTS AND OPINIONS ON THE SPORTING PARADE

Putting the Minny League on a Business Basis—Duluth Boat Club Expansion—Muggsy McGraw's Ambition.

(BY BRUCE.)

From Minneapolis comes the information, on the wings of romping rumor, that Frank E. Force, recently elected president of the Minnesota-Wisconsin league, will offer a suggestion at the next meeting of the league magnates, which if carried into effect, may reduce the salaries of the players and in general cut down the expenses of the eight clubs.

It is stated that Mr. Force realizes that under the present condition baseball in this section of the Northwest is not only unprofitable but next to impossible, when each season clubs are running headlong into the stone wall of alarming deficits. To place baseball in this league on a basis where the game should at least break even, should be an ambition of the executive. It has been pointed out more than once that magnates and fans alike are growing tired of the eternal patriotic petitions that has been found in the past that baseball in this league is too expensive for towns like Eau Claire, Red Wing and others, including Duluth, it might be mentioned, under the present conditions, and unless some steps are taken to reduce the expenses to meet the register of the turnstile, Mr. Force may discover that the life of the league will be short and riotous.

It is to be hoped that the rumored action of Force is not without foundation. In this paper the other day the president of the league remarked something anent the way talk in this section of the woods. Th truth has been stated plainly upon more than one occasion, if that is what is taken for war talk, and it might also be stated further that the truth may continue to be told.

The fans up here have asked for many things in the past, and their requests have been within reason One of the requests, if this city is to continue in the Minny league, is that baseball be placed upon a business basis and that the fans be not pestered with the talk, as was the case last season, of the final standing.

The placing of baseball in the Minnesota-Wisconsin league on a business basis is one of the big accomplishments, it might be said the most important one, that lies before the new president.

If the Duulth Boat club takes over the property of the Superior Country club it will mean that the club which at the present time is rated as one of the greatest fresh water organizations in the country, will become the foremost organization of its kind in the entire United States. In the event the Superior club grounds are added to the holdings of the local club, golf will in all probability be one of the games added to the sports of the big club, and this would tend to make the game very much more popular at the Head of the Lakes, as at the present time the playing of the game is confined to the Northland Country club.

With the progressive men that have been at the head of the boat club for the past few years, its growth has been nothing less than phenomenal. Since the amalgamation with the Duluth Yacht club, the Duluth Boat club has come into its own.

With the news that the grounds at Spirit Lake would be taken over by a private corporation sometime in the indefinite future, the officers of the Boat club began to cast about for suitable grounds for a branch club, with the result that negotiations have been entered into for the purchase of the grounds of the Superior Country club.

These grounds would be more accessable than the Spirit Lake branch, as it requires but forty-five minutes on the street car to get there, while by boat the trip is even shorter. The property owned by the Superior association is beautiful and would be ideal for the purpose of the Duluth Boat club

From the present preparations that McGraw is taking in the acquiring of players and getting ready for the spring training trip, it would seem that he is out to win the flag if it takes an arm.

McGraw Is Very Much Interested.

The leader of the Giants has forgotten all about the ponies and the other side issues that in the past it has been charged has prevented him from putting his mind fully on the pennant race, and is determined that the glad rag shall float over the polo grounds.

McGraw has a determination that is hard to combat. With some fast youngsters and the elimination of some of the ivory tops from his team he should come mighty near copping. Both the Pirates and Cubs are going back and are incapable of putting up the aggressive ball that they have played in the past. Some fast young players and McGraw will have an aggregation hard to beat.

BROWN BEATS JACK O'LEARY

Range Lad Puts Over Knock-out Punch in the Fifth Round.

Last evening at Superior Pal Brown of Hibbing added further to his laurels by putting over the sleeper on Fighting Jack O'Leary of Milwaukee in the fifth round. The fight was Brown's after the first round.

O'Leary came to the Head of the Lakes with the reputation of being one of the best men in the lightweight division. It might be stated, however, that since the illness of the little Milwaukee man, which came near resulting fatally, he has not been the boy he was when he fought his way to the top and beat some of the very best boys of his class.

After the first round Brown began to get to Jack and the blows of the Hibbing boy carried a full head of steam. In the fifth O'Leary went down from a haymaker, and while he was up just after the referee finished counting ten, he was out fair enough, though full of fight when he got to his feet.

Last night's victory adds further to the laurels Brown has been gathering of late and classes him as one of the best boys in the 130-pound division which might be classed as light lightweights.

HARVARD PREXY APPROVES RULES

Says Number of Injuries in Football Has Been Reduced.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 20.—The revised football rules have met with the approval of President Lowell of Harvard university. In his annual report to the board of overseers of the university, made public last night, President Lowell says regarding football:

"The well-nigh universal feeling that intercollegiate games of football were too dangerous to life and limb, has resulted in an effective revision of the rules. These have not perhaps been in operation long enough to produce their ultimate results and it would seem that the teams in some of the colleges have not yet become accustomed to them, but the changes have certainly not made the game a less interesting spectacle and among Harvard players at least, the injuries have been greatly reduced, both in number and gravity."

President Lowell says that the past year ended with a deficit of more than $50,000 to the university.

"An opinion appears to be prevalent," the report says, "that Harvard is an institution which has only to ask for money in order to obtain it, but unfortunately the work she is doing today exceeds her resources even with the most rigid economy. We are trying to be as economical as possible, but in a university where the chief source of expense is the salary of instructors, it is impossible to make reductions rapidly, even if that could be done without impairing the value of its work."

North Dakota University Team Carries Off the Honors.

Grand Forks, N. D., Feb. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The University of North Dakota team defeated the University of Manitoba at basket ball Saturday evening at the gymnasium in this city by a score of 42 to 32. Team work and individual playing were the best witnessed this season and each member of both teams seemed to be on his mettle in an endeavor to win the international honors. Nichols of Winnipeg was referee and Will Woods of this city, umpire. The lineups were as follows:

Manitoba—Elliott and Siddall, forwards; Thexton, center; Easton and Mitchell, guards.

North Dakota—Sagen, Hemp, Sad and Blowett, forwards; Sorenson and Sagen, center; Robertson, Chittick and Wilcox, guards.

HAUGEN SETS NEW RECORD

Chippewa Falls Ski Jumper Makes 152 Feet at Ironwood.

Barney Riley Jumps 154 Feet But Touches Hand to Ground.

Ironwood, Mich., Feb. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Anders Haugen of Chippewa Falls yesterday broke the American ski jump record on the local hill, clearing 152 feet in the special jump event, surpassing by five feet the record that August Norby of Superior set up last season.

Weather conditions were almost ideal for record-breaking performance. The snow was coated with a thin covering of ice which allowed the greatest speed possible. High marks were hung up in both the professional and amateur ranks, Barney Riley making 154 feet, but unfortunately falling on one hand.

There was not even the suspicion of a fall in the performance of Haugen and he rode the entire distance and made the turn with perfect grace and balance.

A very large crowd witnessed the events, which were well contested in both the professional and amateur classes. Frances Kempe of Red Wing, national champion, quit after making one unsuccessful attempt to break the record. Arnold Olson of Duluth won the amateur prize.

"PEGGERS" WANT NEW LEAGUE

Winnipeg Would Form Organization With Duluth and Twin Cities.

A very prominent baseball man of this city this morning received a letter from L. Van Praagh of Winnipeg, a former Duluthian, who was interested in baseball here, who stated that Winnipeg is out of the Western Canade league and is open to entertain any proposition of getting into a league that would include the Twin Cities, Duluth and Superior and some other strong, fairly large sized town.

Mr. Van Praagh was wired an answer and negotiations will be entered into according to local information, relative to the organization of a semi-professional league that will include the Twin Cities, Duluth, Superior, Virginia and Winnipeg.

In his letter Mr. Van Praagh stated that he was ready to back the project with a large sum of money.

In many quarters the semi-professional league is being taken seriously and belief is being expressed that it will really be formed the present season.

BIG GAME SET FOR WEDNESDAY

Adams and Big Duluths Will Fight Out Hockey Championship.

This week and next will see the windup of the hockey season of the city league. Some of the very best playing of the entire year should be the result of the games, if the weather will remain cold enough to provide good ice for the various games.

Tonight the strong Kodahpas, who are strictly in the running for the pennant, will meet the Fairmonts, and a victory will place the Kodahpas right in the running for the flag. The Kodahpas expect to win and on the record made the present season by the two teams, the dope points to the Kodahpas as the probable winners.

At a meeting of the officials of the league, held yesterday, it was decided to play the game between the Adams and Big Duluths Wednesday evening. This is the game that is holding the most interest of any of the contests that remain to be played, for on the result of this game depends the chances of the Big Duluths for the pennant.

A win for the clothiers over the strong team of the West end means that the Big Duluths will have an excellent chance of copping the pennant, for it will tie three games up, provided, of course, that the Kodahpas win this evening.

Thursday the Big Duluths will meet the Kodahpas and next Tuesday the league season will end, unless there is a tie, with the game between the Fairmonts and Park Points, which cannot possibly count in the pennant possibilities, as both teams are out of the running.

A ruling made yesterday which may seriously affect the chances of the Big Duluths for the pennant is the ruling out of Earl Cummings, the Big Duluth star, from participation in the contest with Adams Wednesday evening.

The decision was made on the ground that at the time when the game between the Adams and Big Duluths was set for playing, Cummings had not signed up with the Big Duluths. The point was brought up that inasmuch as the game scheduled for Wednesday evening is a postponed game, and that Cummings was not a member of the Big Duluths when the game was originally set, he had no right to play in the game set for this week.

BOAT CLUB OFFICIALS WANT SUPERIOR SITE

Negotiations Entered Into for Purchase of Superior Country Club Grounds.

Will Be Used as Branch to Replace Spirit Lake Property.

Negotiations have been entered into for the purchase of the grounds of the Superior Country club by the officials of the Duluth Boat club.

While as yet nothing definite has been decided upon by the officials of the Duluth club, it is understood that a definite price has been set on the grounds of the Superior organization and that the purchase is being considered at the present time by the Duluth officials.

It is stated that two considerations are before the men who have taken on the negotiations. One is to include the golf links of the Superior club in the contemplated purchase and the other to purchase the grounds without the golf links.

It is also stated that in the event of taking over the grounds and golf links now owned by the Superior Country club, the dues of the Duluth Boat club will be increased from $15 to $20.

For some time past it has been known that in the near future a private corporation would take over the property of the Spirit Lake branch. When this will be done is not known at the present time by the officials of the boat club. It will very likely not be the present season and for that reason there is no definite time set for closing the purchase that the boat club officials have been figuring on.

The acquirement of the grounds of the Superior Country club would give the boat club one of the finest locations in the Northwest. The location would be much more convenient than is the Spirit Lake branch, while the grounds are larger and would also allow the addition of golf as one of the sports of the club.

There are tennis courts at the Superior club and these would be included in the deal. The clubhouse and all the accoutrements of the club would also go with the sale to the Duluth organization.

According to several sources of information, if the option of the Superior property is secured, it may not apply during the present season as it is understood that the Spirit Lake branch will be used by the club for another season at least. But the present negotiations, it is said, are for the purpose of securing an option of purchase which will extend over until such time as the Duluth officials will be in a position to definitely know what action they want to take.

The grounds of the Superior Country club are but forty-five minutes ride by street car and are very convenient of access by sail boat or launch. The grounds are large and beautifully located, commanding a beautiful view of the river and the surrounding country. With the improvements that would be made, were the property purchased by the Duluth club, it could be made into one of the finest club sites in the Northwest.

It is generally believed that eventually the deal will be closed and that the present negotiations will result in the securing of an option of purchase. The purchase would be a big expansion for the club and might result in the taking into the club of a large number of Superior members, if such an idea was agreeable to the officials of the Duluth Boat club.

GORDON DEFEATS TURNER.

Wrestling Policeman Wins From Champion of South Dakota.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Feb. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A lively wrestling bout was pulled off Friday evening in the auditorium when John Gordon, the Minneapolis policeman, and George Turner of Aberdeen, S. D., champion of South Dakota, decided a long standing difference, the former finally winning. Turner got the first fall in twenty-two minutes and Gordon the next two in eighteen and eight minutes, respectively. The contest was clean and free from unfair tactics from start to finish. A large crowd attended the match. Pat Mahone and W. Kline, two local men entertained the crowd with a preliminary wrestling stunt.

A return match for $500 per side, winner to take all, is being arranged between Gordon and Turner. This event will in all probability take place in this city within a month.

RALLY LOST; WHEAT OFF

Values Declined Sharply at Close—Winter Plant Favorable.

Heavy Selling on the Bulge---Colder Weather for the Southwest.

Duluth Board of Trade, Feb. 20.—Wheat slumped today, May declining 3¢ and July going back a similar distance. Cash was ½c under May. Oats, rye and barley were unchanged. Durum lost 5¢.

Flaxseed was weaker. Receipts at Minneapolis were larger and the country was selling more freely. There were scattered lots of selling to arrive from farmers who probably thought they would have small amounts of seed left after seeding. May sold at $2.69, 3¢ off.

Wheat was erratic today, values advancing after the opening and then receding toward the close. Shortly after noon there was some short selling which carried the market below the opening. The chief pressure seemed to be on the July option. The July delivery in the Chicago market was extremely weak and the softness in that option affected May.

Cables were unchanged to ½d higher. The Liverpool stocks showed a decrease and world's shipments were smaller, decreasing about 1,600,000 bushels. Wheat on passage increased about 2,000,000 bushels. It was reported that some damage had been done to wheat in the United provinces in India by hail and freezing weather. Elsewhere, however, the outlook for crops in India is favorable.

Colder temperatures are predicted for the Southwest tonight and the freezing line extends almost to the gulf with killing frosts in Southern Texas. Following the recent moisture in the Southwest the cold weather was viewed with apprehension by some traders but others thought that the cold temperatures would be welcome if the weather did not become too severe or the cold too prolonged. They thought the lower temperatures would retard the wheat and keep it from going forward too rapidly. Some buying which was caused by reports of colder weather in the Southwest put up values temporarily. On the bulge selling developed both from shorts and from people who were confident that the cold weather in the winter wheat states would aid rather than damage winter wheat.

Reports from the Southwest said that heavy rains have broken the long drouth in Kansas and that the wheat which failed to sprout will come up. The spring growth has begun, said a wire from Topeka, Kan. Freezing of the top growth will not hurt the wheat. Ralph, said North Platte, Neb., came in time to save the wheat. Woodward, Okla., wired that the long drouth has been broken and the wheat is green.

The visible supply of wheat in the United States decreased 655,000 bu, 349,000 bu. Minneapolis decreased 123,000 bu. Increases were: Chicago, 54,000 bu; Indianapolis, 52,000 bu; Milwaukee, 2,000 bu; Peoria, 1,000 bu; St. Louis, 20,000 bu. Decreases were: Baltimore, 45,000 bu; Boston, 73,000 bu; Buffalo, 301,000 bu; afloat at Buffalo, 54,000 bu; Detroit, 1,000 bu; Galveston, 15,000 bu; Kansas City, 61,000 bu; New York, 121,000 bu; Philadelphia, 40,000 bu; Toledo, 45,000 bu.

The selling in July indicated that some people in the trade are beginning to regard the winter crop as made. In this connection must be taken into consideration that the world's wheat crop last year, according to government figures, was 25,000,000 bu in excess of the big yield in 1909 and exceeds the average crop in the last five years by 325,000,000 bu. This country may have a carry-over of 100,000,000 bu next July if no export business develops. This big surplus will have to be handled probably with the biggest winter wheat crop this country has ever known, if climatic conditions continue favorable.

MARKET GOSSIP

"Not many months ago James J. Hill, in common with many leading men in the grain trade, asserted that in this country the consumption of wheat had overtaken production, and that we were on a domestic basis," says J. H. Wilkins. "The latter proposition has proved to be true. Prices have been maintained at a level that precludes the exportation of wheat or flour. The first proposition has proved erroneous. We are approaching the next crop with large stocks of wheat and flour and are still materially above an export parity. There can be but one result, lower prices in America or higher prices in Europe. We are not legitimately on a domestic basis. Mr. Hill and Mr. Knox are trying to convince the farmer that reciprocity will not reduce his income, and then with a childlike faith in the gullelessness of the public solemnly assure them that reciprocity will reduce the cost of living. There are a great many citizens who claim to be from Missouri who would like to have this paradox elucidated. In the meantime the natural laws of supply and demand will govern prices and these evidently indicate lower prices for wheat."

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: World's shipments—Wheat this week 10,768,000, previous week 12,384,000, last year 11,344,000; corn last week 3,650,000, previous week 3,565,000 last year 1,805,000. The wheat market at the opening showed a steady undertone with prices ¼@½d higher on the seadier American cables on Saturday and the decrease in local stocks here. Following the opening the market was depressed with a lower tendency and values declined ½@¾d. It was dertone heavy. Pressure resulted from the liberal American shipments and larger Russian shipments for the week than was expected, the amount of passage showed a large increase. At mid-day the market was dull with a lower tendency and prices about unchanged from Saturday. Corn was steady at the start and later advanced ½d on the improved demand for spot and expected decrease in the amount on passage.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Sentiment in Wheat Is Bearish, Although Less Than for Some Time.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—Sentiment in the wheat pit although bearish today, was less so than much of the time of late. A majority of traders suggested taking profits on short sales whenever declines appeared, the idea being that the market had been somewhat oversold. Discouragement for the bulls was found in the fact that Liverpool failed to make any response to Saturday's bulge on this side. Opening prices here were ⅛@¼c lower to a shade up. May started at 91¼@91⅜c and after vibrating between 91⅛c and 91½c, steadied around 91⅜@¼c.

Selling of July by the Southwest carried deferred futures to new low levels for the crop, apparently reflecting judgment as to beneficial effects of snow in that section. The close was steady with May ½@⅝c down at 90⅜c.

Cold weather and liberal world shipments gave an easy tone to corn. May opened a shade down to a shade amount higher at 48⅞@49c to 49¼c and declined to 48⅞c.

The market late in the day sagged a trifle further with wheat. The close, however, was steady with May at 48¾@⅞c, a net loss of ⅛@¼c.

Limited offerings made oats firm at the outset, but the market afterward slid down with other grain. May started unchanged to a sixteenth dearer at 31⅜ to 31⅝@⅞c, touched 31⅞c, and then descended to 31¼@⅜c.

Because the hog run West was lighter than last year's, provisions showed a little strength. First sales were 2½@10c higher with May options at $17.80 for pork, $9.42½ for lard and $9.52½ for ribs.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 20.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: The spring trade is not sufficiently active as yet to give the market an active tone, and the clearance continues slow in all classes. The market is well supplied with all classes of horses, in fact the market is congested with offerings in the agricultural classes, which has a tendency to weaken values. Dealers hope for a better demand the coming week.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

Open Lower But Improve on Heavy Buying of Gould Shares.

Highest Level Is Reached Near the Close, Which Is Firm.

New York, Feb. 20.—Opening quotations on the stock market in most cases showed a decline from Saturday's final figures. Reading, St. Paul and Consolidated Gas each lost a point, United States Steel ⅜ and Amalgamated Copper and Union Pacific ½. Missouri Pacific gained ¼ and Southern Railway preferred ½.

Prices declined further after the opening but there was an absence of demand at the low level and the market grew dull, International Harvester improved 3 points, with the rise attributed to the expectations of favorable developments at the directors meeting today.

Speculation was at a low ebb during the morning session. Resumption of sessions of the supreme court with a possibility of decisions in cases of special interest to Wall street, and the increased likelihood of an extra session of congress continued to restrain traders and even at the lower level of prices established there was little demand. The rise of 3½ points in International Harvester was more than cancelled by realizing and some selling on disappointment at the increase in the annual dividend rate of 5 per cent, which was less than had been expected by many. At midday the market was fractionally above the low level. Bonds were steady.

The market closed firm. Heavy buying of the Gould stocks and bonds at much improved prices created a favorable sentiment in the room and there was a rapid bidding up of other stocks to the highest level of the day. Wabash preferred sold 1¾ and the 4 per cent bonds 3¼ above Saturday's closing and Missouri, Reading, Union Pacific and Lehigh Valley 1 to 1¼. General Chemical broke 5 points. Prices shaded off again toward the end.

Cotton Market.

New York, Feb. 20.—Cotton opened steady at a decline of 5 to 8 points and during the first few minutes sold 10 to 12 points net lower, under liquidation by recent buyers for a reaction and a renewal of bear pressure inspired by disappointing cables and reports of good rains in the Southwest. At first there seemed to be very little support but there was some demand from trade interests on a scale down and just under 14.00 for May and July there was enough buying to cause a rally of 4 or 5 points from the lowest. Bullish Southern spot advices and reported that Southern spot buyers were in New York looking over the local stock with a view to taking up cotton on March contracts undoubtedly helped the partial recovery but the market was unsettled and the rally was barely maintained.

Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 14.10; middling gulf, 14.35; sales, 100 bales. Futures closed steady. Closing bids: February, 13.78; March, 13.86; April, 13.90; May, 14.00; June, 14.00; July, 13.99; August, 13.67; October, 12.65; December, 12.55.

VERY MUCH WANTED MAN

Nebraska Grabs Prisoner Before Minnesota Can Extradite Him From Iowa.

After fighting for James M. Harris for nearly six months, the county attorney's office was notified this morning that the Iowa supreme court had affirmed the decision of the lower court, which decided some time ago that he would have to return to Duluth to stand trial for swindling.

Between the time that the local authorities were fighting to bring him back from Sioux City and the time of the decision, which was Saturday, the state of Nebraska stepped in and extradited Harris for obtaining money under false pretenses. He is now in that state standing trial. The local authorities say they have first claim on the man and they will now have to devise means of getting him away from Nebraska.

Harris has caused the local authorities a lot of trouble. He is accused of having swindled John Runquist on a horse deal. He is said to have represented himself as a brother of a man named Harris, who is a prominent contractor at Virginia, Minn. He got the horses from Mr. Runquist and pretended that he was taking them to Virginia. Credit was extended to him, it is claimed. Instead of taking them to Virginia, he took them out and sold them, obtaining $900 in that way, according to the complaint.

For a long time he promised, under threat of arrest, to make good the $900, but finally left for Sioux City and it was some time before he could be located.

He was then indicted by the September grand jury and after wiring the Sioux City police to arrest him, Deputy Sheriff Frank Magie was sent after him. He refused to come without the proper papers. The papers were then made out and sent to Iowa City, but he claimed they contained flaws and appealed to the district court. The district court held that they were correct in every way and that he would have to return to Duluth. He then appealed to the supreme court and last Saturday the decision of the lower court was upheld.

In the meantime the Nebraska authorities grabbed him.

Just now Mr. Norton is wondering what kind of a move he can make to get him away from Nebraska.

MELODROWSKI IS TAKEN TO PRISON

Charles Melodrowski begins serving his life sentence at Stillwater this afternoon.

He was taken away this morning by Sheriff John Meining. He was anxious to go and had looked forward for some time to the trip on the train.

Algot Johnson, who with Melodrowski, held up the night clerk at the McKay hotel and assisted in the murder of Officer Harry Chesmore when the escape was made from the street car, and who has thirty years to serve, will be taken to Stillwater as soon as the papers can be made ready.

He, too, is anxious to begin on his time, as he thinks that by good conduct he can reduce it several years.

WALKER SHOOTERS GET AFTER STRAY CANINES.

Walker, Minn., Feb. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A number of men took a hand at keeping the shooting reputation of Walker before the public eye a few nights ago by shooting at dogs on the main thoroughfare. One glancing bullet went through the window of Miss Rossi's millinery parlors, and luckily she was away and avoided not only a bad shock but a possible accident.

REAPPORTIONMENT BILL IS PASSED THROUGH THE HOUSE

NOW GOES TO SENATE

Congdon Explains Bill and Methods Used in Drafting It.

Charles H. Warner of Aitkin Leads Debate for the Measure.

Spooner, Dunn, Washburn and Others Speak Strongly in Favor.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The reapportionment bill passed the house this afternoon, by a vote of 85 for, 31 against, thus gaining easily the first step toward the fruition of the hopes of Northern Minnesota. The feeling is growing that this decided action on the part of the house means that the senate will also pass the bill, to be in effect in 1912, though not by so one-sided a vote.

The bill was a special order in the house this morning, and when it was reached Chairman C. A. Congdon of the reapportionment committee offered several amendments that had been agreed on by representatives from Southern Minnesota, none of the amendments creating any disturbance in the general plan worked out by the sub-committee and approved by the committee on reapportionment. Then Mr. Congdon explained the methods used by the sub-committee to the house members for their co-operation. He showed that the southern part of the state has been given the better of it, and that the northern section and the large cities have contented themselves, for the sake of passing a bill giving them relief, with less than they are entitled to under the Constitution.

The bill provides for sixty-one sen-

GARDNER CARRIED ROLL OF $200,000

Ready to Be Used in Fighting the Hart-Agnew Bills.

New York, Feb. 21.—Former State Senator Frank J. Gardner's counsel began today their defense to the state's charge that Gardner tried in 1908 to bribe congressman, then State Senator Otto G. Foelker, to vote against the passage of the anti-race track betting bills. Last week and yesterday the prosecution had witnesses on the stand in an effort to show that Gardner offered Foelker a bribe of $12,000 while the two were on a train coming from Albany. Foelker testified to the offer and its rejection and other witnesses have sworn that Gardner told them he had not only made terms with Foelker but had carried a big roll of money to Albany—as much as $200,000, one witness said—to use in fighting the Hart-Agnew bills.

Gardner himself was expected to take the stand early in the course of the defense.

TRAIN DERAILED; TWENTY INJURED

Cars on Southern Pacific Are Tumbled About Badly.

Elko, Nev., Feb. 21.—More than twenty passengers were injured, several fatally, it is feared, in the wreck of Southern Pacific train No. 10, eastbound, near Palisade last evening. Seven of the cars left the rails and were tumbled about in a confused wreck.

Among the injured are Frank Gray of Cleveland, O.; Budd Owen, Los Angeles; T. N. Smith, Homer, Mich.; Grover Camp, Oswego, N. Y., and George Sutherland, Reno, Nev.

Doctors from Elko and Carlin were rushed to the scene and the injured were brought into the two towns, a special being sent from here. The wreck occurred at a grade, turning the point of a hill. The engine with baggage and mail cars, kept to the track, but all the coaches except the last one, were derailed. A day coach and two tourist sleepers rolled thirty feet down the embankment.

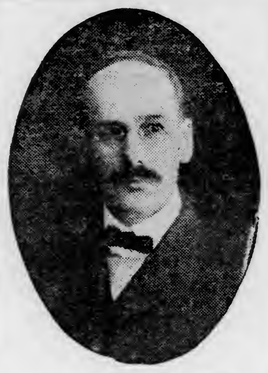

A broken rail is believed to have been the cause of the accident.

BELOW THE AVERAGE.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Temperatures this morning were below seasonable average in every part of the country except the North Pacific coast, caused by an increased barometric pressure, according to the weather bureau. Miles City, Mont., reported the barometer there as reading 31.10, this being the highest reading recorded in the United States in the last several years.

The increase in pressure has caused freezing weather as far south as extreme North Florida and throughout the interior of the gulf states, while in the Northwest the thermometer readings are all below zero.

WORKS FOR NORTHERN MINNESOTA SETTLERS

CHARLES H. WARNER
Of Aitkin, Whose Bill Is Basis of Proposed Legislation Giving State Aid to Schools.

STATE AID TO SCHOOLS

Bill for Relief of Struggling Settlers in Northern Minnesota.

County Option Received Only Twenty-Four Votes in Senate.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Relief for the struggling settlers in Northern Minnesota is provided in a bill which has passed the gauntlets of the house committees on public lands and appropriations, and has been unanimously recommended to pass by both. The bill extends state aid to schools in districts having a large amount of state land which is exempt from taxation.

The appropriations committee's report reached the house yesterday afternoon, and on motion of Representative Charles H. Warner of Aitkin, who introduced the original bill on which this proposed legislation is based, the report was adopted and the bill placed at the head of general orders for the immediate consideration of the house. Mr. Warner wanted to have the bill passed under suspension of the rules, but there were some members who wanted a chance to look it over before it was acted upon, and it was decided

BEMIDJI MAN ENDS HIS LIFE

George Hanson Takes Poison and Dies in His Drug Store.

Bemidji, Minn., Feb. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Hanson, aged about 26 years, was found dead in the rear of his drug store here at 3:30 o'clock this morning.

Death was due to his having taken poison and no cause has as yet been given for his action.

His business is said to be in good shape. He came to Bemidji two years ago from Minneapolis and was married last summer to a Litchfield girl. He was an Elk.

LAND WANTED FOR NEW LOCK

Government's Condemnation Proceedings at Soo Are Begun.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 21.—Condemnation proceedings instituted by the Federal government against the Chandler-Dunbar Power company of Sault Ste Marie came up for hearing before Judge Denison in United States court here today. The government wants the land from the Poe lock at the Soo north to the international boundary, to permit the construction of another canal. Seven acres are involved.

The other defendants in the suit are the Edison Soo Electric company, the Real Estate & Mortgage Trust company of Philadelphia, the United States Trust, the Central Trust and the Standard Trust companies of New York, William Chandles of Sault Ste. Marie, Harris T. Dunbar of Buffalo and the city of Sault Ste. Marie. Among the attorneys are Assistant Attorney General R. T. Strickland of Washington, Moses Hooker of Oshkosh and A. S. Weeli of Philadelphia.

RAILROAD PRESIDENT LIVE HERO

Keeps Quiet When Burglar Enters Room and Presents Gun.

W. H. Canniff of Nickel Plate Road Relates His Experience.

He Felt That Discretion Was the Better Part of Valor.

Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 21.—"I couldn't say that I was terrified but I felt that discretion was the better part of valor, so I lay perfectly still as I was commanded to do," said President W. H. Canniff of the Nickel Plate railroad, in relating his experience with a burglar at his home on Prospect avenue at 2:45 o'clock yesterday morning.

President Canniff awoke just in time to see the burglar, armed with a revolver and electric flashlight, enter the room. Simultaneously with the awakening, the burglar threw the flashlight rays into Mr. Canniff's eyes and jumped toward him with the revolver pointed at his head.

"Keep quiet or I'll blow your head off," said the criminal.

Just then Mrs. Canniff awoke and the same command was given to her. Then backing away from the bed and keeping Canniff covered with his revolver and flashlight, the burglar cut the wire of the extension telephone that stood on a table, and kept on backing to a dresser on which stood a jewel case, from which he took several rings valued at $150. He then backed out of the room and disappeared.

A moment later President Canniff arose, got his revolver and searched the house, but the burglar was gone through a parlor window. He had ransacked the lower part of the house, taking fifty cigars from a humidor and some oranges from a sideboard, which he ate as he ransacked, as was shown by the peelings left in the various rooms.

THINKS RECIPROCITY WILL PASS SENATE

SAMUEL W. McCALL,
Representative From Massachusetts, Who Introduced Bill in the House.

WILL PASS THE SENATE

Reciprocity Bill Sure to Go Through, Says Senator Carter.

Representative McCall Confident of Its Passage in Upper Body.

Washington, Feb. 21.—The reciprocity agreement with Canada will pass the senate. This was a declaration made today by Senator Carter of Montana as he was leaving the White House after a conference with the president. Personally, Senator Carter is opposed to the measure. Representative McCall of Massachusetts, who introduced the bill, also discussed the situation with President Taft and is hopeful of the measure's success.

Will Benefit New England.

Hartford, Conn., Feb. 21.—The Hartford Business Men's associatoin has adopted resolutions in favor of the reciprocity agreement with Canada and instructed its attorneys to prepare and forward a copy of such resolutions to the Connecticut senators and to President Taft. In the resolution is this paragraph:

"The acceptance of the agreement will be of great benefit to the future prosperity of New England and will not, in our opinion, jeopardize to an appreciable extent the farming interests of the country but will be of increasing advantage to the people of New England."

FARMERS WANT OTHER THINGS FREE AS WELL AS PRODUCTS OF SOIL

Senate Committee Hears Opposition to the Proposed Agreement.

Master of Grange Says Canada Has Cheaper Land and Labor.

Agriculturalists Say They Will Get the Worst of Reciprocity.

Washington, Feb. 21. — Farmers registered protests against the Canadian reciprocity agreement in the hearing today before the senate committee on finance. Former Governor N. J. Bachelor of New Hampshire, master of the National Grange, made the opening argument and announced that if the committee had the time to hear them he would be followed by masters of granges of many states as well as representatives of dairy, horticultural and other associations, including directors of state experimental stations.

The witnesses today received valuable assistance from Senators Hale, McCumber and Smoot, who evidenced sympathy with their attacks upon the agreement and added them with questions. Senator Stone took the lead in cross-examination and as a result some interesting colloquies were heard.

Farmers United.

In the opening statement Mr. Bachelor asserted that 6,000,000 farmers

LONG EMPLOYED BY EDDY HEIRS

Former Secretary of Navy Retained to Assist William E. Chandler.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 21.—Announcement was made here today that former Secretary of the Navy John D. Long had been retained to represent in the Massachusetts courts the interests of George W. Glover of Lead, S. D., and Dr. Ebenezer J. Foster Eddy of Waterbury, Vt., son and foster son, respectively, of the late Mrs. Mary B. G. Eddy, the founder of the Christian Science church. It is understood that Mr. Long will co-operate with William E. Chandler of New Hampshire and his associate counsel, who have asked in New Hampshire for a construction of Mrs. Eddy's will, alleging that she had not the power to give nor the Christian Science church to receive so large a bequest as the $2,000,000 residuary estate.

MISS HELEN MILES ROGERS.

OGDEN MILLS REID.

The engagement of Miss Helen Miles Rogers, daughter of Mrs. Benjamin Talbot Rogers of Racine, Wis., to Ogden Mills Reid, son of Ambassador Whitelaw Reid, was announced recently. Miss Rogers was born in Appleton, Wis., and is a graduate of the Appleton school and of Barnard university. Her parents are but moderately well off and have never figured in social life at Appleton. Miss Rogers attracted much attention in Wisconsin because of her writings and public speaking. After her graduation from Barnard she entered the employ of Mrs. Reid as secretary. The wedding will take place some time in March.

PEOPLE EAT MUCH PORK

More Hogs Consumed Than All Other Animals Together.

Washington, Feb. 21.—"Pork eaters" is a term which may rightfully be applied to the people of the United States if the figures just made public by the census bureau for the year 1909 may be taken as a basis. The figures show that during that year 4,483,000 more hogs were killed in this country for food purposes than all other animals combined, including beeves, calves, sheep, lambs, goats, kids, etc. During the year 1909, 36,443,000 hogs were killed for food purposes and 31,960,000 of all other animals.

The total number of animals slaughtered in the slaughter houses and meat packing establishments during 1909 is given as 68,403,000. These figures, however, do not represent the entire number of animals killed for food purposes during the period which the report covers, and the grand total can only be obtained, it is declared, upon the completion of the statistics of agriculture. The figures given come from 26,424 slaughter houses, which include the large wholesale slaughter and meat packing establishments as well as the abattoirs, incinerating establishments and fertilizer factories where dead animals are consumed.

The primary purpose of this census inquiry, it is said, was to determine the number of hides and skins available for the manufacture of leather. These cannot be completed until the statistics of agriculture are available, but the figures so far collected place the number at 32,371,300 available for hides. These figures are exclusive of hogs, from which skins are taken in a few instances.

INCREASE IN EARNINGS OF WATER PLANT

Department's Report for Year 1910 Shows $122,599 in Net Profits.

Annual Statement Contains Answer to Many of Charges Made.

Report Gives Inventory of Plant and the Outstanding Bonds.

The earnings of the water and light department of the city of Duluth over the cost of operation and maintenance in the year 1910 amounted to $122,599.86, an increase of $13,288.42 over the year 1909, according to the annual report of the department, which was submitted to the city council last night. The water plant produced $91,682.92 in surplus earnings and the gas department $30,916.94, an increase of $16,560.14 in water earnings and a decrease of $3,271.72 in gas earnings.

During the year 3,012,402,039 gallons of water were pumped at all systems, at an aggregate expense of $29,380.69, or .97 cent per 1,000 gallons. The cost of 2,501,178,000 gallons pumped at Lakewood was .87 cent per 1,000 gallons.

The department laid 46,166 feet of water pipe of all sizes during the year and 46,382 of gas pipe of all sizes, a total of 92,548 feet of all pipe.

Pumping Cost Less.

In answer to statements recently made that it was costing the city more to pump water by electricity than it formerly cost when steam was being used, the board gives figures to show that in 1907, when steam was used, the total pumping cost was $17,728.03, while in 1910 the pumping cost was $21,041.44 at Lakewood. In 1907, 2,079,505,000 gallons of water were pumped, while last year 2,501,178,000 gallons

RUSSIA IS SATISFIED WITH CHINA'S REPLY

Declares Her Willingness to Comply With Disputed Treaty.

Washington, Feb. 21.—The Chinese legation here received a cablegram yesterday from the Chinese foreign board stating that the Russian minister at Pekin had expressed satisfaction with the contents of China's reply to the note issued by Russia requesting compliance with the treaty of 1881.

The substance of the Chinese reply to the effect that China had declared her willingness to comply with the treaty was cabled here with the additional information that the Russian minister regarded the assurances of the Chinese foreign board as covering the various points in dispute. The legation here was inclined to believe that this would terminate the apprehensions that mikht have arisen over the issuance of the Russian note. It was pointed out that from advices received here, the entire affair was not regarded at Pekin with the seriousness which some press dispatches had indicated.

HONDURAN TOWN IS CLEANED UP

American Lieutenant Shows Them How to Do Things.

Puerto Cortez, Honduras, Feb. 20, via New Orleans, La., Feb. 21.—Details of the house-cleaning given to San Pedro by Lieut. Roper and the bluejackets from the United States gunboat Tacoma were received here today. It is the custom when any public work is to be done in Central America to make an "official announcement."

The announcement is made by an official announcer who used the military band to draw a crowd.

Lieut. Roper wanted to make a proclamation, but discovered the town band had deserted. A bass drum and a cornet had been left behind, so he sent his bluejackets around to drum up a crowd and proclaim the news. Three days later San Pedro began to change.

The jail was the dirtiest place of all. The 100 prisoners were cooped up in three cells, almost ankle deep in filth. Roper put them to work every morning cleaning up. He posted his men about the jail and turned out the prisoners for an airing.

Gen. Carlas, governor of the department, when he evacuated the town, left no records and there was no means of telling what the prisoners were jailed for or for how long. Roper explained the situation to Gen. Rosales, who obtained authority from President Davila to release all political prisoners.

With the aid of all, the naval officer, at the end of two weeks, had weeded out forty-eight prisoners, who were liberated. Few appeared to know why they had been arrested.

THE SECOND CHILD DIES

Mother Failed to Call Physician for Children With Diphtheria.

Third Is Not Expected to Recover From the Disease.

Following the death of her brother, Frank, 17 years old, Friday, Ida Tezmionka, 14 years old, died last evening of diphtheria in the hovel in which they have been living with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stans Tezmionka, at Fourteenth Street and Second avenue west.

The authorities state that death of both children was due to the fact that the mother failed to call in a physician and tried to treat the children herself. In the second case they charge that the parent failed to obey the instructions of Dr. Murphy of the health department.

Instead of keeping them in bed, as she had been told to do, Inspector Hedman of the contagious branch of the health department, says that when he went to the place yesterday morning he found both children sitting up. He added that the mother had tried to get them to move about and eat when they were deathly sick and had no desire for food.

The inspector asserts that they live in a two-room shack and that the conditions surrounding the dying children were frightful. The family, he says, was without any understanding of sanitation. He describes the rooms as filthy and dirty, without proper ventilation and most unfit for any sick person.

In an effort to save the life of the remaining child, Victoria, 15 years of age, the health department is today having her removed to the hospital. There she will be given every attention and her life saved if possible. However, she is so sick that small hopes of her recovery are entertained. "I am fearful that she may die in the hack as she is being taken to the hospital," said the inspector before he started for her with a carriage to take her to the institution.

The children were sick at least two weeks before any one learned of their plight. Then no one knew of conditions until Frank died. That evidently frightened the mother, who called up the police department, who in turn notified the health officials. They immediately investigated, placed the house under quarantine and gave medical attention to the two girls still alive, with proper instructions to the mother as to caring for them. But the disease was so far advanced that it will probably carry off all three children.

SAYS SHOT WAS FIRED BY ACCIDENT

St. Paul Man Wounded By Policeman While Resisting Arrest.

St. Paul, Feb. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—In an attempt to resist arrest, Ledislaw Levinski, 21 years old, was shot in the chest this morning by Special Officer P. C. Roach of the St. Paul & Milwaukee railroad near his home, 249 Mills street. He was taken to the city hospital, where he now lies in a critical condition.

Levinski was arrested this morning on a warrant sworn out by Detective Sheehan of the St. Paul road, charging him with grand larceny. He is alleged to have broken into refrigerators carrying beer shipments.

When Officer Roach served the warrant on him, Levinski did not apparently object to the arrest and it was not until the two men had left the home and were on their way to the police station that Levinski attempted to break away.

In an endeavor to frighten his prisoner, Detective Roach pulled his gun. In giving chase he slipped and the shot which wounded Levinski was accidentally discharged.

PITTSBURG MAY HAVE A STRIKE

Street Car Men to Decide Soon Whether to Quit or Not.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 21.—Whether Pittsburg is to have a street car strike will probably be decided at a meeting of the union officials to be held in Labor temple tonight. It is admitted that relations between the men and the Pittsburg railways company are strained to the point of breaking. Definite developments are expected within twelve hours. C. O. Pratt, international board member of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railways Employes who has been attending a meeting of union officials in Detroit, is expected here some time today. With him will come, it is said, W. D. Mahon, international president.

The trouble between the men resulted over the dismissal of 139 shop employes at one of the local car barns last October. The local union declares they were let go because of their union affiliations and that they must be reinstated, while the company maintains this is incorrect and that they were dismissed because work was slack.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

PREPARING FOR OLYMPIC

Star Track and Weight Men Will Be Chosen for Team.

Mike Murphy Will Probably Be Placed in Charge of Athletes.

With the holding of the Olympic games of 1912 in Sweden, President Brown of the National Amateur Athletic union is already making preparations for the organization of an American team which will perform as admirably as the Yankee aggregations that carried off premier honors in the world's games held at Athens, London and St. Paul. That Brown believes this can be done is shown by the systematic way in which he is going about the organization of the team.

Although the time for holding the games is over a year away, President Brown now believes it is expedient to begin getting a line on the best athletes in the country in the different talents, and also start the raising of a fund to defray the expenses of sending the team abroad.

A short time ago the National Amateur Athletic union gave $1,000 to the fund, and several times this amount has already been pledged by athletic enthusiasts of the country. It is understood that President Taft will take steps to have a certain amount advanced from the national treasury while similar action is sure to be taken by some of the governors of the different states.

In order to have the team coached in all phases, tricks and team work of racing, it is almost a certainty that Mike Murphy, the veteran trainer and developer of athletes at the University of Pennsylvania and formerly of Yale, will be engaged to look after the men and condition them along the lines which have been prolific of the development of many of our greatest athletes. When the American team went to London, Mike volunteered his services gratis, but the work which he did on the other side was not overlooked, and he was presented with a check of a substantial amount, which was raised in the same manner. President Brown is following in his endeavor to raise enough money to send the team abroad next season.

In all probability the big proportion of American representatives will be secured from the colleges, although the athletic clubs and other organizations can be relied upon to contribute their share of star performers.

The caliber of a number of collegiate athletes is already known, and it also is known that these performers have not reached the heights of their athletic possibilities; and these performers are the ones who will be watched and developed along certain lines, which, it is hoped, will develop them to the topmost rung of the ladder of their careers.

These stars will be watched with scrutinizing eyes during this summer and the early part of next, and all sorts of suggestions will be made by trainers and athletic critics in the hope of improving them in their respective events.

Picks Star Team.
A short time ago Secretary James Sullivan of the National A. A. U. selected an all-American track team, composed of athletes from colleges only. It was the first time in the history of the sport that such a team has been selected by recognized authority, and the effort met with a good deal of favorable comment. Sullivan was fair in his choices, which emphasizes the fact that he has watched closely the performances of the college stars. It is almost a certainty these athletes will be selected to compete in Sweden. Sullivan selected F. Ramsdell of the University of Pennsylvania for the 100-yard dash. The Quaker is a big, powerful runner, who gets away from the mark with the speed and agility of a sprinter much smaller and quicker.

R. C. Craig of the University of Michigan was chosen for the 220-yard dash. It will be remembered that the Wolverine equaled the world's record time of Bernie Wefers at the Pennsylvania games, held at Philadelphia last spring.

Davenport Fast.
Ira Davenport of the University of Chicago, who is looked upon as America's peer quarter-miler, was chosen for this event. In the intercollegiate meet held last spring at Urbana, Ill., the Maroon broke the western record by covering the distance in 49 3-5 seconds and was not pushed to his limit. G. H. Whiteley of Princeton was honored with the half mile and F. A. Baker of Oberlin was awarded the one mile. W. A. Edwards of the University of California was selected for the high barriers, and C. P. Gardner of Harvard for the low hurdles. T. P. Jones of Corneli was given the cross country run.

In the field J. Wasson of Notre Dame was chosen for the broad jump, and K. W. Burdick of the University of Pennsylvania was awarded the high jump. J. Horner, Jr., of the University of Michigan was given the shot put and Lee Talbot of Pennsylvania State the hammer throw. L. S. Scott of Leland Standford was honored with the pole vault.

With such a nucleus already secured it is certain that performers will be unearthed and added to the list before the team goes into training about a month before the games.

WILL PLAY FOR ANDERSON MEDAL

Duluth and Superior curlers will compete tomorrow in the annual Anderson trophy event on the ice of the Duluth Curling club. Four rinks from each club will participate. The drawing was made this afternoon.

The Anderson trophy event is an annual affair for the Duluth and Superior clubs and last year it was played for at Superior.

WIERD TALE OF HARDSHIP

West Duluthian, Believed to Be Demented, Wandering Through Country.

Says "Twenty-Seven Church Societies Are Seeking His Life."

After having been robbed of $500 while he slept and suffering from the effects of having both of his feet frozen, Frank Gust Johnson, 35 years old, who left West Duluth a few weeks ago for Sweden, has written his brother in Superior, a strange and wierd tale of his experiences since leaving West Duluth. The letter was such as would indicate that Johnson was suffering from a mental collapse, as he seemed to be laboring under the impression that some one would kill him.

Johnson worked in West Duluth for nearly three years and during that time he had two accidents, once falling from a tramway at the Red Cliff mill, miraculously escaping death, and later falling from the Grand avenue bridge at Sixtieth avenue west while employed by the city, which had a crew of men repairing the structure last summer. He fell eighteen feet and received a number of serious injuries and had not worked since that time. As a result of his sickness, it is believed that he is mentally deranged.

Just before Christmas Johnson wrote a sister in Boston that he would join her there and sail for the Old country. It was arranged that they should be ready to sail from New York Jan. 7. Alfred Johnson, the brother, has heard nothing from the sister, but learned in the letter which he received yesterday that his brother has missed connections in New York, not having arrived there in time.

He wrote incoherently of his experiences, saying that he lost all of his money one night when he slept in a coal bin. His feet froze so that he was unable to wear his shoes and it is believed he wandered about until picked up by a farmer living on a rural mail route out of Stamford, Conn. He directed his brother to answer in care of James Weed, R. R. No. 29, Stamford, Conn. Weed, it appears, is the man who gave him temporary relief.

He does not ask for money, but wants to come back to Duluth, stating that he is sick. One of the statements in the letter that would indicate that he was partly demented is that "twenty-seven church societies have been after me, trying to kill me." Weed, the man with whom he is staying, did not write and no other word has been received here.

When Johnson was in West Duluth he lived first with August Westlin of 4411 Oneota street, and later with Charles Anderson of 4206 Magellan street. Westlin and Alfred Johnson, who resides in Superoir at 406 Baxter avenue, came to the West Duluth police station this morning and asked Lieut. Wilcox to help them in the matter.

It is probable that the authorities at Stamford, Conn., will be asked to take Johnson into custody and arrangements made to have him either deported to Sweden or brought back to Duluth.

AVOID DECEPTION

Use Newbro's Herpicide Instead.

Wearing artificial hair is a harmless deceit of which many ladies are guilty. These women are all objects for sympathy rather than criticism.

Early neglect in the care of the scalp has caused the loss of so much hair that their personal appearance is sadly marred. To correct this defect they resort to artificial hair.

Most ladies would resent any imputation of personal carelessness and neglect. And yet very many women permit their natural hair to become so dull, brittle and lusterless that it looks no better than the artificial.

All this is as unfortunate as it is unnecessary. Hair that is unsightly or thin may usually be attributed to the malevolent activity of the dandruff germ. This vicious germ burrows down into the hair follicle, shortly destroying its life. The hair becomes dead, loose and finally drops out.

There is a remedy sold by all druggists, the intelligent use of which will kill the dandruff germ. It also cleanses the scalp of all accumulations and makes the hair shine with the luster of life and beauty.

That remedy is Newbro's Herpicide, the Original Dandruff Germ Destroyer. This preparation in one-dollar size bottles is sold and guaranteed everywhere.

Applications may be obtained at the best barber shops and hair dressing parlors.

The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich., will send a nice sample and booklet to any address upon receipt of 10c in postage or silver.

GIRLS HAVE THE SKI FEVER.

A number of West Duluth girls have caught the spirit of the old Norsk sport and are learning to ski.

Sunday afternoon six of them made their first attempts at jumping on a small hill, a place selected six miles out of the city, where they would escape the scrutiny of mere man.

Whether any records for amateurs were broken will probably not be known. They returned in the evening. In the party were the Misses Mabel Isaacson, Esther Johnson, Alma Matteson, Anna Swenson, Hilma Johnson and Maude Davidson.

Surprised By Friends.

Miss Gladys Bishop of Proctor was pleasantly surprised Saturday evening by a number of her friends. The evening was spent in games and music. Refreshments were served. The guests were: Misses Dorothy Freeman, Myrtle Winslen, Carmen Henrickson, Madeline Murray, Helen Roberts, Iva Freeman, Gladys Bishop, Hazel Roberts, Noramay Bishop; Messrs. Edward Simpkin, Carl Nelson, Leslie Asher, Harry Bartz, Alva Asher, Lawrence Henrickson, James McClosky, Arthur Nelson.

ACCUSED MAN DIES.

Al Childs Who Killed Wisconsin Man Will Not Be Tried.

Winona, Minn., Feb. 21.—Al Childs, formerly of St. Paul and who killed Henry Dingfelder in a quarrel in Childs' Bluff Siding saloon three weeks ago, died here yesterday.

In the quarrel in the saloon Childs was struck over the head and shoulders with his own shotgun, after the shooting. When he was placed under arrest he seemed to be seriously injured, but in the jail in Winona he appeared to be improving, although his removal to the jail at Alma, Buffalo county, Wis., was delayed because of his condition. Since that time he has grown gradually worse, until symptoms of paralysis of the legs and arms developed, and he lost practically all of his senses. A hurried effort was made to arrange bail, and it was set at $5,000 by Judge Helms at Hudson. The bail was secured and the bond approved by the court late Sunday night. Almost as soon as the bail took effect and the prisoner could be legally released, he was brought to Winona, and early yesterday morning arrived and was placed in the Winona general hospital.

IS HELD TO GRAND JURY FOR FORGERY.

Aaron N. Ingron, aged 48, who was arrested last evening at West Duluth on a charge of forgery, after cashing a check in A. L. Stevenson's saloon for $3.90, was bound over to the grand jury when arraigned in police court this morning. He was taken to the county jail.

The check was drawn on the Western State bank, made payable to "Walter Wilson" and signed "Murray Bros." Stevenson noticed that the signature did not appear genuine and while Ingron was imbibing, slipped out and hunted up M. C. Murray, who informed him that it was a forgery.

Stevenson brought an officer back with him and had Ingron arrested.

COPPERS LOWER; TRADING LIGHT

Market Loses Early Strength ---Specialties Are Active Locally.

Coppers closed lower today. The market displayed pronounced weakness toward the close in sympathy with the big market. The Gould stocks held up the rails until the market became top-heavy and slumped. The coppers declined in sympathy.

There will be no market tomorrow. In the face of the holiday traders even up commitments. The forthcoming decisions still are factors of disturbance.

The local market was strictly a specialty affair with Calumet & Corbin and Keating holding the chief places in the limelight. Calumet & Corbin sold at 31c, 30c, 32c and 33c and closed strong. More than 4,000 shares changed hands. Keating was strong, selling at $3, $2.93¾, $3, $3.12½ and $3.06¼. Most of the buying came from Duluth and New York. The only source of selling was Spokane. The market for Keating has broadened until it is now traded upon in several exchanges. The last four cars of ore shipped to a smelter averaged $69 a ton, gold, according to reports received today.

Amazon sold at $1.31¼ to $1.31½, San Antonio sold at $4.12½. Amalgamated sold at $64.62½ to $65 to $64.62½, Calumet & Arizona at $52.37½ to $52.50 to $52. Butte Coalition at $18.75 to $18.50, Butte Ballaklava at $6 to $6.25 to $5.87½, Giroux at $6.75 to $6.87½ to $6.75, Ojibway at $6.50, Greene at $6.12½ to $6 to $6.12½, Superior & Pittsburg at $14.87½ to $15.12½ to $15; North Butte at $22.95, $29.50 to $29.12½.

All the copper selling companies are holding to the 12½-cent price and even the Guggenheim agency, which has the reputation of generally making the low price, is refusing any offers below 12½ cents, thirty days, and they are on record as predicting that the price will not go lower than the present price.

The directors of the Interstate Silver-Lead Mining company which is controlled by the same people who are interested in Butte Ballaklava and Amazon-Montana, met last night. The mine is in the Coeur d'Alenes district of Idaho and the stockholders think they will make a valuable mine of the proposition which is being rapidly developed. The property is adjacent to the famous Hercules mine.

Gust Carlson of Duluth, is president; M. G. Rodearmel of Minneapolis, vice president, and John A. Percival of Duluth, secretary. Mr. Rodearmel and J. H. Robbers, a director, came from Minneapolis to attend the meeting.

A tunnel in the property has been driven 2,400 feet. The face is in mineralized ground. The tunnel, it is expected, will soon cut vein No. 1 and vein No. 2 will be encountered, it is hoped, in about sixty days. A winze on vein No. 1 was put down fifty-five feet in galena. A drift from the bottom of the winze ran seventy feet in the same mineral matter.

SUPERIOR MAY LAND EXPERIMENTAL FARM.

That Superior has an excellent chance of securing a demonstration farm, if the bill now before the legislature passes, is the belief of W. H. Webb of the Commercial club experimental farm committee who has returned from a visit to Madison. If such a farm is located in Douglas county, it is probable that the county will be expected to furnish the site for a term of years and pay half the cost of maintenance.

NEGLECT OF DISEASE

Causes More Deaths Annually Than All Other Causes Combined.

Recent statistics show that more deaths are caused every year by sheer ignorance than by the failure of medical science to find a cure. There are very few diseases nowadays that some cure has not been found to overcome if applied intelligently and in time, but the trouble is that most people do not consult a doctor about their "little ailments" until they have passed far beyond the stage of being inconsequential and have become, if not hopeless, at least sufficient to impair the health of the patient permanently. Men who are suffering from any form of disease should not delay an instant in laying the case before the PROGRESSIVE MEDICAL EXPERTS. Thousands of such cases are laid before them every year and none leave their offices without experiencing relief.

They specialize in this line and have devoted their whole lives to obtaining every possible scrap of knowledge on the subject which might in any way further their cures.

A cure is guaranteed if they assume the case. It will be worth your while to come up to their offices at No. 1 West Superior street, Duluth, and lay your case before them even though other doctors have pronounced it hopeless. A large number of the cases they have treated during the past year were pronounced hopeless by others before coming to them and were completely cured.

Nothing has a more depressing effect on the system than the slow, insidious progress of some deadly disease. It saps the vitality from a man and robs life of all its brightness. Such are the men who are continually finding new health and brightened prospects at the hands of the specialists. We cannot sufficiently impress upon you the need of haste in dealing with these diseases, delay even for a few weeks may increase the time required for a cure, to say nothing of the additional expense, pain and suffering.

If you detect the slightest signs of any form of disease in yourself, do not delay an instant, but come at once to the PROGRESSIVE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, NO. 1 WEST SUPERIOR STREET, DULUTH, and have your case examined. The cure will be guaranteed.

ELDEN CASE IS UP AGAIN

Husband Asks Divorce on Grounds of Cruel and Inhuman Treatment.

After Being Turned Down Once, Elden Again Seeks Decree From Court.

Two divorce actions were filed with the clerk of the district court this morning.

Harold E. Elden asks a divorce from his wife, Charlotte Elden on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment and Josephine Taveggia asks a divorce from her husband, Emanuel Taveggia on the same grounds.

The Elden case has been heard before and refused by Judge William A. Cant. Elden called forth the wrath of the court when, on the stand, he insisted some time ago on being granted a decree after it had been refused by the court. At the time of the last hearing Judge Cant told Elden that he did not know that he would ever be granted a divorce by the local court.

Elden is 33 years old and his wife is 27, according to the complaint. As a basis for the action, he claims cruel and inhuman treatment, alleging that she threatened his life, called him vile and indecent names, scratched him, chased him with a butcher knife and topped the climax by knocking off his hat when she met him on Nov. 23, at the corner of Third avenue west and Superior street.

He states that his wife has an uncontrollable temper and that she has hit and assaulted him when angry. He says that she has threatened to turn the gas on in his room and kill him. He recites one occasion on which she visited him in his offices in the Sellwood building, struck him, used profane language and chased him about the office.

Elden is an insurance agent. He asks the custody of the minor child and an absolute divorce.

Josephine Taveggia claims that she married Emanuel Taveggia at Iron Mountain, Mich. Later, while living at Hibbing, Minn., she claims that he drove her from the house and ever since that time has refused to live with her. She states that her husband used vile language in the presence of the children. She asks a divorce and the custody of the four minor children.

FIGHT FOLLOWS BEER FESTIVAL

Elias Reiner Arrested for Assault and Selling Liquor Without License.

Following a fight at an illegal beer festival in the Belgian settlement near the ore docks, below Michigan street, Sunday, Elias Reiner was arrested yesterday afternoon and arraigned in police court on two warrants charging him with assault and with selling liquor on Sunday.

The complaint was sworn out by Felix Plesson, who claims that Reiner struck his brother, Theodore, over the head with an empty beer bottle, knocking him unconscious and injuring him so badly that he is still confined to his bed. He alleges that the assault was unprovoked. Plesson also told the authorities that Reiner was selling him, his brother and a companion, beer at the rate of three glasses for a dime, drawn from a keg with a picnic pump attachment.

Reiner entered pleas of not guilty to both charges and his trial was set for this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

RAILROADS

ARE WAITING FOR RATE DECISION.

George A. Mitchell, assistant general freight agent of the Northern Pacific railroad, who is in the city today on business, believes that the rate decision will be a matter of relief to the railroads, no matter whether it is favorable or unfavorable to the railroads, and believes further that until the rate decision is given the railroads of the country will be inactive and waiting to ascertain just what conditions they will have to meet.

Mr. Mitchell also ascribes the present quiet in railroad affairs to the very fact that railroad operators will not make a move until the rate decision is out of the way.

No special business brings Mr. Mitchell to the Head of the Lakes. He is here for the purpose of looking over some of the routine affairs of the company.

IMMIGRANT FLUSTERED

Excited German, "Just Over," Thought He Had Been Robbed.

Drags Friendly Stranger With Him to the Police Station.

Dragging the man that he accused of robbing him into the police station, John Peter Donsboch, an immigrant from Germany on his way to St. Paul, came into headquarters yesterday afternoon in a greatly flustered state of mind.

Hokan Nelson, his captive, was almost as nervous and excited. It was a case of "you did; I didn't," the accusation in shrill native German and the denial in thundering basal Swedish. To get an idea of what was the matter the police put the two in separate rooms. From the German they learned that he accused Nelson of taking his satchel, which he said he had set down in the Soo depot while he went to look up a man who could speak his home tongue. Running across Hokan he asked for assistance, the latter with great difficulty guessing at what he wanted. Nelson took him to a restaurant where he knew a German worked. While Nelson was with him, Donsbach happened to think of his grip, which contained his clothes and about 300 German francs. Donsboch explained to the police that his mother had told him before leaving the old country that if he lost sight of his grip, he would stand little chance of ever seeing it again, and that therefore he was very anxious to get it back. Nelson was very positive that he hadn't taken the grip and the police couldn't make out how he could be guilty if he had been with Donsboch constantly from the time he met him. Taking the two men with him, Detective Terry made an investigation. In a short time he located the grip, with the contents intact, in the restaurant where it had been set down by the owner. All the while Donsbach was under the impression that he had lost the grip, with his money and clothes, in the depot.

COWAN REPORT TO BE DELAYED

Result of Impeachment Hearing Will Be Presented Thursday.

Bismarck, N. D., Feb. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Unable to complete the introduction of evidence this morning, the Cowan investigation committee has announced that the report will not be forthcoming this afternoon, and a request for additional time was made in the house. The report will be received Thursday afternoon, as the committee expects to be able to finish its work tonight. Tomorrow being a legal holiday, it will delay its report until Thursday.

When the committee went into session today, Judge Cowan was again on the stand, having been before the committee five hours yesterday. The general consensus of opinion among the members of the house is that the investigation committee is making an honest effort to get at the true facts in connection with the administration of justice in the Second judicial district, and that its report, when made, will be thorough.

The Cowan impeachment proceedings have reached a point of intense interest among the members of the legislature, and is the principal topic of discussion.

WOMAN'S REALM.

Miss Katherine Jewell Evarts gave one of the most delightful programs of readings ever heard in Duluth, last evening at the Endion Methodist church, under the auspices of the Woman's guild of that church. All her selections were Browning readings and everyone who heard her declared her interpretation was beautiful. Miss Everts has a most charming personality and from the moment she appeared until the last line of the last reading the audience simply lived with her characters.

Browning's poems lend themselves readily to reading, as the meter and rhyme do not seem to protrude themselves in the least. Her voice is musical and interpretations excellent. Her reading of "Count Gismund" was one of the numbers which was a general favorite, and "In a Balcony," with which she closed her program, was perfect.

Among her other readings were "Cavalier Tunes," "Garden Fancies," "The Laboratory," "Love Among the Ruins" and other short poems.

MINNEAPOLIS PROGRA

Delightful Numbers Are Played at Matinee Musicale.

A delightful program was given yesterday afternoon before the members of the Matinee Musicale by four representatives of the Thursday Musicale of Minneapolis.

Miss Clara Williams, soprano, charmed all present with an exquisite interpretation of a Handel number, "Lusinghe Piu Care," sung with a clearness of enunciation and beauty of tone which received the highest praise. Her second appearance on the program was in a group of songs which were each delightful and brought out the different qualities of her singing to good advantage. This group began with a sprightly little song by Purcell, "Nymphs and Shepherds," followed by a "Boat Song," by Ware, which was a dainty number and enthusiastically received. "Morning Hymn," by Henschel, and "Serenade," by Branscome, were two numbers a little more difficult but beautifully sung. "Titania's Cradle" was also charmingly rendered. "Primrose Dell," by Spross, was a general favorite and she repeated it to an enthusiastic encore after her last number, "Yesterday and Today."

Miss Kate Mork, pianist, was excellent in her interpretations of her numbers. The closing number of the program, the first movement of the MacDowell concerto in A minor, was a most fitting climax to a beautiful program.

Miss Helga Jensen, vollinist, played Vieuxtemps' "Fantasia Appassionata" with such good tone quality and such delightful interpretation that she was forced to respond to an encore with a Bach air for the G string, which gave as much pleasure as the first number.

Miss Margaret Gilmer is an artistic accompanist. Her playing, while delightful and finished in itself, never detracted in the least from the work of the soloist, but made a pleasing setting for the solos.

After the program a reception was held for the guests. Yellow jonquils were used on the tables.

The Matinee Musicale has received an invitation from the National Federation of Musical clubs to send a delegate from among its members to represent the club at the biennial meeting which will be held at Philadelphia the last week in March and to play on the program. Miss Ruth Alta Rogers has been appointed by the board of directors to go and she will play a piano number.

"MOST BEAUTIFUL WOMAN IN AMERICA"

MRS. SYDNEY LOVE.

A famous English painter declared Mrs. Sydney Love the most beautiful woman in America. That was when she was living in Chicago a few years ago and her husband was on the top wave of prosperity. Now Mrs. Love, who has been separated from her husband for some time, is about to get a divorce from him. Mr. Love, beginning with nothing, made a fortune of more than $1,000,000 and then lost it in a spectacular fashion. Mrs. Love is living in New York.

Mrs. Cunningham, while not a missionary herself is greatly interested in the work and is an enthusiastic talker and worker. She will be the guest of Mrs. E. H. Holdren, of 1215 West First street, during her visit in the city.

THE EVENING STORY

FOR LIFE AND DUTY

By George Hart.

Jack Starforth, a photographer on the staff of a city newspaper, was one day required to take his camera and secure a panoramic view of the city.

In one of the suburbs of the city was a huge upright iron cylinder or tank in which was stored part of the city's water supply after it had passed through the filters. This immense structure rose about a hundred feet and provided an excellent vantage ground from which to take a comprehensive view of the surroundings. To the top of this tank Jack was directed to take his camera and there make his exposure. He got the required permission to do so, and in due course reached his dizzy perch by means of the iron ladder.

The top of the tank was open, being only partly covered with boards and iron bars, on which Jack found some difficulty in erecting his tripod. This, however, he managed after some maneuvering. Looking down, he could see the water within a feet feet of the top of the tank. Then he glanced out over the city. It made him dizzy. He had no railing about him, and the water below was not friendly-looking. It seemed, too, as if the breeze blew harder than ever. He turned to his work, spreading the tripod legs well, digging their sharp points into the boards.

The boards, warped with rain and wind, gave slightly under his weight, and he had to stand very still as he made his first exposure, so that no trembling of the instrument should blur the picture. Each view was made, however, and not until the last one had been exposed did disaster overtake him. He had just finished returning the plateholder to the cloth case at his feet, and was beginning to take down his apparatus, when a puff of wind whisked the focussing cloth from the back of the camera. Jack made a grab for it as it went by, lost his balance, struggled for a minute, and then fell backwark off the platform into the water with a cry and loud splash, taking his camera with him in his fall.

As he was a good swimmer, he was not unduly frightened. He grasped at a log of the tripod as it went down with him, and as soon as he came to the surface he pulled the camera toward him, slipped out the lens and front board and put them into his pocket.

Then he began to tread water, and take account of his situation. The water, which was warm, was very near the top of the tank, so near that he had no doubt he could reach the edge. But he must first either drop the camera into the depths below or get it back on the platform.

To do this was a task, but by balancing it by all three legs and letting it lean toward the platform at the right time, he managed to throw it upon the boards, although the effort forced his head under water.

But when he tried to get himself out of the water he found his predicament more serious. He could not reach the rim of the tank. Moreover, there was nothing he could catch hold of on the inner surface of the iron, although he swam all around its edge several times in an endeavor to find something.

He next tried "sounding" deep in the water and letting his body shoot out when he came to the surface, his hands raised high above his head in the effort to catch the edge of the tank.

After the third attempt he was exhausted and had no more breath or strength for another try.

He desisted from his efforts, floated on his back, and considered. Few people knew where he was and none of them would be likely to miss him for hours. Even if the watchman did wonder what he was doing up there so long, he would be very apt to think it none of his business, or to believe that he had slipped by him unnoticed when he came down.

Jack realized that no one would hear him if he shouted, and that if he was to get out alive he must use his wits and invent some way to do it.

He closed his eyes and thought hard. An idea came. He wriggled out of his coat and vest and wrapping the lens in them, with some difficulty threw them on the platform, so tantalizingly close, yet so far away. Then he removed his braces and made a loop of them. With these he lassoed the ends of the tripod sticking out over the edge of the platform from the position from which he had thrown it, and pulled it and the camera into the water with him again. The camera struck him a glancing blow on the head.

He unscrewed the camera from the tripod and tossed it back on the platform, in the meantime letting the tripod float on the water. Then recovering the tripod, he broke off one of the legs. With this he began fishing overhead for the plate-case, which he could see through the bars of the platform.

It was hard work. At last it fell down straight into his hands.

It was a simple matter to detach the shoulder-strap and twist it round his neck. This gave him both hands to use in the delicate task of throwing the case and holder back on the platform.

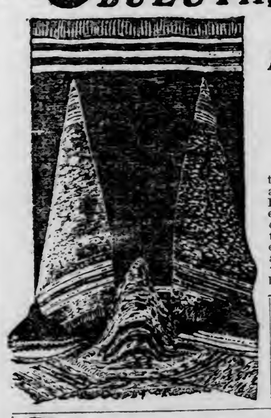

He uncoiled the strap from about his neck, and tossed the end of it over one of the bars close to the edge of the tank. Fortunately, they were not too close together to prevent the buckle from passing through. He slipped the end of the strap through the buckle, drew the strap tight, and, hand over hand, pulled his weight up until he got his hands on the iron edge. The strap, which might have broken beneath his entire weight, was supported by the water.

"And maybe that iron didn't feel good," he said, telling the story to the editor when, still wet through, he presented that gentleman with his prints in time for publication.

JEWELRY GONE IN THE MORNING

Victor Olson was arrested yesterday afternoon on suspicion of having stolen a watch and stickpin from Andrew Sagasin.

The two, it is said, were drinking with two women at the Glen hotel, Saturday night when Sagasin awoke the next morning he claims that he missed his jewelry. He also declared that they had been served drinks after the closing hour and as a result Joseph Saburin, bartender in the hotel saloon, was arrested on a charge of selling liquor without a license. Sagasin told the police that he met one of his women acquaintances on the street yesterday, and that when he told her of his loss, she said that she had seen Olson with a similar watch in his possession, whereupon Sagasin reported the matter to the police, who caused the arrests.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

ON THE IRON RANGES

TO TRY $25,000 CASE IN APRIL

Case of John Maki Against Drake & Stratton Coming Up Soon at Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., Feb. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The jury in the district court in the case of the state against George Milasnovich, charged with having assaulted Joe Milousnich at Chisholm Dec. 8, found the defendant not guilty.

The case of John Maki against the Drake & Stratton company, which was tried at Hibbing last April, has been ordered back to this court for retrial at the coming April term. Maki, who was employed by the defendant company at a mine near Hibbing, lost one of his legs in a prematnre explosion. Negligence of the company and its powder boss, William Carlson, is alleged. Maki sued for $25,000. It took a little over a week to try the case and after being out for fifty-five hours the jury returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff and awarded him $5,000. The company claims the award is excessive and that Judge Hughes in his charge to the jury made a number of errors and upon these grounds the case was ordered back for retrial in Virginia.

The case of Steve Matijos, administrator of the estate of Steve Kovacevic against the Drake & Stratton company for $5,000 will be tried at the April term. The complaint alleges that Kovacevic, who was employed as a locomotive engineer at the Dale-Uno mine, near Hibbing, met death in a wreck of two trains and that the wreck was caused through negligence of one of the employes of the defendants.

The first speaker, Joseph Austin of Chisholm, was followed by W. J. Archer of Virginia. Both claimed advantages to be gained by the range towns in the proposed county division. Then N. B. Arnold of Virginia spoke at considerable length. He pointed out that Hibbing stood just as good a chance of being the county seat as Virginia, and that they would have a fair fight in the open field. He was followed by a few brief remarks from Chairman A. P. Silliman. Victor L. Power of Hibbing also spoke for division.

were united in opposition to the agreement and he said he voiced their protests against free trade in farm products while protection was continued upon manufacturered articles which the farmers are compelled to buy. He declared that Canada was the only country which the farmers had to fear and that free trade with that country meant that the farmer would derive no benefit whatever from the tariff law. He denied that cheap food would result from the consummation of the agreement.

According to Mr. Bachelder, Canada has cheaper land, lower taxes, virgin soil, which does not need fertilizing, and cheaper labor than can be found in the United States. He said wheat had already been forced down 6 or 7 cents a bushel on the prospect of free trade with Canada. Senator McCumber interjected that in the Northwestern markets the decline had been at least 12 cents.

Should Include Great Britain.

"If this is an honest bill let it include free trade with Great Britain," said Mr. Bachelder. By questions, Senator Stone developed that Mr. Bachelder was not really in favor of free trade with Great Britain and that he had no personal knowledge of the difference in the value of lands, the price of labor or the amount of taxes paid in Canada and the United States.

During this interchange, Mr. Bachelder suggested that the only fair way for free trade to be established would be to let the Stars and Stripes float over Canada.

"That is a species of jingoism talked about recently," said Senator Stone. "I don't believe it is within the range of possibility."

Change of Sentiment.

Charles M. Gardner, master of the Massachusetts state grange and chairman of the state dairy bureau, said there had been a change of sentiment in his state and that now the farmers are unanimously opposed to the treaty agreement. Among other things he said that New England farmers would not be satisfied to live under the home conditions of the farmers of Canada.

T. C. Laylin of Norwalk, Ohio, master of the Ohio state grange, complained that the agreement took the duty off wheat and left it on flour. He said that consumers did not eat wheat; that they ate flour and that the same thing was true as to live cattle and dressed meats.

Mr. Laylin declared the only protection left to the farmer is that on wool. "It won't be long before that is removed," he said.

In prompt chorus Senators Smoot and McCumber asserted that it was gone already.

"Under this agreement," said Senator McCumber, "you can drive live sheep across the border from Canada, shear them in this country, sell the wool and drive the sheep back again."

"Well, we are not far enough advanced in Ohio to have figured out a thing like that," responded Mr. Laylin. "We are just farmers and we have been a little befogged there. We farmers stayed at home in the last election and Governor Harmon got 95,000 votes less than two years ago, yet had 100,000 majority. Republican congressmen who favored protection for wool were defeated. We certainly were befogged."

Those who eat Grape-Nuts FOOD KNOW

"There's a Reason"

PLUNDER IS RETURNED

Ghoul Who Stripped Dying Man Is Conscience Stricken.

Sends Back Valuables Taken From Body of Accident Victim.

Conscience-stricken, the ghoulish thief who stripped the unconscious form of Dr. George Kaufhold after he had been fatally injured in an automobile accident on London road about midnight the night of July 18, last, has returned the personal property which he stole.

Among the articles taken were a valuable watch and fob and his university fraternity pin. The fob and the pin were sent to St. Mary's hospital, where Dr. Kaufhold died shortly after the accident. A pawn ticket for the watch went with them. Accompanying the loot was a short, anonymous letter, in which the unnatural robber stated that he was sorry for what he had done; that his act had bothered him a great deal, and that he wished the sister who received the property would see that it was returned to the proper persons.

The fob pin and pawn ticket were turned over to Dr. Barney, an associate of Dr. Boyer, who redeemed the time piece, and together with the other returned articles sent them to the mother of the unfortunate young physician in Pennsylvania.

The accident was one of the most regrettable which has occurred in Duluth. With a party of young people Dr. Kaufhold was driving along London road. The machine, a large touring car, was undoubtedly traveling at a high rate of speed, for when an attempt was made to take a turn, the car turned a double somersault, dangerously injuring several others of the party and fatally injuring Dr. Kaufhold.

Assistance reached them very shortly afterwards. Dr. Kaufhold was picked up by a taxicab which was a short distance behind them, and other vehicles were impressed to get the others to the hospital. A quiet investigation disclosed the fact that the valuables of Dr. Kaufhold must have been taken from him between the time of the acoident and daylight the next morning.

MARRIED BLISS IS SHORT-LIVED

James Hill Said to Have Deserted Wife Two Days After Wedding.

Married Saturday, James W. Hill, a local mazagine agent, deserted his bride Monday and was arrested as he stepped off the train at St. Paul the same afternoon on a charge of forgery. It is alleged that he passed a worthless check on Theodore Sadowski, a First street saloonkeeper.

Hill will be brought back to Duluth to face the charges preferred against him, by Detective Herman Toewe, who left yesterday with Sheriff Meining for Stillwater with Charles Melodrowski, the boy bandit sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of Patrolman Harry A. Chesmore. Detective Toewe will stop over at St. Paul on his return to get Hill.

The alleged forger was married to Miss Minnie Andrews of the Frederic hotel last Saturday, the ceremony being performed by Probate Judge Gilpin. He had been stopping at the hotel. It is claimed that he passed a forged check for $9, drawn on the First National bank of this city and signed by Capt. George Walsh.

MRS. WETMORE DIES IN THE WEST

"Buffalo Bill" Hires Special Train to Reach Sister's Bedside.

Duluth people will learn with regret of the death at Pasadena, Cal., of Mrs. Helen Cody Wetmore of Duluth, a sister of Col. W. F. Cody (Buffalo Bill).

Her death occurred at that place on Feb. 17. She was well known in Duluth and owned considerable property here. Mrs. Robert Allen, formerly of this city but now of Seattle, Wash., was a daughter of Mrs. Wetmore.

Mrs. Wetmore lived in Duluth for a number of years. She was a resident of Bay View Heights.

Col. Cody, hearing of the dangerous illness of his sister, rode horseback over a trackless waste in Arizona, hired a special train over the Southern Pacific to Pasadena, and in a waiting automobile at the station made a race against time to the death bed of his sister. She was unconscious when he arrived and died without regaining consciousness.

Col. Cody had been inspecting mining interests in Arizona at the time his sister was taken ill. The cause of death was not given in the message to this city, but it is presumed that it was heart trouble as she had long suffered from weakness of the heart.

MILLE LACS INDIAN CASE.

Minnesota Attorneys to Appear Before Court of Claims.

Washington, Feb. 21.—A number of Minnesota attorneys have arrived here to appear before the court of claims in the case of Mille Lacs Indians against the government. George B. Edgerton of St. Paul, James Horton of Milwaukee, Harvey S. Clapp of Duluth, Daniel B. Henderson and C. E. Richardson represent Indians who are suing for $1,000,000 for pine timber on their Mille Lacs lands, which they claims was appropriated by several big lumbermen in 1888-91 after the lands had been ostensibly set apart by congress for old soldiers who desired homesteads. Testimony in the case was taken in the summer of 1909 in different parts of Minnesota.

MISS HELEN TAFT'S RING EXCITES MUCH CURIOSITY.

Washington, Feb. 21.—"Is the diamond ring which sparkles on the finger of Miss Helen Taft an engagement ring or not?" is the question that is agitating Washington society at present. When questioned on the subject by friends, Miss Taft simply laughs. All that people know is that Miss Taft is very much admired by many cavaliers.

DULUTH JOBBERS ARE COMING INTO THEIR OWN.

Duluth is complimented as an enterprising and progressive jobbing center by Otto Saugstad of Northwood, N. D., vice president of the Retail Hardware Dealers' association of that state, in an interview at the Spalding. He has been attending the annual meeting of the Minnesota hardware men at Minneapolis.

"I have never visited Duluth before," said Mr. Saugstad, "and am extremely interested in what you have for the visitor to see. The city impresses me very favorably. Duluth's progress as a jobbing center has been rapid and so ably are your local business men caring for their natural field that the city's future prosperity in this department of commerce is assured. Cities which invaded the logical Duluth field before this city was fairly on the ground are losing to the Head of the Lakes, and since your city has secured more favorable railroad facilities you cannot but go ahead.

"Conditions and outlook in North Dakota are favorable. There is plenty of snow on the ground, and that makes it probable spring seeding will proceed favorably."

BURNED TOWNS ARE BEING REBUILT.

Albert Berg of Spooner, former secretary of state, and now a banker of that place, was a guest at the Spalding yesterday. He spoke with pleased pride of the progress that has been made in the reconstruction of Spooner since the fire which laid it waste last fall, saying:

"With four new buildings started this week, we now have as many dwellings and stores as we had before the fire. Our new village hall, costing in the neighborhood of $12,500, is almost completed. Progress of reconstruction has been more rapid in Spooner than in Baudette, largely because our people were better insured than were those of Baudette. The fact that we have an exceptionally large lumber industry in Spooner also helped us.

"Baudette is making good progress, however, and in both towns reconstruction has been going forward steadily during the winter. Both villages have been benefited by a good logging season."

McVILLE, N. D., ELEVATOR IS DESTROYED BY FIRE.

McVille, N. D., Feb. 21.—Fire destroyed the St. Anthony & Dakota elevator at this place Sunday. When the fire was discovered at 5 o'clock in the morning the building was a mass of flames and beyond control. The fire department responded to the call but it was useless to try and save the building.

There were several thousand bushels of grain in the elevator and this was destroyed. The building and grain burned completely to the ground. It was fully insured. The cause of the fire is not known.

Senatorial Candidate's Wife Dies.

Helena, Mont., Feb. 21.—Mrs. W. G. Conrad, wife of one of the Democratic senatorial aspirants, died about 11:30 o'clock yesterday morning. News of her death was not generally received at the capitol until after the joint assembly had convened.

MAYOR CRUMPTON'S EXPERIENCE

WITH

THE NEAL THREE-DAY CURE FOR DRINK HABIT

CITY OF SUPERIOR, WIS.
CITY HALL—Executive Office.
F. R. CRUMPTON, Mayor.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Shortly after the Neal Institute was located in this city, my attention was called to their claim to cure the liquor habit in three days, and to verify this statement, I sent a party to the institute for treatment.

I was informed by him that after completing the treatment he had no desire for drink, nor has he since. He took the treatment about six months ago, so that I feel that the claims made for same are justified by the results obtained. Respectfully yours,

F. R. CRUMPTON, Mayor.

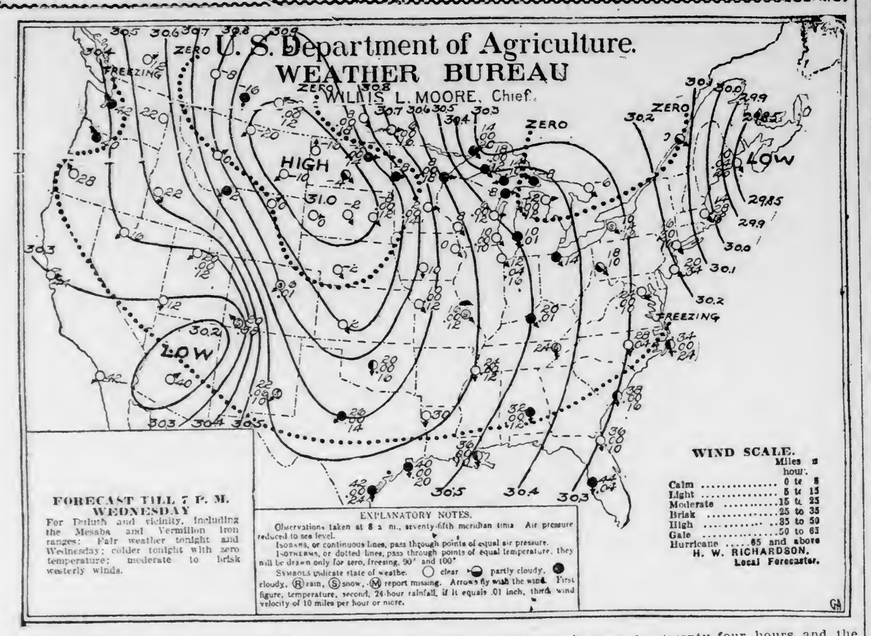

The above is only one of many letters that we might publish showing that the Neal treatment DOES cure the Drink Habit, and in just three days. It matters not how long the drinker has been drinking, nor how many other treatmets he has taken—the Neal treatment will effect a safe and perfect cure, ridding the system of every trace of alcoholic poison and leave the drinker in the same normal condition, so far as alcoholic poison is concerned, as he was before ever taking a drink. No hypodermic injections are given, and a plain contract is given each patient to effect a perfect cure in three days or refund the fee paid.

Call, write, phone or wire for free booklet giving full information; also for a copy of our contract and guarantee bond. Everything confidential, bank reference cheerfully furnished.

FAIR

If you gave your full attention to fighting the wind and holding your hat, your feet were likely to get ahead of you, so that you were deposited in a disheveled heap on the ground. If you gave your full attention to the spots upon which you placed your feet, you were likely to be given a chase over the icy ground for your hat. The weather man just couldn't stand the praise that was gratuitously handed to him yesterday, so he sent that raw wind this morning to show that he isn't as beneficent as he was painted. The mercury was well above zero, but the wind furnished any rigor that the temperature lacked. Fair and colder weather is the prediction for tonight and tomorrow.

Duluth was getting about enough of a long drawn out cold wave a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 7:02 and it will set at 5:41 this evening, giving ten hours and thirty-nine minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The highest barometric conditions of the present winter overlies Montana and the Dakotas. Pressures have increased quite decidedly over the whole country attended by colder weather generally. The low pressure areas central off the North Atlantic coast and over Arizona respectively, caused snow or rain over Colorado, New Mexico, Western Texas, the Southern Lake region, the Ohio valley and North Atlantic states during the last twenty-four hours. Temperatures of about zero or below will occur in St. Louis and Douglas counties tonight."

Chicago, Feb. 21.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Wednesday.

Upper Michigan — Snow tonight or Wednesday.

Wisconsin—Fair tonight and Wednesday; colder tonight.

Minnesota—Fair tonight and Wednesday; colder in east portion tonight; rising temperature in west portion Wednesday.

Iowa—Fair tonight with colder in east portion; Wednesday fair with rising temperature in northwest portion.

North Dakota — Fair tonight with colder in northwest portion; Wednesday fair with rising temperature.

South Dakota — Fair and cold tonight; Wednesday fair with rising temperature.

Montana—Fair tonight and Wednesday.

Shippers' forecast — Protect thirty-six-hour shipments of perishables against zero temperature in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin and the Michigan Copper country.

BOARD OF EDUCATION WILL FRAME PROTEST

Congdon Bills to Be Considered at Special Meeting.

No Leeway Allowed for Growth of District, Members Say.

At a special meeting of the board of education to be held some day this week, probably Thursday, the subject of the Congdon bills providing for the limitation of tax levies and bond issues of independent school districts having a population of 50,000 or more inhabitants, will very likely be taken up. Just what course the board will pursue in putting its protest before the legislature will be decided at that meeting. That the board will make a protest is regarded as certain. Figures will probably be prepared showing the present and estimated future financial needs of the district and they will be placed before Mr. Congdon and the other members of the St. Louis county delegation.

People with a sense of humor may see something to satisfy it in the fact that while the members of the board were considering asking the St. Louis county members in the legislature to use their influence in obtaining an expansion of the present limit of taxation for maintenance from eight mills to about ten mills, a member of that delegation introduced a bill which, if it should become a law, would put greater limitations on the board than now are imposed.

Figures which were being prepared as arguments in favor of an extension of the limit will probably now be used in combatting the Congdon bill, which provides for a limit of twelve mills on the annual levy of the district. The present limit is sixteen mills. The only other districts in the state affected by the bills are those in Minneapolis and St. Paul and the members of the Duluth board have not heard what the views of the school authorities of the Twin Cities are on the bills.

Copies of the bills introduced by Mr. Congdon have been received by the members of the board and they are now going over them carefully. Figures are being prepared and they will be submitted to the board at the meeting this week. The board's position will probably then be explained in a letter to the members of the delegation in the legislature.

No Leeway for Growth.

It is claimed that, while with the strictest economy, the board might worry along on a tax levy of 12 mills annually, no leeway is given for rapid growth of the city or for extraordinary expenses. It is claimed that the school system could not be expanded with the expansion of the city; that, against all theories of education, teachers would be given more students than they could properly teach, and the board's established policy of bringing the level of teachers' salaries higher in order to maintain the efficiency of the teaching corps and hold good teachers against the inducements offered by other cities.

The board members point out that the enrollment of the schools has been constantly increasing in recent years. The enrollment in the school year ending in June, 1906, was 11,574, while the enrollment in the last school year was 13,033. In the year ending in 1906, 299 teachers were employed, while last year 358 teachers were on the payroll of the district.

There has been a gradual reduction in the number of children allotted to each teacher and an increase in the average annual salary of teachers. In the year ending in June, 1906, the average number of children per teacher was 38, while the average last year was 36, the average being obtained by counting principals, special teachers and others having no rooms under their charge. In the former year, $191,523.80 was paid in teachers salaries, an average salary of $640.50. Last year, $272,934.29 was paid in salaries, the average being $762.40. It is claimed that the average in Duluth has been too low when the cost of living here is considered and the board has been gradually raising it.

Text of the Bill.

Mr. Congdon's bill follows, the black face type being the addition to the former law:

A Bill for

"An act amending Section 1415 of the Revised Laws of 1905 relating to the levy of additional taxes for school purposes in school districts having 50,000 inhabitants or more, as amended by Chapter 308 General Laws of Minnesota for 1907.

"Be it enacted by the legislature of the state of Minnesota:

"Section 1. Section 1415 of the Revised Laws of 1905, as amended by Chapter 308 of the General Laws of Minnesota for 1907, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 1415. In all districts having 50,000 inhabitants or more there may be levied, independently of and in addition to other sums for school purposes authorized by law an amount not to exceed 4 mills on the dollar, for the purpose of school sites and the erection, repair, furnishing, and fitting of school buildings, payment of teachers' salaries and the general maintenance of the schools, which amount, to the extent of 3½ mills only, may be appropriated to general maintenance, and the remainder to one or more of such other uses, provided, that the total levy in any such district for the maintenance of the schools shall not exceed 8 mills on the dollar, and provided further that the total annual levy for all school purposes in any such district shall not exceed 12 mills on the dollar of the assessed value of the taxable property therein."

Bond Issue Bill.

Mr. Congdon's other bill in regard to bond issues has caused some discussion among the members of the board, but what action will be taken in regard to it has not been determined. The board members see no menace in it, but have objections on the ground that they should not be accountable to the city council, as they are elected by the people to conduct the affairs of the school system and the council has nothing to do with school matters.

The text of the bill follows:

A Bill For

"An act limiting the power of school districts situate wholly or in part within cities having a population of 50,000 or more, to issue bonds and incur indebtedness.

"Be it enacted by the legislature of the state of Minnesota:

"Section 1. No independent school district situate wholly or in part within any city having a population of more than 50,000, and now empowered to issue bonds, either with or without the approval of the voters of such district, shall have power to issue any bonds or any evidence of indebtedness, unless first thereunto authorized by a two-thirds vote of the legislative body of the city within which such school district is situate in whole or in part.

"Sec. 2. No such school district shall have power to issue bonds or any evidence of indebtedness running more than two years, whenever the aggregate of the outstanding bonds and evidences of indebtedness of such district equals or exceeds 3½ per cent of the assessed value of all the taxable property within such school district."

ators and 126 house members, a loss of two senators and a gain of six house members, and gives St. Louis, Lake and Cook counties five senators and ten representatives, instead of three and six respectively.

Two amendments affecting the bill materially were proposed, and both were voted down overwhelmingly.

C. H. Warner of Aitkin led the debate for the bill, explaining the situation in Northern Minnesota due to its growth since the last apportionment, and strong speeches were made for the bill by L. C. Spooner, R. C. Dunn, W. D. Washburn, Jr., and others.

Talks in opposition were made by Representatives Klemer, Farley, Crane, Davies, Harding and others. Some of the objections were personal, involving changes in individual districts. Others were based on the idea that city folks oughtn't to have the same representation as country folks. Others, more or less skilfully disguised, were flatly against any change in the present situation.

The friends of direct legislation lost the first round of their fight this morning when they failed in the attempt to make the initiative and refendum bills a special order for next Tuesday morning. The report of the elections committee, returning seven initiative and referendum bills to the house without recommendation, came in at the opening of the session.

Representatives W. T. Stone, Kelley, J. N. Johnson, Hillman and Spooner had their bills laid on the table, leaving for consideration only Representative Erdender's bill providing for 35 per cent initiative and 15 per cent referendum, and Representative Campbell's bill providing for 8 per cent initiative and 5 per cent referendum. Representative Erdender's motion to put his bill on general orders was adopted.

Representative Campbell wanted to make his bill a special order for Tuesday, but Representative Fowler moved as a substitute that the bill go on general orders. After a debate over this question, the motion to make the Campbell bill a special order was lost, 51 for and 85 against, so the bill went on general orders to be considered in the regular order of business.

The senate spent the entire morning solving national legislation. First it passed the Rockne-Moonan resolution urging congress to lay the Canadian reciprocity treaty over until the next regular session to give the people a chance to study it. This was by a vote of 36 to 26, and it followed a long debate about what the treaty is and is not going to do to the Minnesota farmer.

Speeches for the treaty were made by Senators Dwinnell, Denegre, Duxbury and Wilson, and talks against it were made by Senators Saugstad, Dale, McGrath, Rockne, Nelson, Murray and Putnam. A motion to lay the resolution on the table was lost, 28 to 33, and then the resolution on the table was adopted 36 to 26.

Senator Putnam's resolution urging the defeat of the treaty was withdrawn in favor of the Rockne-Moonan resolution and Senator Dwinnell's resolution urging the approval of the treaty by congress will not now be considered.

Senator Anderson called up the house resolution by Representative White, asking the United States senate to pass the Sulloway bill increasing pensions.

Senator Cheadle of Duluth, offered his substitute, declaring it to be the sense of the senate that it has confidence that the United States senate will do the right thing without advice from the legislature, and urged its adoption. His amendment was defeated eleven for and forty-eight against, and the resolution was then adopted, fifty to seven.

Senator Boyle of Eveleth, in explaining his vote for the resolution, was heartily applauded when he said that it was about time the senate ceased trying to solve all the national problems and got down to work on the many important matters confronting it. He believed it was done to make political capital, and it was wrong when the senate had so much to do.

AN ANNUITY FOR HUSBAND

The will of the late Mrs. Marie M. Owsley of Tiverton, Va., was admitted to probate today. Although the amount of money and property given is not mentioned in the will, it is thought that it is one of the largest wills ever filed in the local courts, for Mrs. Owsley was the part owner of a large number of mining properties on the ranges and drew annually high royalties from them.

Mrs. Owsley was formerly Mrs. Mary M. Boeing. She married Dr. Frederick D. Owsley late in life and he is well remembered in the will with $10,000 payable every year during his life.

The property in St. Louis county is thought to be only a small part of the estate of Mrs. Owsley. She has been known for years as one of the East's wealthiest women.

Her two children, William E. Boeing and Caroline M. Boeing are well remembered with a division of the huge holdings. They are also to have the income given to her husband after his death.

The will as filed is very indefinite as to the amount of property left and speaks only as the division of the whole. No figures are given except as to certain amounts, which show no true value of the vast holdings.

MAY BE RAZOR THIEF.

Fargo Negro Suspect May Face a Penitentiary Charge.

Fargo, N. D., Feb. 21.—Bill Washington, a colored man, is an inmate of the city prison and he is tagged a vag, but it is more than likely that another charge will be made against him, and that, too, of a serious nature. The police believe they have in the person of a negro named William Lemarr, the party who on Hallowe'en stole nearly 100 razors from a barber on Front street, and State's Attorney Fowler will be asked for a warrant for Lemarr. Lemarr's arrest was brought about by the fact that he gave his wife a beating and he is now doing a sixteen-day term in the prison.

UNNATURAL THINNESS EASILY CORRECTED

By Clever Prescription Which Can Be Filled at Any Drug Store.

No Need to Be Thin Now as Reports Show This Method Effective.

People who are very thin and scrawny ought not to be so. Undoubtedly they are more subject to disease and contagions than the normally fleshy. Thinness is usualy accompanied by weakness, and weakness subjects any one to colds, coughs, consumption, pneumonia, etc. It has been discovered, almost by accident, that tincture cadomene when combined in a prescription with proper accelarative medicines, becomes one of the most valuable, effective, and reliable nutritive or flesh making medicines known to science. It is especially beneficial to men and women between the ages of sixteen and fifty-five, who from lack of proper nerve force and digestion, remain undeveloped in body, limbs, arms and bust. A well rounded symmetrical figure in man or woman indicates health, magnetism, stamina and happiness.

The reader who wishes to add from ten to forty pounds should not fail to begin with this valuable prescription.

First, obtain of any well stocked druggist, three ounces of essence of pepsin and three ounces of syrup of rhubarb in an 8 oz. bottle. Then add one ounce compound essence cardiol. Shake and let stand two hours. Then add one ounce tincture cadomene compound (not cardamom). Shake well and take one teaspoonful before each meal, one after each meal. Drink plenty of water between meals and when retiring. Keep up this treatment regularly and of a certainty from one to three pounds will be added to the weight each week, and the general health will also improve.

MOST jewelers are watch-makers by trade. They know what constitutes a reliable watch. Isn't it significant—then, that every jeweler sells Waltham Watches?

"It's Time You Owned a Waltham"

WALTHAM WATCH

Breaks a Cold in a Day.

And Cures Any Cough That Is Curable—Noted Physician's Formula.

Get from any druggist "Two ounces of Glycerine and half an ounce of Concentrated Pine compound. Mix these with half a pint of good whiskey. Take one to two teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bed time. Smaller doses to children according to age." Any one can prepare this at home. This is the best formula known to science. There are many cheaper preparations of large quantity, but it don't pay to experiment with a bad cold. Be sure to get only the genuine (Globe) Concentrated Pine. Each half ounce bottle comes in a sealed tin screw-top case. If the druggist does not have in stock he will get it quickly from his wholesale house.

ALDRICH HEARD FROM.

When Senator Root made his speech in the senate declaring that Lorimer's seat should be declared vacant it was generally believed that his attitude would prove the deciding influence with the bulk of the members of that body. There is much the same feeling stirred by the announcement that Senator Aldrich is in favor of the Canadian agreement. He always has been a leader of the protection forces; he was one of the framers of the present tariff law; his power in the senate has been remarkable. Therefore it is natural to expect that some of those who have been opposed to the reciprocity agreement would alter their position on learning of the attitude of the senator from Rhode Island.

But there are other points to be considered that may more than counterbalance the influence of Aldrich. He is about to retire from the senate; he probably will not even be able to take part in any of the legislation yet to be enacted by the present congress; in fact, his leadership is at an end except as it may resolve itself into an outside influence. Also, he has before the administration a currency reform scheme which he wants to see adopted, and to antagonize the president by opposition to this Canadian agreement would not be helping any toward the adoption of that plan of reformation. Then there is the attitude of the "progressives" who are either undecided or have determined to attack the Canadian compact. One of their chief occupations has been the abuse of Aldrich and Taft. Their opposition to the president is blamed for their present apparent hostility to the trade agreement, and if they find Aldrich lined up with the president in favor of reciprocity, it is easily possible that they will become even more pronounced in their hostility to it. This would not be particularly in the way of showing good principle among the insurgents, but it would be in keeping with the way a good many of them have acted thus far.

And meanwhile the likelihood of an extra session looms larger.

THE LABORER AND HIS HIRE.

Many interesting questions are involved in the movement begun by S. M. Barton of Cleveland, Ohio, to secure higher pay for the ministers in this country, as told of in The Herald last night. According to figures set forth by Mr. Barton, the annual pay of ministers throughout the United States, outside of the twenty-five largest cities, averages $575, and in some places is as low as $250. He cites instances where the pastors are poorly paid while members of their congregations ride to church in automobiles, and he argues from this that the congregations could afford to pay better salaries than they do.

It has been common knowledge for years that the pay of pastors of churches, taking the salary list throughout the country, has been extremely small, and many efforts to determine the reason have been made. Do people regard their religious instruction as of so little value that they are unwilling to give their teachers of religion only a pittance on which to live? Do they fail to appreciate the importance of the work of the ministers? Or is there some fault to be found with the clergymen themselves that is at the bottom of the trouble?

In comparison with the salaries paid to pastors it is interesting to note the great amounts paid to traveling evangelists. Not long ago it was announced that William Sunday was paid $4,000 for six weeks' work in a Western city. Compare that with the average pastor's salary, and then ask why there is such a difference. The work Sunday does is not to be compared with that of an earnest, conscientious and capable pastor. And yet Sunday gets the money and many a pastor counts himself fortunate if he gets much more than the sympathy of his congregation.

Perhaps one solution of the difficulty lies in the ministers themselves. It has been the custom for years, in evangelical churches particularly, for young men to decide to go into the ministry because they believe they have "a call" to such work. They may not be particularly fitted for it, may not be fitted for it at all, in fact, except as they may acquire certain knowledge of creeds and forms by a special course of training. Yet they show themselves able to answer certain questions satisfactorily, and give evidence of their sincerity, and straightway are put in charge of congregations.

Now a man may have an excellent study equipment, and yet be an absolute fizzle as a practical lawyer or doctor or teacher. He may know commercial law and be able to theorize to an unlimited extent on business lines, and yet be an utter failure in commercial lines. Just so a man may have all the knowledge that can be gathered on theology, creeds, church history and practice and be a careful student of the Bible, and yet fail in the ministry. It needs a particular type of man to minister to the spiritual needs of the people, and to do it in such a way that they will recognize his ministry as something they want and are willing to pay for.

To know these doctrinal matters, and even to be a reasonably good public speaker, is not enough. A minister, to be a success, either financially or as a spiritual leader, must have many of the qualities of the "mixer." He must have broad sympathies, and not be tied down by prejudice and egotism even in a mild form. Above all, he must have the qualties of leadership. No amount of theology, earnestness or good intent can make up for these things. It may not be true that the man who is getting a salary of $250 a year is worth no more than that. Many start low and rise by reason of their own ability. Many others start well up and sink from that point. In every case there is something back of it that causes that rise or fall, that success or failure. When the ministry has been cleared of the deadwood, of the unworthy material that clutters it today, when every man in that profession gives service that compels the people to recognize its value, the average of salaries will rise. The people today will not pay high prices for an inferior article of any kind, just because of religion or sentiment. They demand the delivery of the goods.

HOW CEDAR RAPIDS FARED.

Of particular interest to Duluth just now is the report made by W. H. Stepanek on the finances of the government of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, showing the progress made by that city in its three years under the commission plan. The report is too long to be reproduced in full, but the following are some of the most interesting features in that part of it that deals especially with the comparisons between 1908 and 1911.

The total assets of the city at the beginning of the year 1908 were valued at $1,208,998.52; at the beginning of the present year they were worth $1,661,148.26, an increase of nearly half a million dollars.

The total liabilities of the city at the beginning of 1908 were $755,830.09; at the beginning of 1911 they were $782,342.02, an increase of but $26,511.93 against the half million in assets.

The principal increases in the assets are represented by improvements on public structures and the acquisition of land. The principal increases in liabilities are as follows: Bridge bonds $53,000 at 5 per cent; yet to be paid on purchases of land for park, playground, and building purposes $61,150.

During the three years there have been retired the following: City water works bonds $60,000; serial refunding bonds $30,000; storm sewer bonds $45,000.

Among the improvements and added assets to the city during the three years are: Bridges $78,722.52; city hall personal property $1,570.50; fire alarm system $561; fire stations and equipments $18,328.97; parks, improvements and equipment $32,854.41; Island $163,913.99; police equipment $1,338.05.

During the year 1910 the city, besides continuing some uncompleted improvements to its property and beginning some other improvements, put in ten and a quarter miles of sanitary sewer, thirty-one blocks of brick paving, four and a half miles of curbing, one mile of tarvia macadam, eight miles of sidewalk, completed the Sixteenth avenue bridge, repaired the river dam, did some miscellaneous building and construction work, and paid to property owners for excessive assessments on paving, the sum of $9,320.99 out of the improvement fund.

Forecasting the work for 1911, the report says the following improvements have been outlined: "About a mile of sanitary sewer; forty-five blocks of paving; Third avenue and Eighth avenue bridges, at an approximate cost of $150,000; five or six miles of sidewalks; paving Sixteenth avenue bridge, reflooring A avenue viaduct, retaining wall for the Island, oiling of all macadam roads, etc."

Taking the figures for 1910 alone, the report shows that the expenditures amounted to $470,646.75 and the receipts to $461.92 more than the expenditures. The tax levy brought in $246,398.59. The total amount available in all funds for 1911 as shown by the estimates is $495,055.56, or $23,936.89 more than the receipts for 1910.

Cedar Rapids is prospering under the commission plan. It is another instance of modern city government making good.

$2,250,000,000 FOR WAR.

The world needs many things. It needs a better distribution of the good things of life, but before that it needs a better distribution of the bare necessaries of life. It needs a stronger and better equipped fight against poverty and disease. It needs better assurance against panic and depression. It needs stronger guaranties of industrial peace.

These things are needed so much that the world groans for the lack of them.

Proper laws, properly enforced and properly backed with public funds, would achieve these ends; but no country in the world has yet been able to afford to equip the movements to these noble ends with a proper amount of public money.

Why? Here is one reason, and the greatest reason of all, given in a recent speech by Henry Lloyd-George, British statesman, patriot and friend of man:

> But I must admit that the increase in expenditures, not only in this country but in every land under the sun, is due to what the fine and distinguished sailor Lord Charles Beresford referred to in the house of commons the other day as the mad and insane competition in armaments between the various countries of the world. The countries of the world are spending annually $2,250,000,000 upon this machinery of destruction. In twenty years there has been an increase of $1,000,000,000 per annum in this expenditure. All nations seem to be infected with an epidemic of prodigality in that respect, which seems to be sweeping over the world and sweeping it to destruction.

Well may Lord Charles Beresford call this dreadful competition "mad and insane." Well may Lloyd-George call it an "epidemic of prodigality." When the world needs so much for construction, what is it but madness to spend billions for destruction?

War, probably, is obsolete at this minute. The machinery of war has become so terrible that the world would hardly dare to go to war. Expensive as it is to equip and maintain the world's armament, it would be vastly more expensive to use it. Though the burden of taxes for militarism rests so heavily upon the world that a ghastly toll of death and disease is due to it, war with such implements as human ingenuity has devised would be far more disastrous; it would crush armies and navies as a foot crushes an ant hill.

While the world is wasting its millions for war and desolation, it is squeezing out pennies for the good of man. It is an admitted fact, for instance, that given money enough and workers enough and enough public knowledge of a few important facts, consumption could be all but obliterated in this country. Yet the government can spare no money for such a cause, though it is spending its hundreds of millions yearly for the waste of war.

There are many causes for the high cost of living, and not least important among them is the world's expenditure for war. Capital that ought to go into productive uses is tied up in equipments for armies and navies. Labor that ought to be directed to productive ends is diverted into these armies and navies. Every peasant in Europe carries a soldier on his back. No wonder living is high.

Sooner or later the world will disarm and war will be obsolete. The sooner it is done, the better for taxridden humanity.

MODESTY AND EFFRONTERY

By SAVOYARD.

Anecdotes of men, things and events, past and present, by Mr. E. J. Edwards, are exceedingly entertaining and valuable contributions to the newspapers that accept them. Some days ago Mr. Edwards discussed Ben Harrison, the twenty-third president, and spoke of the popular estimate of him as "a cold man." There are not many more effectual ways of nipping the career of a public man than by giving him reputation for "coldness," to adopt this cant of demagogy. I have found your demonstrative and eager "handshaker" the superlatively selfish chap, and there are just enough exceptions to establish the rule.

Mr. Edwards advances the testimony of Grover Cleveland, who found the man who succeeded him and whom he succeeded in the White House, generous, considerate and warm-hearted; but cordial as was Ben Harrison's heart, his manner was reserved. The most intellectual man Indiana ever produced, one of the greatest lawyers our country has produced, when Harrison went among the people he seemed to be seized with an inveterate diffidence that made him seem indifferent, severe, haughty, cold. That is what defeated him for governor in 1876, Dan Voorhees was just the opposite. There was nothing self-conscious about him, and he felt and meant all the cordiality he showed. That is what made him the idol of the plain folk of his state, whereas his rival was known as "Kid-glove Ben."

Proctor Knott, when he had a lifelease on his seat in congress, was another "cold" man. After serving two terms, he was defeated for renomination by the fraction of a vote in convention, and all because of his lack of the gushing cordiality of the self-seeking demagogue. Later the people again drafted him into service, and he was several terms in the national house of representatives, and could have been there till this day had he not voluntarily retired. Had he been a handshaker, had he possessed the breezy cordiality of Joe Blackburn, there is nothing more certain than that Knott would have been senator.

Carlisle was also "cold," and it was his gigantic mind alone that commanded support, not his manner, that persuaded a following. The case of James A. McKenzie was exceptional. Gifted orator that he was, admirable as were his parts, extensive as was his reading, McKenzie was overwhelmed with diffidence whenever he rose to speak. It was constitutional with him, and he never was rid of it. In social converse, when with his friends, he ever took the lead; but among strangers he could not help but put on a reserve that sometimes became frigid.

It was that same "coldness" that nearly beat Henry Cabot Lodge for United States senator the other day. Folks said he was proud, an aristocrat, cold, selfish, haughty, and he has that manner. So did George Washington, so did Ben Harrison, so did John G. Carlisle, so does every self-conscious, modest man. I prefer Aristides to Cleon. Heaven deliver us from the "warm-hearted" demagogue!

If you will take down thirteenth Ben Monroe of the reports of the Kentucky court of appeals and read the dissenting opinion of Elijah Hise in the case of Slack and the Maysville railroad, you will agree with me that it is the production of a prodigious mind. The first half of it is legal and technical, but it should delight the lawyer. The rest is political and philosophical and challenges the attention of the statesman. Every young man ought to read it, whether lawyer or layman.

Elijah Hise was a "cold" man, frigid, and yet he thought more of his country and his countrymen than any regiment of "handshakers" that even Kentucky could produce. Unfortunately his lines were cast in the old Whig third district, and he was not elected to congress until he was old, and disease and pain had made him ripe for the grave. Had he lived in the "Gibraltar" district, nothing could have kept him out of congress when entering upon his prime, and once a fixture there he would have ranked with Webster or Calhoun, with Alexander Hamilton or John Marshall. In 1859 Hise was an avowed candidate for United States senator before the legislature, and the old fellow tried to be cordial, but he could not. It was reminder of the sacrifice that saintly woman, Madam Huiot, sought to make in that most horrible of all the horrible narratives of the horrible Balzac, "Cousin Bette."

The tulip crowds from view the violet; the hollyhock is demonstrative; the primrose retiring. And so your selfish, calculating, sordid, mean, despicable demagogue, who monopolizes the scene, shakes hands from rise to set of sun, throws compliments hither and thither like soapsuds slashing in a laundry, and flatters the vulgar to feed his greed for place and gluttony for applause—this vile chap displaces the "cold" man.

Give me the "cold" man every time.

TALKS WITH THE STATE PRESS

There Is a Reason.

Litchfield Independent: The Eden Valley Journal wants to know what excuse Senator Knute Nelson has for his vote for the ship subsidy bill. There is no excuse, but there is a reason. He flocks with that crowd.

Which explains, even though it doesn't excuse.

Safety of the Mails.

Lake Crystal Union: It is not so much "due to our postal laws" that we feel safe after dropping our valuable packages into the postoffice, as it is to the fact that there are very few who have the temerity to tackle the job of violating the postal laws. Herein lies the safety.

Wherever it lies, it is a valuable thing, that safety.

Willing to Wear 'Em?

Little Falls Transcript: St. Paul dressmakers declare themselves flatfootedly unalterably opposed to the harem skirt, or the "jupe culotte," in true Parisian phrasing. Let 'em (it) come. Who's afraid?

Does this mean that Little Falls has at least one woman who will don them?

That Mexican War.

Red Wing Republican: The Mexican revolution completely eclipsed the European war cloud as a space filler for dull days in the metropolitan newspapers.

And it was just about as harmful.

Job for Someone.

Fergus Falls Journal: If the family row keeps up in St. Cloud and they all get into court, the laundry bill will be pretty large.

And who will be the laundryman? His honor the court?

Bailey as a Defender.

Winona Independent: Senator Bailey's defense of Lorimer is a very clever argument, but is lacking in the essential of plain common sense.

Which is characteristic of much that Bailey says.

Being a Pirate.

Stillwater Gazette: One of our young boys recently announced that when he grew up he wanted to be a pirate. Why not a Cub, a Giant or an Athletic?

They're all pirates, from the points of view of different fans.

Converting Stearns County.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: Miss Mary McFadden is trying to convert the Stearns county delegation in the legislature to the beauties and wisdom of woman's suffrage. We have great admiration for Miss Mary's courage.

If she is successful with the delegation as Republican campaigners were with the electorate, there will be "nothing to it."

Time Is Coming.

Hinckley Herald: The several deadlocks in the different legislatures over the country in selecting senators is a good demonstration of the need of a change in methods, different from what the interests are using to keep them in power. Popular election is not far off.

Speed the day. It can't come too soon.

British Migration Returns.

Consular Reports: From a parliamentary return just published, it is shown that, in 1910, 618,574 emigrants as against 473,378 in 1909 sailed from the ports of the United Kingdom. While the emigrants came from all parts of Europe more than one-half, or 398,119, were British subjects, and 246,609 went to British colonies and possessions. A notable feature of the emigrants were the large numbers going to Canada.

The immigrants into the United Kingdom in 1910 numbered 295,568 persons, the excess of departures over arrivals being 319,886. Of the immigrants 164,175 were British subjects and 134,693 were foreigners. Of the latter number 105,340 arrived from the United States.

Of the 220,635 foreigners who emigrated from the United Kingdom, 170,985 took passage for the United States. It will be thus seen that in 1910, 253,944 more British subjects left the United Kingdom than entered it, and that there was an excess of 85,942 in the number of foreign emigrants as compared with the number of immigrants.

Her Fame Is Spreading.

Washington Star: A Minnesota woman gave up stenography and took up farming. She now has 2,000 acres under profitable cultivation and does not have to bother about how words of more than three syllbles are spelled.

Going Among Friends.

Kansas City Star: Speaker Cannon has arranged to visit the Alps next summer. He has always admired the way the Alps have stood pat.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

COMMISSION FORM OF GOVERNMENT.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The board of public works and city engineer's office are not the only departments that duplicate their work.

Take the matter of permits for excavating for service connections. Three departments have to be visited, viz: engineer's, public works, and water and gas departments. After services are completed it takes four different inspectors to close the excavations. This work could be taken care of by one permit clerk and two inspectors then a record of the contractor or department would be kept of the excavation, and the proper parties compelled to place the street in its former condition which would be probably—month later, yearly saving $8,000.

Except for the library and water board, when advertising for supplies, one purchasing agent with council's O. K. ought to be sufficient for all city needs (more thousands saved).

Why employ an engineer for the assessor's department when we have already an engineering department which is competent and willing to do that work?

The same may be said of the water and gas works department.

Why not have all construction work go under a public works department?

The engineer of that department would plan, build and let contracts for extensions, leaving the superintendent of water works free to look after his repair gang.

The engineer would keep records (which he has not got now and it will take a clairvoyant to find the T's and crosses) open to the public for inspection.

In place of bonding the city, have a frontage tax on all extensions, making the unimproved property help pay for the improvement. This would save interest on a heavy bonded debt and the earnings would make all extensions.

Why have two accounting departments when the city comptroller now has to audit and the council O. K. water works payrolls and bills?

Why is the health officer compelled to jack up the department to repair its intake pipe and why is the analysis of water tests suppressed?

Finally all loose and straggling boards, which hold star chamber sessions should be absorbed by the commission form of government.

Leave the council with one alderman from each ward, thereby saving the city many more thousands monthly.

Yours truly, LAKESIDE.

DEFENDS RINGING OF THE CHURCH BELLS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

It is with surprise and regret at the stand you took, that I read in The Herald of yesterday in your editorial on "Why Is a Church Bell?" To me, a soldier of fortune, a wayward child of God, it is the one earthly means of which, when visiting a city, my attention is drawn from the pursuit of my daily bread and the carnal pleasures of this life, to the higher and more elevating thoughts of what can I do to lighten the burdens of suffering humanity. To me the church bell is the spoken word, that says: "Here is the place, now is the time to seek the Lord; that straight is the way and narrow is the gate that leads to life everlasting, and that broad is the way and wide is the gate that leads to destruction." To me the church bell proclaims the existence of an open court, a place where a person may commune with God and with people who openly endeavor to abide by God's rule, a place where open war is waged against vice and the ministers of the devil. These are a few of the reasons that occur to me of "Why is a Church Bell?"

H. E. ABELL.

A Kansas Mystery.

Kansas City Journal: Kansas is one of three states hich have no women dentists. The other two are North Carolina and Idaho. This is somewhat unusual for Kansas, where municipal suffrage prevails, where nearly one-half of the county superintendents are women, where 10,000 out of 12,000 teachers are women, where 500 bank officers are women, where the only woman in the world is probate judge, and where more woman's rights laws grace the statutes than in any other state of the Union.

The Biggest Egg in the World.

Johnstown, Pa., Democrat: The American museum of natural history has just come into possession of the largest egg in the world. It is more than two feet in circumference and is known to be more than 4,000 years old. The flying elephant which produced it has been long extinct. Cold storage men will feel real jealous when they read of this elderly ovulite.

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Ideas: Aged Derellct—Excusin' the liberty of arskin' a favor, mum, but would yer object to me committin' soeyside in yer shed?

Soft-hearted Woman—Poor man, you had better come up to the house, and I will give you the remains of my Christmas pudden.

Argonaut: Bishop X had officiated in the college chapel, and, though his discourse was excellent in itself, it had no obvious connection with the text. At dinner Prof. Y was asked his opinion of the bishop's sermon.

"Dear old man!" he exclaimed. "It was truly apostolic. He took a text and then went everywhere preaching the gospel."

Judge: Novice—It must be a dreadful sensation to run over a man!

Chauffeur—Not nearly so dreadful as to run over a cow—and it doesn't injure the machine so much.

Columbia Jester: Ticket Seller—How many?

Absent-Minded Student—Two standing room—together.

Young's Magazine: "Here's comes the bride," hailed Maude Fulton, as a demure young beauty and her proud, self-conscious escort joined the supper party. Then she told a story on her blushing young friend. (The friend says the story is not true.

"I live at the same hotel with Ethel," said Miss Fulton, "and sit at the same table with her. Yesterday morning she pouted at breakfast, sulked at luncheon and at dinner was so cold that her adoring young husband was almost distracted. From soup to coffee he pleaded abjectly to at least be told the nature of his offense. Finally Ethel's lips began to quiver and a great big tear splashed into her finger bowl.

"'Jack,' she burst forth, 'If I ever dream again that you have kissed another woman I'll never speak to you as long as I live!"

Judge: Crawford—Do you approve of women going into politics?

Crabshaw—Sure. Look at what pretty bosses they would make.

Argonaut: James K. Hackett recently said at a luncheon in Pittsburg: "An actor should be modest, and most actors are. But I know a young actor who, at the beginning of his career, carried modesty almost too far. This young man inserted in all the dramatic papers a want advertisement that read: 'Engagement wanted—Small part, such as dead body or outside shouts, preferred.'"

Judge: A man and woman accidentally touched each other's feet under the table.

"Secret telegraphy," said he.

"Communion of soles," said she.

Smart Set: The Cabbage—Were you ever on the stage?

The Egg—No; but one of my family was once cast for the villain and made a big hit.

Mack's Monthly: A bare-footed negro wandered into a blacksmith shop in a little Southern town. While watching the smith pound the iron into shape he unconsciously stepped on a red hot coal. After several minutes had passed he sniffed his nose once or twice and remarked in an incidental way:

"Peahs to me, sah, dat I smells rubbah burnin'."

Mack's National Monthly: The tough customer was struggling with a tough steak in a tough restaurant.

"Say, you!" he finally roared at a waiter, "I ain't used to eatin' rhinoceros hide—fetch mo something a little more noruishin', in a hurry!"

"Aw, fade awsy, little one!" said the pugilist waiter, witheringly, "what do you t'ink this joint is—a diet kitchen?"

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: An empty head is easily turned.

Sometimes the best way to save money is to spend it well.

Excuses and weeds are plentiful—but what good are they?

A forty-eight-inch chest is no evidence that a man is big hearted.

A girl doesn't mind taking cold provided her clothes look all right.

It takes more than a skeleton key to open a legislative deadlock.

If a girl is homely she can't afford to keep her domestic virtues under cover.

Those who have been there and fallen off tell us there is plenty of room at the top.

A woman never has a better time than when she is doing something that makes another woman envy her.

Of course you have heard that wealth will not buy happiness—but did you ever hear any one say that poverty would?

But as a matter of fact it never pays a woman to lie awake nights for the purpose of listening to what her husband says in his sleep.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Heaps and heaps of people can improve their morals by getting very sick.

You can always prove a man is wrong in an argument by letting him do it.

A woman is most successful with man by letting him think the success is his.

The minute a girl gets married she wants some other girl to begin the same trouble.

Enthusiasm is the first to burst into a hard game, and first to sputter out of it.

At Washington.

Kansas City Journal: There is too much absenteeism at Washington. Too many representatives and senators are running about looking after private business when they should be at their post of duty. This is permitted under the outsom of "pairing" a Democrat and a Republican, or a man who is "for" something with a man who is "against" it. While congress is trying to reform everything else under the sun why does it not reform its own practices? Why not make at least a show of working while on the public pay rolls?

A VENDOR OF LUXURY.

Anaconda, Mont., Standard: The possibilities of humble things found convincing demonstration in the life of a man who died in Missouri the other day. He was only 56 years old, yet he had made a fortune out of an industry which he developed until its output is indispensable in every city, hamlet and wilderness of the Western continent. He put the corncob pipe on the market.

The "Missouri Meerschaum King" started his active career as cashier of a small bank. But he cherished ambition to become a benefactor of mankind and he wanted to break into the class on a large scale. He didn't despise any means, however unpretentious, and he found his calling right at the door of the little business house to which customers came smoking homemade pipes of corncob. He saw his chance and built up a new business by which the humblest form of tobacco furnace has become the standard of luxury wherever the fragrant weed is consumed.

There are more pretentious pipes; the sea foam of Germany; the brier of France and the calabash of Africa are treasured by the affluent, but the man who smokes for smoking and not for vulgar display swears by the heart of King Corn and when the clubman forsakes the veneer of the city for recreation in the great outdoors he leaves behind the frumpery which litters the showcase of the tobacconist and orders a box of the old reliable hollowed corncobs. That's the real companion for the hunter, the fisher and the adventurer. The restless British poet who wrote about a pleasure in the pathless woods and a rapture on the lonely shore was ahead of his time, and instead of reminiscent rhapsody he can be credited only with a lucky guess. He was merely the prophet of the Missouri meerschaum.

It's proof that there's a poetic justice permeating the universe that final favor should light on the humblest but most luxurious of pipes, to the discomfiture of those who would defend foreign makeshifts. Corn and tobacco grew together on the western shores long before Europeans came, to find them as justification for discovering America. So the man who piled up dollars by promoting the inexpensive combination earned them well. He restored the solace of tobacco to the simplicity in which alone it can attain the highest plane of luxury.

Abolish the Hip Pocket.

Birmingham News: We can recall few cases in which the hip pocket has contributed to the happiness of the human race, but it would appear that quite a number of otherwise good citizens seem to think it is indispensable.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

ARE VOTING IN BEMIDJI

Warm City Election Being Held Tuesday in Beltrami County Seat.

Three Candidates for Mayor, But Interest Centers Around Other Contests.

Bemidji, Minn., Feb. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The result of the lively city campaign that has been waged here is being determined at the polls today. Weather conditions are favorable and a full vote is expected to be polled.

There are three candidates for mayor, John Parker, the present incumbent; William McCuaig, who is running for the first time, and J. H. Grant, Socialist. All three are hopeful of election.

The main fights seem to be between the candidates for city treasurer, city clerk and the alderman-at-large. Treasurer Earl Gell asks for re-election on the Public Ownership party ticket, this action alone being the cause of his having an opponent. George Rhea is the independent candidate, Charles Hoyt, George Stein, present acting city clerk; Charles Schroeder and Garfield Akerberg, Socialist, are the candidates for city clerk.

Three After Alderman-at-Large.

Three candidates seek the office of alderman-at-large, L. F. Johnson, Thomas Maloy, the reform candidate, and N. F. Malzahn, the Socialist candidate. With the exception of the First and Fourth wards the present aldermen ask for their re-elections and are opposed by Socialists.

The Socialists claim that their candidates for mayor, city clerk and city treasurer will easily win. The Public Ownership party in Bemidji is growing steadily and at the present time has about 200 pledged supporters.

FARMERS' WIVES HOLD INSTITUTE

Gather at Grand Forks and Hear Speaker Discuss Domestic Science.

Grand Forks, N. D., Feb. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—An institute for farmers' wives is being held here today under the direction of the Women's Civic league. The institute speaker is Miss Anna Barrows, head of the home economics department at Columbia university. Five sessions are being held in the Elk club rooms and about 300 women are in attendance. Miss Barrows spoke on "Domestic Science," telling how to select food, how to buy it and how to cook it and then made an earnest plea for all mothers to give their daughters a course in domestic science.

An informal reception followed the address during which the women asked questions they wished solved. Miss Barrows gave domestic science demonstrations during the morning at the university and spoke for a few minutes before the high school girls in the afternoon.

BURGLAR IN HOLE.

Had Broken Jail and Secreted Himself Under Friend's Kitchen.

Ambrose, N. D., Feb. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Will Miller, who was arrested on a charge of burglary broke jail and before he was located the following day it was necessary for the officials to procure a search warrant for the privilege of going through the home of Joe Vadnais, Miller's friend. He was found in a hole under the kitchen floor, sometimes used as a cellar, over which an oil cloth had been tacked. Vadnais was arrested on the charge of aiding a prisoner to escape and bound over to the district court.

NIEMI BLAMES BOOZE FOR ACT

Says Drink Prompted Him ot Murder and Gets Life Sentence.

Eau Claire, Wis., Feb. 21.—Henry Niemi, the 26-year-old Finn, who hacked James Elward, a lumberjack, to death with an ax near Hayward, Jan. 21, last, for the purpose of robbery then fled and was captured at Duluth, told Judge James Wickham in circuit court yesterday afternoon, after pleading guilty to murder in the first degree, that he was drunk when he shed Elward's blood and did not know what he was doing. His plea for mitigation was futile as the court after scoring him gave him the limit in this state for first degree murder, life in Waupun penitentiary.

Niemi confessed that he came up behind Elward on the lonely highway near Hayward Saturday morning, Jan. 21, and hit him in the head with an ax. He then cut and smashed at him with the three-pound weapon of iron and wood until life was extinct. Then he went through his victim's clothing and was awarded with a time check for $15. He later cashed this at a bank in Hayward and intimated that he could not sign his name after saying he was Elward.

MONSTER PARADE AT MANKATO MEET

Promises to Be Big Feature of Minnesota Sunday School Convention.

Mankato, Minn., Feb. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. H. Martin of Minneapolis, president of the Minnesota State Sunday School association, and A. M. The Mankato band will lead the procession and it is expected that many other bands will lead delegates from other cities. This is only one feature of the great three days' convention in which four noted specialists from outside the state and many great leaders in Sunday school work in this state are engaged as speakers and instructors. A great bazar and Sunday school exhibit will be opened for the study of all.

Every Sunday school in Minnesota is requested to send delegates who will report the convention at an echo meeting on their return from the convention. Minnesota has more than 2,000 Sunday schools with more than 200,000 enrollment. During the three days' session it is expected that more than 1,000 regular delegates and many visitors will be present. It is thought that he got a lighted candle too close to the varnish and this caused an explosion. The walls of the vat were blown outward and the unfortunate man was blown through one side. When picked up by brewery employes who were in the building he was lifeless.

Dr. Selbach was summoned but when he arrived there was no sign of life.

Mr. Olberts is survived by a wife and children.

IS VETERAN ASSESSOR.

Gilbert Haave of Pennington County Probably Holds Record.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Feb. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is probable that Gilbert Haave, a resident of the town of Norden in Pennington county, is the oldest assessor in the state in point of the number of years of continuous service. For the last twenty-one years he has been regularly elected by the farmers of this town and not in all that long period has any one questioned his integrity or his fairness in performing his official duties.

George Curran of the grocery firm of Zeh & Curran was married last Friday to Miss May Paine of Brainerd at the home of the bride's mother. Miss Paine was formerly a teacher in the local schools and has many acquaintances here. They will begin housekeeping at once in the Dober flats on Second street.

The building occupied by J. Hodek, the tailor, was destroyed by fire on Saturday night, the fire originating from an overheated stove used for heating smoothing irons. The loss is complete. There was little insurance on either building or goods.

Grand Forks, N. D., Feb. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge C. F. The amount involved is about $15,000 a year and Judge Templeton has caused the issuance of a writ of mandamus directing the county auditor to pay over to the city all money due. The ruling means that the county will have to build all bridges outside of the city without aid from the city and the case will probably be carried to the supreme court.

Health and Beauty Advice

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

Grateful: (1). I am glad you like my canthrox shampoo recipe. Do not use more than one teaspoonful to a cup of water, as that is sufficient to thoroughly cleanse the scalp and make the hair soft and glossy. (2) I cannot recommend a face powder which will not rub off, but would suggest trying the following, which is the most delightful toilet preparation you can use: Get four ounces of spurmax from the drug store and dissolve in half-pint of hot water, then add two teaspoonfuls glycerine, shake well and let cool. Use this instead of powder. It will clear the pores and give the skin a smooth and satiny feeling impossible with powder. This inexpensive toilet preparation acts as a complexion beautifier, and the sallow, lifeless color of your skin will soon give way to a ruddy glow of youthful health.

Ilene: Your embarrassment over the downy growth on your arms will be of short duration if you will use a little powdered delatone. Get from the druggist an ounce of powdered delatone, and with a little mix enough water to make a paste. Spread thickly over offending hairs and let remain two or three minutes, then remove and wash the skin carefully. While delatone is a trifle expensive, it never fails, and seldom is a second application necessary. To insure results, be careful to get the pure delatone.

Mrs. Pat: Cold weather should not be an excuse for neglecting the hair and scalp. The reason you always catch cold after a shampoo is because the mixture you employ opens the pores and robs the hair follicles of their oily secretion. This causes the scalp to become dry and hard and makes the hair brittle and difficult to manage. If you use canthrox for shampooing once a week for a while, you can soon correct this condition and avoid future colds after washing the head. A teaspoonful of canthrox dissolved in a teacup of hot water is ample for a good shompoo, and if the scalp is carefully massaged with this, it will remove dust and dandruff, and stimulate the follicles to healthy action, and the hair will become long, glossy and abundant.

X. Y. Z.: Your husband has a right to object to your using greasy creams. Such treatment will not overcome an oily complexion, but if you prepare the following inexpensive massage cream jelly your troubles will soon end: Get an ounce of almozoin from your druggist and dissolve in half-pint of water, add two teaspoonfuls glycerine, stir well and let stand a few hours. Massaging at night with this soon cleans and clears the skin, corrects a faulty complexion and prevents wrinkles.

Cora B.: Lack of fresh air and sufficient exercise makes sluggish blood, deranges the liver and is responsible for the pimply condition of your face. If you use a good tonic it will throw off impurities, regulate the system and your complexion will clear and become soft and rosy. Here is a good recipe: Get an ounce of kardene from the drug store and dissolve in half-pint alcohol, adding one-half cup sugar, then hot water to make a full quart. A tablespoonful of this inexpensive tonic before meals will renew your health and energy and bring back the bloom of health to the cheeks.

Mrs. D.: You ask for a harmless fat reducer. The only reliable one I know is the parnotis recipe, which is inexpensive and easily made. Get from the druggist four ounces of parnotis and dissolve in 1½ pints of hot water. The dose is a tablespoonful before each meal, and if these simple directions are followed you will soon regain your normal weight. The pleasant feature of this treatment is you do not have to starve yourself or indulge in violent exercise to obtain desired results.

Lois: At your age your eyes should have their youthful sparkle, but they need attention the same as your body. Here is an old and reliable formula for an eye tonic which is inexpensive: Dissolve an ounce of crystos in a pint of warm water. One or two drops in each eye removes foreign particles, relieves burning and smarting and reduces inflammation. It is also good for tired, aching eyes and makes them clear and sparkling. You can get crystos in any drug store.

R. F. D.: It is foolish for you to pay a fancy price for a quinine hair tonic when you can make a good one at home at trifling cost. If you will get an ounce of quinzoin from the druggist and dissolve it in one-half pint alcohol, then add water to make a pint, you will have as good hair tonic as money can buy. Rubbing a little well into the hair roots each night tones and strengthens the scalp and hair and keeps it in healthy condition. You will not be troubled with dandruff or falling hair if you use this tonic, and the hair will grow long, abundant and glossy.

WEST END OBTAINING GUARANTEES

Hillside Club Takes Steps to Have Water Mains Extended.

Guarantee on Entire Cost of Improvement Will Not Be Required.

Members of the West End Hillside Improvement club this week and next will make a thorough canvass of the hillside district of the West end to secure guarantees to the water and light board for the extension of the water mains to the Ensign school district.

Peter Oleon, president of the club, who has interviewed the water and light officials, says that the board demands an 8 per cent guarantee of the cost of the improvement, or about $1,000 annually.

The club won its point and has received assurance from the water board that guarantees will only have to be furnished for the cost of the mains laid west of Twentieth avenue west and Seventh street. East of this point the mains run over considerable vacant property, most of which is owned by the city and constitutes Central park.

A 10-inch main will probably be used. It will start from Fourteenth avenue west and Fifth street, running from there straight north for a short distance and then west, following the north side of the street until the intersection of Eighteenth avenue west and Seventh street is reached. The extension will be taken along Seventh street to Piedmont avenue and up Piedmont avenue to Twenty-third avenue west and Tenth street, where the Ensign school is located. The improvement will cost at least $25,000.

STATE AID TO SCHOOLS

that it would be better to put the measure at the head of general orders, where it will be acted upon in a day or two.

The bill appropriates $100,000 to take the form of state aid for common schools in districts that are now handicapped because of the large amounts of state lands which pay no taxes for local purposes. The first idea was to tax state lands for road and school purposes, but it was found that this would be clearly unconstitutional. It is believed that this bill is thoroughly constitutional, yet it reaches the same end, and will, if passed, accomplish the same result.

Distribution of the Money.

The money is to be distributed to the counties in proportion to the amount of unsold state land in each, only land included within organized townships to be counted. The appropriation is to be made annually. County treasurers are to divide the funds allotted to each county to the several school districts therein in proportion to the acreage of state land in each district. Mineral lands are not to be considered. The amount each district is to receive is limited to 5 cents on each acre of state lands, this being about equivalent to the school tax this state land would pay if it were not exempted from taxation. The effect of the bill, therefore, is to tax state lands for school purposes, though, because of constitutional objections, the result is reached in another way.

Representative C. H. Warner made an eloquent plea in support of the bill, which he described as a proposal for a square deal to Northern Minnesota. As it is now, state lands cannot be sold until practically every stick of timber is removed from them. Therefore they cannot go into the hands of settlers who will pay local taxes upon them, so these large areas of untaxed state land form a bar to the development of the northern part of the state. Mr. Warner said that there are many townships in which 60 to 75 per cent of the land is owned by the state, leaving only a small proportion of the land to pay local taxes.

The chance for the passage of the bill seems good.

Senate Defeats County Option.

County option, as expected, was defeated in the senate yesterday afternoon. It mustered but 24 votes, when 32 were needed to pass it, and there were 37 votes against it, with two members absent. This wasn't doing quite so well for the bill as many had estimated.

The county option proposition has already been voted down in the house, so yesterday's vote of the senate disposes of it until the legislative campaign of 1912.

Some good talks were made on both sides of the question. Senator V. L. Johnson of Center City, author of the bill and chairman of the senate committee on temperance, made the principal address in its behalf, and Senator Julius A. Coller of Shakopee made the chief talk against it.

Senator Johnson said that local option, much praised by opponents of county option, is a farce. An entire township may be overwhelmingly against the saloon, yet a small section carved out of the middle of it and called a village, may vote in saloons. He stated that in his county one small village, casting but thirty-five to forty votes, with elections subject to the will of the saloon keepers, their bartenders and their friends, has the right to vote saloons into the midst of a farming community of 1,500 to 2,000 souls. He figured that at least $40,000 a year is spent in the purchase of intoxicating liquors in Minnesota, and that half of it is spent over the bars of saloons that exist in defiance of sentiment against them that could be made effective under county option. The county is the logical unit, he said, because it is the county that has to pay the expenses that are caused by the liquor traffic.

Senator Coller made an eloquent and forceful talk against county option. He said it is, in fact, county prohibition.

SCALES BROKE OUT ALL OVER HER BODY

Scalp Affected, Hair Began to Fall. Hands So Disfigured She Had to Wear Gloves All the Time. Two Hospitals Unable to Assure Cure.

First Application of Cuticura Soap and Ointment Allayed Itching. Psoriasis Has Disappeared.

"Allow me to say a few words in praise of the Cuticura Remedies. About three years ago, I was affected by white scales on my knees and elbows. I consulted a doctor who treated me for ringworm. I saw no change and consulted a specialist and he claimed I had psoriasis. I continued treatments under him for about six months until I saw scales breaking out all over my body save my face. My scalp was affected, and my hair began to fall. I then changed doctors to no avail. I went to two hospitals and each wanted to make a study of the case and seemed unable to cure it or assure me of a cure. I tried several patent medicines and was finally advised by a friend who has used Cuticura on her children since their birth, to purchase the Cuticura Remedies. I purchased a cake of Soap, the Ointment and the Resolvent. After the first application, the itching was allayed.

"I am still using the Soap and Ointment and now feel that none other is good enough for my skin. The psoriasis has disappeared and I everywhere feel better. My hands were so disfigured before using the Cuticura Remedies that I had to wear gloves all the time. Now my body and hands are looking fine." (Signed) Miss Sara Burnett, 2135 Fitzwater St., Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 30, '10.

Cuticura Soap (25c.) and Cuticura Ointment (50c.) are sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole props., 135 Columbus Ave., Boston, for free book on affections of the skin and scalp.

It would increase bli... pigs and hypocrisy, take away reve... destroy property, invade the right of ... cal self-government and trespass on p... rights. It is one-sided, because while it provides that if a county shall vote dry it shall be dry throughout its length and breadth, but if the county votes wet, it can still be made dry in spots under the local option law, which the bill retains for wet counties but not for dry counties.

Senator W. S. Dwinnell of Minneapolis, in declaring for the bill, said that he hoped to see the issue settled soon so that men may be elected to the legislature because of their fitness, and not solely because they were on one side or the other of this question.

Senator Murray said that the trouble with the county optionists is that they cannot understand that it is a condition and not a theory that they are up against. Society has had John Barleycorn to contend with since the dawn of history, and all attempts to prohibit the traffic have failed. These attempts merely result in blind pigs where the vilest liquors are sold. The remedy should be the reform and strict regulation of the saloon.

Senators Lende and Nelson also spoke for the bill.

The vote was as follows:

For county option—Bedford, Cashman, Dale, Dwinnell, Elwell, Fosseen, Froshaug, Gunderson, Hackney, Hanson, Haycraft, V. L. Johnson, Lende, Nelson, Odell, Peterson, Putnam, Rustad, Sageng, Saugstad, Sundberg, Thoe, Wallace, Wilson—24.

Against county option—Ahmann, Anderson, Benson, Boyle, Carpenter, Cheadle, Clague, Coller, C. F. Cook, L. O. Cooke, Denegre, Duea, Dunn, Duxbury, Glotzbach, Gunn, Handlan, C. D. Johnson, Johnston, Klein, L'Hereault, McGrath, Marden, Murray, Olson, Pauly, Poehler, Pugh, Rockne, Schaller, Stebbins, G. H. Sullivan, J. D. Sullivan, Swanson, Van Hoven, Weis, Works—37.

Absent—Donaldson, Moonan.

Only one senator from St. Paul voted for the bill, only two from Minneapolis voted against it, and none from St. Louis county voted for it. Two Democrats and one Populist voted for the bill; the rest of the Democrats voted against it.

Bills Passed by the House.

The house put in a busy afternoon yesterday and passed a large number of bills, among them the following:

By Representative Conley—Requiring safety devices to be placed on corn shredders.

By Representatives Moriarity and Nash—Making Columbus day, Oct. 12, a legal holiday. After this bill was passed it was discovered that by mistake it had repealed Good Friday as a legal holiday, so the vote was reconsidered, the correction made, and the bill repassed.

By the house committee on game and fish—Fixing June 1 instead of May 29 as the first day of the open season on bass.

By Representative L. H. Rice—Requiring townships to cut brush, weeds and grass from public roads in places where they are likely to cause snow to drift, and requiring the erection of snow fences where needed.

By Representative Spooner—Appropriating $30,000 to be used by the state drainage commission to construct an outlet for the waters of Mustinka state ditch in Traverse county.

By Representative White—Extending from five to seven years the time within which the law requiring certain improvements on lands bought from the state may be complied with. The bill affects purchases made since 1905, those in that year being now forfeited to the state unless the specified improvements have been made. Senator D. M. Gunn of Grand Rapids has on general orders in the senate a bill repealing all these requirements.

By Representative Mattson—Authorizing counties to appropriate $200 a year to maintain demonstration farms under the supervision of the department of agriculture of the state university.

Bills Introduced.

The following bills came into the house yesterday afternoon:

By Representatives Robertson, Palmer and Utecht—Prohibiting fraudulent and misleading advertising and providing penalties therefor.

By Representative Lennon—Increasing the bushel tax on grain from a quarter of a mill to 1 mill on wheat and flax and from an eighth of a mill to half a mill on other grains.

By Representative McMartin—Giving the tax commission power to employ special assessors and deputies to reassess property anywhere in the state when it is necessary or called for by property owners.

By Representative S. N. Lee—Proposing a constitutional amendment authorizing the loaning of state school funds on farm lands, the loans to amount to not more than 30 per cent of the valuation of the mortgaged property and interest not to be less than 3 per cent. Mr. Lee has a bill before the house authorizing such loans, but because of the fact that it would be unconstitutional he proposes to remove the constitutional difficulty by having the Constitution amended.

By Representative Hillman of Two Harbors—Providing four terms of district court in Lake county instead of two, to be held on the first Wednesday in March, June, September and December.

By Representative Hauge and Anderson—Appropriating $10,000 to be spent by a commission of five, appointed by the governor, in building a statue in Stillwater to commemorate the first territorial convention, which was held in Stillwater Aug. 26, 1848.

By Representative W. T. Stone—Providing for a new fireproof dormitory at the St. Cloud normal school, to cost $75,000.

By the house committee on labor and labor legislation—Redrafting the child labor law, the most important innovations being as follows: Prohibiting the employment of boys under 18 years as telegraph messengers or by messenger companies between 9 p. m. and 5 a. m., and prohibiting the employment of girls under 21 years of age in such work at any time; providing that no children under 14 years may be employed between 7 p. m. and 7 a. m.; and providing that no children may be employed around theaters without the written consent of the mayor or president of the council.

By Representative Nash—Making it a misdemeanor for minors to visit public dance halls, concert saloons, places where drinkables are sold or other immoral places.

By Representative Nash—Authorizing county boards to lay out public highways, to acquire land for that purpose by gift, purchase or condemnation, and to employ competent engineers to supervise the work.

By Representative Lydiard—Allowing the breeding of game birds and trout by private individuals for the market by permission of the state game and fish commission, and allowing birds and fish so raised to be sold under the supervision of the commission.

By Representative Rines — Providing for the taxation of reserved mineral rights, and providing that whenever requested by the purchaser of land the mineral rights on which have been reserved, the county auditor shall list the mineral rights for taxation.

Four-Year Terms for County Officers.

Four-year terms instead of two-year terms for county officers are provided for in a bill introduced in the house yesterday afternoon by Representative R. C. Dunn by request. The bill is intended to include the present incumbents, as it provides that no election for county officers shall be held until 1914, and that those elected then shall hold office for four years. The bill covers county treasurers, auditors, sheriffs, registers of deeds, attorneys, coroners, surveyors and superintendents of schools. The office of clerk of district court is now on the four-year basis.

While the legislature always has shied at this proposal in the past, it is probable that the majority of the people would have no objection to having county elections only every four years instead of every other year, and that so long as it was going to be changed there would be no very bitter criticism if those now in office were given the benefit of the change.

C. P. Craig of Duluth made a forceful talk yesterday afternoon before the house committee in agriculture in behalf of the Congdon bill to establish a branch school of agriculture at Duluth. The committee has not acted on this or any other of the seven similar bills now pending before it.

Secretary of State Julius Schmahl made a new record this year in the publication of the legislative blue-books, which came out Saturday. It was followed yesterday by the pocket manuals, issued for the convenience of the members of the legislature.

WILL DOUBLE FLOOR SPACE

Gray-Tallant Company Will Occupy Entire Metropolitan Building.

The Gray-Tallant company will soon use the entire Metropolitan building

The company has been using but half of the building up to the present time, but so great has been the growth in business, that the company has for some months felt the need of larger quarters.

The other half of the building was, prior to the recent fire, occupied by the Wieland Shoe company and the Duluth Hardware company. The Gray-Tallant company will now have a frontage of over 100 feet on Superior street, with a depth of 141 feet.

The burned portion of the store will be remodeled at once. The plans have been completed and they are now in the hands of the contractors.

Mark Fitzpatrick, a leading St. Paul architect, prepared the plans. The Gray-Tallant company had nothing to do with the choice of an architect. Mr. Fitzpatrick has done all work for the owners of the building for nearly twenty years past, and they again engaged him to draw the plans for the building, which will be practically new throughout.

The cost of the improvements will be at least $60,000. It will take at least five months to complete the repairs.

The plans call for a terra-cotta and plateglass front. There will be three entrances. Special care will be taken with the front. It will be the most modern and up-to-date in the city.

The building will remain three stories in height. Two large electric elevators will be provided. The heating and ventilating plants will be the most modern in the city.

The growth of this firm has been little short of wonderful. It began in 1902, and from that time on the growth has been rapid.

Ladies' Sanative Wash.

A prominent physician recommends the following formula as a perfect blessing to women who need a thorough-acting antiseptic sanative wash, by injection or douche, for leucorrhea, etc.

Obtain the ingredients separately and mix at home, if any embarrassment is felt. Get 2 ounces of antiseptic vilane powder, 1 ounce tannic acid and 1 ounce sulphate of zinc. Mix thoroughly and use a teaspoonful to a quart of warm water, as a douche or injection for diseased conditions. Cold water may be used for a simple, cleansing, sanative wash whenever needed. Its action destroys microbes, disease, germs, etc. Tones up the mucous membrane and keeps the parts in a healthy natural condition.

When used once by women it takes its place in her regular necessary toilet articles, because of its reliability and effectiveness.

MAY DOUBLE LICENSE FEE

More Stringent Regulations for Employment Offices Are Proposed.

Application of Louis Waters for Saloon License Is Denied.

More stringent regulation for the conduct of employment offices are provided in several amendments to the ordinance which had their first reading before the city council last night. They are intended to eliminate the large number of complaints now being made to the authorities, by giving the legal department a better opportunity to obtain convictions for violations of the ordinance.

The license fee is raised from $100 to $200, but the bond is cut down from $10,000 to $2,000. The agent is required to have a written order for all men he sends out, and no men can be sent out on an order more than a week after it has been received. In the past it has not been uncommon to have men sent out a couple of weeks after the order had been placed with the employment agent.

The agent is obliged to furnish the men with a duplicate copy of the order, stating the kind of work, the probable duration, the wages to be paid him, the charges which will be levied against him for hospital fees, carrying mail, etc., the nearest railroad station to the camp, the direction of the camp from the railroad and the distance to it. One amendment limits the fee to be charged to $1 for jobs not paying over $45 a month, and a limit of $2.50 for jobs paying over that amount. The amendments had their first reading and will be brought up later by the committee on ordinances and resolutions, to which it was referred.

The city treasurer was authorized to set aside $500 from the funds of the board of public works to cash time checks issued to employes of the board. Alderman Shartel explained that many men are hired for short times and that they have to wait for their money until the first of each month. To avoid this they have gone outside, where they have been charged 25 cents and 50 cents by persons who cashed them. He didn't think that this was just, particularly to the man who had a small check.

A resolution was passed directing that the dock at Marion street on Park Point, just below the landing of the aerial bridge, be repaired at a cost not to exceed $200.

The matter of dropping the proposed pavement of Second avenue east between Third and Fourth streets, was referred to the board of public works and the city engineer for a report.

The application of Louis Waters for a saloon license at 1002 Garfield avenue was refused. It was explained that one of the men whom he named for reference refused to indorse him. The place was formerly conducted by Alex Tifer, who was refused a license o nthe grounds that he had allowed disreputable women to frequent the place.

Petitions were received for the paving of Glenwood street between Fifty-fourth and Sixtieth avenue east, for the grading and graveling of Highland street on Duluth Heights, between Balsam and Orange streets, and for a sanitary sewer in Oneida street, between Fifty-fourth and Forty-ninth avenues.

R. P. Dowse & Co. and the Hartman-O'Donnell agency were awarded the contracts for furnishing bonds for city officials. It is said that the bids submitted by five of the bonding companies were identical to a cent.

The $5,000 worth of certificates of indebtedness asked by the park board were granted.

• • •

An amendment to extend the fire limits to First street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues west, was introduced. The amendment is said to be for the purpose of preventing the construction of a number of frame buildings proposed to be erected on the lower side of First street between those avenues.

IN FAVOR OF RECIPROCITY

Senator Aldrich Approves of the Canadian Trade Agreement.

Writes Letter to President Taft in Which He Expresses Opinion.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Senator Aldrich, chairman of the finance committee of the senate, has written to President Taft that he favors the confirmation of the Canadian reciprocity agreement.

Whether the letter makes promises of assistance in getting action in the senate at the present session has not been disclosed, but senators who have seen the letter intimate that the senator will do all he can to aid the president in carrying his program through the senate.

Announcement that Senator Aldrich, whose name is attached to the existing tariff act, had subscribed to the terms of the reciprocity agreement with Canada, was received with great surprise in the senate, especially by the "stand-pat" senators, who have come out against the agreement on the grounds that it is not in compliance with the tenets of the Republican party on the subject of protection. Some of the senators report that the chairman of the finance committee, who in tariff fights has always been found on the side of protection for every industry, whether manufacturing, agricultural or mining, had indorsed the president's program for freer trade with Canada.

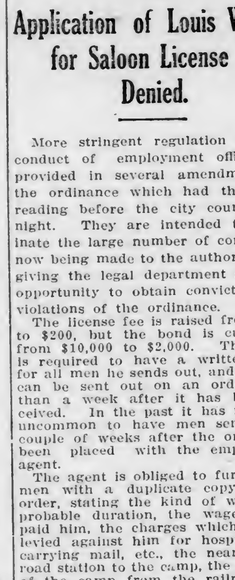

No announcement was made at the White House in respect to the letter and there was considerable speculation at the capitol as to whether the message would be made public. Early in the present session Aldrich was compelled to leave Washington on account of his health. He is spending the winter at Jekyl Island, Georgia, although much better than when he left here, it is not likely, however, that he will be able to take any further part in tariff legislation, for his service in the senate will end March 4.

Soon after the reciprocity agreement was sent to congress, and it was reported it had little chance in the senate, President Taft wrote to Senator Aldrich. It is understood that the executive urged the veteran tariff bill maker to come and take charge of the fight for the measure in the senate.

At one time it was rumored that Mr. Aldrich might come back, but this report was denied.

Senators who discussed the statement issued by Representative McCall, following his Sunday interview with President Taft, construed it to mean that an extra session of congress surely would be called by the president in the event the senate failed to act.

There is no doubt that it filled some senators with consternation, while some others felt that it was only a gentle reminder from the White House that the "big stick" was still in working order.

NEW SCHOOL IS OPENED

First Classes Held in Washington Manual Training Building.

School Well Equipped for Teaching Industrial Arts and Domestic Science.

The manual training department of the new Washington school on Lake avenue, between Third and Fourth streets, was formally opened yesterday and the classes had their first view of the new school and its equipment, which is probably the finest in Minnesota. The first days will be given over principally to instructing the students in the use of the new equipment and conveniences and the systematizing of the work, but everything is expected to go along smoothly by the latter part of this week.

As soon as the work is well under way, the school will be thrown open some evening for the inspection of the public, in order that parents may know what facilities are provided for teaching their children practical work.

The arrangement and equipment of the school are the results of the best modern knowledge of manual training methods. The domestic science and industrial arts departments are both fully provided with apparatus for carrying on the work with the greatest facility and best results.

The domestic science department on the first floor is provided with facilities for teaching not only cooking, but housework of all kinds, millinery and dressmaking.

The manual training work for the boys is divided into metal work, wood work and drawing. The forge room and foundry are fully equipped with forges, furnaces, punches, drills, etc., while the machine shop has lathes and other equipment for metal work.

The woodworking department and print shop are on the second floor. The instruction in printing will be practical and the boys will later get out a school weekly and do considerable printing for the schools.

The art department, in charge of Miss Gertrude Carey, and the mechanical drawing and lecture rooms are on the third floor of the building.

The wash room contains 180 lockers and there are six shower baths for the use of the students.

A regular four-year course has been arranged and provision has also been made for a post-graduate course for anybody wishing to specialize. The present faculty consists of Edward F. Geiger, director; George Gregory, C. B. Avery, D. R. Goldsmith, Frank Bartlett, Miss Gertrude Carey and Miss Jessie Case.

Pneumonia Follows a Cold

But never follows the use of Foley's Honey and Tar, which checks the cough and expels the cold. M. Stockwell, Hannibal, Mo., says, "It beats all the remedies I ever used. I contracted a bad cold and cough and was threatened with pneumonia. One bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar completely cured me." No opiates, just a reliable household medicine. VERIFY IT

The Proof Is In Duluth Almost at Your Door.

The public statement of a Duluth citizen is in itself strong proof for Duluth people, but confirmation strengthens the evidence.

Here is a Duluth citizen who testified years ago that Doan's Kidney Pills relieved sick kidneys and now states the cure was permanent. Can any sufferer from kidney ills ask better proof? You can investigate. The case is right at home.

Mrs. M. McLean, 4324 Gilliat St., Duluth, Minn., says: "All that was said in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills by a member of my family when he publicly recommended them in 1898 still holds good. During the past several years this person has not been obliged to use a kidney medicine, for the cure has been permanent. Doan's Kidney Pills effected a cure of kidney trouble in this case and also brought relief from a dull, heavy ache in the loins. The person of whom I am speaking recommends Doan's Kidney Pills highly when anyone asks him about them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

MINSTRELS ARE A HIT

Elks' Home Talent Show Pleases Big Audience at Lyceum.

The Lyceum theater was crowded last night with an audience that appeared highly pleased with the Elks' minstrel show. The jokes were new and most of them referred to local Elks. The funny stuff was original from the first joke about reciprocity to the last one about Col. W. H. Henry. The songs were the latest hits and the ballads were tuneful. A feature of the show was the choral singing, the chorus having been well drilled under Prof. A. F. M. Custance.

Some local citizens got a few sharp thrusts from the end men and the singers of the funny songs. The crowd knew them and appreciated the shafts of satire and the harmless joke explosives.

Charles O. Applehagen sang "I'd Like to Make Love to You," following the opening chorus. "What Am I Going to Do to Make You Love Me," was sung by Rudolph Bjorkquist. Don Cole gave "All That I Ask Is Love," and Joseph Kremer sang "Hammock Love Song." The ballad singers were excellent and they were tunefully assisted by the chorus.

The end songs made a hit. "Kelly's Gone to Kingdom Come," was sung by Stanley Lamb. "Just Send for Me," was the offering of John Tresise. "I Love It," was sung by "Dude" Abraham. All of the singers got the glad hand. In the joke-fest Stanley Lamb, John Tresise, "Dude" Abraham and Art Shawhan passed the funny stuff with Allen Tilensworth, middle man, who looked like a modern edition of William H. West, as the buffer.

The closing feature of the first half was "Auld Lang Syne," sung by Master Donald Alexander and chorus. It was one of the best numbers of the program.

E. N. Haagensen's "wonder book" stunt headed the olio and it was a screen. In the wonder book were some local jokes and sketches of well-known Elks. Mr. Haagensen has an easy stage presence and a humorous dialect. The Scottish Rite male quartet sang a unique song which was original and sang a tuneful song as an encore.

A. R. White and T. D. McLaughlin mixed up sense and nonsense and put the concoction over the footlights in great shape. They were in blackface. Both sang and danced well. The program was concluded with a musical sketch showing a group of school boys during recess. They sing and poke fun at a big "cry-baby" who gets "in bad" with the teacher. The boy soprano singers included Donald Alexander, Jack Shields, Wallace Rodney, Fred Currier, Thomas Cole, Henry Hauck, James Cole, Clarence F. Cox, Clarence Cole, Carl Fritzen, George Cole, John Fritzen and George Watts.

The show was better than the average amateur performance and the musical numbers were tuneful and well sung. The minstrels will be given at the Lyceum again tonight under the direction of Prof. A. F. M. Custance.

Green Room Gossip.

"Madame X" will be the attraction at the Lyceum theater Friday and Saturday with a Saturday matinee.

This is one of the biggest dramatic successes of recent years, and this will be its first appearance in Duluth. A notable company is promised by Mr. Savage, the producer.

From a school teacher to a chorus girl was the step taken by Miss Irene Romain, who is appearing at the Orpheum this week in a pianologue.

Miss Romain is the granddaughter of Charles Edward Romain, one of the most prominent men in public life in Canada. The Romain family is widely known in the Dominion. Miss Romain's parents lived in Chicago, and she studied to become a teacher. A short experience in one of the Chicago schools was sufficient, however, and she promptly gave up her plans and joined the chorus of Richard Carle's "Spring Chicken." She did not remain long in the chorus, but soon put her musical ability to better use and secured a vaudeville engagement. She secured the Orpheum circut bookings the second season that she was in vaudeville, and this is her second tour of the circuit.

Miss Romain's ambitions do not stop with vaudeville, but she is anxious for a musical career, and is planning an European trip to add to her musical knowledge.

"We ventriloquists sometimes have considerable amusement at the expense of the public," said Trovello, who is appearing at the Empress this week, "but one time I played a joke which almost caused me considerable trouble. At the time of the famous Willie Whitla kidnaping case, I was appearing at one of the New York theaters and during the week had an engagement to appear at the Astor House at a banquet which was being held by a well known New York club. After my performance at the theater I took two of my small dummies and went up to the banquet, and as I did not go on until after 1 o'clock, it was quite late when I took the subway train to return home. I had wrapped my dummies up carelessly and had them sitting beside me in the seat, but the hair and shoes of the dummies protruded from the wrapping so that every one could see them. I was reading the paper and upon looking up, I saw that all the passengers were casting suspicious looks in my direction. I was immediately aware of the fact that they thought I was a kidnaper, and I make the thing stronger. I made the dummies cry and ask to be taken home, and when I got to my station there was a policeman there who would have taken me to the station house if I hadn't unwrapped them and shown him what they were. Although I had considerable amusement and caused lots of excitement, I would never try it again as the policeman almost took me without giving me a chance to explain."

The Lyric theater was crowded at every performance and this week is expected to set a record for attendance at the popular photoplay house. The attraction is the feature film, "Lassoeing Wild Animals in Africa," one of the most sensational films ever shown in Duluth.

"Buffalo Jones" and his band of cowboys essayed one of the most difficult feats known in the history of motion pictures when they penetrated the wilds of Africa and obtained the film now being shown at the Lyric. They lassooed a wart hog, a hartebeast, an eland, a giraffe, a rhinoceros, a zebra, a cereval cat, a cheetah and a full grown lioness. The capture of the lioness is probably the most sensational exploit shown by the film. The pictures are faithful in their depiction of the dangers encountered and are attracting a great deal of attention wherever they are shown.

"Carmencita, the Faithful," is an excellent dramatic film on this week's bill. I. S. Mistachkin is singing "I'll Come Back."

"What to Do With Our Old" is the feature film at the Odeum photoplay house this week. "Too Much Mother-in-Law" furnishes good comedy and "Curse of the Red Moon" is a strong dramatic film. "Night Brings the Stars and You," is Miss Maddox's song.

INCREASE IN EARNINGS OF WATER PLANT

were pumped, the cost per 1,000,000 gallons in 1907 being $8.52 and in 1910 $8.41, the gain on pumping cost thus being $276. The cost of new steam pumps at the time the electric pump was installed would have been $90,000, while the electric pump would have cost $25,000, the saving there being $65,000. There is an additional saving of 5 per cent of $65,000, or $3,250 in interest and repairs by the use of the electric pump, the total saving being $3,525 in addition to the $65,000 on the initial cost. The board says:

"Further, there was an actual saving by the use of electricity in supplying the middle system of over $1,300 as compared with the use of gas, and had there been no interruption in the use of electricity the actual saving would have been $1,600."

The aggregate increase in the gas and water pipe laid during the year was eighteen miles, of which sixteen miles were laid from the surplus earnings of the department for 1910.

The aggregate surplus of the department for the year 1910 was $122,599.86, bringing the surplus of the department since the city's ownership of the water and light plant to $557,435.29, of which $562,988.92 has been expended in new construction, "principally new extensions, and has thereby become a contributor to the surplus earnings of the department for the people's benefit," says the board's report.

Comparison of Conditions.

In introducing his report, which is made up largely of tables, L. N. Case, the manager, says:

"A comparison of certain facts between the conditions that prevailed the first year that the city operated the plants and those of 1910 are of interest as showing what has been accomplished so far in the history of this particular municipally operated water and gas plants.

"Miles of pipe purchased, water, 53; gas, 29.

"Now, water, 114; gas, 99.

"Gas sold, 1898, 20 million feet.

"Gas sold, 1910, 264 million feet.

"Gas rates, light, $1.90; heat, $1.00.

"Now, light, 75 cents; heat, 75 cents; heating premises, 60 cents.

"Water rates, 37½ cents per 100 feet.

"Now 17½ cents per 100 feet.

"Water rates received in first year, $83,000.

"Water rates received in 1910, $212,000.

"Gas rates received first year, $28,000.

"Gas rates received in 1910, $204,000.

"Both water and gas rates at less than one-half those prevailing when the city purchased.

"Pumping works in 1898, 1; now, 6.

Big Reductions.

"The total reductions of both water and gas rates during the twelve years' operations, together with those of hydrant rentals, water meters, service extensions and lawn sprinkling aggregate fully $2,500,000.

"The board has expended in construction from the sale of bonds $650,000 and from its earnings $553,000.

"Gas, formerly supplied in the central portions of the city only, is now being furnished all over the hillside, out as far as the Catholic orphanage on Woodland avenue, as far east as Sixty-fourth avenue east, all over Lakeside, and gas mains are being rapidly paralleled with the water mains in West Duluth, and with gas entirely at equable and satisfactory pressures.

"Five independent pumping systems have been installed on account of the variable topography of the city, and which necessarily increases the cost of supplying water to its residents.

"As the water supplied these various systems, with the exception of Duluth Heights, is first pumped at Lakewood, an understanding of the increased expense of operating the systems is shown by the fact that the expense of pumping at Lakewood including repairs to machinery was but .87 cent per 1,000 gallons, while calculating all of the expenses of the various systems the cost is 1.15 cents per 1,000 gallons."

Independent Accounts.

In regard to the independent and self-supporting accounts, the manager says:

"It is provided in the city charter that for the purpose of promoting the business of the department, the board may engage in the purchase and sale of water meters, stoves, lamps and other appliances.

"It has been the principle with the board from the beginning that these appliances should be supplied at a cost that will cover the expense only, and of the best kinds that the market could furnish.

"In regulating these prices care has been taken that, rather than be operated at a loss, there should be a small gain. This is shown in the following statements to have slowly accumulated a surplus in each of the four independent and self-supporting accounts carried on our books. The surplus on service extensions is much larger than the other accounts but as these extensions are charged for by the foot at $1 from the center of the street, the results are variable.

"The expenditures and receipts during the year were as follows:

	Expenditures.	Receipts.
Water Meters	$14,313.53	$13,691.04
Service Extensions	16,218.08	20,198.98

The gas sold during the year amounted to 264,442,700 feet at a cost of $105,725.21. The department used 3,969,350 feet, costing $1,587.73. Engineers and firemen were paid $2,119.98, the coal cost was $1,186.49 and the material cost $25.94, the total cost being $110,646.55, an average cost of 41.22 cents per 1,000 feet.

Bonquet for Department.

Mr. Case winds up his report with the following:

"One of our customers, a gentleman well known and highly respected, said on a certain occasion:

"'I confess that I know but little about this water and gas business, but there is one thing that I do know, and that is that previous to the purchase of the plant by the city I paid $37.50 water rates at my house. Very soon after the purchase the rates commenced being reduced until I finally paid $17.50. Recently you required a meter to be placed on my consumption and I am now paying $12.

"'The board is paying its bills and is accumulating a handsome surplus each year. What more do I want? What more can anybody ask? The proof of the pudding is in the eating.'"

Condition of Streets.

The following statement of the methods used in making extensions is contained in the report of the board:

"A subject which has been given considerable attention by the public, but which we believe is still very imperfectly understood, is the method of the department in the making of extensions and repairs of mains and the installation of services from the mains to the curb.

"Almost invariably the extensions of the mains are made by contractors with the board, under certain specifications. At the conclusion of the work payments are made under the following article of the general specifications of the board:

"Sec. 23. * * * The balance (due contractor) will then be paid by the board to the contractor within thirty days after the date of such estimate, less 10 per cent on the total value of the work, at the manager's estimate, which 10 per cent shall be retained and reserved by the board until the contractor shall have furnished a certificate from the board of public works that the street is left in a condition staisfactory to them. * * * Should the circumstances require immediate action, the board will make the necessary repairs and deduct the cost of the same from the said final 10 per cent.

Permits Taken Out.

"In the laying of service pipes or in making repairs to mains or services, it permit is taken out by the department from the board of public works; and if in paved streets or streets about to be paved, the earth excavated is hauled away and the trench is backfilled with sand, after which it is planked over and is left, by agreement with the board of public works, for that board to repave at the expense of this department. In ordinary unpaved streets, the earth excavated is returned to the trench and rounded up and left to settle. In the extension of services a sewer pipe is commonly laid in the same trench with the water and gas pipes, and if it is on the east side of an avenue or the north side of a street, the entire excavation and backfilling is done by a plumber under a permit from the board of public works, the department simply laying the water and gas pipes in the trench when it is ready. Nevertheless, when one of the trenches is found objectionable it is usually the department that is blamed.

"A complaint was made not long since of five unsightly ridges or settlings in a certain street, left in that condition as the complaint said, by the department. Supt. Johnson was instructed to personally visit and inspect these trenches and to put them in proper condition. His report was that the only one whose complaint of had been done by the department, but by plumbers as described above.

"The unsightly ridges so frequently complained of are not found in paved streets, and seldom in graded streets, but are in outlying ungraded streets where there has previously been neither water nor gas pipes.

"Other and more expensive ways of backfilling might be adopted by the board, but the more expensive extensions are made the less there is left of the surplus earnings of the department for other extensions. Fifty-four extensions have been made this year, and although there a number of other applications on file yet they could not be complied with this year on account of the lack of funds."

COPPER TRUST INQUIRY.

No Action Taken on Resolution By Senate Committee.

Washington, Feb. 21.—The senate judiciary committee took no action yesterday on Senator Clapp's resolution to investigate Amalgamated Copper and other companies. Senator Clark of Wyoming, chairman of the committee and Senator Nelson, ranking member, were both engaged on the floor of the senate in the debate on the direct election of senators.

During the afternoon Attorney General Wickersham appeared at the capitol and conferred with several senators. If no action is taken by the committee during the next few days a motion will probably be made to discharge it from further consideration of the resolution, thus bringing it before the senate. When it comes up Senator La Follette will have something to say in reference to the alleged copper trust.

One Way of Saving a Baby—Free to Try

The mother does not live who would not do all in her power to keep her child healthy, but often she does not know how. So when a doctor of standing points the way all can afford to listen.

It is an accepted fact that nine out of ten of the troubles of infants and children is intestinal. You notice it by the fact that the child is constipated, it belches, is peevish and cries. Don't give a remedy that contains an opiate, because the child will get in the habit of needing it, and don't become alarmed and run at once for a doctor.

Try a scientific laxative first. Give a small dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the remedy that is intended for the use of children. It is mild, gentle and non-griping. The remedy is absolutely pure and is guaranteed in every particular. Mrs. Toomey of Emingsville, Pa., and Mrs. Fred Croms of Alanson, Mich., never give their children anything else. These are only a few among thousands of women.

You can buy a fifty cent or one dollar bottle of any nearby druggist, for they have all sold it for a generation, but if you want to test it on your child first send your address to Dr. Caldwell and he will cheerfully send you a free sample bottle.

Dr. Caldwell does not feel that the purchase of his remedy ends his obligation. He has specialized in stomach, liver and bowel diseases for over forty years and will be pleased to give the reader any advice on the subject free of charge. All are welcome to write him. Whether for the medical advice or the free sample address him Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 541 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Drink Beer With Your Meals

GOOD beer, unlike the other beverages generally used at meal time, has a value beyond its thirst-quenching and refreshing qualities. The malt contained is in itself a food, the hops provide a valuable tonic and the small percentage of alcohol is a valuable aid to digestion. Choose a beer that is absolutely pure, that is aged so perfectly it cannot cause billiousness and that has a genuinely delicious flavor. Such a beer is

Free Rheumatism Cure

A Home Cure Will Be Given FREE By One Who Had It.

In the spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bed ridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.

I will send a free trial of this precious remedy by mail, postpaid to any sufferer who writes for it. Just fill out the coupon below and mail it to me today.

How to Have the Best Cough Syrup and Save $2, by Making It at Home.

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. If you take one pint of granulated sugar, add ½ pint of warm water and stir about 2 minutes, you have as good syrup as money could buy.

If you will then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents' worth) in a pint bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup, you will have as much cough syrup as you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly.

And you will find it the best cough syrup you ever used—even in whooping cough. You can feel it take hold—usually stops the most severe cough in 24 hours. It is just laxative enough, has a good tonic effect and taste is pleasant. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

It is a splendid remedy, too, for hoarseness, asthma, chest pains, etc.

Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guiaicol and all the healing pine elements. No other preparation will work in this formula.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup is now used and prized in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has often been imitated but never successfully.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

CENTRAL HAS GOOD RECORD

High School Basket Ball Team Has Best Claim to the Championship.

Students Believe the Superior Quints Will Be Defeated in Duluth.

The Central high school basket ball team has been making an enviable record for itself the present season and is now fighting it out with the Central high and Normal schools of Superior for the Head of the Lakes championship.

The Central five has been defeated by both these schools on the Superior floors and has won from Normal at the local gymnasium. The rooters of Central are of the opinion that the Duluth team can win from the Superior Central team on the Duluth floor. In case of a victory over Superior Central, extra games will be scheduled with that school and Normal to play off the tie.

Central has one victory over the Y. M. C. A. team in the city championship games and is confident of another when the teams meet on the high school floor.

Although the Duluth high school has only played a few games with other high schools of Minnesota, still the Central team is claiming the championship of the state, and from its record this claim to the title is better than that of any other high school of Minnesota. Central has defeated the Sandstone, Little Falls and St. Paul Central high schools, and expects to have little trouble in defeating the Aitkin and Cloquet fives.

The record of the Central quint to date is as follows:

Dec. 23—D. C. H. S., 69; Alumni, 30.
Jan. 13—D. C. H. S., 45; Sandstone 14.
Jan. 24—D. C. H. S., 22; Y. M. C. A., 20.
Jan. 27—D. C. H. S., 29; Superior normal, 17.
Feb. 4—D. C. H. S., 22; Superior Central, 27.
Feb. 7—D. C. H. S., 9; Normal, 33.
Feb. 10—D. C. H. S., 30; Little Falls, 29.
Feb. 11—D. C. H. S., 50; St. Paul Central, 17.

The students at Central have been taking a great deal of interest in basket ball the present season and much enthusiasm has been shown at the games.

All the backers of the team in the high school and among the alumni as well, are planning to help the team win from St. Paul Central next Friday evening by attending the game and rooting.

ST. PAUL FIVE WILL PLAY HERE

Will Meet the Central High School Quint at Basket Ball.

The Central basket ball team will play the Aitkin high school team next Wednesday, Feb. 22 at Aitkin.

The Aitkin team has been making a record the present season, but from the showings of both teams, Central should win by a large margin.

On Friday, Feb. 24, the St. Paul Central five will meet Duluth Central at the local school gymnasium. Although the Central five gave the St. Paul team a very severe beating in St. Paul a few weeks ago, the Saintly City team has improved considerably and with the addition of two of their stars, who were kept out of the last game, will have an even chance of victory.

A large and enthusiastic bunch of rooters is expected to attend the St. Paul game, which will be the only game played at home this week.

The Central quint will finish this week's schedule at Cloquet on next Saturday, Feb. 25, where it will meet the Cloquet high school team.

Those who will make the Aitkin and Cloquet trips are: Coach Schillings, Capt. Harris, Johnson, Osman, Solheim, Jeronimus and Waldron.

K. Harris will probably be taken on the Cloquet trip.

SEAMAN KILLED IN BOXING BOUT

Washington, Feb. 21.—In a friendly boxing bout on board the battleship New Hampshire, now engaged in battle practice at Guantanamo, Cuba, Edward Joseph Scully, a seaman, was accidentally killed, according to a wireless dispatch received by the navy department yesterday from Capt. Rodgers, commanding the New Hampshire.

The dispatch stated that the seaman was boxing with a friend and was accidentally killed by a fall. It is said at the navy department that, following the usual custom, Admiral Schroeder, commander-in-chief of the fleet, undoubtedly will appoint a court to investigate the matter.

Scully was a native of Providence, R. I., where his father, Michael J. Scully, is now living.

Sheridan Gets Decision.

Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 21.—Mickey Sheridan of Chicago was given the decision over Joe Phillips of Providence in a 15-round bout last night near this city. George Kilson, the New York bantam, fought a draw with Fighting Mungle of this city as a preliminary.

COMMENTS AND OPINIONS ON THE SPORTING PARADE

Bill's Views on Sporting Things—Is Carl Morris' Press Agent Too Busy?—The Road to the Ski Hill—The Prize Ivory-Top in Baseball History.

(BY BRUCE.)

"Regarding the sporting life, Bill says to George, 'the highly moral folks being kicking on a doing that was held in our midst not so very long ago,' regarding the shafts of gossip and so on that have come forth, it might be gathered that some folks be plum against all things that smack of the athletic entertainment.

"As one fellow says the other day, they come us we'uns when some widow lost her horse that drawed the cart which the kid hauled to town. The horse got runned over, it did, and there was the lady without means to getting three meals a day. So they come to us—us who is fond of fights and maybe a drink now and then, and asks us to ante in for a four-legged critter that is gentle and kindly and will do right well for the widow's kid. And we did and no more was said regardin' it.

"Then again on Christmas time they comes around and suggests that we-us that is fond of a quiet little fight now and then and a long talk when the lights is runnin' high and there is music and the atmosphere is filled with nerves; and we antes again, plum joyous of the chance to give the various kids and women the chance to believe for the minute that there is some good and cheer in this old crust of ours. And the incident is closed and we say no more regardin' it.

"Then again there is the time the kid is burned bad and he is a charity patient and some of the boys got together—us that enjoy the things of life as they come; going along easy like and cheering when cheer does the most good, believing that joy was put in the world for some one to find—we pay for the care of this poor, burned little kiddo, and finally he gets well, and the incident is closed and nothing further is said regardin' it.

"And then some little incident is harmlessly held and some maverick gets loose from the reservation and starts stampedin', hollerin' as loud as his lungs will permit him that the community has been contaminated.

"There is different views regardin' everything, from broodin' over whether the children of Israel was natural fighters or was mere mood movers, to that other perplexin' theory whether our ancestors lives in trees or played croquet on the level.

"Some of us likes one thing and others of us another. Some of us likes to sit at home and become lost in the gentle page of patient print; while yet others like to hasten for the early street car after the supper is over and listen to the birds sing in the cafes. There are various and diverse amusements that suggest themselves to the mind of man.

"But all and all, George, figurin' it out both ways from the middle, it might be said that us ones who enjoys things on the strenuous brands are not always the worst fellows in the world."

These days we are hearing about the many things that Carl Morris, the biggest splash Oklahoma has made since the recent constitution was written, and the wonderment is strong whether the press agent has not something to do with all these things that the public press is teeming with.

Is It All About the Press Action?

Herein we have it that he threatened to lick a fighter by the name of Britt, if the fighter in turn did not promise faithfully to permit the younger brother of the house of Morris to win the forthcoming battle some way.

Then again we read that Morris would not fight Schreck because he was not in the least positive that he could hand one of the K. O. things to Michael Casslus. The heavyweight who is not plum positive that he can beat the German beer destroyer in any round that is named by any man by the corner of the man fighting said Schreck had best stop dreaming of the pugilistic plums that grew on the championship tree.

It may be the gentle press agent in the camp of Morris who is promoting all this talk. A trip East is planned to complete the education of the brave engineer, and before invading the country of the pale brother with the boiled shirt and high collar, it, mayhap, is planned with cunning mind to have Morris more talked about with the view of coaxing the iron men into the box office.

Why Didn't They Clean the Road.

It might be said that the explanation of why the officials of the ski club did not have the road cleaned when the big tournament of Feb. 12 was held, is interesting at least.

The officials state that in the morning the snow was so hard that it was quite possible to walk on it. Then came the various rigs and people on foot and trampled the hard crust into soft and confounding substance that hindered the foot of the weary wayfarer.

Again the officials state that because some of the conveyances did not drive clear to the gates of the ski grounds, should hardly be held against the ski club officials, as they have nothing whatever to do with the conveyances.

In the past the ski club officials have always given the public the very best and they have many times given this best at an individual pecuniary loss to the directors of the club. Because the roads happened to be bad on the day one of the best ordered meets ever held in this part of the Northwest was pulled off, that fact should hardly be held against the club, which deserves credit for the way it has built up a great sport.

Hand It to One Large Anderson.

Some fan has written in to inquire regarding the biggest "bonehead" play ever made in the history of baseball. There have been many and there may be a question regarding the matter. But the play that is generally called the prize bruised brain incident was one performed by Big Anderson, who, somehow, got into the big league.

He reached first on a hit and possibly observed that second and third were occupied. Possibly also this very pertitent fact escaped his memory. The game was a vital one and every run counted. Anderson resolved on something desperate. It was desperate, all right. He stole second; yes indeed, purloined second with the sacks crowded.

History has not recorded what the manager said to him. Any man who has been downtown nights after 10:30 several seasons and who, to boot, possesses imagination, can imagine what was said to Anderson. He soon made his exit from the big league, and do you wonder?

FITGERS IN NINTH PLACE

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 21.—Three Duluth teams appeared in St. Paul yesterday. They took their turns in the five-men event in the evening, the Fitgers rolling close to the famous Chalmers-Detroits and getting 2,734 for ninth place in the five-men department of the big International Bowling association tourney.

The Three Winners rolled next in order with 2,664, and the Stanley Shoes made it 2,555. The scores of these teams will get in on the lower part of the prize money list.

Duluth bowlers will roll in the individuals and doubles today, and it is expected they may get a high standing. G. Olson of the Fitgers proved himself a master bowler, getting three splits of difficult nature in his last game, each of which he cut down. Johns of the Three Winners made a sensational series of five strikes in his third game, bringing the bowlers to their feet.

FAIRMONTS ARE DEFEATED

Team Standing.

Kodahpas	3	2	.750
Big Duluths	4	2	.667
Fairmonts	1	6	.143
Park Points	0	6	.000

Last evening the Kodahpas defeated the Fairmont hockey team by the score of 5 to 2. The victory of the Kodahpas places them a game behind the Adams, the league leaders, and also makes them contenders for the pennant.

Play was somewhat interfered with because of the roughness of the ice. Team work and clean passing were somewhat handicapped by the unevenness of the surface. However the game was fast and hotly contested all the way through. The Kodahpas had to have the contest and they played fast, hard hockey from bell to bell.

The Fairmonts scored first through a goal by Blais. Powers of the Kodahpas secured the second net, the first half ending even. Taylor scored for the Kodahpas shortly after the second half had opened, MacRea registered shortly afterwards, Burg of the Fairmonts getting the second score for his side shortly after MacRea's net. Taylor made the two other scores of his team, his playing being the feature of the game.

The line up:

THE PROGRAM FOR THE FEBRUARY ATHLETIC SHOW

CHARLES HEROLD,
Muscular Marvel.

One of the decidedly novel features of the big athletic bill of Thursday evening, which will be held at the Lyceum theater, will be the first appearance in the Northwest of Charles Herold, possessing one of the most marvelously developed physiques ever seen in America.

This wonderful man has trained for the control of his muscles as well as strength and prides himself more on the symmetry of his physique than he does on his wonderful strength. It is an education to see his act, which has been given in the Berlin music halls and in cities of the continent.

He has made physical culture a life study and has made his physique as near perfect as it is within the power of man to make it.

Herold will give a cabinet exhibition, one that is said to surpass the famous exhibition of Eugene Sandow, and will also give a strength display.

The promoters of the February entertainment under the auspices of the Greater Duluth Athletic association are desirous that the women attend the exhibition. At the last show there was an unusually large number of women present, and they enjoyed every detail of the show.

Charles Cutler and Ole Sampson, the man who has been wrestling his way to the top of his class, will meet in a finish contest. Gunnar Gronlund, world's champion Finnish middleweight, who has just returned from Finland, where he met and defeated some of the best wrestlers in that country, will meet William Trepanier of the Duluth Athletic club in the semi-windup of the show.

This should be one of the best shows given the present winter, as the promoters have endeavored to give the fans who have so liberally attended the matches, the best that it is possible to bring to this city.

LONDON WROUGHT UP OVER FIGHT

London, Feb. 21.—Since Slavin fought Jackson, no match has excited the keen interest of the English press and public as the contest scheduled for tonight between Bill Lang, the ex-heavyweight champion of Australia, and Sam Langford, the American colored fighter, who holds the championship of England.

Both men are trained to perfection, and a hard battle is expected. The men will meet at McIntosh's London club, and the sporting fraternity who hope to see the go are of the opinion that the fight will last the greater part of twenty rounds. Public sympathy is in favor of Lang, but while the result is considered open, the odds favor Langford.

PAID COACH FOR OLD ELI

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 21—A change in the football coaching system at Yale has been recommended by an alumni advisory committee, and is now being considered by the athletic officials. The scheme is to have a permanent coach, like Haughton at Harvard, with four or five assistants.

The plan which Capt. How is said to be in favor of is the securing of Howard Jones at a salary of $5,000 and four men to help him. The plan is bound to meet with strenuous opposition. The claim is made that despite the large profits made in football, the plan would be too expensive.

Another criticism made is that it will bring a charge of professionalism against Yale if a high salary is paid to the football coach. The main reason urging a change is, of course, the fact that no Yale team has been able to cross Harvard's goal line since the fall of 1907.

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED

To the Sporting Editor of The Herald:

Just a few questions regarding some of the "world's champions." We note that a Mr. Miller, "world's champion" of St. Paul, on March 8 will meet Henry Gehring, "world's champion" of Cleveland, Ohio.

I would like to ask, where are those men perched on the championship ladder? It seems that after all the dope is written in your columns regarding the Sailor Jack Young-Miller match, that Mr. Miller would either meet the sailor on reasonable terms, or give the Dear Public some satisfactory explanation.

It seems the Twin City sport writers have formed a "booster club" for the benefit of the Miller person. While the "world's champion" turns a deaf ear to the worthy sailor. Hoping this kind of "sport" will be abolished before the tochold gets any consideration, I am, yours truly,

DANIELS ADDS ANOTHER RECORD TO HIS LIST.

New York, Feb. 21.—Charles M. Daniels, the New York Athletic club's aquatic expert, added another world's record to his already long list in a 200-meter swim in the club's tank yesterday. Starting in a sanctioned contest with J. H. Reilly, New York A. C., as a competitor, and A. A. U. officials in charge, Daniels made the 200 meters in 2 min. 28 2-5 sec. The old record, 2 min. 30 sec., was made by F. E. Beaurepaire of Australia on Aug. 9, 1910, at Exeter, Eng.

WAR THREATENED IN RANKS OF NATIONAL SKI CLUBS

Ishpeming's Refusal to Invite Duluth Club to Meet Starts Trouble.

Professional Riders Boycott Local Club and Drastic Action May Follow.

Wilful misrepresentation is laid at the door of Ole Feiring and John Evenson, professional ski riders of the Duluth Ski club, regarding their statement that the local club refused to send them to the ski meet at Ironwood, Mich., which was held last Sunday.

As a result of the statements of the two Duluth riders, who have always been given the best of treatment by the Duluth Ski club, it is claimed, the local club has been boycotted by the professional riders, the two local men being the first to start an action that may result in a ski war among the clubs of the National association.

Norton Mattocks and P. C. Wright, the latter the financial secretary of the Duluth Ski club, stated this morning that the plans for the big tournament of March 5 would go on and that it is possible that professional riders will be eliminated from the events and will be kept out of the tournaments of the Duluth Ski club for all time to come.

Mr. Mattocks stated this morning that the St. Paul club had about decided to do away with the professional riders, and that while no action had been taken as yet by the local club, and any prediction at this time was unofficial, it is very possible that professional riders may be eliminated from the tournaments held on the Chester Park hill.

War Is Begun.

It looks as if there is a small sized war started in the national association. The Duluth Ski club received no invitation to send riders to the Ishpeming, Mich., meet. This, according to the local officials, is the cause of the trouble between the Duluth club and the professional riders.

According to the story told today by two of the officers of the Duluth club, checks were being made out for Evenson and Feiring, in fact Evenson's name was written on the stub of Financial Secretary Wright's check book, when Evenson and Feiring, angry because the Duluth Ski club refused to send those riders to a meet where the club had received no invitation, namely the Ishpeming tournament, walked out of the office refusing to take checks for their expenses to Ironwood, Mich., and then went to that little city and started the trouble that has resulted in the boycott of the local club.

The Duluth club is too big and strong to be injured by action that seems unfair and unjustified, and according to the statement of the directors, is prepared to fight it out to the very last ditch.

It may be that all amateur events will be featured in the tournament of March 5, and if this plan is started at Duluth, it may mean the death knell of the professional rider, as far as Duluth is concerned.

Local officials of the Duluth Ski club charge that the Ishpeming club officials are jealous of the success that has been made by the local club and adopted the petty means of refusing to invite the Duluth Ski club to participate in the tournament scheduled for tomorrow, as a means of venting this spite.

Evenson and Feiring have been sent to every tournament of importance the present season, their expenses paid and every consideration paid to them by the local club.

Following is the resolution of the professional ski riders, boycotting the Duluth club, the biggest organization in the National Association of Ski clubs, and the club that has paid the most into the treasury of the organization:

"To the Officers of Duluth Ski Club, Duluth, Minn.:

"Since the ski sport was started and clubs organized in this country, it has been a custom to send representatives to all the tournaments held by clubs belonging to the National Ski association.

"The railroad fare, both ways, was paid by the clubs that contributed the riders.

"This year the Duluth Ski club, which is one of the largest in the country, makes an exception to this custom by refusing to send representatives to more than one tournament.

"Owing to this treatment, it is hereby agreed by the professional riders of the Duluth Ski club not to represent that club at any tournaments held anywhere hereafter.

Furthermore it is agreed by the undersigned professional riders not to partake in tournaments held by the Duluth Ski club in the future:

John Evenson, Duluth.
Ole Feiring, Duluth.
Toller Hemmestvedt, Chippewa Falls, Wis.
Sigurd Hanson, Hibbing, Minn.
Jacob Gjestad, Stoughton, Wis.
Erling Landvick, Stoughton, Wis.
Martin Iverson, Red Wing, Minn.
Ole Nordby, Superior, Wis.
Oscar Gunderson, Chippewa Falls, Wis.
John Dela, Chippewa Falls, Wis.
Lars Haugen, Chippewa Falls, Wis.
August Nordby, Superior, Wis.
Erick Nyberg, Ironwood, Mich.
Anders Haugen, Chippewa Falls, Wis.
Carl Ek, Red Wing, Minn.
Francis Kempe, national champion, Red Wing, Minn.
David Lind, Ishpeming, Mich.
Fred Iverson, Red Wing, Minn.

N. B.—Feiring and Evenson were so assured of fact that new records would be made at Ironwood tournament that they paid their own expenses to get here and participate Feb. 19.

JIMMY SLAGLE HAS RETIRED FROM BASEBALL.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 21.—"Jimmy" Slagle, center fielder of the Baltimore Eastern league baseball team, announced his retirement from the game in a letter to Manager "Jack" Dunn of the Baltimore club received yesterday. Slagle made a great reputation as an outfielder on the Chicago National league team, coming to Baltimore two years ago. His throwing arm gave him considerable trouble last season.

AMERICAN CURLERS WIN INTERNATIONAL AT BOSTON.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 21.—The international curling championship and the Gordon medal were won by the United States teams at the Boston arena yesterday when the Canadian teams were defeated by the total score of 149 to 137 in the nineteenth annual tournament.

Canada has won the title thirteen times while this the sixth victory for the United States. Canada won last year. The United States teams won in five of the eight finks yesterday.

WILL WEAR BLUE.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—Blue will be the prevailing color scheme with the Cubs when they invade St. Louis April 20 for the first combat of the year on foreign fields.

The time-honored white suiting will continue on the home grounds with possibly a slight change, making room for a blue line running down the material.

President Murphy started work Sunday on the new clubhouse to be erected at the West side park for the use of the home club. The structure will be two stories high, 40 by 64 feet, and will boast of a stone front, metal lockers for the athletes, a steam room and many other conveniences. The new clubhouse will cost about $14,000.

Bench Grinders, with carbon under wheels—regularly $2.75— special..... $1.83

You know that this summer will be a big, important summer for water sports. On the week beginning July 17, the Duluth Boat club will hold its water carnival. There will be boat races of all kinds. The Northwestern Rowing association expects to hold the regatta here. Then there will be the far-famed Venetian fete. Prizes and trophies will be given. You want to be on hand in your own motor boat. We want to talk motor boats with you, and show you how inexpensive a good motor boat is.

We can sell you a motor boat at almost any price you wish to pay. Family boats, speed boats or cruisers, plain or elaborate. Our extra special boat bargain is now on display in our show window. Price only..... $185

The up-keep expense on a motor boat is nothing compared to an auto. Practically all the expense consists of a little oil and gasoline—you don't even have to pay for a license tag.

Visit Kelley's this week. Get your order in early. Then we can insure prompt deliveries. Remember, you'll be sorry next summer if you don't order your boat now.

WHEAT IS OVERSOLD

Market Advances After Selling Off From a Weak Opening.

Snow in Eastern Kansas—Politics a Factor Again —Flax Off.

Duluth Board of Trade, Feb. 21.—Wheat advanced today in American markets although values dropped sharply at Winnipeg. The American markets became oversold after noon and regained the slight loss which took place in the forenoon. May wheat gained ¼@⅜c and July advanced ¼c. Cash wheat was ½@⅝c under May. The cash position at Minneapolis is much stronger than here and prices are higher.

Local elevators are not disposed to pay any premiums for wheat when they are uncertain whether or not they will be flooded with supplies later, chiefly on account of the proposed reciprocity agreement. The milling demand continues light as the flour trade is still lifeless. Durum wheat gained ⅜c, oats gained ⅛c, rye and barley were unchanged.

Flaxseed was weaker. May lost ½c. European markets are weak on account of resales of both oil and seed.

The wheat market was slightly lower today but trading was light and interest absent. Values, consequently, marked time and the market sunk in a rut. In the fact of a holiday there was no disposition to trade.

Cables came lower on account of pressure to sell Australian and Russian parcels. The weather in Argentina has turned favorable and the farm work is being conducted under first class circumstances.

In the Southwest there has been more snow and shipments to Kansas City fell off sharply in consequence. In the Northwest the movement continues small. The receipts at Minneapolis are not quite up to the milling demand and stocks are decreased slightly. Stocks here continue to pile up. The Eastern demand is dead.

The cash market was only moderately active and featureless.

Toward noon it was reported that Senator Carter of Montana, who is opposed to reciprocity, had said in an interview that he had consulted with President Taft. His conference confirmed him, he said, in the belief that the senate would pass the legislation in favor of reciprocity with Canada. On receipt of this news the market sagged.

MARKET GOSSIP

Charles H. Thornton, who is in Europe, is quoted by Dornbusch as saying that the United States, despite substitutes, will take at least 200,000 tons or 8,000,000 bu of linseed from exporting countries. More than half of this has already been shipped from Argentine.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool—The wehat market showed some disposition to sell off at the opening with values unchanged for March and May and July ¼d lower. Pressure was the result of the favorable weather in the American winter wheat belt. There was support in March on fears of shortage of contract and very few sellers. Following the opening there was further pressure and the distant months declined an additional ¼d to ½d. Blue Stem wheat sold at 6d decline and there is continued pressure to sell Australian and Russian. Just before mid-day there was some little ruby from the low on predictions of a decrease in visible here and at this time prices were ¼d to ⅜d lower than yesterday. The corn opening was slightly lower in sympathy with America but later prices steadied on covering by February shorts. Argentine —The weather continues favorably for farm work, the soil being moist with favorable temperatures. The recent rains has benefitted corn.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Substantial Decreases in European Visible Supply Increases Price.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—Substantial decreases in the European visible supply of wheat put traders here in a moderately bullish frame of mind today. Moreover, the response by foreign markets to the decline on this side yesterday turned out entirely too feeble for any practical use by the bulls. It was also noticed that the May option here was showing increased signs of congestion, and that the price of the delivery in Chicago was almost 10c under the same future at Liverpool. Opening figures were ½@¾c to ¾c higher than last night to ⅛c off. May started at 90⅝c to 90⅞c, a rise of ⅛c to a decline of ⅛c, and then ascended to 91@91⅛c.

Covering to avoid open trades during the holiday occasioned a further advance which was emphasized by a material decrease in the world's available stocks. The close was steady with May at 91⅜c, a net gain of ⅝c.

Corn ceased on account of weather. May opened a shade lower at 48¾c, rallied to 48⅝c and fell to 48⅝c.

Export sales led to a rally. The close was firm with May ⅝@½c net higher at 49½c.

Short selling by local speculators depressed oats. May started 1-16c off at 31⅝c, and declined to 31½@31⅝c.

Hardly any trade was in progress in the provision pit. In a nominal way prices were steady, with May options at $17.70 for pork, $9.37½ for lard, and $9.52½ for ribs.

Cotton Market.

New York, Feb. 21.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 8 to 13 points under renewed liquidation and local bear pressure, inspired by weak Liverpool cables and bearish private advices from English trade sources, based on the weakness of Egyptian, the accumulating Liverpool stock and general lack of confidence. Locally, however, there was a fair demand around the initial prices which carried the market off to within 17 points of the low level reached on the break of last week and the market during the middle of the morning steadied up 6 or 7 points on covering of shorts and buying by trade interests. There seemed to be a relatively good demand for March, attributed to covering of shorts on reports that notices will be promptly stopped next Friday.

Spot closed steady, 10 points lower: middling uplands, 14.00; do gulf, 14.25; sales, 600 bales. Futures closed easy; closing bids: February, 13.68; March, 13.72; April, 13.78; May, 13.89; June, 13.88; July, 13.88; August, 13.55; October, 12.56; December, 12.46.

STOCKS ARE SPIRITLESS

Trading in Gould Securities Chief Feature of the Session.

Transactions in Bond Market Are on an Enormous Scale.

New York, Feb. 21.—Trading in securities of the Gould roads was the prominent feature of the opening of the stock market today. Missouri Pacific and Wabash 4 per cent bonds advanced a point each, Wabash preferred ¾ and Wabash and Texas & Pacific ¼. The general list was fairly steady with few important changes. Southern Railway lost ½ and the copper shares were weak.

The bulk of the trading in the first hour was in the Gould securities which made further gains. Wabash 4's were the strongest, advancing 3¼ to a level more than 6 points over the price at the beginning of the week. The general market followed the advance to only a slight extent and later receded to slightly below last night's close. Central Railroad of New Jersey gained 7.

Evidence of recent inside buying of government securities, which was especially pronounced during the late session yesterday, attracted a large speculative following to these issues today. The strength displayed in that quarter was in contrast with the general market display of a measure of heaviness throughout the morning. The bond market, as was the case yesterday, is relatively more active than the stock market and was generally strong. Transactions were on an enormous scale with Wabash extension 4's, Missouri Pacific convertible 5's and the Wabash-Pittsburg terminal issues figuring for most of the business. At midday there was a better tone to the active stocks generally.

The market closed spiritless and heavy. In the last hour there was some renewal of activity but at the expense of values, the lowest prices of the day being then registered on the active issues, namely United States Steel, Reading and Union Pacific. In the final trading there was some recovery from lowest levels.
